It was the specter of these French spoliation claims, which the Republican leaders feared would be tacked on the bill in the final conference between the two houses, at so late a day in the session that the House might act on the conference report without an opportunity to vote against the French claims separately, that caused the clash.

DEMOCRATS WORRIED.

Democratic leaders conjured other motives and saw efforts to force an extra session so as to embarrass the Democratic party by plunging it into the throes of tariff revision before it had time to prepare for that work, while Republicans claimed that the cutting off of the spoliation feature was the purpose of the filibuster.

ARNOLD CASE NOW SOLVED?

Spokane Police Say Girl Is Found.

Young Woman Arrested in Idaho Believed to Be One Sought.

Two Men Claim Reward, One Declaring She Admitted Identity to Him.

Father, in New York, Claims Foul Play Has Ended Life of Daughter.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SPOKANE (Wash.) Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Has Dorothy Arnold, the missing New York heiress, for whom the police of an entire continent have been searching for weeks, been located?

C. A. Olson, proprietor of a Sand Point, Idaho, hotel, and W. J. Davis, owner of a laundry establishment in the same town, think so, and have backed their belief by telegraphing to New York to claim the $10,000 reward offered for her discovery.

Meanwhile a young woman giving the name of Dorothy Wilcox is held in the city hospital here, suffering from a nervous breakdown, after a night spent in the juvenile cell in the City Jail. She is claimed by the two men to be the missing heiress, and to one of them, it is said, she has admitted her identity.

The young woman appeared at the Wisconsin House Wednesday night and asked for a room, telling the proprietor she had no money, but that she was willing to do any kind of work to pay for the accommodation. Asked what kind of work she could do, she said she had never worked; that she had always had a maid at her New York home. She was assigned to the kitchen, but appeared at a loss as to what to do, apparently not even knowing how to wash dishes.

She was given a room, but slept only a few hours. When she left she told the proprietor she was going to Spokane.

Instead of leaving town, she applied to the Lakeside laundry for employment. W. J. Davis, the proprietor, says he suspected her of being Miss Arnold from the close resemblance she bore to newspaper pictures of the missing girl and informed her of his suspicions. She became nervous at the accusation, he says, and at first denied her identity, but later admitted that he was right.

Davis sent her to his home, where his wife gave her a room, in the meantime informing the Spokane police, who arrived and took her into custody late in the afternoon.

At the police station the girl was questioned closely, but denied all knowledge of the New York case. She said she had been in Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco and other Coast cities since leaving New York in December, and her baggage carried labels bearing out this statement.

The girl is about 25 years of age and resembles the pictures of the Arnold girl to a great extent. She is slightly slimmer in build, however, and her features show worry. At times she has the appearance of brooding over some secret trouble, and sits with her head bowed. Then she will look up suddenly and carry on a conversation in an intelligent manner, giving evidence of having been well educated.

The police here are confident she is the missing heiress, as are the two Sand Point men who first met her, and both of whom are now putting in a claim for the reward.

He was released from jail two days ago. Ben. Holt of Walla Walla and a Spokane man were joint purchasers of the invention. Buchanan's invention was worked out while he was in jail, and he made a conditional sale of the contrivance, which is intended to keep the threshing machine of a combined harvester level at all times no matter how steep the hill which may be run over. It is said to be far superior to any device of this kind in use.

SPEEDING EAST MILE A MINUTE.

SPECIAL TRAIN BEARS SICK MAN TO HOSPITAL.

Charles G. Gates, Son of "Betcher Million" Gates, Taken Suddenly Ill at Yuma—Engineers Breaking Records on Spectacular Flight Across Continent.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Charles G. Gates, son of John W. Gates, reached Kansas City at 4:50 o'clock this afternoon in a special car attached to Union Pacific train No. 28.

A locomotive started with the Gates car over the Rock Island system to Chicago as soon as it reached Kansas City. The car was in Kansas City only one minute.

The engineer who took charge of the Gates train said he expected to make a mile a minute between Kansas City and Chicago.

Gates was traveling eastward from California when he became suddenly ill at Yuma, Ariz., Thursday. The special train, two cars and a locomotive, was made up at once at Yuma and a dash for New York began. The special locomotive broke down today at Lawrence, Kan., after maintaining an average speed of more than sixty miles an hour all day.

Gates is growing weaker as a result of the strain of travel, but his condition is said not to be critical. No news was obtainable here as to the cause of his sudden illness.

All records for rapid traveling in the Southwest were broken as the Gates special car sped across the middle western plains. At one time the train averaged 85 miles an hour for several hours. This would not be considered remarkable in the East, but in this section through which the train was passing, it was wonderful speed. The average running time through the terrjtoy traversed this morning is twenty-four and one-half miles an hour.

By the time the train reaches New York it will have traveled 2989 miles. The route runs from Yuma through El Paso on the Mexican border, via Kansas City and Chicago. The regular rate for such a trip is $77.55, but it costs Gates at least $5000.

"I SHALL LOVE NEW LIFE," CRIES LADY DECIES ABOUT TO DEPART.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Vivien, Lady Decies, clapped her little hands together in her cabin de luxe on the Cunarder Carmania on which she and Lord Decies sailed for their honeymoon in Egypt, today, and told how delighted she is at the prospect of her entry into English society. She was so enthusiastic that her mother, Mrs. George J. Gould, held up a warning finger and said:

MOTHER CAUTIONS HER.

"My dear, don't be so demonstrative."

At first her small ladyship said she could not under any circumstances be interviewed—she was so nervous, but when the reporter asked her if she thought she would like the new life she is entering as a peeress of Great Britain, her black eyes snapped, a quick smile came over her face and she took her arm from around her mother's waist and clapped her hands.

"I shall love it," she cried, almost dancing on her tip-toes, "and I just know any American girl brought up in New York would love it, too. And we'll be there in time for the coronation, and I'm to be presented and—oh, well, how could I help loving it?"

ONLY TWENTY-EIGHT TRUNKS.

And here was where Mrs. Gould held up the warning finger.

All the members of the Decies-Gould wedding party who have not left New York were at the pier, and suites de luxe—a10 and a14—were embowered with all sorts of flowers, from orchids to modest sweet peas, and piled high with boxes of fruit. Lady Decies took only twenty-eight trunks—she shyly said she expected to buy her real trousseau in Paris.

The new peeress never looked prettier nor was her extreme youth more evident at any time during the wedding festivities. And it may be added Lord Decies did not look his 44 years. They both accumulated some sunburn in Georgia and said they would pick up more in Egypt.

INDIAN BLOOD RUNS IN VEINS OF OKLAHOMA'S "FIRST LADY."

Daughter of Gov. Cruce, Who Will Take Charge of the Executive Mansion Next June, Proud of Strain Which She Inherits from Her Mother, "Chickie" LeFlore, One of Twin Daughters of Capt. LeFlore.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OKLAHOMA CITY (Okla.) Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "The First Lady of Oklahoma" next June will be Miss Lorena Jane Cruce, who is a one-sixteenth Choctaw-Chicasaw Indian girl. She is not yet sixteen years old.

Miss Cruce could be the first lady now in actuality instead of occupying nominally that distinction. The young girl prefers to continue her studies at the Ardmore, Okla., High School, but during her summer vacation she will have charge of the social duties at the executive mansion at Oklahoma City.

She is the daughter of Governor Lee Cruce, a widower who was recently inaugurated. Miss Cruce will be graduated from the Ardmore High School in June and will be actively the first lady of Oklahoma only during her vacations. Next fall she will enter the State University for the full university course.

In this she is in line with her father's hopes for her. Both of them feel that it is more important that she complete her well-founded education than that she participate in society except during vacations.

A "perfect blonde," with fair and rosy complexion, blue eyes and hair the color of corn tassels, Miss Cruce finds it hard to convince acquaintances that she is of Choctaw-Chickasaw blood. Her mother was one of the famous twin daughters of Captain Charles LeFlore and was one-eighth Choctaw-Chickasaw. These twins were known as "Chickie" and "Chockie," since one of them took after the Choctaw ancestry, the other after the Chickasaw strain. These nicknames stuck so well that Miss LeFlore was married as "Chickasaw" Leflore instead of Susanne Isabel, her given name.

It was more than eight years ago Miss Cruce's mother died and since that time she has had a second mother in Miss Adah Bennett, a niece of Governor Cruce and a daughter of former Chief Justice Caswell Bennett of Kentucky. Gov. Cruce himself is a Kentuckian. Miss Bennett is still keeping the Ardmore home and will sustain it until next June, when Miss Cruce graduates from high school, at which time Governor Cruce will establish the executive mansion in Oklahoma City.

As a student Miss Cruce is very earnest. She has specialized in German and French and this specialty came in handy to her father recently.

A German State school land lessee in one of the central northern counties wrote the Governor a long letter relative to his lease, but wrote it in German and somewhat erratic and bucolic German at that. Governor Cruce frankly confessed that his education had not extended into the German language and the three newspaper men, making up the Governor's chief office assistants could do no better.

Finally, since Miss Cruce is always hunting about for German and French articles to translate and better her proficiency in those languages, one of the newspaper men suggested that as a joke the letter be sent to Ardmore for translation.

This was done and the next day the mail brought the letter back together with a verbatim translation and a little note from the "First Lady of the State" asking the office assistants to send her any more such letters.

MAZATLAN (Mex.) Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With dense clouds of smoke pouring from her hold and a mass of flames between decks, the steamship Benito Juarez docked here late yesterday, practically a charred wreck. The passengers disembarked when the ship reached the inside of the harbor. Nearly all lost their baggage and other possessions.

When Pilot Juan Amburo boarded the vessel he discovered the coal bunkers afire. Capt. Miranda immediately ordered all passengers from their staterooms to the deck and turned water into the bunkers. In the cargo was a quantity of tequilla and machinery. The cargo was practically a total loss.

Fort Worth Citizens Refuse to Ante Thousand Dollars to Hear Doughty Colonel Speak.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

FORT WORTH (Tex.) Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Because Fort Worth citizens refused to give $1000 for the privilege of hearing Theodore Roosevelt one hour and a half, his itinerary manager, Cecil A. Lyon, Republican National Committeeman of Texas, today scratched Fort Worth from the list of cities which Roosevelt will visit in this State. It is necessary, Lyon says, to employ a special train to carry the former President from here to El Paso, the cost of which would be $1000, and Fort Worth was asked to defray the expenses of this special. Roosevelt was scheduled to make an address here March 14 at the Texas Cattle Raisers' stock show.

TO FIGHT FOR FREE HARBOR.

Angelenos in North in Readiness.

Legislators Hold Caucus to Plan Mode of Attack in Coming Struggle.

Indications Are for Victory With Certain Trusteeship Restrictions.

State Control Threatens Unless City Retains Rate Regulations.

BY W. R. WILLIAMS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Los Angeles members of both Houses met tonight to prepare for the coming of the representatives of official and commercial organizations for the tide lands fight during the coming week.

Because of the interests at stake in the action of the Legislature on the Los Angeles harbor bills City Attorney Shenk and E. O. Edgerton, secretary of the Municipal League, postponed their return home until after Tuesday's hearing.

Senator Hewitt received a telephone message from Secretary Wiggins of the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon saying no change of arrangements will be asked. He had asked if it would be possible to hold the hearing Friday night in an earlier telegram.

So far as the Los Angeles members are concerned the harbor bills will not be assembled with those effecting any other port or discussed in connection with them. Los Angeles must stand alone in its request for the cession of the tide lands and jurisdictional laws.

THE BIG QUESTION.

Any other course is likely to engender animosities and create confusion that can only operate to the dangerous disadvantage of the harbor bills.

The question is: Will the State cede to Los Angeles, under a trust properly restricted, the tide lands necessary for the establishment of a free municipal port?

The municipality must retain regulation of rates and control of administration. Any other proposal means State control directly or indirectly. On the square proposition of municipal control the fight must be won or lost.

The indications are those of victory. The Los Angeles bills have precedence over all others. Senator Hewitt has seen to this. If there is to be a fight it must be concentrated on them first. This is an advantage and is such a situation that the support of San Diego, Oakland, and Eureka is regarded as certain. But neither will support an unrestricted grant. If the municipality is to have the trust of the water front turned over to it it must be accompanied by a definite clause providing for the restoration of the lands to the State whenever the trusteeship for the public is violated by the municipality.

OTHER PORTS TO AID.

Senator Cutten of Eureka, Senators Stetson and Tyrell of Oakland and Senator Wright of San Diego say they will support such a programme. As this is what the Hewitt bills provide for, the support of the three important ports outside of Los Angeles and San Francisco is assured.

There is another reason why Los Angeles must be a tub on its bottom. It is understood that the Governor is not prepared to indorse municipal control generally. He is said to have communicated this idea to representatives of San Diego, who are asking similar concessions to those asked for Los Angeles. But it is also understood that he knows the twenty years' fight Los Angeles has made to save the harbor, and the great struggle she won to reclaim for the State the tide lands she now wishes to make use of. Her victory before Judge Bordwell will be unimportant unless the lands recovered are made useful for municipal development and control. The Governor knows that Los Angeles is ready to spend $10,000,000 in making a port that when completed must still suffer from the natural advantages of its great competitor, San Francisco.

SENSE OF JUSTICE.

A bill giving Los Angeles control might appeal more to his sense of justice than one giving the State the lands indiscriminately to the cities.

While there is complete unanimity and great enthusiasm among the members of the Harbor Committee, there is not on the problem of consolidation of city and county government. Senators Hewitt, Thompson and Bell and Assemblymen Cogswell and Hinshaw are opposed to the creation of a new county and city of Los Angeles unless the entire present county votes on the proposal. The Hewitt amendment in their judgment permits the dismemberment of the county without all having a voice in it.

The probability of any amendment being made on the Governor's Panama Pacific enabling act giving the $5,000,000 to the exposition management that the tax-payers of the State will furnish, is remote. Nothing has been heard from either the exposition management or the labor-unionites to whom the amendment was given for consideration, and no word is expected until Monday. It looks as if any

REGAN SLATED FOR UNSEATING.

San Francisco Senator May Lose His Toga.

Not Resident of District He Was Elected from.

Special Committee Prepares Unfavorable Report.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Senator D. P. Regan of San Francisco may become the Richmond Plant of the "Progressive" Legislature if the Committee on Elections does what it obviously must do at a meeting Monday night.

It must find that Regan was not a resident of the Eighteenth Senatorial District when he was elected because under the Constitution he had not lived in it for a year preceding his election.

Like Plant, Regan voted in another district at a special election during the year 1910 and the record of his vote, which is undisputed, may be his undoing.

The Elections Committee referred Regan's case to a special committee composed of Boynton, Hewitt and Wright. The committee has asked Wright to make the report and he will prepare one showing that under the evidence before the committee Regan is ineligible to hold his seat.

The case was brought to the Legislature by Thomas M. Seary, Democrat, who was defeated by Regan. Seary did not allege that he was elected, but that Regan is ineligible. At the opening of the session it was understood that Senator Finn, unable to bring Regan into his fold, had inspired Seary's contest to subdue Regan.

If Regan's seat should be declared vacant by the Senate as seems probable the Governor would have to issue a writ of election as soon as he chooses to, to fill the vacancy by a special election. It is the belief of Senator Estudillo, chairman of the Elections Committee, that there would be no attempt to fill the place this session. And there is no way for the Governor to fill the vacancy except by a special election.

Senator Wolfe and Regan were apprised of the coming disaster yesterday by Senator Wright and they set to work to meet the situation. Five Senators from San Francisco, including Regan, and Wolfe, have controlled the Senate delegation against Finn, four members lining up with the wily Sheriff.

TO PENALIZE TIMBER KING.

Senator Shanahan Introduces Bill in Legislature Aimed at Lumbering Interests in North.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Because Thomas B. Walker, the Minneapolis millionaire timber king, owns a million acres of land in Siskiyou, Modoc, Lassen, Plumas and Shasta counties, the Legislature is going to penalize him, if the bill Senator Shanahan has introduced passes. It received the unanimous indorsement of the Judiciary Committee today, but will be held back until Monday when H. W. O'Melveny of Los Angeles, is expected here to discuss a bill of Senator Gates, affecting small holdings in the Antelope Valley.

Shanahan's measure declares that no right of action shall lie for damages because of trespass on land that is not fenced where the area exceeds 1000 acres. Gates has a law which works the other way, giving such right of action to small land owners against cattle trespass.

Shanahan explained that Walker's princely holdings stretch through five counties and that the legal situation is such that he is forcing the adjoining owners to fence this great domain. He keeps forest rangers who seek damages for every intrusion of a domestic animal, and this system of maintaining the principality has made the law necessary. Under Shanahan's bill hogs and cattle may trespass on Walker's holdings with impunity.

The Walker estate has been under discussion before in the Legislature and it had been intended to legislate regarding such enormous holdings, but nothing has been introduced beyond the Shanahan measure.

MOTHER KEEPS PECULIAR VOW.

REMAINS WITHIN HOME FIVE YEARS AWAITING SON.

World-Wide Search Finally Locates Missing Man in St. Louis and Father Takes Him Home to Michigan to Greet Family, Who Have Been Mourning Him as Dead.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After five years, during which time he was given up as dead, John D. Kas, 30 years old, of Grand Rapids, Mich., was restored to his parents through the aid of Chief of Detectives Smith and his aides. Detectives accompanied the father, Daniel J. Kas, to a rooming-house at No. 1001 Cass avenue, where the old man's son, known among his roving companions as "Honey Joe," was found.

Clad in the latest cut of clothes and looking but little like his old self, "Honey Joe" started for home with his father today to greet the mother and sister who have mourned him as dead. During his absence Mrs. Kas never left her home. She would not allow any of the family to lock the doors, believing, with a mother's faith, that their boy would return.

While his parents were at church Sunday, August 6, 1905, young Kas, then 25 years of age, left his home. He had $500 in the bank and this he did not take. A world-wide search was made for him, but without avail. Mrs. Kas, a devout religious woman, made a vow before one of the shrines in her church that she would never leave her house to greet the sunlight and flowers until her boy returned, and yesterday Mr. Kas, the father, told Chief Smith that his wife had kept her vow.

A week ago, a letter was received at the Kas home, No. 13 Quimby street, Grand Rapids, Mich. It was addressed to "Mother and father" and read: "I attempt to amend the bill on the floor would be merely rushing into a clubbing from the all-potent "Big Stick." In gaining what the South wants on this measure, open shop and free control of exhibitors, the Los Angeles members have utterly failed in the face of executive barriers.

The impression prevails tonight that the "progressives" directed by the executive, will make a sacrifice of Justice Henshaw of the Supreme Court and that the plans have been laid to bring this about during the coming week. There are intimations that Renshaw has been told of this with the purpose of inducing his retirement. But if he does not retire it is said he will be summoned under a concurrent resolution and removed after a hearing. When this time comes there will be a new "impelling moral duty." It will not be so named, but will appear as "an application of the knife to restore confidence in the courts."

How it will affect the Gates recall amendment is not known, but there were evidences today that everything else is to be subordinated to the adoption of the recall just as it stands.

MAY SUCCEED GOULD.

Julius Kruttschnitt of Harriman Lines, Mentioned as Probable Head of Missouri Pacific.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] There were reports today in the financial district that the probable head of the Missouri Pacific to succeed George J. Gould would be Julius Kruttschnitt, at president vice-president of the Harriman lines, in charge of maintenance and operations. Mr. Kruttschnitt is a big man in every way and has made a big record on the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific. He is at present with Judge Lovett, president of these roads, on a tour of inspection.

The idea of those who thought Mr. Kruttschnitt's election to be a possible one, was that he was the choice of the banking interests who have recently come into control of the Missouri Pacific and who would like to see him duplicate on the Gould roads what he has done on the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific in a way of physical reconstruction.

investigation will solve the mystery of Dorothy Arnold's disappearance, her aged father today laid bare the story of the girl's life before Dist.-Atty. Whitman. Mr. Arnold collapsed before he had reached the climax of his statement, but told the District Attorney he would supply convincing proof that his daughter is dead and that death was not due to natural causes.

"I have believed from the first that Dorothy is dead," Francis R. Arnold said to a reporter. "I told Mr. Whitman all that I knew. There have been recent developments and I gave him all the clews I possess.

Coupled with a statement out today by the superintendent of the Samaritan Hospital at Philadelphia that a young woman bearing a close resemblance to the missing girl had been a patient there for a week, beginning December 13, the visit of Mr. Arnold to the home of the District Attorney was taken to mean that there had been an important development in the case. The two were in consultation for an hour and a half.

After the conference it was admitted by both Mr. Arnold and the District Attorney that the county officials may be called upon to take charge of the investigation of the girl's disappearance.

"Dorothy is dead. It is cruel the way this case has been misinterpreted," said Mr. Arnold when he left the District Attorney. "We are ignorant of the manner of her death, but hope that recent developments and new information that has been brought to us may clear up the mystery."

"Mr. Arnold, you understand that your visit to the District Attorney implies that you are in possession of clews which indicate your daughter was the victim of a crime?" was asked.

"Yes, yes, I know," replied Mr. Arnold, as his eyes filled with teams and he leaned heavily on his cane.

Mr. Arnold declined to say anything further of his statement to the District Attorney beyond admitting that it might lead to an official invesigation in addition to those made by the police and private detectives. The nature of the new evidence was kept secret by Mr. Arnold and Mr. Whitman.

NIGHT RIDERS AGAIN ACTIVE.

LEXINGTON (Ky.) Feb. 18.—Reports of the first night riding of the season came to the Burley Tobacco Union headquarters here from Nicholas county today. According to the reports several tobacco beds were dug up in the night and in one case a grave was excavated in the middle of the bed.

After the Battle.

BELATED TROOPS STRAGGLE INTO MAKESHIFT CAMP NEAR SAN DIEGO.

Forces of Wounded Mexican Governor, Without Arms, Cross American Line in Quest of Supplies — Leader's Condition Unchanged—He May Lead Troops Back to Ensenada.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 18.—A special to the Union from Campo says:

Throughout last night and until late this afternoon, stragglers from Gov. Vega's forces arrived at the temporary camp at Las Juntas, ten miles east of here. Gov. Vega's condition remains unchanged. Messengers were sent to this place for supplies. As the soldiers crossing the line did not carry arms, they were allowed to purchase provisions.

REPORTS CONFLICT.

It is difficult to get reliable information regarding the plans of Vega. Little credence can be placed on the statements given out at Las Juntas. It is believed, however, that it is the intention of the wounded general to lead his force back to Ensenada. For some time at least no effort will be made to give battle to the insurgents.

REBELS IN PURSUIT.

Another report tonight is that a portion of the victorious rebel forces has been sent out from Mexicali and is marching after Vega for the purpose of capturing his supply train and incidently the treasure Vega is believed to carry with him. It is said that when Gov. Vega left Ensenada he carried a suit case filled with Mexican currency and considerable gold. No one, aside from Vega, knows how much money was contained in the grip, but it is currently reported to have been in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Mexican currency was used in purchasing the supplies secured here today. It is believed possuble that the money is being carried by agents of Vega in American territory and is being sent to him as occasion for its use arises.

CHANGES TO FOLLOW RETURN OF LIMANTOUR.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The report from Paris that Senor Jose Limantour, Mexican Minister of Finance, intended to leave there for Mexico next week, it was learned here tonight, means the beginning of a political movement in Mexico that is calculated to restore the republic to complete tranquility.

Changes in the Cabinet of President Diaz, as well as the appointment of new Governors for various States, now are made possible, it has been learned.

Senor Limantour's detention in Paris is on account of his wife's illness has occasioned much apprehension in Mexico. Seldom, it is said, has the welfare of the republic been so dependent upon the movements of one man.

Senor Limantour, it was explained, is regarded by all Mexicans as a person of great tact and ability, and is known to have the confidence of all parties, as well as President Diaz.

It has not yet been determined whether Senor Limantour will replace Senor Enrique C. Creel, the Minister of Foreign Relations, but it is known that important changes are intended. Senor Limantour is regarded as the most likely man for the Premiership.

With the advent of Senor Limantour into the position of Minister of Foreign Relations, those close to President Diaz believe that changes will occur among the Governors of the States, particularly in the northern part of Mexico.

The appointment of Senor Ahumada as Governor of Chihuahua recently to succeed Senor Alberto Terrazas, is regarded as the first move of the Diaz administration to appease opposition to the Federal government in that State. Prior to the election of Terrazas, Chihuahua and advices from time to time have reached here that the insurrecto movement received many supporters in that State because of supposed grievances against Gov. Creel before he became Minister of Foreign Affairs.

REBELS QUIT VICINITY OF JUAREZ ENTIRELY.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

EL PASO (Tex.) Feb. 18.—Federal troops, sent out by Gen. Navarro yesterday, are encamped tonight within a few miles of Guadalupe and San Ignacio, but Francisco Madero, his provisional government and insurrecto soldiers, have disappeared. It is believed they have retreated to the mountain fastnesses, confident that the Federals will not follow them.

Mexican Central officials report that two construction trains were sent through to Chihuahua today, but no intimation is given as to when passenger service will be resumed. Telegraphic communication is said also to have been resumed. Along the Mexican Northwestern, wires are working as far as Peason.

Martin Cassillas, the insurgent leader held in jail at El Paso, for attempting to get back into Mexico last Sunday with dispatches from Francisco I. Madero, advertised in the local press today for his wife and three children, who, he says, left Chihuahua on December 11, bound for El Paso and have not been heard from since.

SCURVY IN CAMP OF MEXICAN INSURRECTOS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

MEXICALI, Feb. 18.—While false alarms of the approach of Federals kept the insurgent outposts in excitement today, the leaders and men were worried over the appearance of a dangerous foe that did not concern brestworks or guns—the scurvy. New potatoes and fresh meat are at a premium in therebelcamp, but the insurrectos managed to procure supplies of both today, and it was decided to hold their strong position here for at least a day or two, in expectancy of attack by the government army said to be on the way here from Chihuahua or Sonora. Sympathizers at Yuma sent work today that the force of regulars which left Juarez the other day is expected there tomorrow en route to give battle to the insurgents here.

During the day numerous reports reached camp of advancing regulars and every time the smoke of a locomotive on the Inter-California Railway appeared on the horizon the rebels made ready for action. On account of the strength of their position they scoff at the possibility of a reverse at the hands of the enemy.

Capt. Conrad S. Babcock, commanding the United States Cavalry stationed at Calexico, notified Generals Leyva and Berthold today that he would not permit them to use Calexico as a backstop for bullets. Leyva, in a polite note, replied that Capt. Babcock should tell that to the Mexican Federals, as they and not his force would be the attacking party, and if any stray bullets struck American sightseers "he would not be responsible therefore.

Federal Officials to Investigate.

United States Marshal Youngworth and United States Dist.-Atty. McCormick left last night for Calexico to investigate conditions on the border relative to enforcement of the neutrality laws. The apprehension of several violators was reported to these officials yesterday.

HOUSE FILIBUSTER.

were dilatory and reprimanded Democrats who absented themselves at the previous session.

In the general debate, Mr. Alexander of Missouri suggested:

"Let's quit talking and get to a vote," and Mr. Campbell of Texas attacked the bill. The House was in an uproar as the debate ran along after midnight and many speeches, some of them fiery, were hooted and laughed at.

Vice-President Sherman, Speaker Cannon, and several members arrived shortly after midnight.

UNIQUE RULING.

Speaker Cannon made the unique ruling at 12:30 this afternoon that in so far as the national House of Representatives is concerned, today was yesterday. In other words, he sustained the contention that Friday's session was still in progress.

Then came the spectacle of a big majority of the House members, composed of virtually all of the Democrats and many Republicans, trying in vain to work their will against a virile Republican minority valiantly led by Representative Mann of Illinois. Mr. Mann filibustered all day yesterday against the passage of the omnibus war claims bill. After he had failed in his effort to have the session resumed at 11 o'clock today, declared a new legislative day, Mr. Mann renewed his filibuster and began to demand roll calls on every proposition put before the house.

Indications were that the filibuster would continue all day and into the night.

As soon as the Huse met, Mr. Sims of Tennessee, moved that it go into committee of the whole to resume consideration of the war claims bill. The fight began in earnest, Mr. Underwood f Alabama leading the forces in favor of the bill, and Mr. Mann those against it.

ADJOURNMENT PROPOSED.

Mr. Weeks of Massachusetts took the position that the only way to get rid of the legislative day of yesterday was to adjourn.

Mr. Norris of Nebraska held that when two orders of the House came into direct conflict the last order should prevail. The last order in this case was the recess.

Speaker Cannon sustained the view that the session of yesterday was still in effect.

The motion to take up the claims bill then was resumed. Mr. Foss of Illinois complicated matters by moving to take up the naval appropriation bill. On a standing vote this motion was defeated, 109 to 138. The yeas and nays were then ordered. On this vote the House decided, 180 to 98, against taking up the naval bill.

The question then came up on a renewed motion to consider the claims bill. On a standing vote the motion was agreed to, 137 to 55. Mr. Mann demanded the yeas and nays as a means of further delay. They were ordered. This time the House voted to take up the claims bill, 188 to 56.

About 100 of the 188 pages of the bill were read last night. Mr. Sims moved today to dispense with the further first reading and to begin the second reading for amendments under the five-minute rule.

Mr. Mann objected. The reading of the bill proceeded for a time. At 12:35 p.m., Mr. Mann suggested that a quorum was not present. Mr. Bennett of New York, acting as chairman, counted the House and found considerably less than a quorum, and a roll call was begun, the third of the day.

The House broke into an uproar at the conclusion of the roll call, which showed a quorum. Representative Sims of Tennessee warned the members who had been brought into the House by the sergeant-at-arms that they had better stay, but as the reading of the bill proceeded the members again began to filter out.

As the reading clerk approached the closing paragraphs of the bill, Mr. Mann resorted to new tactics to delay action. But at last the reading of the bill was completed.

Mr. Mann promptly asked for the reading of the committee amendments covering seventy paragraphs.

When the clerk had finished reading the amendments, Representative Prince of Illinois, chairman of the Committee on Claims, took the floor. He read an extract from President Taft's message urging Congress to pay claims that had been acted upon favorably by the Court of Claims. Mr. Prince said he personally favored putting the French spoliation claims back in the bill. In conclusion, Mr. Prince said, amid applause, that Congress should either carry out the decision of the Court of Claims or abolish that tribunal.

CAN'T ADJOURN.

Mr. Mann moved to adjourn. On a standing vote the motion was lost, 41 to 86.

Mr. Mann made the point of no quorum. A roll call followed. It showed a quorum and the House, by a vote of 130 to 73, refused to adjourn.

Mr. Prince moved that general debate be limited to three hours, which was agreed to.

Finally, by a motion of Mr. Carlin, adopted, 49 to 10, the sergeant-at-arms was directed to arrest absentees and bring them to the bar of the House. Meantime, there were many burlesque parliamentary moves, with frequent uproarious laughter.

Mr. Heflin of Alabama said in the then absence of a quorum he would yield himself fifteen minutes. He characterized the filibuster as the most shameful performance he had experienced in his public career. He said the Republicans dared not let the measure come to a vote.

A quorum was secured shortly before 10 p.m. Mr. Clayton of Alabama sought to have the House instruct the Committee on Rules to bring by next Monday a special rule for immediate consideration of the omnibus claims bill, and for its continuous consideration until disposed of. This was a crucial move in the fight.

The chair overruled the motion and Mr. Clayton appealed, the House sustaining the appeal and overruling the chair. The ayes and nays were demanded and another roll call followed.

In debating the appeal from the chair on the Clayton resolution Democratic members excoriated Mr. Mann who had taunted them with knowing nothing about parliamentary procedure.

Mr. Mann smilingly observed that it is not a bad thing to have conducted a little parliamentary school for the last forty-eight hours for the benefit of the Democrats.

CROSSED BATS HIT AT FEAST.

Loyal Legion Companions "Play Ball" Merrily.

Umpire Lays Down Rules So He's Immune.

Notable Gathering Marked by Joyful Speeches.

A unique conception for the banquet of the Southern California Association of Companions of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, which was given last night at the Hotel Alexandria, was to lay it out as a game of baseball.

The main decoration of the head table was a miniature baseball field, with fragrant yellow jonquils. At one end of the field was a miniature representation of Fort Russell and at the other a miniature of the Naval Academy at Annapolis. Between them lay the crossed bats, a catcher's glove and mask, and the veritable ball with which games were played by the soldiers in the service in Alabama, preceding Sherman's march to the sea. The other decoration were flags, ferns and a bowl of jonquils in the center of each table.

The company consisted of 125 companions and their ladies. It was one of the most delightful functions the Loyal Legion has ever held. The speeches were as joyful and appetizing as a bunch of enthusiastic baseball players could make them, and were greatly enjoyed by all.

Lieut.-Gen. Adna R. Chaffee was the umpire. The game was called by drinking a silent toast to the President of the United States. Gen. Chaffee said in opening:

"It is understood that there is to be nothing partisan about this banquet, and I am sure that baseball is purely non-partisan, and non-sectarian. I think everybody likes the game. In responding to the toast, 'Play Ball,' the umpire proposes to let the batters have full swing, before hitting the batter a swat. They shall talk about anything they like but will not be allowed to attack the umpire."

He made many happy hits himself, before introducing Dr. Robert J. Burdette, to respond to "Strike One." Dr. Burdette gave a vivid and exciting account of a game played at Pittsburgh by Anson's Colts of Chicago, which put him on first base with ease.

Perry W. Weidner got to first and Dr. Burdette to second, without difficulty, by "Strike Two," made by the former, who paid a splendid tribute to the soldiery of America.

Rear-Admiral O. W. Farnholt made "Strike Three" by giving an account of the ships on which he has served. He did this in order to show that in the days of the Civil War but a small percentage of the men in the navy were Americans, but stated that now the men in the naval service of the United States are 95 per cent. native born.

The address of the admiral was followed by the singing of "Don't You Forget We Have a Navy," which was received with shouts of laughter.

Maj. John A. Donnell came to bat to make "strike four." He said in his opening: "In glancing at the score card I see that I am to strike for the Loyal Legion. There are three on bases, and if I were to bring them all in and make a home run myself, I would make a record remarkable in baseball history."

Following this he gave a brief account of the organization of the Loyal Legion, after the assassination of President Lincoln, and the sentiment was loudly applauded, when he said:

"The people would not go far wrong if they were to keep the country in control of those who are in hearty sympathy with the principles of the Loyal Legion.

The last toast responded to was "Casey at the Bat," by Col. W. R. Smedberg, Recorder of the Commandery of California, who stated facts concerning the organization.

There was music by an orchestra during the dinner, and also by a quintette of Filipino musicians, who entered the banquet room and sang several numbers, accompanying themselves on the guitar and banjo, with flute obligato.

THIRTEEN FIREMEN IN PERIL.

Overcome by Smoke on Fourth Floor of Chicago Stock Yards Building, But Rescued in Time.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Thirteen firemen were overcome by smoke in a fire in the lard refinery of Armour and Company, at the Union Stock Yards today. While the fire itself was confined to the fourth floor of the building, fear that the blaze would be a repetition of the recent fire in which twenty-four firemen met their death, caused the battalion chief to send in a general alarm and calls for special apparatus.

The firemen were caught on the fourth floor while carrying up hose and were rescued by their companions. All will recover. The loss is $15,000.

MURDERER IS SAVED FROM MOB.

MEXICAN CHARGED WITH BRUTAL CRIME IS CAPTURED.

While Fleeing With Prisoner Sheriff's Automobile Plunges from Bridge and Is Burned—Fifty Deputies Sworn in to Protect Miscreant from Enraged Citizens.

FRESNO, Feb. 18.—Winning a fifty-mile automobile race with would-be lynchers, Sheriff Collins today took into custody and safely placed in jail at Visalia, Juan Maganya, believed to have murdered J. B. Lamkin last night at Porterville, according to a special from that place.

Maganya was captured at Chico Flat, twenty miles from Porterville, after a fire alarm early yesterday had summoned a mass meeting of 400 citizens. Posses had been formed, and stores in the town closed, that the entire population might take part in the hunt.

Maganya was traced by one of the posses, and the Sheriff and Porterville citizens notified simultaneously by telephone of the capture. A race ensued between Collins in an automobile, and about fifty machines bearing citizens from Porterville. The Sheriff had just got his man and turned back toward Visalia when the Porterville people arrived, shouting "Lynch him!" Collins reached Porterville on his way to Visalia just ahead of the posses. Delayed by a train at a crossing, he was forced to swear in fifty deputies to protect the prisoner from a mob of people who collected about the automobile.

Near Lindsay, the Sheriff's machine plunged off a bridge, exploded and burned, the Sheriff being injured. The prisoner did not try to escape and another automobile was secured from Tulare.

When taken, Maganya said: "I guess I am the man you want." The man was armed.

Tonight lynching was discussed at a mass meeting at Porterville, but the plan was finally abandoned.

Maganya is said to answer descriptions of a Mexican wanted for the murder of a woman at Hollister last December. Sheriff Croxton of Hollister is now on his way to Visalia to question the prisoner.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH

A Pleasant, Simple, But Safe and Effectual Cure For It.

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the heart and lungs and difficult breathing, headaches, fickle appetite, nervousness and a general played-out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure for this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be readily, thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanson, the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Diastase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and not being a patent medicine can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

The plan of dieting is simply another name for starvation, and the use of prepared foods and new fangled breakfast foods simply makes matters worse, as any dyspeptic who has tried them knows.

As Dr. Bennett says, the only reason I can imagine why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not universally used by everybody who is troubled in any way with poor digestion is because many people seem to think that because a medicine is advertised or is sold in drug stores or is protected by a trade mark it must be a humbug, whereas as a matter of truth any druggist who is observant knows that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have cured more people of catarrh of the stomach, indigestion, heartburn, heart trouble, nervous prostration and run down condition generally than all the patent medicines and doctors' prescriptions for stomach trouble combined.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, catarrh of the stomach, billiousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

BURIES SEVENTEEN FOR SON.

Mother of Explosion Victim Has Funeral Conducted Over All—Unable to Identify Body.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SALT LAKE (Utah.) Feb. 18.—Sixteen friendless foreigners will share the grave of Hugh McGuire in Calvary cemetery in this city as the result of a woman's desire to give dignified burial to her son. Hugh McGuire was foreman of a crew of Italians and Greeks who suffered extermination in a powder explosion at Devil's Slide last summer. The bodies of the dead were so commingled that identification was impossible. The fragments were interred together at Morgan, Utah.

The mother of Foreman McGuire, after making every effort to identify the body of her son, applied to the Morgan county authorities for permission to rebury all that was found of the seventeen explosion victims. Her request was granted and the re-burial will take place today with appropriate rites. A costly monument will mark the final resting place.

POSSE PURSUIING INDIAN SLAYERS.

Tragedy of Little High Rock Canyon Definitely Laid at Door of Redskin Band—Inquest Held in Zero Weather by Lantern Light. Sharp Battle Expected.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

RENO (Nev.) Feb. 18.—That the murderers of Cambron, Laxague, Erramouspe and Indiano, Washoe county sheep men, at Little High Rock Canyon, are Indians, is definitely established, according to the report of County Physician S. K. Morrison, who made the autopsy on these bodies at Denios ranch, three miles from the scene of the crime.

Tracks of seven Indians, including one squaw and one pappoose, were found leading toward Black Rock desert, in Humboldt county. The camp had been fortified by the Indians in anticipation of trouble. The Indian's horses had died from starvation. Six head of beef were found butchered at the camp.

The pursuing posse numbers twenty, including two Indian trailers, and left in pursuit from Denio, Thursday. They expect to overtake the Indians within 100 miles, and anticipate a fight.

After four days in the saddle, the inquest was held with the temperature 12 below zero, and by lantern light. The bodies were all piled up, frozen together solid.

Henry Cambron was shot four times through the head and body; Peter Erramouspe shot four times, upper lip with moustache cut off, and taken. He was married and had two children. J. B. Laxague, shot once through the chest, married, two children. B. Indiano was shot three times through the shoulder, twice through the head; left eye out, upper lip, lower eyelid gone, cheeks shot away.

The shots were from 30-30 high-power rifles and 38-caliber pistols.

NEW FIELD EXCITES RUSH.

Alaskan Gold Area Promises to Be as Rich Field as Iditarod, Old-Timer Declares.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A new gold strike in the Tululaksak country gives promise of as rich a field as the Iditarod region. Capt. James Robertson, an old-timer, says the rush this summer to Tululaksak will equal that to the Iditarod.

The first strike made in the Tululaksak was in 1907 by the Kaiser brothers on Fox and Bear Creeks, tributaries of the Tulukear River, 100 miles from where the stream empties into the Kuskokwim, and only 160 miles from Bethel, the head of navigation.

With only pick and shovel there was taken out on Fox and Bear Creeks during 1910, $12,000 to $15,000, running from $10 to $13 per pan. The ground traversed shows gold all the way from Granite Creek, only thirty miles from the Kuskokwim River, for a distance of seventy miles and embracing a stretch of country twenty-five to fifty miles in width well watered by numerous creeks.

UNDER SURGEON'S KNIFE.

MAN BEARS OPERATION.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SALT LAKE, Feb. 18.—Confronted with the alternative of losing a leg or submitting to a very rare and dangerous surgical operation, James King of Green Timber, Idaho, yesterday bore the operation. It involved the creation of a new arterial blood channel about four inches long. King had an expansion of the femoral artery above the right knee almost as large as an orange. The surgical procedure known technically as Mattas' operation consisting in the insertion of a tiny rubber tube in the inlet and outlet of the aneurism and the suture of folds of the distended walls of the artery over the tube. When the folds drawn over the tube from each side were stitched for almost their full length, the tube was extracted. The second seam was taken above the first and the wound was closed. King stood the ordeal well and it is believed the operation, which has never before been attempted in this part of the country, will be a success.

PURE MILK CRUSADE.

AFTER GOLDEN GATE DAIRIES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Chief Health Officer Dr. W. F. McNutt, Jr., has instructed Chief Milk Inspector Dockery to arrest all milk men who are found carrying skimmed milk on their wagons with pure milk, whether it is so labeled or not.

This order has been issued because of the fact that many milk men carry a can of skimmed milk, with which they adulterate, so it is said, the pure milk after it has passed the inspectors.

The law requires that all skimmed milk shall be so labeled and that it shall not be carried on the same wagon with pure milk.

Chief Inspector Dockery raided milk wagons on the night of February 15, taking seventy-two samples, of which Chief Chemist Bothe reported four adulterated, or below the standard, and as a result, four warrants for the arrest of milk dealers have been issued.

DRESS REFORM AT STANFORD.

Flannel Shirts, Hobnail Boots and Corduroy Trousers No Longer Comme Il Faut at Dances.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] No more flannel shirts, no more ink-spattered corduroy trousers, no more hobnailed boot effects—at least not at the dances.

This is the dress reform which is now invading the Stanford campus.

Mrs Allen, dean of women, gave a short talk to the members of the sophomore class, in which these ideas were gently, but firmly suggested as possible improvements in the clothing scheme of the dancers. The wearing of flannel shirts and corduroys is not a permanent feature of Stanford life, but it has been the custom to indulge in these semi-barbarities of costume at the formal class dances, known as "jolliups." Now, however, real trousers are going to be insisted on and the roughneck will have to borrow his room-mate's habiliments and appurtenances to appear at a dance.

Mrs. Allen also deplores the moonlight and eclipse effects which are sometimes introduced at local dances. She suggests the use of the street car to the campus rather than walking through the dark and lonesome arboretum.

The sophomore "jolliup" will occur in the near future, and the committee in charge will make every effort to persuade the uncouth students to conform.

HEAVY SEAS CAPSIZE LAUNCH.

Three Government Employees Perish While on Way from Lighthouse to Lay in Stock of Supplies.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PORT TOWNSEND (Wash.) Feb. 18.—Three members of the colony of government employees at Tattoosh Island, at the entrance to the Strait of Jaun de Fuca, were drowned today when a gasoline boat in which they were making a trip to Neah Bay for supplies, capsized in a heavy sea.

The dead are Forrest Gowan, lighthouse keeper, and M. Waddell and Mrs. G. L. Talmadge, employes of the government wireless telegraph station.

Two other members of the party, G. L. Talmadge and I. D. Spoonemore, were picked up by the tug Lorne and taken to Neah Bay for medical treatment.

Gowan had been keeper of the Tattoosh Island light, which warns mariners of the perils of Cape Flattery, for more than ten years. He leaves a widow and several children living on the island.

Mrs. Talmadge had been married only three months, and was a daughter of H. L. Gauthier of Port Townsend.

THEATRICAL FIGHT.

KOLB AFTER DILL SCALP.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It is sad to see the way Kolb and Dill, the former German dialect team, hate each other. Now it is Kolb who has designs on Dill. Claiming he was the creator of the scenario and Judson C. Brusie, under his direction, completed the libretto of the musical comedy, "Lonesome Town," in 1908, Kolb today secured an injunction directing Dill and his company to go no further in the production of "Lonesome Town," in the bay cities.

Dill had advertised to open the production tonight at Marysville, and against the manner of Dill's advertising his former partner complained.

The restraining order holds good until Friday. At that time Kolb will be in court personally to confront his former partner, Lawyer Humphreys having told the court this morning that if he would set the hearing for one week hence his client would hurry from Milwaukee here to protect his interests.

WOMAN LEAPS INTO SEA.

MISSIONARY OVERWORKED.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—Miss Alice Duryea, a missionary of the Dutch Reformed Church, widely known for her work in China, leaped overboard from the steamer Manchuria on the voyage from the Orient and was drowned. Miss Duryea's health had been broken by overwork. A nurse fell asleep while watching her and the patient disappeared.

SLOPE BRIEFS.

Egg Prices Tumble.

PETALUMA, Feb, 18.—The price of eggs yesterday dropped to the lowest level reached for several years in the local market—19 cents. Large shipments from the East are held responsible for the fall.

Little Child Dies of Burns.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—A 2-year-old Italian child, daughter of Mrs. Rosa Accolina, died at her home here yesterday from burns received while playing with matches. Another child had been fatally burned here in the same manner the preceding day

Death Knell to "Frats."

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 18.—The backbone of High School fraternities has been broken in Sacramento. With the closing hours yesterday of the High School, practically all the "frat" members who refused to sign the "pledge" put their signature to the paper handed them by the principal, H. O. Williams. Two students pleaded for an extension of the time limit and they were given until Monday.

Held on Assault Charge.

OROVILLE, Feb. 18.—J. W. Miller of this city is held by the police on a charge of assaulting George Hill, with intent to murder. It is alleged that Miller, while intoxicated, shot Hill in a saloon here late Thursday night. The miners life is in serious danger Goes Into Bankruptcy.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—James S. Swift, former director and stockholder of the California Safe Deposit & Trust Company, filed a petition here today to be declared a voluntary bankrupt. His liabilities consist of claims of the depositors of the defunct trust company, approximating $1,000,000, and $6000 in personal obligations.

Spokane Paper Sold.

SPOKANE (Wash.) Feb. 18.—The Daily and Sunday Herald was bought in at receiver's sale today by F. P. Gregg, a local job printer, whose bid of $10,000 was the only offer made. The paper was founded one year ago. Its assets are estimated at $15,000, with liabilities of $150,000 exclusive of $250,000 bonds.

Seal Poachers Deported .

TACOMA (Wash.) Feb. 18.—Thirty-eight Japanese seal poachers who were brought to Tacoma from Valdez, Alaska, where they had served six months in jail for having been caught sealing within the three-mile limit, were transferred to the Japanese steamer Mexico by American Immigration Inspector Fulton today, and deported for the Orient.

ARTISTS' MODELS MAY STRIKE.

HIGH COST OF LIVING IS PLEA OF POSERS.

Philadelphia Subjects United in Demand Upon Academy for Uniform Scale of Fifty Cents an Hour. Beauty Unadorned Gets More Pay, But Appetite Obtains Either Way.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18.—The latest class to cry out against the high cost of living are the artists' models of this city, men and women, who have united in a demand upon the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts for a uniform rate of pay for posing, or they will organize a union to enforce their demands. They want a uniform scale of 50 cents an hour, with or without drapery.

A letter outlining the demands of the models, nearly all of whom are women, was sent to John E. D. Trask, secretary of the academy, this week. It brought the following prompt reply:

"I regret very much that it is impossible to do as you suggest in regard to the 25 and 33 1-3-cent rate per hour in the portrait, sketch and illustration classes. The reason that these classes are paid for at a lower figure is due to the comparative ease of getting models to take them, and also because the risk of catching cold is less than in the other classes."

At present the academy pays 50 cents an hour for posing in the nude, but 25 cents an hour for posing for the head only, and 33 1-3 cents an hour for posing in costume or drapery.

"The idea of paying us less because we might not catch cold," indignantly exclaimed Miss Dorothy McKay, one of the signers of the demands. "Why, we have to eat as much whether we pose with our clothes or without them. At 50 cents an hour we only get a living wage, because the work is so irregular. Some of us average but $5 a week during the season. We want to live, with or without clothes."

CHANGE OF SOCIALIST LEADERS.

Mantle of Late Paul Singer in the German Reichstag to Fall on Shoulders of Molkenbuhr.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

BERLIN (Wednesday.) Feb. 8.—Herman Molkenbuhr, member from Saxony, has been elected president of the Social-Demicratic faction in the Reichstag, thus receiving the mantle of the late Paul Singer, who up to his death, shared the presidency with the aged leader, August Bebel.

Bebel has been compelled to retire almost completely from active politics on account of his age and health, leaving the responsibility of Parliamentary tactics upon the shoulders of Molkenbuhr.

Molkenbuhr is a writer, originally a cigarmaker by trade, who, on account of his political activity, was expelled from Germany in 1881, and spent three years in the United States. He is a hard political fighter and aroused the Reichstag this winter with a flat declaration that his party was working for a republic in Germany. He entered the Reichstag in 1890 as a representative from Berlin, and was first defeated in 1906, after which a seat was found for him in Saxony.

The presente trend in the party appears to be against the iron discipline and autocracy enjoyed by Bebel and Singer, and the new leader's rule probably will not be so unquestioned.

The Brooklyn Sabbath Association will institute a crusade against the numerous suburban real estate companies which escort parties of home seekers to their properties on Sundays, making sales and trading in real estate on the Sabbath. If detectives can secure sufficient evidence of violation of the Sunday observance law, arrests will follow.

DR. C. M. HORN
DENTIST.
"He Never Hurt a Bit."

All that is keeping you away from my office is doubt.

But just so long as you are not skeptical I don't care, for an honest doubter is one who usually does some investigating.

A SKEPTIC STICKS TO HIS UNBELIEF.

"I Don't Hurt a Bit"

when extracting, filling, crowning, or restoring teeth without plates.

You may doubt the truth of this statement, but WILL YOU BE AN HONEST DOUBTER AND INVESTIGATE MY CLAIMS?

That's only fair.

If you stand afar off and say, "I don't believe a word of what Horn says"—it does us both a great injustice; for if I can do what I claim, you want my work, and I deserve your patronage.

Eyeglasses Not Necessary

Eyesight Can Be Strengthened and Most Forms of Diseased Eyes Successfully Treated Without Cutting or Drugging.

That the eyes can be strengthened so that eyeglasses can be dispensed with in many cases has been proven beyond a doubt by the testimony of hundreds of people who publicly claim that their eyesight has been restored by that wonderful little instrument called "Actina." "Actina" also relieves Sore and Granulated Lids, Iritis, etc., and removes Cataracts without cutting or drugging. Over ninety thousand "Actinas" have been sold; therefore the Actina treatment is not an experiment, but is reliable. The following letters are but samples of hundreds we receive:

J. J. Pope, Ballinger, Texas, writes: "I have spent thousands of dollars on my eyes, consulted the best doctors in the United States, dropped medicine in my eyes for years, and 'Actina' is the only thing that has ever done me any good. Before using 'Actina' I gave up all hope of ever being able to read again. Had not read a newspaper for seven years. Now I can read all day with little or no inconvenience."

Kathryn Bird, 112 Lincoln street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes: "I was troubled with astigmatism and had worn glasses from ten years of age. I could not read or write without them. In a surprisingly short time after using 'Actina' I laid aside my glasses and I will never use them again."

John Krahmer, Ricketts, Pa., writes: "Several years ago my eyesight began to fail. Oculists prescribed glasses but I received little benefit from them. After several months use of 'Actina' I could read and write by almost any kind of light. I would not take one hundred dollars for my 'Actina.'"

"Actina" can be used by old and young with perfect safety. Every member of the family can use the one "Actina" for any form of disease of the Eye, Ear, Throat or Head. One will last for years and is always ready for use. "Actina" will be sent on trial, postpaid.

Send your name and address to the Actina Appliance Co., Dept. 89N, 811 Walnut Street, Kansas City, Mo., and receive, absolutely FREE, a valuable book—Professor Wilson's Treatise on Disease.

Pains in the Back?

Thousands of men and women have kidney disease and do not know it until it is too late. Pain in the back is one of the warnings that your kidneys are affected.

It is Your Kidneys!

If in doubt as to the cause of your trouble, have your urine analyzed to learn for a certainty if the kidneys are diseased.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

Are you tired? Low spirited? Weak and nervous? Have a constant dull ache in the small of the back? Have scalding pain when you urinate and frequent desire to do so? Are you troubled with sleeplessness? Have you headache, with deep lassitude and drowsiness? Is your digestion impaired and your tongue deeply furred? Do your feet and ankles swell? Is your face pale and marble like? Have you cold feet and dry skin? Have you puffiness under the eyes?

If you have any or all of these symptoms you have Bright's disease and should take Warner's Safe Cure at once and continuously until cured. When the kidneys are healthy and strong they remove the waste material from the system, and none of these symptoms will appear. Many of the cases of sudden death from heart failure mentioned in our daily papers are caused by uraemic poisoning resulting from Bright's disease.

This dread disease is carrying off the flower of our manhood, but Warner's Safe Cure can stem its ravages and restore its victims to health and vigor. If every one suffering from Bright's disease were wise enough to take Warner's Safe Cure thousands of valuable lives would be saved every year.

Warner's Safe Cure is made from the fresh juices of plants and medicinal roots, gathered at the proper season in various quarters of the globe. Men skilled in pharmacy and chemistry compound it. It is pleasant to the taste and agreeable to the most sensitive stomach. Put up in 50c and $1.00 sizes and sold by druggists everywhere.

Constipation and Biliousness

WARNER'S SAFE PILLS for constipation and biliousness, purely vegetable, sugar-coated, absolutely free from injurious substances, are a perfect laxative. They do not gripe or leave any bad after effects. 25 cents a package.

Sample Bottle and Box of Pills Free. To convince every sufferer from diseases of the kidneys and liver of the merits of Warner's Safe Cure and Pills, a sample bottle and a sample of Warner's Safe Pills will be sent free of charge, postpaid, to any one who will write Warner's Safe Cure Co., Rochester, N. Y., and mention having seen this liberal offer in The Times. The genuineness of this offer is fully guaranteed.

AMMANY BOSS READY TO QUIT.

erves Ultimatum to Sheehan to Drop from Race.

es Hopelessness of Latter's Senatorial Fight.

nub from Gov. Dix Helps to Peeve Politician.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ALBANY (N. Y.) Feb. 18.—It is arned today that before leaving Al- any Charles F. Murphy issued an ultiatum giving William F. Sheehan ten ys, or until a week from next Tuesy to withdraw from the fight for e United States Senatorship. If he es not withdraw in that time the ucus rule will be abrogated. Murphy s left Albany and does not intend come back for some time. This eans that he has washed his hands Sheehan and the Senatorship fight d that the selection of a successor to hauncey M. Depew is now in the ands of the up-State men.

Murphy feels that he has gone as r in carying out his pre-election romises to Sheehan and the interests ck of him as he can be expected to . He is wearied of the criticism hich has been heaped upon him beuse of his stand for Sheehan and reses to bear the burden any longer. There are two things which brought urphy to his present frame of mind. he intimation from Gov. Dix that his resence in Albany was no longer dered contributed to it, but the most tent factor was the accusation of heehan's Wall street friends that urphy had not played square with em and the candidate had not one all he could do to force an elecon.

When Murphy went to New York a eek ago he told Sheehan backers at there was no longer any possility of electing him and urged that he e induced to withdraw from the fight. was then that the representatives the interests accused Murphy of laying down." This acusation is said have determined Murphy to give up he fight for Sheehan.

Today's vote for United States Senar was as follows:

Democrats: Sheehan, 5; Kernan, 5; hepard, 1; Littleton, 1; Hansen, 1. Republicans: epew, 4; no quorum.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

DENVER, Feb. 18.—Two additional ark horses were entered in the senaorial race today, but the ballot did not evelop anything material in the way f a change. Adams lost four votes nd Thomas J. O'Donnell gained four. The new entrants were former Conressman John C. Bell, a Democrat, and Dr. John Grass, a Republican. The ballot resulted: Democrats, Adams, 5; Speer, 25; Thomas, 3; Martin, 2; laupin, 1; Ward, 3; O'Donnell, 7; Tayor, 1; Shafroth, 1; Ammons, 1; Bell, 1; epublicans: Vaile, 8; Dawson, 2; oudy, 8; McCreery; 2; Northcut, 2; Waterman, 2; Grass, 1.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE CAMPAIGN.

Advocates of Votes for Women to Besiege New York Legislature in Force During Coming Week.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

ALBANY (N. Y.) Feb. 18.—Suffrage week, during which the members of various women suffrage clubs of New York hope to demonstrate to the Legislators the necessity of passing bills granting women the right to vote, will be inaugurated here tomorrow with special services in the churches.

The joint Senate and Assembly judiciary committees will give a hearing on the question next Wednesday, when hundreds of women for and against the extension of suffrage will be present.

During the week every conceivable scheme calculated to bring the question before the public will be employed, from advertising in the newspapers and with electric street signs to the exhibition of woman suffrage films in moving picture shows.

The real work will be begun on Monday, when a drawing room talk will be given by Mrs. Charles Park of Boston. Other women will speak before various labor unions.

On Wednesday a special train bearing ten suffragists, among them Mrs. Gilbert Jones, representing the National League for the Civic Education of Women, and Miss Alice Hill Chittenden, will come up from New York, and suffragists from all parts of the State are expected to crowd the Assembly chamber.

CARNEGIE GIFT IS ACCEPTED.

Trustees of Eastern Institute Formally Take Over Ten-Million-Dollar Donation Recently Made.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The board of trustees of the Carnegie Institution of Washington formally accepted today the gift of $10,000,000 made last month by Andrew Carnegie, and listened to the reading of Mr. Carnegie's letter announcing the gift, in which the donor said:

"I stipulate as a condition of this gift that, unless expressly relieved therefrom by me, you shall set apart annually for the next ten years a sum not less than $250,000 in cash to be held in a reserve fund, as against losses, emergencies, reduction in income and the diminishing purchasing power of money.

"This will also give the board more time to study suggestions submitted to it, and avoid the danger of premature action. Better that new ideas should be tested on a small scale before going deeply into them.

"I hope the work at Mount Wilson will be vigorously pushed because I am anxious to hear the expected results from it. I should like to be satisfied, before I depart, that we are going to repay to the old land some part of the debt we owe it by revealing more clearly than ever to them the new heavens."

It was announced that although no new plans had been inaugurated as a result of the gift, some action would be taken at the next regular annual meeting of the trustees next December.

Washington Man Breaks Bones Six Times Within as Many Months—The Last Mishap Few Days Ago.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CENTRALIA (Wash.) Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] For the sixth time in as many months, Charles Pennypacker, a resident of this city, has broken a bone. His last mishap occurred a couple of days ago when a log rolled upon him and broke his right arm. Not long ago his spine was injured in a fall. He recovered, to the surprise of the doctors; returned to work and had his leg broken. The same leg has been broken twice. His injuries have included the fracture of both legs and one arm, one finger and his collar bone. He has also had several narrow escapes from death.

CHINESE WANT TO SAVE FACE.

Will Probably Not Grant Demands of Russia Until Demonstration of Force Is Commenced.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PEKING, Feb. 18.—The Chinese government displays the keenest anxiety over Russia's threatened military demonstration in Ili province, but nevertheless it may not comply with the demands set forth in the note from St. Petersburg until a show of force takes some of the sting out of its humiliation.

It is believed in Peking that even should China acquiesce, Russia would not accept her promise, but would insure fulfillment by occupying certain points in Chinese Turkestan. The foreign board states it asked Russian Minister Korostovetz for a more explicit statement of the demands. The reply of the diplomatist was that his government had been most explicit.

Great fear is felt regarding the attitude of the Japanese in Manchuria, who are asserted to be in close association with the Russians, but up to the present no action has been taken by Japan which could be construed as definitely aggressive.

Not one of the 1425 children, white or black, was forgotten.

JUROR ACCUSES PREACHER.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

ST. PAUL (Minn.) Feb. 18.—A complaint was filed in the county District Court today by Thomas L. Wann, a prominent business man and member of the county grand jury, charging the People's Church, and member of the faculty of the University of Minnesota, with an attempt to influence him as a member of the jury. The complaint stated that while the grand jury was considering an indictment against Dr. Eugene Hubbell, a physician, Dr. Smith approached Mr. Wann and sought to convince him that an indictment on such a charge would be harmful. Dr. Hubbell is well known in his profession. The grand jury found an indictment against him yesterday, charging manslaughter in having caused the death of Rose Ibs, on January 20.

FIFTY-CENT MAYOR "IN BAD."

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

DANVILLE (Ill.) Feb. 18.—Hoopeston, known as the "Holy City," whose Mayor draws a salary of 50 cents a year, and whose aldermen serve without remuneration, will be investigated by the grand jury Monday. It is stated that nearly as much money has been used at elections in that city as in Danville.

RAIN IN SOUTHWEST.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) Feb. 18.—"Let the drouth-ridden Southwest cease complaining and give thanks," said Patrick Connor, local government weather observer, today. "In the last twenty-four hours rain has soaked the whole district and still is at it. It is the best rain since last September." Rain or snow, or a mixture of both, is general throughout Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas, according to Mr. Connor. Fruit is believed to be unhurt.

DISPUTES DOWIE'S SON.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—John A. Lewis of Zion City, who claims to be legal successor to the late John Alexander Dowie, declared today absolutely false a statement made by Dowie's son, Gladstone Dowie, in a telegram dated Battle Creek, Mich., February 10, that the elder Dowie had been mentally incompetent the last nine years of his life. Lewis said an effort was made during the progress of the Zion case before Judge Landis to prove Dowie a paranoiac, at which time three alienists of national repute pronounced him

UNION HOLDS UP POSTOFFICE.

NON-UNION RIGGER ON WORKS IS TRIVIAL CAUSE.

Laborite Leaders Promise Quick Relief of Situation That Has Stirred Slow Wrath of New Orleans, But Strike Bids Fair to Last Indefinitely.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Work is held up on the new million dollar postoffice because the Blue Ridge marble works placed a non-union rigger on the job as foreman over the stone masons, and the slow wrath of New Orleans has been stirred at what is considered an unpardonable outrage.

The stonemasons struck immediately and the brick-layers and all other laborers quit an hour later.

Union leaders, when they heard of the trouble promised quick settlement, but tonight there was no indication that the strike would not continue for several days.

Most of the strikers are negroes, when the stone masons came to work this morning they found J. Mitchell acting as foreman, he had no union card and they protested. The contractors saw no reason for removing him and the strike followed.

Rules of the union forbid stonemasons or brick-layers working under a foreman who is not a member, the president of the local stated today, nor can they work for a foreman who is employed in any other capacity than as a brick-layer.

Since Mitchell is a rigger, there were two reasons for the strike. Steel frame work for the postoffice is in place and the first five or six courses of stone have been laid in leisurely style.

It is the slow work, it is said, which caused the appointment of a non-union foreman.

WAR VESSEL NAMED FOR HERO.

Sister of Man Who Lost His Life in Samoan Fight Christens New Torpedo Boat Destroyer.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

NEWPORT NEWS (Va.) Feb. 18.—The United States torpedo boat destroyer Monaghan wask launched at the plant of the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Company today.

The sponsor was Miss Eleanor R. Monaghan, a sister of the naval officer for whom the vessel was named, Ensign John Robert Monaghan, of Spokane, Wash., who lost his life in an engagement with the Samoans near Apia, April 1, 1899.

He died, according to the report of Capt. White, "In the heroic performance of his duty, one brave man against a score of savages, trying to save his comrade, Lieut. Phillip V. Lansdale, U.S.N."

LID TO GO ON COLORED TEAS.

New Regulations Ordered by Federal Government Scheduled to Go Into Effect May 1.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Popular bands of low-priced teas will don a motley garb after May 1, according to wholesalers and importers here. After that date, according to government direction, no more artificially-colored teas can be imported and as a result many of the teas which have appeared in beautiful green shades for 100 years or more will come hereafter in hues of brown, yellow and green.

According to a statement from the Importers' Association, the trade all over the country is unanimous in approving these new regulations. Green teas will still be green, but the color woll be more natural. The artificial coloring heretofore used by the Chinese to emphasize the greenness of their product and to impart a uniform color and gloss to the leaves, will be eliminated. The general public here knows very little about tea. America is not a great tea-drinking nation. The per capita consumption is only one pound a year, whereas in Canada it is six pounds and in Great Britain nearly seven.

Elmira College, New York, one of the oldest institutions for women in the country, was out of debt last night for the first time in its history, when the final payment was made on a $80,000 mortgage given twelve years ago.

been one of the best-known citizens of Los Angeles. His wife, who survives him, and his surviving children, Mrs. Ella D. Bonsall and Dan McFarland, and numerous grandchildren and great grandchildren are also well known and associated with large circles of friends, who will deeply sympathize with them in their present great loss. The whole city, to which Mr. McFarland has been devoted for so many years, will mourn the passing of a good citizen.

The sense of bereavement felt by the owners and employees of The Times is a thing impossible to express. Another comrade, well-beloved, has fallen from the ranks. To everybody connected with this journal he was a kindly and helpful companion and a dear friend. He never seemed old because his heart was always young. His unfailing word of good cheer will be missed, and his absence mourned as only the absence of a comrade can be mourned.

The funeral will be conducted at the family residence Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in Rosedale Cemetery.

MUSICALE AT TOURAINE.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam B. Elliott gave a musicale at the Touraine Apartments, No. 447 South Hope street, last night. About 150 guests were present. The great drawing room was prettily decorated. The musical numbers were of exceptional merit, as leading amateur musicians of Los Angeles had a place on the programme. Among those who contributed were: Misses Bernice Williams, Patton, Mildred Harris, Gladys Lindsay, Eleanor McCarthy, Katherine Bowshard, Hazel Bristow, Clare Carroll, Ruth Jester, Katherine Carroll; Mrs. Hammond, Mrs. Steele, Mrs. Lovelace, and Messrs. Vincent Bristow, Richard Huerter, Rowe, Young, Courtland Elliott, Sam B. Elliott, Sweeney and Hyde.

ATTEMPTS LIFE BY GAS.

Denver Man Found by Landlady of Rooming-House Almost Asphyxiated. Thought to Be Insane.

George Lind, about 25 years old, a subordinate employee in the United States mint at Denver, attempted to commit suicide by inhaling illuminating gas in a rooming-house at No. 227 North Broadway, yesterday noon. He was found by Mrs. Maggie Ovard, who conducts the place, and may recover.

Lind is believed to be insane. He came to Los Angeles a few weeks ago and tried to obtain work in a wholesale liquor house.

Talking with other persons rooming in the North Broadway house, he frequently said that he was "slipping."

"I can't help it, I just keep on slipping," he repeated over and over until he was finally believed to be mentally unbalanced.

Before turning on the gas yesterday morning Lind wrote a letter to his mother in Denver, but neglected to give her name or address. His message threw no light upon his attempt at suicide.

TAKE SEVERE EXAMINATIONS.

Patrolmen Who Aspire to Be Sergeants Do Stunts That Cause Muscles to Cry Out in Pain.

Sixty patrolmen, a portion of the class which is aspiring to promotion as sergeants, took the mental and physical examination yesterday before the civil service examiner. Last night sixty portly policemen got into hot baths, underwent an alcoholic rub and crawled between the sheets with every muscle aching.

The candidates say that yesterday's physical examination was the stiffest in the history of the department. One of the severest tests was to climb a thirty-foot rope hand over hand. A few of the slender officers accomplished it, but the 215-pound men admitted that they didn't propose to pull their arms out of place. Running 100 yards in twelve seconds, the maximum time, and jumping four feet high were other stunts that tested the wind of well-fed patrolmen. There are twenty-four sergeants to appoint. The second class of sixty will take the examinations next Saturday.

LOOKING FOR PLUMES.

By means of a pass key a thief gained entrance to the home of Mrs. Dodson, No. 1303 South Figueroa street, Friday night and stole a hat worth $100, according to the report made to the police yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Dodson reported that the hat had several valuable ostrich plumes on it, but as yet the police have found no burglar wearing a hat answering to that description.

OUT WEST DOINGS.

The Out West Club gave an entertainment at Fiesta Park before a thousand persons yesterday afternoon. There was an exhibition of skill by a lot of cowboys and fancy riding by Mrs. Dell Blanchett. A similar entertainment will be given there today.

Spence Black Finishes First in Men's Handicap Against Bogey, While Mrs. John R. Clark Is Returned the Winner of Women's Match.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DEL MONTE, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Today's events brought to an end the winter tournament on the Del Monte golf course. From start to finish there has been no lack of interest or keen enjoyment on the part of the long list of competitors for the handsome trophies handed out this evening by P. W. Selby.

While surprises have been disclosed during the seven days of play, yet prophecy from the beginning has placed winning cards with strangers to the links, eastern and northern club players naturally, too, adding zest to the competition.

The men's handicap over thirty-six holes with the women's match over eighteen were the golf features of both morning and afternoon.

In the women's handicap match, Mrs. John R. Clark carried off the honors, returning the low card. Mrs. Clark came in with 7 down, Mrs. Peter Kerr was a close second with 9 down, Mrs. Kohl's was 10 down, Miss A. Burns, 11, Mrs. W. J. Burns, 12; Mrs. G. K. Hanford, 12; Miss M. Smith, 12; Miss Alice Warner, 12; Mrs. H. R. Warner, 12; Miss E. Bailee, 12; Miss Pelliane, 13; Miss Ada Howarth, 14; Mrs. M. Quinby, 17; Mrs. F. McComas, Mrs. Vincent Whitney, Mrs. Green and Miss A. Smith did not turn in cards.

H. Spence Black covered himself with glory in the men's handicap play against bogey, winning with 2 down. Dr. F. W. Clampett was second, with 7 down, and W. K. Davis was third with 8 down. C. F. Mullens was 11, R. Brooks, Victoria, B. C., 11; W. K. Wright, 11; J. C. Ford, 12; E. H. Sewall, 13; P. W. Selby, 20. C. E. Maud, Vincent Whitney, E. K. Johnston, George A. Innes, J. J. Crooks, W. J. Burns, Peter Kerr, G. S. Birch and H. R. Hamilton, no returns.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Whitney added their names to the list of players yesterday, appearing in the foursomes.

The cup winners are C. E. Maud, medalist; B. W. Steel, winner of championship; C. E. Maud, runner up; V. Spence Black, winner of second flight; F. A. Williams, runner up.

Women cup winners are: Mrs. Peter Kerr, medalist; Mrs. Peter Kerr, champion of first flight; Miss Edith Chesebrough, runner up; Miss A. Warner, winner of second flight; Mrs. H. R. Warner, runner up second flight.

J. C. Ford was the winner in the men's consolation handicap; C. E. Maud had low gross in the sweepstakes, and George A. Innes made the low net score. Mrs. C. F. Kohl had the low net score in the women's consolation handicap. Mrs. C. F. Kohl and P. W. Selby won in the mixed foursomes. The handicap match play against bogey was won by H. Spence Black and in the handicap match play against bogey for women, Mrs. John R. Clark was the winner.

FINED FOR OMISSION.

Mrs. S. Nash, proprietress of a rooming-house at No. 1102 East Seventh street where Fred Lasher, the man who escaped from an officer who was taking him to Phoenix, Ariz., hid last week, was fined $25 by Police Judge Frederickson yesterday morning for not entering Lash's name on her register.

LIQUOR DOESN'T DROWN TROUBLE

Ten Million Men Have Completely Ruined Their Mental and Physical Health Trying to Make Black Failure Look White by Drinking Liquor. The Gatlin Treatment for Liquor Drinking Is the Result of Modern Science

In THREE DAYS, Without Hypodermic Injection or Any Disagreeable Features. It Eradicates All Craving and Desire For Alcoholic Liquors--Sobriety Leads to Health and Wealth

IN AN attempt to free himself from the Chain of Remorse accompanying Failure, the "moderate drinker" will drink more deeply; but he will but forge another and stronger chain.

He tries to accomplish the impossible—make a Right of two Wrongs; he attempts to add Weakness to Weakness and make Strength.

Any kind of liquor drinking—moderate, steady, periodic — any kind of alcoholic liquor—brings the same result—an alcoholic poisoned system. The poison is cumulative, causing a peculiar kind of nervousness which extends to every vital organ of the body—it dominates the brain—and this nervousness responds to no other sedative than alcohol in ever increasing quantities. That is why a real, good, true man continues to drink once he starts—why he can't stop.

The Gatlin is the one perfected treatment for liquor drinking—the one that brings positive, sure, certain results in each case in just THREE DAYS—a longer period would be superfluous. There are many imitations of the Gatlin Treatment. These harm the Gatlin only in advertising "Three Days" and failing to effect the cures the Gatlin does effect. They prey and fatten upon the Gatlin reputation of curing in Three Days. Remember, there is but one efficient Three-Day treatment—the Gatlin.

The liquor drinker can come to the Gatlin Institute TODAY, take the Gatlin Treatment for THREE DAYS—a compound less harmful than coffee—and go home at the end of the THIRD DAY with a system freed of every trace of the alcoholic poison—the poison that has been keeping his mental and physical health and business DOWN so long; go home at the end of the third day craving liquor no more than he craved the first drink of his life, go home at the end of the third day with strong, steady nerves—no ta tremor in them; with an appetite and digestion renewed and with an ambition that will not allow him to remain idle until SUCCESS is reached.

Just THREE DAYS of time. No hypodermic injections, no substitutive stimulants, no possibility of failure, no "bad after effects."

Realize the seriousness of liquor drinking if possible, and come to the Gatlin Institute at once. A legal contract is executed in each case that treatment shall be satisfactory in every particular or there is nothing to pay.

The Gatlin Home Treatment is recommended by those who cannot visit the Institute for three days.

ESPEE OWNS MOST TIMBER.

Holdings Include Ten Per Cent. of Northwest.

Corporation Commissioner Makes Report.

Enormous Increase in Valuation Evidenced.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] According to a report filed with Congress by Commissioner of Corporations Herbert Knox Smith, the Southern Pacific owns more standing timber in this country than any one line. It has 106,000,000,000 feet, or ten per cent of all the standing timber in the Pacific Northwest.

Its timber lands stretch from Portland to Sacramento, a distance of 680 miles. The Weyerhauser Timber Company own 96,000,000,000 feet of timber and the Northern Pacific 36,000,000,000 feet. These three could build a house for each of the 16,000,000 families in the United States and then have some lumber left. They could cut enough lumber to load a train 100,000 miles long. The Southern Pacific, moreover, owns 1,318,000 acres of land in northern California and western Oregon.

Commissioner Smith's report deals with the standing timber of the United States. He finds that there is increasing centralization of control, that there are vast speculative purchases, and that there is an enormous increase of value.

Already four-fifths of the standing timber is privately owned by 1802 owners who have 88,579,000 acres of timber lands. Douglas fir and redwood bought for $2.50 an acre, is now worth $100 to $200 an acre. The total amount of standing timber is placed at 2,800,000,000,000 feet of which 2,200,000,000,000 feet is in private ownership, 530,000,000,000 is in national forests and 80,000,000,000 in other non-private lands.

As 50,000,000,000 feet is cut annually, it is figured that not allowing for new growth, the visible supply of timber will last only fifty-five years and values must advance immensely. So great is the centralization of ownership and control that 195 great holders have forty-eight per cent of all the timber.

RATE PROBLEM FOR SOLUTION.

GOVERNMENT MUST MEDIATE ISTHMUS ISSUE.

Panama Railroad and Steamship Lines Raise Question in Connection With Competition Forced by Rival Carriers on Freight Tariffs Across Canal Zone.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Determination of the question as to whether the Panama Railway Company should encourage competition with its own steamers, and thereby increase the loss now incurred in hauling freight across the isthmus at less than cost, confronts the government in dealing with the California and Atlantic Steamship Company, which wants to maintain vessels on the Atlantic.

Secretary of War Dickinson thus advises President Taft in a letter made public today, bearing on the rate situation between the railroad and steamship lines.

The secretary set forth in his letter that 23 1-3 per cent. was the minimum that went to the railroad on all foreign and Central American business. Reduction of the differential to the Pacific Coast carrier from 70 to 60 per cent. would raise the question as to whether the charge to the coastwise traffic should not at the same time be increased by the railroad from 13 1-2 to 23 1-2 per cent.

Such action, the secretary urged, might drive the steamship companies out of business and lay the government open to the charge of playing into the hands of the transcontinental railroads.

Concessions have been made by both the California and Atlantic and the Pacific Mail Steamship companies in order to get business. The secretary believes these concessions amount to a cutting of rates, which the 70 per cent. division has enabled them to do.

He sets forth that it is alleged that the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company has formally cut rates in competition with the railroad and may do so again. It would be unfortunate, he holds, if a freight rate war on this business should be started.

The Hawaiian company contends for an indiscriminate rate across the isthmus.

The secretary believes a conference soon to be held, will admit of a general adjustment.

AIMED AT INDEENDENT?

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—The cut in ocean freight rates made by the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, and the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company is charged by shipping interests here as having been aimed at the California and Atlantic Steamship Company. This is an independent line from Pacific ports to New Orleans, and the Atlantic Coast, and has been doing a heavy business since its inauguration, particularly in dried and canned fruits.

Several meetings of shippers and other interests affected have been held here to devise means to meet the situation and to preserve competition in ocean freights.

PAPER EXPERIMENTS.

INTERESTING TEST BEGUN.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—With a view to gathering information as to the relative value of plants and woods for paper manufacture, the experimental ground wood pulp mill of the Department of Agriculture located at Wausaw, Wis., has commenced operation. The department for some time has been testing various woods in the laboratory. Some have been found to be suitable for paper manufacture, and the forest service has actually made paper from several of them by chemical means. To ascertain their commercial value it was necessary to subject them to methods of manufacture comparable to those which are employed in business operations. With

"LITTLE NONSENSE NOW AND THEN RELISHED BY THE BEST OF MEN."

Washington News Writers Burlesque National Characters and Public Questions, Presenting Melange of Mimicry With Victims of the Grill Seated as Guests at Banquet Board.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—That unique organization of newspapermen, the Gridiron Club, entertained its friends at dinner tonight, and it would be hard to tell which got the most fun out of the varied melange of wit and humor; of sense and nonsense, that was poured forth—the guests or the hosts.

Gridiron dinners differ from most other formal affairs of the table in the fact that a guest does not wade drearily through a heavy course dinner clear down to the coffee and cigars and only then, with brain more or less dulled, have an opportunity to listen to floods of oratory. No; at one of these banquets the fun begins with the very seating of the guests and sparkles and crackles through the dinner, and interrupts courses in a fashion calculated to drive a well-meaning chef to distraction.

Tonight's dinner was no exception to the rule, for almost at the outset there was what appeared to be a bitter row over the inauguration of Richard V. Oulahan, publisher of the New York Sun, as president to preside over the dinners of the Gridiron Club for the next year. Quite unaware of opposition, he had taken his seat at the very handle of the Gridiron when he was fiercely beset by the famous Democratic "Committee of Fifteen." Because they had undertaken to run the business of the House of Representatives relieving of all responsibility the unfortunate Speaker (Champ Clark) whom they exhibited in shackles to demonstrate what a rules fight in one Congress can do to a perfectly good Speaker in the next; they now extended their ambitious designs and demanded to be inaugurated as President of the Gridiron Club.

Scarcely had the Committee been placated by being resolved into a "Hog Combine" and order restored, when a Japanese spy was unearthed. Papers of the most compromising nature were found upon his person, such as a diagram "showing where Honorable Cummins will place step ladder on back porch of White House," "blue print of Hon. Taft's mind when Hon. Hitchcock refused to be impelled with toe of boot out of Republican National Committee"—"Phonograph record showing long intervals of silence at Oyster Bay" and "measurements of Honorable hole into which Congress throws billion dollars each year." Just when the excitement ran highest, it was discovered that the pseudo-spy was Richmond Pearson Hobson—the "Japanese War Scare."

RECIPROCITY.

Blythe enough was the sprightly clerk who announced to the diners that the House had passed the Reciprocity bill, which he held in his hand. But he cut an awful figure a few minutes later as he emerged from the door of the Senate Chamber, with his clothes in tatters, his hat knocked over his eyes and the parchment of the bill in shreds—"all that was left of Reciprocity."

Then for a moment the dining-hall with its exquisitely beautiful floral embellishments was plunged into blackness, and the great fiery gridiron over President Taft's head faded away. In sepulchral tones a lecturer lifted his voice amid the chill silence and discoursed mournfully, and then in turn with pungent wit upon public men and measures, and shrieks of laughter were heard as a remorseless spot light was directed upon the shrinking victims of his shafts of wit as they were each in order disclosed to their fellow guests.

Thinking that he had quieted all opposition in disposing of the "Committee of Fifteen" the newly-installed president of the club had been lulled into false security. Before his very eyes a big table was spread like magic in the open space below his seat and in a twinkling an opposition dinner was in full blast over his protests. It appeared that there were insurgents even in the Gridiron Club and they had taken this method of showing their independence. They utterly disregarded the president of the club and smugly constituted themselves a mutual admiration society.

"It is perfectly wonderful how we do it" (meaning the dinner,) says one. "It is amazing that newspaper men should have so much talent," volunteers another, to which a third gravely assents, "However, we admit it." Notable guests had these "insurgents," too. Among them were counterfeit presentments of Carnegie, Tawney, Cannon, Sherman, Beveridge, Fairbanks and Champ Clark (all of whom were present in the flesh at the real guest tables,) and these were called upon in turn to briefly address the diners. Each of the little speeches was a bit of delicious parody upon the well-known oratorical styles of the originals. Carnegie, for instance, objected to the number of windows architects placed in his libraries, as not affording dead wall space in fifty-seven places for his own name, and his ambition was "to die poor, but advertised."

SHERMAN WOULD GET VOTES.

Tawney was bitterly opposed to more battleships and economy was his watchword, but he stood for public buildings galore and for the many creeks that needed deepening.

Fairbanks had never attended a more joyous dinner wherefore he felt called upon to add to the hilarity by a few words "in tribute to the great leaders who nested beneath the mossy tombstones on yonder hills." He had mentioned them at the preceding club dinner, but felt justified in recurring to the subject because "they are still dead."

Vice-President Sherman's double told the inevitable anecdote, only in this case it was unspeakably aged and shop-worn, which can never be said of the original article. He would like to be a newspaper man. "Let me but write the political news of the nation and the Old Guard will get the votes," said he.

Beveridge's representative "stood fearlessly for the uplift." In fact he was the uplift himself. He had never missed an opportunity to make a speech, and indeed he "had made a great many when there were no opportunities." Champ Clark was fairly obscessed with his love for Uncle Joe, but of course that had nothing to do with the fact that "he will be fussing around on the floor of the House when I am up in the Speaker's chair."

All of the speakers, by a singular coincidence, expressed their undying admiration of the Gridiron Club, "no member of which had ever betrayed their confidence."

Though a few days after the Sentimental Saint's annual visitation, the Gridiron Club was resolved that its guests should not suffer for their Valentines, and the pretty missives were personally bestowed upon the favored ones between courses by a 200-pound Cupid with diaphanous wings (and little else,) who cruelly insisted upon proclaiming aloud each choice bit of sentiment, which generally was loaded with half-concealed jest at the expense of the recipients.

MR. TAFT AND THE TARIFF.

Catching up and holding together the various skits and adding to the jollity of the occasion were the topical songs of the famous Gridiron Quartette, replete with sparkling humor, yet abounding in the sweetest melody. President Taft was not given the usual number of turns on the red-hot gridiron, so he had a better opportunity to enjoy himself and doubtless one of the songs especially appealed to his risibilities. It was entitled "The Tariff Whoop," and pictured the plight of a sturdy Kansas member of Congress who had been shrieking for tariff reduction and:

"Kicked up such a terrible din,
That President Taft suggestively laughed.
To cut rates he started right in.
He framed a Canadian treaty,
Put farm products on the free list.
But the Kansas insurgent held views so divergent"
He begged his colleagues to desist."

And the solo in the chorus rang out:
"Great guns, Holy Smoke, can't Bill Taft take a joke?"

Carnegie received a special tribute, being saluted in a coon song beginning:

"A man named Andrew Carnegie was busy giving things away.
He thought that he was Santa Claus and every day was Christmas day."

And Uncle Joe, and Roosevelt and Champ Clark and Guggenheim and Beveridge had their roast in combination in a "Song of Famous Men."

It is not to be supposed for a moment that the Gridironers did all the roasting, though. The victims of the grill came back in great style, and it is to be regretted that the inviolable rule of the famous organization which protects the utterances of the guests of the Gridiron Club from publication, operates to consign to oblivion some of the brightest and wittiest and sometimes pathetic deliverances of the greatest brains of the nation.

LORIMER TO SAY HIS SAY.

Illinois Senator Gives Notice of Intention to Address Senate.

[Associated Press Night Report.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Senator Lorimer will be heard in his own behalf in the Senate next Wednesday. He gave notice today that he would speak, saying only that he would ask the attention of the Senate while he addressed it on the charges made in connection with his election. Later Mr. Lorimer told his friends that he did not expect to enter upon a searching analysis of the testimony in the case, as he was of the opinion that the Senate had been convinced by speeches already made that the proof against him was not convincing. It is generally believed Mr. Lorimer's speech will close the discussion of his case.

FINDS ARMY UNAPPRECIATED.

Major-General Declares People Are Ignorant of Military and Urges Soldiers to Remain Loyal.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Ignorance of the army and lack of sympathy with the military spirit are charged against the American people by Maj.-Gen. William P. Duvall, former commander-in-chief of the Philippines division of the army.

In the general order issued at Manila last December and just received here, in which he bade farewell to the men under his command, prior to his retirement, he said:

"I would charge them (the troops) not to be disheartened by the too frequent manifestation of ignorance of the military on the part of our people and lack of sympathy with the military spirit, but to remember that the army is not what the popular imagination pictures it, a useless excresence upon the structure of the government, but an integral part of that structure, one of its foundation stones.

"Understand that the army in the Philippines is practically an army in the field. Keep alive your spirit of patriotism. Enshrine your country in your heart and worship her. To some of you may come the glory of giving up your life for her. Let it be a life worthy of her pride in the sacrifice."

AFRICAN ANIMALS FOR SOUTH.

Explorer Goes to Dark Continent to Investigate Suitability of Fauna for Florida Swamps.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—To investigate the conditions under which certain South African animals might be imported into this country to inhabit the swamps of Louisiana and other southern States, Maj. F. O. Burnham, South African explorer and mining engineer, will leave here immediately for South Africa. It is proposed to use these animals for domestic and other purposes.

Maj. Burnham and John H. Hammond have been here conferring with Representative Broussard of Louisiana relative to the bill introduced by Mr. Broussard at the last session of Congress authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to import animals calculated to thrive among the swamps of southern States.

In speaking of the bill today, Maj. Burnham recalled the time when reindeer were introduced into Alaska from Lapland. At the time, he said, it was but today the reindeer is indispensable.

"I am confident that if certain African animals are imported," he said, "they will not only thrive in the swamps of the South, but in a few years will gradually become an important factor in the meat market."

"Every precaution will be exercised against any possibility of the importation of the diseases of the animals that frequent certain parts of South Africa," continued Maj. Burnham.

On his return from South Africa, he said, the bill would be taken up and pushed through, if possible, at the next session of Congress.

CENSUS FIGURES SLIGHTLY HIGH.

UNITED STATES POPULATION OVER-ESTIMATED.

Errors in Twenty-three Cities May Reduce Total by Small Per Cent.—Several Cases of Fraud to Be Investigated by Federal Department of Justice.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—"Taking the country as a whole, it is probable the population is slightly overstated by the Census Bureau," declares Director of Census Durand, in his annual report, "but whether the margin of error is a fraction of one per cent., or amounts to as much as 2 per cent., no one can positively know. That it should exceed 2 per cent is certainly extremely improbable."

This statement is made in the course of his discussion of the twenty-three cities which were over-counted.

It was necessary, after careful investigation, the director says, to correct the population figures for some twenty-three cities of the United States "whose census returns had been inaccurately made, or 'padded' either intentionally or through carelessness or error."

He says that in several cities there seems to have been a deliberate conspiracy between private individuals and some of the special agents or enumerators, or both, to inflate fraudently the census returns. Several cases of padding are now in the hands of the Department of Justice.

Taking up the cost of the census taking, the director thinks it will exceed its original estimate by $183,000. The entire cost of field work on population and agriculture was about $5,185,500, an increase over 1900 of about $1,587,606, or 37 1-2 per cent.

BREAKFAST FOOD FOR HORSES.

Mixture of Cocoanut and Peanut Meal Experimeted With as a Substitute for Oats Ration.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—A new angle of the high cost of living has come to light. It is the increased cost of grain for horse feed and as a substitute for oats, the Bureau of Animal Industry has developed a sort of equine breakfast food composed of cocoanut and peanut meal.

A bulletin just issued by the Department of Agriculture describes the result obtained by "trying the mixture on the dog," in this case, ten Morgan yearlings and four work horses on the bureau's horse farm near Middlebury, Vt.

That the "dog" was not altogether edified by the experience is intimated in the statement of the bulletin that "none of the horses took to the cocoanut and peanut ration eagerly and the work-horse team so fed was off feed during the first three weeks."

At the conclusion of these tests, however, all the horses were reported in good condition.

The saving in cost was $15.75 per ton of mixture, or the difference between $43.75, the cost per ton of whole oats, and $28, the price paid per ton for the nut-meal mixture.

NAVAL OFFICER IS MISSING.

Takes Two-Day Furlough in Early Part of February and Fails to Return to Mare Island Yards.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The disappearance of Capt. Arthur J. Matthews of the United States Marine Corps, after he had been granted a few days' leave of absence from his post at the Mare Island Navy Yard, was reported to the Secretary of the Navy today in a telegram from Rear-Admiral Osterhaus, commandant of the yard. A search is being made.

He left the yard February 2, his leave extending two days. It is reported, although not definitely established, that he was seen in San Francisco four days later. His effects at plated absence of any length of time. His velongings were unpacked and while it was disclosed he had drawn some money there is still a substantial balance left in his bank.

THINK HIM SHANGHAIED.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

VALLEJO, Feb. 18.—That Capt. Arthur J. Matthew, warden of the naval prison at Mare Island barracks, who has mysteriously dropped from sight, has been shanghaied, was the opinion expressed by Maj. Arthur L. Roosevelt of the Marine Corps.

Maj. Roosevelt last saw Capt. Matthews on February 6, when he was leaving the Palace Hotel in San Francisco to take the steamer at the ferry for Mare Island Navy Yard.

Rear-Admiral Osterhaus has appointed another officer as warden of the naval prison.

PROMOTION TOO LATE.

DIES AWAITING REAPPOINTMENT

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Ada Mayes, who served a score of years as postmistress at El Monte, which was made a Presidential office the first of the year, died last Saturday, February 11, while her nomination for reappointment was under consideration. She was appointed February 15, and was confirmed by the Senate on the 17th, news not having been received of her death. Her sister, Lulu Mayes, who has long been an assistant in the office, is a candidate for appointment to fill the vacancy.

BACK AT GERMANY.

SENATOR HAS PLAN.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Senator Curtiss expects to press for passage at the present session an amendment to the pure food act, which he introduced last session, on the ground that it would be in the hands of President Taft a weapon which he might use in dealing with the German government in respect to the potash and other disturbing questions. The proposed amendment would enable the President to exclude from importation the products of any foreign country when he is satisfied that such country, in violation of treaty obligations with the United States, seeks by repressive, discriminatory, or confiscatory measures to jeopardize, impair or destroy the capital of citizens of the United States legitimately invested in such foreign State."

REVOCATION OF ORDER ASKED.

Traffic Bureau Asks Co-operation of Business Men.

Say Old Agreement Has Developed Water Commerce.

Body Also Opposes Senator Hewitt's Bill.

SAN PEDRO, Feb. 18.—The recently organized San Pedro Traffic Bureau today adopted resolutions asking commercial bodies of Southern California to request Representatives in Congress to persuade the Secretary of War to withdraw the order recently issued that will cancel the agreements with the government of the Pacific Mail and Haes and Chesebrough steamship lines.

The resolutions declare that the agreements that made water competition possible on transcontinental freight have resulted in reducing the cost of transportation and building up water bourne commerce in connection with the Panama Railroad from practically nothing to upwards to 250,000 tons annually. The resolutions follow:

Whereas, the United States government has, within the past year, so arranged rates and divisions of rates for the handling of freight across the Isthmus of Panama in connection with water carriers, as, for the first time, to enable free competition between the Atlantic and the Pacific coasts of the United States, resulting in the building of the carriage of water borne freight in connection with said Panama Railroad from almost nothing to upwards of 250,000 tons per annum, and further resulting in the reduction in cost of transportation of freight from $10 the lowest rate theretofore known,) $15 and $20 per ton, to $8 per ton; and,

Whereas, the Secretary of War has recently issued orders cancelling present arrangements for handling freight via said Panama Railroad in connection with steamship lines, which will result in the abandonment of the present service across the Isthmus of Panama, to the great detriment of all business interests on the Pacific Coast; and,

Whereas, we believe that the present rates and divisions are equitable, and that any disturbance of the present situation can only result in the reversion to the conditions existing for the past fifteen years or more and prevent water competition for commerce between the two coasts;

Now, therefore, be it resolved by the San Pedro Traffic Bureau that we request our representatives in Congress to use every honorable means in their power to persuade the Secretary of War to withdraw the order recently made canceling arrangements for the handling of freight across the Isthmust of Panama in connection with sea carriers; and,

Be it further resolved, that a copy of this resolution, with a letter of explanation, be sent to all commercial bodies in Southern California, and to the City Council, the Harbor Commission and the Associated Jobbers of the city of Los Angeles, asking them to take similar action.

Resolutions were also adopted asking the Legislature to reduce the pilotage fees at this port one-half by amending as against Senator Hewitt's bill for municipal control. The resolutions follow:

Whereas, measures are now pending before the Legislature of the State of California, effecting the appointment of, and charges to be made by pilots, or for pilotage services, at the port of San Pedro, California, and

Whereas, we believe that present pilotage rates are much too high for the services rendered, and would be, if charged, a burden upon commerce at this port and tend to drive shipping to other ports, and

Whereas, it is the sense of this bureau that all other provisions of the present law relative to pilots and pilotage at the port of San Pedro are very satisfactory to the shipping interests, ship owners and commercial interests surrounding said port,

Now, therefore, be it resolved by the San Pedro Traffic Bureau that we request our representatives in Legislature assembled to use every honorable means in their power to amend Section 9 of the act providing for the appointment of pilots and defining their duties and compensation, at the port of Wilmington and bay of San Pedro, as follows, and that, with that change said law remain as now in effect:

"Sec. 9. The following shall be the rates of pilotage into and out of the bay of San Pedro, at the outer anchorage:

"All vessels under 500 tons, $2.50 per foot draught; all vessels over 500 tons, five cents per ton for each and every ton gross registered tonnage. For all vessels engaged in the whaling or fishing trade the rate of pilotage shall be fifty cents per foot draught. When a vessel is spoken and the services of a pilot are declined, the pilot shall be entitled to one-half pilotage rates. All vessels engaged in the coasting trade between ports of the United States on the Pacific Coast shall be exempted from all charges for pilotage, unless a pilot shall actually be employed. All vessels over 500 tons gross register shall, when piloted into or out of the harbor of San Pedro or Wilmington over the bar adjoining Dead Man's Island, pay pilotage rates as follows: $2.50 per foot draught and two and one-half cents per ton for each ton gross registered tonnage."

Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to each member of the State Legislature from Southern California.

FINDS MISSING NECKLACE.

New York Woman Sues for Antique Trinket and Recovers It from Paris Museum.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PARIS, Feb. 18.—Mrs. Whitney Warren of New York, when visiting recently the Paris Decorative Arts Museum, was surprised to see an Eighteenth Century necklace of brilliants, valued at $6000, which she had lost in a case loaned the museum by Mme. de Purdussin. Mrs. Warren brought suit for the necklace and the court has just ordered Mme. de Purdussin to return it.

Mme. de Purdussin bought the trinket from a jeweler who had acquired it from a hotel-keeper. The latter had taken it from a woman lodger in payment of a bill for $70.

RED CROSS MAKES ANOTHER APPEAL FOR CHINESE RELIEF.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Only one-quarter of the cargo of supplies to be sent to China on the transport Buford, for the relief of the famine sufferers, has been received. This information was received by the American National Red Cross today in a telegram from the Seattle Commercial Club.

The Red Cross at once issued an urgent appeal for provisions and money to complete the cargo.

Contributions of supplies, the appeal says, should be sent to the Seattle Commercial Club, Seattle, Wash., and money for the purchase of supplies to the American Red Cross, Washington, D. C.

Advices to the Red Cross declare the plague has spread to Shan Tung province, and is now within 150 miles of the famine district. If the disease invades central China, where hundreds of thousands are on the verge of starvation, it is pointed out the mortality will be appalling.

The Red Cross has sent physicians to aid in the fight on the plague, but food must be provided for the starving if the fight is to meet with success, the appeal continues, otherwise the plague may spread through all China, if not to the shores of America.

PLAGUE DESCRIPTION.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SEATTLE, Feb. 18.—The spread of the plague in Manchuria and throughout north China is commented on by Japanese papers just received here as showing the incompetence of the Chinese authorities. It is pointed out the plague has not been permitted to extend into Korea or Japanese territory, and has been held in check in the territory in Manchuria, over which the Japanese have control.

According to a Mukden letter, the plague broke out at Khailer and Tsitsihar City, where a vast quantity of tarbagan skins had been gathered by an enterprising trader, who has since shipped them to America. The plague is the Mongolian form and originates with the tarbagan, or Mongolian, marmot. The tarbagan is about the size of a full-grown cat and has yellowish-brown fur, which is used in the fabrication of cheap "imitation" furs. The steppes of Mongolia swarm with the animals, which in their habits are much like the prairie dogs of the United States.

The Indian form of the plague, which is carried by the rat, differs from the Mongolian, the latter, according to report, being more deadly.

In Mongolia the natives shun the tarbagans. The fur trader brought nondescript Chinese into Mongolia to hunt the marmots. These hunters were excellent plague subjects. They were crowded into wretched hovels or inns, and there were no sanitary arrangements.

The Mongolian plague thrives in the coldest weather and there is no hope of checking it until the hot winds of April and May arrive.

MANY OBSERVATORIES RECORD HEAVY SHOCK OF EARTHQUAKE.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

OTTAWA (Ont.) Feb. 18.—A distant earthquake shock was recorded on the seismograph at the observatory here at 9 o'clock last night. Dr. Klotz, the observer, believes an interruption of the Australia-New Caledonia cable was caused by the tremor.

AT LONDON.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

LONDON, Feb. 18.—The seismograph at Fordham University registered an earthquake shock at six minutes past 2 o'clock this afternoon. The direction was east and west.

AT WASHINGTON.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—An earthquake shock fairly severe, and lasting over a considerable period, was reported today on the seismograph at Georgetown University. Father Tondorf estimated the disturbance to be 3000 miles from Washington.

AT NEW ORLEANS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 18.—An unusually severe earthquake was recorded this afternoon at Loyola College, at 1:45 o'clock. At 5 o'clock the vibrations still were pronounced.

BERLIN (Ger.) Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Spencer Eddy, formerly Miss Elizabeth Spreckels, of San Francisco, wife of the former American minister to Roumania, underwent a successful operation yesterday at the hands of the celebrated Berlin woman's specialist, Prof. Bumm. The surgeon says that if nothing unforseen intervenes, Mrs. Eddy will be up and about by the end of next week. Mr. Eddy

HOME RULE DOMINATES.

King George Says He Would Like to Open Irish Parliament—First Place Accorded Measure.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] King George, it is known, has said it would give him profound gratification to open the first Home Rule Parliament in Ireland.

Home Rule once more dominates the British Parliament. Premier Asquith's explicit promise to establish a full empowered Irish Parliament and his further declaration that the government will give the Home Rule bill first place

Lords' power of veto is passed is an immense triumph for the Irish party. Certainly it demonstrates that its leaders have utilized their position in Parliament with consummate skill and effect.

The Unionists' favorite prophecy has been that the Liberals would trick the Irish party by offering them an inadequate bill and afterwards would give priority to the bill disestablishing the Church in Wales.

Shorn of these hopes the Tories are now buoying themselves with weak anticipation that Home Rule will be beaten by a combination of labor members, disappointed Welsh disestablishers and English non-conformists frightened by the old bogey, Catholic domination in Ireland.

There is no reason to expect any such secession from the Liberal party, and especially as systematic attempts to awake the religious apprehensions of Englishmen have failed signally.

The Colorado Senate has adopted a resolution requesting President Taft to call an extra session of Congress, to remedy "the inequalities" of the tariff law. The Democrats voted for and Republicans against the resolution. It undoubtedly will be adopted by the Oriental Convicted of Murdering Woman at Denver Denied Appeal and Taken to Penitentiary.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

DENVER, Feb. 18.—Genkyo Mitsunaga, the Japanese sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Mrs. Katherine Wilson, was denied an appeal today by the Supreme Court. He must, therefore, begin service of his sentence in the penitentiary at Canon City at once.

Mitsunaga was convicted on circumstantial evidence, although he had made a confession which was substantially repudiated on the ground that the confession was obtained by "third degree" methods. The government of Japan stood behind Mitsunaga during his trial, the Japanese consul employing lawyers for him.

Mitsunaga had been engaged to assist in house cleaning by Mrs. Wilson. The latter several days afterwards was found dead in the cellar of her home, the body having been cast into a box of rubbish.

Mitsunaga fled the city and was apprehended several weeks later at Mc-

Prominent Symptoms of Catarrh

READ THEM ALL. WHICH OF THEM APPLY TO YOU?

THE HEAD AND THROAT

This form of catarrh is most common — resulting from neglected colds —quickly cured with little cost by Drs. Shores' new treatment.

Is your head stopped up?
Does your nose discharge?
Is your nose sore and tender?
Is there pain in front of the head?
Do you hawk to clear the throat?
Is your throat dry in the morning?
Do you sleep with your mouth open?

You can be easily cured now. Don't let it run into complications.

THE BRONCHIAL TUBES.

When catarrh of the head or throat is neglected or wrongfully treated it extends down the wind-pipe into the bronchial tubes and after awhile attacks the lungs.

Have you a cough?
Do you take cold easily?
Have you a pain in the side?
Do you raise frothy materials?
Do you spit up little cheesy lumps?
Do you feel like you were growing weaker?

Don't risk neglecting these warnings—stop the disease before it reaches the lungs.

OF THE EARS.

Catarrh extends from the throat along the eustachian tubes into the ears, causing partial or complete deafness.

Is your hearing failing?
Do your ears discharge?
Is the wax drying in your ears?
Do you hear better on some days?
Does a cold make your hearing worse?

Don't neglect this until your hearing is irreparably destroyed.

OF THE STOMACH.

Catarrh of the stomach is usually caused by swallowing mucous which drops down from the head and throat at night.

Is there nausea?
Do you belch up gas?
Are you constipated?
Do you bloat up after eating?
Is there constant bad taste?

again. Miss Sutton played every point as well as her opponent but when the final decision came Miss Sutton invariably drew an "ace from her sleeve" and took the trick.

Both young ladies were tired before the two-set match was over. It took longer to play this two-set match than it did the three-set match of Bundy and McLoughlin, all of which was due to the continual tie over the forty point. Miss Sutton was grim and determined. She was in perfect form and knew it. Miss Hotchkiss was in form and knew it also and every point was a game in itself owing to the tenacity with which it was fought for.

Early in the match the outcome was foreseen. McLoughlin coached Miss Hotchkiss earnestly but to no avail. She said "rats" several times when misses happened and just as loyally said "peach" when Miss Sutton rescued a drive from an almost impossible corner and sent it hurtling back like a rifle bullet. The cheering of the gallery was equally divided when the result was known.

The great match of the day was to come in mixed doubles. The northern man had defeated the southern man and the southern woman had defeated the northern woman. Now they were all four to play, the north against the south.

The match was beautifully simple. Miss Sutton and Bundy simply outclassed Miss Hotchkiss and McLoughlin. Both of the southern players were steadier than their northern rivals and older hands at the game. Their team work was superb and there was little fuss about the drives they sent in. On the other hand, the northerners were plainly a little fussed and worried over their game. The result was evident after the first game. Miss Sutton and Bundy walked away with the match in one-two-three order. The latter part of the match showed but little fast playing, owing to the darkness which had settled.

BUNDY METTLESOME.

M'LOUGHLIN'S FINE PLAY.

McLoughlin started off with a rush that put Bundy on his mettle, the northern crack taking the first game in their match easily. Bundy won the second game by his brilliant placing of the ball. McLoughlin annexed the third game which was replete with fast exchanges and long rallies. The Southern California star managed to win the fourth game after a terrific deuce set.

McLoughlin took an extra hitch in his belt and won four straight, taking the first set 6-2. McLoughlin's serving and great driving ability won for him. Bundy's puzzling "break" service was easily solved by McLoughlin and the Los Angeles player failed palpably in his placing of the ball on pass court shots. Bundy broke his racquet in the last game in this set.

McLoughlin made several almost impossibly backhand strokes and never played in better form, in the opinion of the experts. He covered lots of territory and did not miss over half a dozen of his famous "kill drive" shots during the set.

Bundy did not strike his stride until the second set when he made his opponent extend himself to the utmost in order to win an 8-6 victory.

McLoughlin won the first game in the second set on his service. Bundy crawled up to deuce after the northern rival had him forty love. Bundy took the next game handily. His placing in this game was superb and he showed for the first time in the match a flash of his old time form. The Bay City lad succeeded in winning the next two games, which were replete with brilliant shots and skillful strokes. McLoughlin's pass court work in these two games was excellent and aroused loud cheers from the excited spectators. After a long drawn out deuce contest McLoughlin won the next game making it 4-1 in his favor. Bundy took the next game. McLoughlin making two doubles in succession. McLoughlin won the next easily, his opponent making but fifteen. Bundy braced up at this stage of the set and won the next three games in easy fashion making it five all. McLoughlin won his "serve" game and had Bundy forty love in the next when Bundy warmed up and won the game making it six all.

HEAVY SMASHES.

The northern youngster won the next two and set 8-6. Bundy could do little in this set with his opponent's smashes and terrific drives in the back court. He played a plucky uphill game in this set and was roundly cheered by the spectators.

Bundy broke his second racquet in the latter part of the second set and McLaughlin loaned him one. While Bundy was not accustomed to the racquet it made little difference in his playing ability. McLaughlin started out as usual winning the first game. Bundy won the second after a hard deuce battle which lasted fully five minutes. McLaughlin won the next two making it three to one in his favor. Bundy won two straight in games replete with sensational features and thrilling plays.

McLoughlin won the seventh game on his service and Bundy came back winning the next making it four all. McLoughlin had Bundy forty-love in the ninth game but Bundy plugged along making it deuce, finally losing the game after several interesting rallies. McLoughlin won the last game of the set after a long drawn out deuce battle. Bundy drove ball after ball into the net and his back court playing was miserable. He failed to show the speed and skill that he did at Coronado last week when he disposed of McLoughlin without extending himself in three straight sets.

McLoughlin played a remarkable game and his driving and serving strokes were the finest ever seen in Southern California. He never failed to take a chance and tried sensational and hazardous strokes in every game played during the match. McLoughlin is scarcely twenty-one years old and was ranked fourth by the United States lawn tennis ranking committee for 1910.

HOLDS THE TROPHY.

Bundy was placed in second position by the committee on account of his splendid showing against William Larned, the national champion at Newport last summer. The beautiful Virginia Challenge Cup for gentlemen's singles will remain in the possession of McLoughlin for the ensuing year. Bundy won the cup in 1909 and McLoughlin defeated the challenge holder last year. It must be won three times before it becomes the property of any player.

The match between Sinsabaugh and McLoughlin and Bacon and Young in the semi-finals of the men's singles was the stellar attraction in the morning contests. Experts before the match gave Bacon and Young a "fighting chance" but they not only won the first set but came within one point, three times, of winning the second set and match.

Bacon and Young won the first three games easily. Their opponents took the next three and they seesawed to five all, Bacon and Young winning the set 7-5. Bacon played a strong, steady game and fought every inch of the way. McLoughlin seemed to be somewhat off his game and appeared to be saving himself for his big match with Tom Bundy.

McLoughlin and Sinsabaugh annexed the second set 13-11, after a long-drawn-out contest, which kept the spectators intensely interested. The losers were within one point of the game and match in this set three times but the winning point was not forthcoming. In the last set the winners fairly walked away from their opponents, winning 6-1. Young played poorly in the last set and made several doubles at critical stages.

Miss Sherk won the finals in the ladies' special singles from Miss Green in an interesting contest, 6-3, 6-0. Miss Sherk plays a fine game and her service and driving strokes are excellent. Miss Green is accustomed to playing on grass courts and the cement courts interfered somewhat with her playing.

THE RESULTS.

Summary:

Miss Green won the semi-finals from Mrs. Stickrod in two straight sets, 6-1, 7-5. Capt. Green, 72 years old, father of Miss Green, acted as one of the linesmen during the match. Miss Florence Sutton and Miss Mary Browne defeated Mrs. Bruce and Miss Green in the semi-finals of the ladies' doubles, 6-1, 8-6. Miss Florence Sutton played a fine game and her backhand strokes elicited great applause.

Miss May Sutton and Bundy defeated Miss Florence Sutton and Sinsabaugh in an interesting contest, 6-1, 9-7. Miss Hotchkiss and McLoughlin defeated Mrs Bruce and Young, 6-2, 6-3, in the semi-finals of the mixed doubles. Duncan and Browne defeated Hendrick and Mace in the semi-finals in doubles, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5. Duncan played a very good game.

Results:

Finals, Men's singles: McLoughlin beat Bundy, 6-2, 8-6, 6-4.

Men's doubles, semi-finals: Duncan and Browne beat Hendrick and Mace, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5.

Finals, ladies' special singles: Miss Sherk beat Miss Green, 6-3, 6-0.

Ladies' doubles, semi-finals: Miss Florence Sutton and Miss Browne beat Mrs. Harvey and Mrs. Widdowson, 6-1, 6-0.

Mixed doubles, semi-finals: Miss Hotchkiss and McLoughlin beat Mrs. Bruce and Young, 6-2, 6-3. Miss May Sutton and Bundy beat Miss Florence Sutton and Sinsabaugh, 6-1, 9-7.

Worrying About Gloves.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Some legislators at Sacramento are worrying as to whether seven or eight ounce gloves should be permitted in prize fights. It is very much like Tweedledee and Tweedledum. If the lawmakers want a bit of suggestion, they can better the rules in another fashion that will mean more than merely weight. Let them provide a clause that will prohibit the working back of the packing in the glove, or the "breaking of a glove," as it is known technically.

SANTA ANA, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Santa Ana High School baseball team defeated Throop Polytechnic of Pasadena today by a score of 5 to 1. The game was the first of the season for both teams. The pitching of Will Warren of Santa Ana, a freshman southpaw, was a fea-

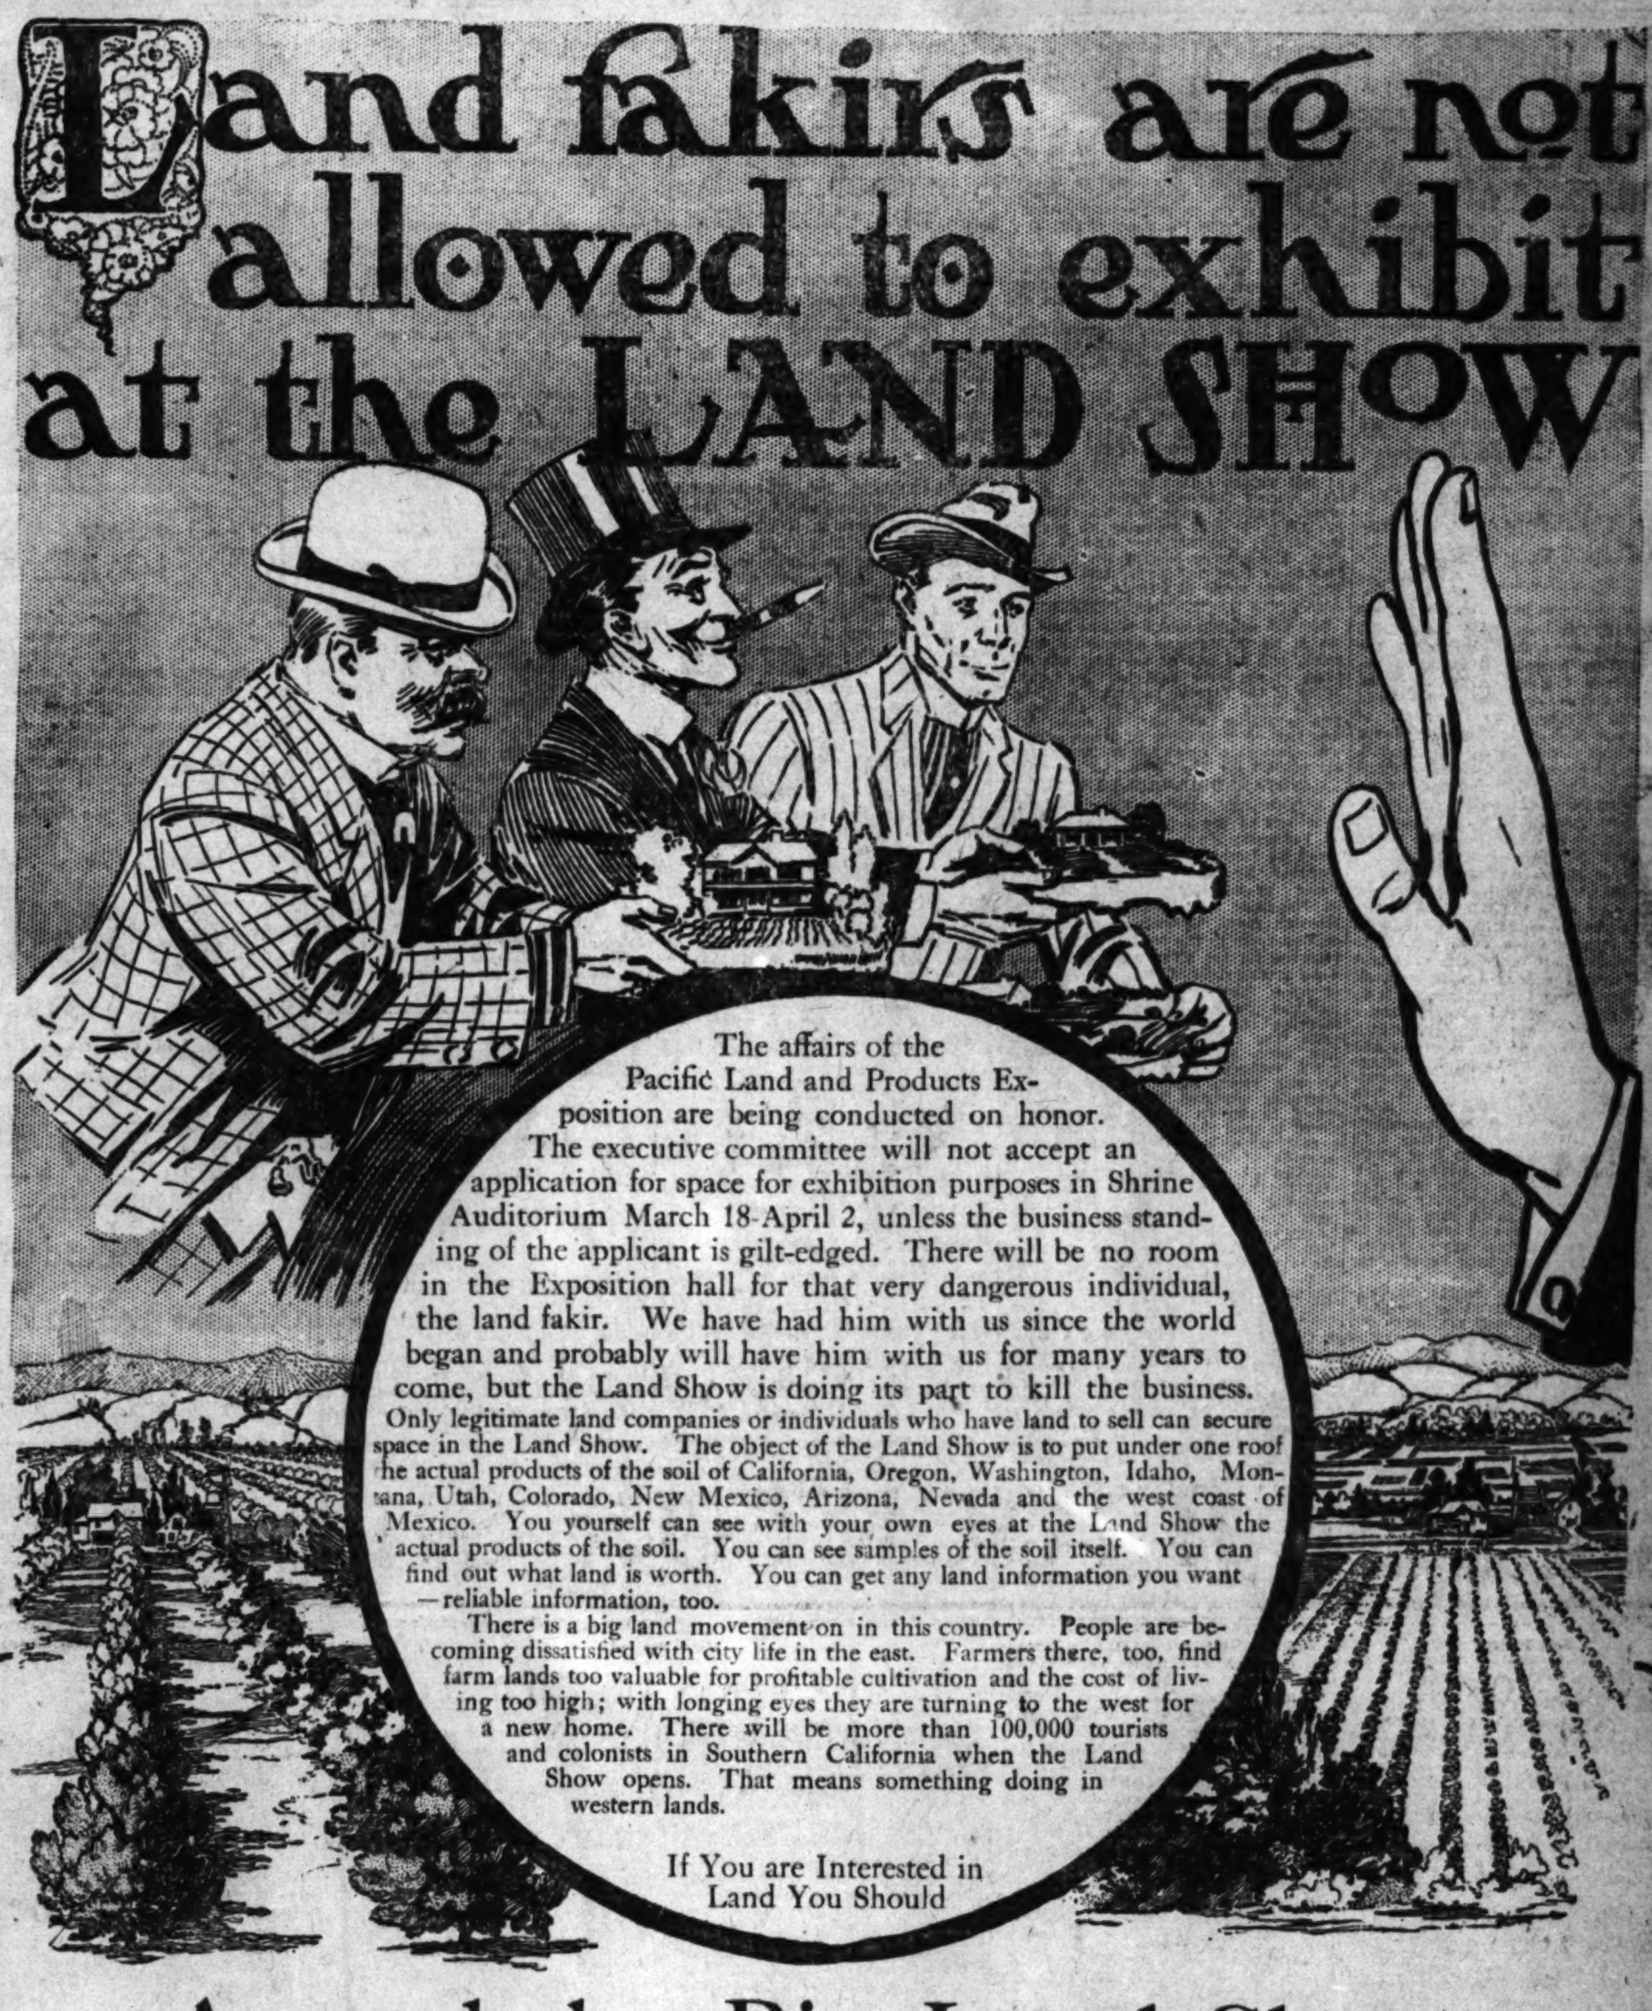
Land fakirs are not allowed to exhibit at the LAND SHOW



The affairs of the Pacific Land and Products Exposition are being conducted on honor. The executive committee will not accept an application for space for exhibition purposes in Shrine Auditorium March 18-April 2, unless the business standing of the applicant is gilt-edged. There will be no room in the Exposition hall for that very dangerous individual, the land fakir. We have had him with us since the world began and probably will have him with us for many years to come, but the Land Show is doing its part to kill the business. Only legitimate land companies or individuals who have land to sell can secure space in the Land Show. The object of the Land Show is to put under one roof the actual products of the soil of California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada and the west coast of Mexico. You yourself can see with your own eyes at the Land Show the actual products of the soil. You can see samples of the soil itself. You can find out what land is worth. You can get any land information you want—reliable information, too.

There is a big land movement on in this country. People are becoming dissatisfied with city life in the east. Farmers there, too, find farm lands too valuable for profitable cultivation and the cost of living too high; with longing eyes they are turning to the west for a new home. There will be more than 100,000 tourists and colonists in Southern California when the Land Show opens. That means something doing in western lands.

If You are Interested in Land You Should

NEWS REPORTS—FROM CORRESPONDENTS OF THE TIMES.

Pasadena.

BRIDGE PLANS ARE FINISHED.

Promoters Hope It Will Soon Take Material Form.

Preparing Programme to Put Through Bond Issue.

New Candidate for Mayor Shies Castor in Ring.

(Office of The Times, 26 S. Raymond avenue.)

PASADENA, Feb. 19.—Plans for the proposed Arroyo Seco bridge at the foot of West Colorado street have practically been decided on by city and county officials. A meeting was held yesterday afternoon on the banks of the Arroyo Seco bridge between Mayor Earley and members of the Council, County Surveyor Noble, Bridge Engineer Rothenburg, Engineer Joyner, Crocker of the Los Angeles City Bridge Department, Smith of the Union Iron Works, Wheeler and Mercereau of the Mercereau Bridge Company.

Surveyor Noble has been busily engaged drawing plans for the proposed bridge ever since the Board of Supervisors agreed to stand half the expense of the structure ten days ago. The plans contemplate practically a straight bridge over the arroyo with a small easy curve from the east approach to the east bank of the arroyo, thence straight to the west approach, with a 2 per cent. grade on the west end and 3 per cent. on the east end. The bridge will be of reinforced concrete, approximately 1400 feet long and will cost about $200,000.

The principal object of yesterday's visit was to compare the plans with the site and see about how they would fit. Noble stated that within a few days he will be able to tell just how much of the Scoville property it will be necessary to have at both ends of the bridge. This matter will have to be determined before any arrangements can be made with Scoville for buying his property.

The Board of Trade Bridge Committee which has been handling the project will again get busy trying to get some sort of understanding regarding the right of way just as soon as possible. It is also hoped by the committee that a city bond election will be called at the very earliest opportunity. It is felt that delay at this time will be harmful. The committee which consists of twenty-five members is unanimous in favor of having an election called for voting the bonds alone. Mayor Earley has stated that he is in favor of having one bond election to vote bonds for the bridge, Carmelita, Monk's Hill, Convention Hall and new fire apparatus.

METCALF IN RACE.

William Thum is no longer the "lone candidate" for Mayor. He must "slide over" and share his honors with R. L. Metcalf, who was yesterday prevailed upon by his friends to come forward and sacrifice himself "for the welfare of the city." For more than a month Metcalf has been "talked of," but not until yesterday afternoon could he be prevailed upon to forget personal retirement and a life of ease and happiness "for the good of the cause." Thum was the only original candidate and ever since the campaign opened has had everything his own way, until it began to look as though, for the sake of harmony, all interests would come together and have no differences at the polls. But the "harmonizers" were not successful. There are those who do not believe in letting one man have everything all his own way.

Metcalf is an old resident of the city; was formerly president of the Y.M.C.A.; served one term as Police, Fire and Park Commissioner; is prominent in church and religious circles, and a general all-around good business man and large property owner. It is stated that his platform will practically coincide with the one which Thum has constructed. However, Metcalf will have the support of the church organizations, while Thum will have the support of the Municipal Light League. It is believed that a majority of what was formerly known as the Earley crowd will rally to the support of Metcalf, while the opposition will flock to the Thum standard. However, there will be some radical insurgents from the old municipal parties and the "universal peace project" has not only been punctured but rent asunder. From now on until election day it will be what Gen. Sherman said happens when men disagree.

CHARGES BAD FAITH.

In bold headlines the Evening News last night charged the City Council with bad faith in awarding the city printing contracts for the last three years, showing by alleged actual figures that but one of the two local papers submitted a bid for the printing, that the price was always much higher than charged for other advertising and that at the end of each month the two papers divided the profits of the work, regardless of which paper did the city's printing. It charges that the City Councilmen "had common knowledge" that the city printing "would alternate from one paper to the other." While this has been the common rumor on the streets for several years neither of the parties interested ever before admitted the "alleged collusion." According to the figures printed by the News last night there have been large profits in doing the city's printing.

Sometime ago the News changed hands and the new owners stated they would not enter into combination with the other paper to secure the city printing, and accordingly made a much lower bid, two weeks ago, than the competitor for next year's work. The bid was rejected because of non-conformity in some minor details and bids were readvertised for. The awarding of the city printing contract will come up again next Tuesday and a lively scrap is expected.

TRIBUTE TO E. B. OWEN.

Ernest B. Owen, who died recently, was a man of great personal charm and was extremely popular with his business associates. The Sierra Madre-Lamanda Citrus Association, of which he was manager, called a meeting of directors and eulogistic resolutions were adopted. He was a public-spirited citizen, whose influence was widely felt and appreciated.

BROUGHER TO SPEAK.

Rev. Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher, pastor of Temple Baptist Church, Los Angeles, will address the men's meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association at the First Baptist Church this afternoon on "What a Man Needs Most."

The vesper services of the Young

At the First Congregational Church tonight Rev. Dr. D. F. Fox will deliver a lecture on "The Founders of the Republic."

Rev. Dr. Albert Hatcher Smith, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will deliver a special lecture at his church this evening on "The Real Heroism of the Real George Washington."

At the First Universalist Church this morning Rev. H. L. Canfield will deliver a sermon in memory of Frances Willard.

MULLER FUNERAL TODAY.

The funeral of Emil J. Muller, who was Exalted Ruler of the Pasadena Lodge No. 672, B.P.O.E. at the time of his death last Tuesday, will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at Elks' Hall, corner Colorado street and Raymond avenue, under the auspices of the Elks. It will probably be one of the largest funerals ever held in this city. Muller was one of the popular young men of the town and had a very large circle of friends.

FAMOUS PAINTINGS ENTERED.

The art exhibit, which will be held at No. 31 North Maregno avenue all next week, will be one of the best exhibitions of art ever held in this city. Many of the famous paintings of California have already been received. The exhibition will be held under the auspices of a number of local artists who desire to establish a permanent art exhibit for Pasadena.

NOTABLE BRIDGE PARTY.

Noteworthy among the smartest functions of the year, and the largest of yesterday fwas the bridge party given at Hotel Green by Mrs. Robert Gardner Neustadt of Alta-lena, assisted by her mother-in-law, Mrs. E. F. Neustadt of Los Angeles. The Moorish room, Turkish room and reception-room in the west building were reserved for the affair and card tables were arranged in all three. Quantities of green, foliage plants, palms and asparagus plumosis was used in ornamenting the rooms and a touch of color was given by jonquils and violets. Mrs. Neustadt and Mme. Neustadt received their guests in the Moorish room, the former wearing a charming imported frock of coral satin veiled in brown chiffon and embroidered in gold thread. The latter wore a costume of lavender messaline with brocade of self tone and pale pink touches in the bodice. There were eighty society matrons and maids enjoying the game. The prize winners were Mmes. Freeman A. Ford, Lawrence Hurlburt, John D. Ross, Hiram Barlow, J. D. Thomson, Jacob J. Mansar, Elias Allen Ford, M. T. Greenwood, W. S. Barton, L. B. Winslow, Frank Hixon, Hampton L. Story, Misses Lucy Eaton, Marjorie Ward, Pauline Lutz, Angie Holmes and Marjorie Bolt. After the games a collation was served in the Romanesque room, where the tea table was beautifully decorated with American Beauty roses in tall silver vases. Mmes. Theodore Shaw of Chicago and Wilshire of Los Angeles presided over the tea cups. With friends who came in for refreshments more than one hundred were entertained.

ENTERTAIN AT DINNER.

One of the largest dinner parties of the season was that given last night by Mr. and Mrs. John W. Edminson and their daughter, Miss Edith Edminson, at their home on South Marengo avenue in honor of Miss Adeline Wright and William P. Fuller, Jr., whose marriage will take place next Tuesday evening at All Saints Church. Decorations were in sweet peas. The hostess was assisted by Miss Mercedes de Luna. Covers were laid for the bridal party, including Miss Wright, Miss Miriam Harris of San Jose, Miss Florence Wendling of San Francisco, Miss Ruth Maddox of Visalia, Miss Emily Johnson and Miss Maud Howell of Los Angeles, and Miss Katherine Wright, the bride-elect's sister; Messrs. Fuller, Paul Giesy of Portland, Or., best man; George Fuller ,an uncle of the groom; Henry Stafford of San Jose, Robert Woodville of Bay City, Cal.; Howard Wright, a brother of the bride; John E. Cushing of San Francisco, and Warren Turner.

REMBRANDT CLUB MAKES HIT.

Presents Augustin Daly's "A Night Off" to Augment the Outbuilding Fund.

CLAREMONT, Feb. 18.—The Rembrandt Club presented Augustin Daly's "A Night Off" on the college stage this evening. The comedy is one of those delightful ones with plot and counterplot that furnish abundance of laughs in every scene. Coach Stanton in the role of Marcus Brutus Snap, and Mrs. Stanton in the role of Niobe, the young imp, made especial hits. As Susan, the brassiest, Mrs. Jenkins, the founder of the Rembrandt Club, was especially clever. Mrs. Merritt, as Mrs. Babbitt, and Mr. Brace, as Dr. Harry Damask, were very good. The other parts were well taken by Miss Roof, Miss Storrs, Prof. Bissell, Mr. Bartlett, Mr. Smith and Mr. Merritt. The proceeds of the play will go toward a new art building.

DROWNED BOY RECOVERED.

Remains of Robert Long, Who Was Washed Into the Sea, Found Lodged in a Crevice.

SAN PEDRO, Feb. 18.—The body of Robert Long, the Long Beach High School boy who was drowned at Point Firmin Tuesday, was recovered this afternoon by a marine diver. It was found lodged in a crevice in the rocks near where Long and Herbert Craig were washed off a rock by a high wave and drowned.

Long Beach.

BOY INJURED BY AUTOMOBILE.

HE SKATED IN FRONT OF RAPIDLY MOVING CAR.

While His Skull Is Cracked from Ear to Ear Across His Forehead, He Is Conscious and Says He Will Get Well—Tiny Car Wrecked by Runaway.

LONG BEACH, Feb. 18.—With his skull fractured from ear to ear and a blod clot threatening a pressure on his brain, young Alvin Ady, aged 10, lies at a local hospital, conscious, and confident that he will get well.

Young Ady met his injury last night while roller-skating on the asphalt paving of Fourth street. He was en route to his home on Atlantic avenue and to accelerate his speed was holding onto the rear of a delivery wagon. Nearing his home street he released his hold and shot across toward the curb directly in front of an automobile driven by William McKinley. There was no chance to avert the accident, and the lad was struck by one of the fenders just above the shoulder blades and he pitched forward face foremost and his rollers flying from under him, his head struck the paving with awful force. Conscious, but in great pain, the boy was carried to his home and medical aid summoned. An hour later he was seized with convulsions and was immediately taken to a hospital, where a delicate operation was performed. It was found that the skull was fractured across the front from ear to ear, while a number of brain arteries were torn and bleeding, threatening a blood clt. Quite a large section of the skull was removed and the bleeding arteries tied.

Since the operation the convulsions ceased, and this morning the victim was talking rationally, recognized his mother and showed that he could move his limbs freely.

TINY CAR WRECKED.

A little electric car, dubbed the "strawberry box," which runs on West Seventh street, was run into this morning by a runaway team at Seventh and Chestnut avenue, despite the efforts of the motorman, Chester G. Crockett, who brought his car to a standstill in an effort to avert the smash-up. The team crashed into the front end of the car and Crockett was thrown from the flatform and his left leg broken. Crockett is 27 years old and single. He was the only one injured.

WANTS ORIGINAL.

City Clerk Boynton is searching among the old archives of the city for the original franchise of the Salt Lake, which it is supposed will settle the dispute about the switching nuisance at Alamitos and Second streets. The railroad officials claim they have a franchise for spur tracks at the disputed point, while the clerk says that their permit for a spur tack is only in the vicinity of State steet, which is nearly a mile north of the present yards.

COMPLETES ESTIMATE.

City Engineer Dewey today completed his estimate of the cost of extending the city sewer system to cover all of the city except the lowlands on the west and a part of Belmont Heights. About 130 miles of pipes will be needed and the cost will be in the neighborhod of $400,000. In addition, the outfall sewer will be changed so as to empty into the inner harbor instead of the ocean, as at preseit.

ORDINANCE HELD UP.

Council last night held up the ordinance opening American avenue, owing to the objection against it by a mass meeting last week. It is probable that the matter will come up in a new form next week, due to a warning by interested citizens that unless the street is opened now private interests will within the next six months erect large buildings on the property and then it will be almost impossible to secure a wider street than thirty feet. It is thought a compromise of eighty feet can be arranged to meet the approval of the warring factions.

A memory of the late lamented town of Belmont Heights, now a part of Long Beach, came up last night when the City Attorney was instructed to collect $2.80 from J. D. Craig, former tax collector of Belmont. The money was paid as taxes on a lot, but never credited by Craig, and when the city assumed jurisdiction the property was sold for taxes.

NEWS BRIEFS.

A memorial service will be held at the Y.M.C.A. tomorrow afternoon in honor of Herbert Craig and Robert Long, who were drowned at Point Firmin Tuesday. J. R. Milner will give the address.

Thomas H. Williams has purchased the corner of Locust and First streets for $20,000 and will erect a three-story business block. The property was purchased from the Citizens Savings Bank and is regarded as very valuable.

Late last night the dredge "Windham," relieved of the vast quantity of water in her hull, rose to the surface and rode the water neatly. This morning she was towed to the Craig plant and docked for repairs. About thirty days will be required for drying out the motors and replacing some of the machinery. As was reported the hull is sound as a dollar and the wreck was due to the breaking of a check valve in the suction pipe.

The Council is still discussing the water rates, but arrived at no conclusion last night. The general trend of the talk, however, indicated that the Council favors a reduction over the present rates and the eliminating of some charges which they believe should not be made.

OCEAN PARK.

OCEAN PARK, Feb. 18.—The idea of "Spotless Town" is to be carried out in the new concrete pleasure pier, the announcement having been made today that all streets and passageways will be paved with vitrous tile floor laid in two colors, embedded in two inches of concrete.

There would not be a case of indigestion here if readers who are subject to Stomach trouble knew the tremendous anti-ferment and digestive virtue contained in Diapepsin. This harmless preparation will digest a heavy meal without the slightest fuss or discomfort, and relieve the sourest, acid stomach in five minutes, besides overcoming all foul, nauseous odors from the breath.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on each 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily understand why this promptly cures Indigestion and removes such symptoms as Heartburn, a feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, Belching of Gas and Eructations of undigested food, water brash, Nausea, Headache, Biliousness and many other bad symptoms; and besides, you will not need laxatives to keep your stomach, liver and intestines clean and fresh.

If your Stomach is sour and full of gas, or your food doesn't digest, and your meals don't seem to fit, why not get a 50-cent case from your druggist and make life worth living? Absolute relief from Stomach misery and perfect digestion of anything you eat is sure to follow five minutes after, and besides, one case is sufficient to cure a whole family of such trouble.

Surely, a harmless, inexpensive preparation like Diapepsin, which will always, either at daytime or during night, relieve your stomach misery and digest your meals, is about as handy and valuable a thing as you could have in the house.

Talks On Teeth

The Last Resort

It is an unfortunate thing that nearly always the cases that come to us are almost hopeless. Once in a while we get hold of a man or a woman whose teeth have not been sacrificed through ignorant dental methods and so are able to restore the missing teeth with little or no trouble, but in the majority of cases they come to us at the eleventh hour.

Ours is the court of last resort. We are expected to do the impossible things and build up a perfect structure with little or no foundation to work upon.

The fact that we are able to do perfect work in such cases speaks volumes for the perfection of the Alveolar method of teeth restoration. Such cases prove that the fundamental principles of the work are right.

It is a source of great satisfaction to us when a patient writes in and tells how well pleased he is with the work we did for him. It is only a question of time, after all, until the fame of this work is spread abroad to the four corners of the world and we must extend our chain of offices.

Here is a case in point from the letter.

Thanks Us For Full Lower Alveolar

REX DENTAL CO.
Los Angeles, Cal.

Gentlemen:—About two years ago I called upon you and you put a full lower Alveolar appliance in my mouth. Where before I only had four teeth I now have a full lower set, and they are as sound and firm as natural ones. I wish I had heard of your wonderful method earlier.

I want to thank you for the comfort and satisfaction your Method has given me.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) MR. L. CARRIER,
933 Atlantic St.
Long Beach, Cal.

His only regret is that he did not know of our work before he lost all of his lower teeth. Mr. Carrier's case has many a parallel among the victims of ignorant dentistry in this country. It is a crime to pull a solid tooth to make way for a cumbersome makeshift of a plate.

This company is doing its full share towards educating both dentists and public at large to save their teeth, for a tooth once lost is lost forever. In cases where all the teeth are gone we can do nothing except furnish a perfect fitting plate but if two or more teeth are left in either jaw we can restore all those that are missing by the Alveolar method and give a patient a set of teeth that are so near nature's that the loss of the natural teeth will scarcely be noticed.

The work is painless, calls for no surgical operation, is not teeth implantation and when done is permanent. The wearer can use the Alveolar teeth with almost as much satisfaction as if they had grown in their jaws.

FEE TO YOU—We want to send you a beautiful little book describing all diseases of the mouth. Send today.

Preferably, we would rather have you call and have your teeth examined.

What's in a Name?

A Rose By Any Other Name Would Smell as Sweet

Curosities and Oddities Regarding Names in Literary and Commercial Life

Some That Have Become Valuable Assets to Their Owners

How a Name Has a Commercial or Sentimental Value Because of its Euphonious Sound

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

How did you get your present name? Have you always borne the one you now bear? Did you ever wish to change or alter it? Could you succeed better under a different cognomen? That the sound of a name or the ease with which it is remembered has a peculiar significance and value cannot be doubted, if the experience of many successful men is to be accepted as a criterion. It is said that one of the most successful business houses in New York—that of Rogers, Peet & Co.—never had, nor has it now, anyone by the name of Mr. Rogers or Mr. Peet connected with the firm. That old favorite of our boyhood, the Youth's Companion, was said to have begun business under the proprietorship of Perry, Mason & Co., yet it is stated that there were no such persons connected with the concern. Sometimes people change from their first to their middle name because it has a more agreeable sound. As an example it may be stated that one of the most eminent Americans, an editor of a New York paper, and now Ambassador to the Court of St. James, was in early life known as John W. Reid, but altered it later to Whitelaw Reid. One of the most prominent literary lights in this country was known for years as James B. Matthews, and yet he is now better known as Brander Matthews, Professor of Literature in Columbia University. Often a name is easily remembered because of its sound or because of the ease with which it is associated with its owner or his business, as John D., or Borax Smith, and so on. One of the most remarkable instances of that class is that of a man, still in the prime of manhood, whose invention brought him a fortune, and whose fertility of mind and the happy coincidence of a name which, by a lucky thought, combined with his vocation in a way easy of remembrance, conceived the idea of expanding his business and procuring associates to carry on his work under his auspices and supervision after he had specially trained them. He gained a two-fold end, because he increased his profits and extended his usefulness while conferring the benefits of his invention upon a greater number of people in less time than he could dream of doing alone. Asked why he had for so many years borne a name which was only in part his baptismal name, he replied that the name by which he was known and under which he conducted his business had become an asset possessing such a high commercial value that to fail to use it would be to literally throw away thousands of dollars every year. He said he realized fully that there were many people who objected simply to the use of a name which, while it undoubtedly possessed a business value, did not sound sufficiently exclusive to meet their ideal as to how a professional man should be known. Yet, even so, he enjoys the patronage of scholars, literary men, inventors, professional men and millionaires, and is himself a likely candidate for classification amongst the latter. He said further that you would not expect, if you patronized John Wanamaker to have him wait on you and tie up the package, because he has someone who can do it better, and it's the same with me. "My organization is an all-star cast—the organization bears my name, but the work is the work of specialists of individual merit in their respective branches. I have just one pair of hands and I can do just so much work, but my associates, specially trained in my system, work for tens of thousands yearly in my various offices throughout the country. No doubt my name sounds more imposing and professional as Edgar Randolph Parker, D.D.S., but if you could profit several hundred thousand dollars in a very few years, wouldn't you just as soon be called Painless Parker and take the profits of other men's labors, and leave a profit for them, too, and still keep your invention? I would. My system of painless dentistry is one of the most remarkable inventions ever evolved from the brain of man. I can fill, crown, treat and extract teeth without pain to the patient. Thousands of people have experienced its benefits. I have saved millions of teeth that could not have been saved by torturesome methods. No one can realize what a wonderful method my system is until he has heeded my suggestion to Obey that Insistent Impulse! See Painless Parker first. The way to do that is to call at my office at 616-622 S. Broadway, and let me examine your teeth, tell you what should be done, how I would do it, how long it will take, and all about it. To do this costs you nothing—obligates you to nothing, but it is certain that you will fully realize what the name Painless Parker really means.

ABLE PAPERS PRESENTED.

Elsinore Parent-Teachers' Association Holds a Profitable and Interesting Meeting.

ELSINORE, Feb. 18.—An interesting meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association was held Friday afternoon in order to decide upon the character of the evening meeting to be held March 24, when Maj. C. T. Meredith of the County Board of Education and principal of the Elsinore High School will speak. Other features of interest will be arranged and refreshments will be served and a social time enjoyed.

Mrs. Robert Kirkpatrick read a paper by Mrs. Briney on "Character Building." Points of interest in the paper were the necessity of teaching honesty and living it, and of teaching the child decision, punctuality and perserverance. Object lessons of the points were made and the paper was a most able one.

Mrs. F. J. Farr read a paper of "Humane Training of the Young" by Ralph Waldo Trine, which was thought-breeding and which brought out an interesting discussion on the effect of bird killing on young boys.

Masons installed officers last evening at their hall, George H. Kelsey of Riverside being the installing officer and H. D. French of Riverside, Master of Ceremonies. About forty were present, comprising the Masons, the Eastern Star members and their guests. An elaborate banquet was served after the business meeting.

The Masonic officers installed were: C. T. Meredith, W. M.; James Stewart, S. W.; W. H. Green, J. W.; J. A. Crane, Treasurer; W. F. Poeteus, Secretary; W. P. Haworth, S. R. D.; H. H. Neiman, J. R. D.; L. D. Clark, S. R. S.; C. S. Merrifield, J. R. S.; Charles Hudson, Marshal; J. D. Tuel, Tyler.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Daniel Mott of Long Beach is in Elsinore this week looking after his property here.

Mrs. Lia M. Brown and son returned last evening from Riverside.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Neiman and party went to Redlands this week, returning Thursday, where Frank Neiman is attending school. Mrs. Neiman's sister, Mrs. W. D. Anderson and her daughter, who were of the party are en route for a few weeks' visit in San Francisco, after which they will return to Elsinore.

CREAM CHECKS DISTRIBUTED.

SEVENTY THOUSAND MONTHLY GOES TO VALLEY RANCHERS.

Dairying Interests Have Had a Remarkable Growth Within the Past Six Months and Indications Point to a Further Development of the Industry—Arbor Day Observed.

EL CENTRO, Fb. 18.—The Imperial Valley Creamery Company is distributing about $70,000 per month in cream checks to farmers in the central part of Imperial Valley. Since February 1 the average daily output of butter from this creamery has been 7500 pounds and more than 200,000 pounds of butter has been sent out during the month. Most of this goes to the Los Angeles markets. It is the purpose of the Imperial Valley Creamery Company, which is the concern which recently absorbed the four creameries operating here, to raise the grade of Imperial Valley creamery products until they shall become famous along the Coast. The dairying interests of Imperial Valley have had a remarkable growth within the past six months, and indications point to a still further increase within the ensuing spring months. The ranchers have found that they get certain and sure returns from milk cows at the end of each month and that this is one of the best sources of revenue in Imperial Valley.

The El Centro grammar schools, the Women's Ten Thousand Club and the State-street Christian Church observed Arbor day with appropriate exercises and tree planting. The club women visited the schools and participated in the exercises and the children then went with the women to their lots which are to be utilized as a public park, and assisted in the ceremonies there. The various classes of the State-street Christian Sunday-school planted trees on the church grounds.

WILL PAY FIREMEN.

The El Centro City Trustees have decided to pay members of the volunteer fire company at the rate of one dollar an hour when out on fire calls. The City Clerk is to advertise for bids for furnishing a hosecart to the city.

An all-day Sunday-school convention will be held in El Centro tomorrow, at the State-street Christian Churcs. Robert M. Hopkins of Cincinnati, O., National Bible-school superintendent, and Rev. F. W. Emerson, field secretary of the Christian Missionary Society, will be among the speakers. Delegations of Sunday-school workers from all parts of Imperial Valley will be in attendance.

WATER COMPANY ELECTION.

The annual election of Water Company No. 1, the largest mutual water company operating in Imperial Valley, has resulted in the selection of George A. Long, of Imperial; W. L. Fawcett, of Heber; G. E. Heber, of Imperial; F. P. Willard, of Calexico; and George H. Reed of Mesquite Lake, as the directors for the ensuing year. A report was adopted favoring the retention of Superintendent Carrberry. The report of the superintendent showed a total crop acreage within the boundaries of No. 1 district amounting to 90,698 acres in 1910.

Elaborate preparations have been made in the various Imperial Valley towns for the three-days' visit of Rt. Rev. Thomas J. Conaty, Bishop of Monterey and Los Angeles. Bishop Conaty will arrive in Impeial Valley tomorrow morning and will dedicate the church there. In the afternoon he will dedicate the church at Holtville, and at 5 o'clock in the evening he will be given a public reception at the Holt Opera House in El Centro. At night a banquet will be given in his honor at Imperial, and a banquet will be given at Hotel Oregon in his home, on Monday night.

VARIED WEATHER PROGRAMME.

RAIN, HAIL, SLEET, SNOW AND SUNSHINE IN A DAY.

Snow Disappeared as It Fell and Other Icy Contributions Had a Fleeting Existence — Schools of Town Are Badly Crowded and Additional Room Must Be Secured.

HEMET, Feb. 18.—Yesterday Hemet was treated to a very unusual spectacle, rain, hail, sleet, snow and sunshine all in the course of twelve hours. Snow fell for an hour during the middle of the day and was a great surprise to many people who had never seen snow fall in California. The snow disappeared as fast as it fell, the sun came out during the afternoon, and the weather has been ideal since.

CONTRARY VOTERS.

Notwithstanding the fact that the schools are badly crowded and that two classes are being held in an old creamery building, enough contrary votes were cast in Wednesday's bond election to defeat the $15,000 bond issue for additional grammar school facilities. There was considerable misunderstanding as to what was to be done with the money. Strange to say some votes were cast against the proposition because of the smallness of the amount asked for. The school board will call a meeting of the citizens next week to determine their wishes in the matter of providing sufficient room for the present needs.

There will be a special excursion to Hemet Wednesday, Feb. 22, as the I. O. O. F. of the district will meet here that day. Preparations have been made for 400 visitors.

THEATRICAL BANQUET.

Last evening the company of local talent which played "Trelawney of the Wells" for the benefit of a Carnegie Library in Hemet, gave a banquet at Smith's Hall in honor of Mr. Monroe Salisbury who directed the play and made it a success artistically and financially. Mr. Salisbury who is a well known eastern actor, has bought a beautiful ranch in Hemet near Nat Goodwin's magnificent estate, and will in the future spend his winters here. He has endeared himself to the people of Hemet by the great interest he has taken in the library, and in giving a series of high class entertainments. Mr. Salisbury leaves soon with a company of his own, and last night's dinner was a sort of a farewell from those who have been associated with him in several entertainments.

TO HONOR TWO.

The Grammar school will hold Lincoln and Washington exercises next Tuesday afternoon. A patriotic programme will be given. Principal Edward Dolland, who is a son of a veteran, will speak on "What it Meant to be a Soldier." Rev. Dr. Wm. Pearce of the First Baptist Church has been asked to deliver the principal address.

TEACHERS ENTERTAINED.

Mrs. W. P. Stump entertained the teachers of both schools Friday evening in honor of County Superintendent Raymond Cree and Mrs. Cree. Miss Marian Kimmell, a special teacher in Corona schools, sang several charming ballads. A dainty repast was served. Those present were, Supt. and Mrs. Cree, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Stump, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison G. Spalding, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Kimmell, Prof. and Mrs. E. T. Boughn, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dolland and Misses de Fremery, Vance, Anderson, Ashby, White, Palmer, Null, Caldwell, and Crump of the schools of Hemet.

Miss Anderson, one of the most popular teachers in the high school, has resigned to take a position in Los Angeles. Miss Anna Vance of the University of California, takes her place.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Miss Julia Kingsbury of Park Hill has gone to Wyoming to visit her brother and her father's large ranches. She will be gone about six months.

Miss Elsie Brown, who has been visiting Mrs. L. L. Newton, has returned to her home in Redlands.

P. F. Witter and Mrs. Witter have returned from their wedding trip and are house-keeping in Mr. Witter's beautiful cottage on South Carmelita street. They spent a month at the sea-side cities of Los Angeles County.

Miss Dolores Dowling of Los Angeles is visiting her cousin, Dr. Y. R. Carrillo and wife.

COLONISTS ARE FOUND IN SNOW.

HARDY PEOPLE SUFFERED GREAT HARDSHIPS.

With the Assistance of Fresh Horses Brought by the Rescuers the Wagons Were Drawn from the Snow Banks and the Party Is Being Taken Over a Safer Route.

SAN BERNARDINO, Feb. 18.—William Hardt and his party of Utah colonists, coming overland to settle in Orange county, snow bound in Holcomb Canyon, were rescued this morning by the rangers and miners.

The party had tried to get across the mountains by way of Holcomb Canyon, and were overtaken by fierce snowstorms. There are nineteen members of the three families, and besides three big wagons they have stock and poultry. Unable to get through the canyon they attempted to retrace their path down the mountain, but were effectually blocked, the snow covering the road in places many feet.

Though all members of the party are hardy and full of grit they suffered hardships most intense, and were a pathetic sight when found by the rangers and miners. With the assistance of fresh horses brought by the rescuers the wagons were drawn from the snow banks, and the colonists are now being guided over the mountains by way of San Gorgonia Pass.

PUTS FICTION TO SCHEME.

A strange story comes in from Siberia, a desert siding on the Santa Fe, which would seem to indicate that burros possess more intelligence than is usually credited to them. Henry Goodling, a desert miner, coming in from the Borax Lake country met with a mishap ten miles out from Siberia, falling and badly fracturing a leg. He was unable to mount a horse, and bid fair to perish.

As a drowning man grasps at a straw Goodling thought of scribbling a message for help and tying it on his burro, knowing that the little animal would be the first of his creatures to reach a watering place, and it might be that miners would be there and discover his appeal.

He managed after many attempts to get his appeal, scribbled on a location blank, tied about the foreleg of his burro, and then started the animal off with a clod. The next seen of the burro he was standing on the main line of the Santa Fe, and refused to budge from the roadbed, despite the whistling of the California Limited.

The engineer was compelled to bring his speedy train to a stop to prevent hitting the animal. Conductor, crew and passengers swarmed from the train to discover what had caused the big limited to stop in the heart of the desert. The passengers were uproarous on finding the meek little animal standing as though asleep in the path of the train.

Suddenly a young woman discovered the pathetic appeal tied to the animal's leg. When it seemed to all as though the dumb creature had really blocked the Limited for the purpose of attracting attention to its master's need for help, the women on the palatial train fairly showered the little creature with endearments, and one woman, said to be the wife of a Boston millionaire, declared she would buy the burro if she had to pay his weight in gold.

The train crew turned the note over to a water tender, and a search was started for the miner, who was found in delirium ten miles south of Siberia. It is understood that the water tender has directions fro mthe Boston woman to open negotiations for the burro, which is being cared for at her expense. Efforts to learn her name have so far proved fruitless.

Dist.-Atty. B. B. Goodcell left for Sacramento this afternoon, authorized by the Board of Supervisors to undertake a fight to secure a larger rebate for this county under the proposed rebate tax bill being fathered by Senator Curtin. The bill is necessary owing to the adoption of Amendment No. 1. It provides for a rebate to this county of $52,000. Whether this is to cover two years or only one is not known. The opinion prevails here that even for one year that the amount is not sufficient, owing to the big loss which this county suffers under the amendment.

Prospective candidates for the municipal elections in April must file their petitions with the City Clerk on or before March 1. Less than nine days off is the final day for filing petitions, news which has taken the politicians here by surprise. That the election is to be a warm one is the prediction of those who keep an eye on the political weather vane. No candidates have been announced, all political leaders seeming to be holding aloof, waiting for the other fellow to show his hand.

SAGE AND SULPHUR

Made Her Look Twenty Years Younger

Read Mrs. Herrick's Sworn Statement

STATE OF NEW YORK} COUNTY OF MONROE} ss: ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Nancy A. Herrick, being duly sworn, deposes and says: When I was a girl, I had a head of heavy, long dark brown hair which was the envy of my schoolmates, and which attracted the attention and remarks of strangers. As I grew older, my hair commenced to come out, just a little at first, but gradually more and more, and then began to turn gray. I was induced by the many good reports I had heard of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy to try a bottle. My hair was quite thin and gray when I began using Sage and Sulphur, and you can imagine my satisfaction when I found that it was fast coming back to its natural condition, being thicker, darker and more glossy than it had been for a long time. I continued to use Sage and Sulphur, and my hair is now as heavy, dark and smooth as when I was a girl of sixteen. It is now four years since I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and my hair is still in splendid condition.

BREVITIES.

Kryptok invisible Bifocals are easy to wear. I have fitted the most nervous and skeptic. If others have told you that you could not or should not wear Bifocals I can fit you so that you can wear Kryptoks, they are two pair of glasses in one. No lines, no cement for near and far vision, in a solid lens. If you don't wear Kryptok bifocals you are wasting time and energy with two pair of glasses. Bifocals must set in the proper place before the eyes to be a success. I have produced wonderful results for brain fag, headache, nervous debility, insomnia, dizziness, nausea and blurred vision from my special ground lenses. I make Kryptok Bifocals as low as $8.00, examination included. I use the best and only good nose piece, the Shuron, with lenses, as low as $3.00. Dr. A. M. Garfield, suite 417 and 419 Grant building, 355 S. Broadway, corner of Fourth. My specialty is Kryptoks.

A. E. Morro is now showing a splendid assortment of Abalone Pearls made up in unique settings for rings, brooches, La Valliers, etc. Also a large stock of unmounted pearls. The visitor to Los Angeles desiring typical California souvenirs should select from these Abalane Pearls. They are extremely beautiful and yet low priced. Come and see them. A. E. Morro, Fourth and Broadway.

SAYS NO LOSS BY CHECK.

Isi Klingenstein, president and manager of the Kingsbaker-Klingenstein Company, makes a statement regarding the operations of F. D. Marshall, a cigar dealer, who is missing and to whom worthless checks are charged. Klingenstein says that Marshall owes the Kingsbaker-Klingenstein Company a bill of $23.73, but that the company has not suffered any loss by reason of accepting any worthless check from Marshall. An account of the disappearance of Marshall and of some of his check operations was printed in Friday's Times.

QUIET IN TEPIC.

J. Chauncey Hayes, Jr., of Oceanside, has just returned to Southern Cali- in the territory of Tepic, Mex. He came back by way of Mazatlan and Ensenada. He says he saw nothing of the revolution and that people who do not fear the situation are buying property in Tepic. One of the latest to purchase land there is Capt. Bergman of Pasadena, who has bought 50,000 acres. Bergman expects to subdivide the property and set it to bananas. He will lay out a townsite and pier. Bergman's purchase is about sixty miles south of Mazatlan.

OBITUARY.

James Shackleton.

NEWARK (N. J.) Feb. 18.—James Shackleton, a retired wool expert, who is said to have framed the wool schedule for the McKinley tariff act, is dead at his home in Millburn, N. J. He was burned to death in his bedroom following the explosion of a lamp. Shackleton, who was well-to-do, lived practically the life of a hermit.

Capt. S. B. Callahan.

MUSKOGEE (Okla.) Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Capt. S. B. Callahan of this city, the sole surviving member of the second Confederate Congress, died at his home here yesterday, where he was elected to the Confederate Congress to represent two Indian tribes in 1862. Capt. Callahan was brought to Indian Territory from Alabama when a child. His father died on the way. Callahan fought through the Civil War and was also mixed in the "Green Peach" Indian War. He has made three fortunes and lost two. One was lost when his store and home were burned by mauraders, and another when an epidemic caused the death of 3500 of his cattle.

Mme. De Garmo's New Gull Eliminates Wrinkles

Everything taken into consideration, Mme. De Garmo's New Gull is perhaps the most wonderful remover of wrinkles on the market. Its use results in a smooth complexion—it is compounded of a wonderful astringent.

An investigation at the demonstration booth in Aisle 2 will prove to your satisfaction the merits of this preparation.

Never Grey
This preparation for the hair is in great demand. It is a one bottle herb compound, which brings wonderful results in restoring the natural color of the hair. Priced 50c and $1 bottle.

Never Too Fat
Another Mme. De Garmo's preparation. Designed to remove all superfluous flesh. Give it a trial.

PERSONAL—
PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE.
NOTED ASTROLOGER AND PALMIST.
305½ S. SPRING, NEAR THIRD ST.

A resident of Los Angeles 27 years.

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an experienced practitioner in the science of modern ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The HOROSCOPE—calculated from the PLANETS at your birth, will show what a powerful influence they have in all affairs of life. It shows diseases, deaths, domestic affairs, financial affairs, your talents; your environments; tells about children; whom and where to travel; what to seek and what to avoid; when in danger of illness, accidents, death, losses, troubles, etc., etc.; also your good periods coming—GIVING DATES OF THESE EVENTS FOR THE FUTURE, in fact, the HOROSCOPE GIVES ACCURATE AND RELIABLE information on ALL AFFAIRS OF LIFE. No important changes or ventures of ANY kind should be made except at such a time when the planets in YOUR horoscope are favorable. Predictions for the FUTURE—made by the trained judgment of Prof. Althouse, will stagger the senses. PROF. ALTHOUSE read E. H. Sothern, Nat Goodwin, Mary Mannering, Gadski, Admiral Schley, David Starr Jordan, ex-Gov. Pardee, ex-Senator Clark, Gen. Chaffee, Edison, Sousa, Modjeska, Annie Besant, Julia Marlowe, Anna Held, Fritzi Scheff, Ysaye, Capt. Hobson, Jefferson, Joaquin Miller, Ellen Beach Yaw, Frederick Warde, Louis James, Lillian Russell, Calve, Admiral Evans, Baron Rothschild, H. E. Huntington, Countess de Swirsky, De Wolf Hopper, Maxine Elliot, Josef Hofmann, etc. These are a few of the more NOTED PUBLIC PERSONS—and for this reason ONLY are they here mentioned—ALL positively read by PROF. ALTHOUSE, besides hundreds of the best people of Los Angeles with whom all his readings are strictly CONFIDENTIAL.

DR. J. A. LARSON writes: "I want to say that your reading was the most satisfactory thing I have ever had in my life. I know a great deal about these sciences, and I consider your work as the most THOROUGH and reliable of any reader in the United States."

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an expert PALMIST, and WITH EACH PALM READING gives also an ASTROLOGICAL READING.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S SKILLED WORK, with his trained judgment, must in no wise be classed with that of other readers. Therefore, do not waste your money on the idiotic advice and warning of HUMBUG astrologers, palmists, psychics, Hindu readers who were never in India—those bitterly jealous of PROF. ALTHOUSE'S work and success.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S wonderful proficiency in the casting of horoscopes and hand reading has brought him a large and successful practice. The most private confidences are reposed in him, and his advice is sought in the most difficult and critical circumstances.

HIGHEST GRADE OF WORK that skill and experience can produce; therefore HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED
Daily and evening, Sunday, 10 to 2.
STUDIO PARLORS, 305½ S. SPRING ST.

PERSONAL—
MRS. MASSON,
the noted palmist of London, Eng., may be consulted at 332 S. SPRING ST. (over Owl Drug Store) by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigation along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY, HONESTLY PRACTICED, WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill-luck into wide paths of success and property can all be told you through scientific palmistry WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.
HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

WANTED—

ACREAGE FOR SUBDIVISION.

If you have acreage in Southern California which you know to be ripe for subdivision, finish reading this article.

Fortunes are being made by companies and individuals buying large tracts of land, putting in the necessary improvements and selling in small parcels to homeseekers.

The price a developing company would pay for your land would be about half the amount it would ultimately be sold for.

A careful investigation of the many properties we have sold in the past five years would show that they have not only been huge successes, but that we know the country land business thoroughly. Cudahy Ranch, Bell Flower Acres and Owens Valley Lands are the results of our efforts and are known to all who have watched the market.

We are ready to enter into an agreement with some land owner on a basis that will permit him to participate in the retail price of his land rather than taking the wholesale figure. Our proposition is as follows—You to put in your land at your today's selling price. We to furnish money for all improvements, such as developing water, laying pipe lines, etc. On the basis of what each investment represents in cash, we will become partners and share in the profits accordingly.

JAMES R. H. WAGNER CO.,
229 S. Hill st.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

We are seeking capital to invest in a large tract of land capable of being subdivided into ten and twenty-acre farms, which will be a ready seller at a handsome profit.

The demand for good farm lands is increasing daily, but large holdings are only made profitable when handled by a thoroughly organized selling agency.

The efficiency of our selling force, coupled with our persistent advertising and follow-up system, have shown their results in the Cudahy Ranch, Bell Flower Acres and Owens Valley Lands.

These successes have brought to our office hundreds of large holdings for subdivision, but in nine cases out of ten they are lacking in the elements necessary to make them a real success and give the buyer good value.

Having a thorough knowledge of farming and the selling of farm lands, we are capable of choosing such properties that are both self-sustaining and that can be made to increase in value every month they are unsold.

We have before us now, what we consider an unusually attractive property, which we will either handle with a few men of large capital or several with amounts of $1000 up.

We have no desire to receive capital from those who expect to double their money in six months; but we invite the attention of those who know California land conditions and appreciate what it means to own A1 land with assured water supply—those who are willing to wait one, two or three years to make from 75 to 150 per cent. on their investment.

FOR SALE—OR EXCHANGE—

Three propositions in opposite directions, well located, nicely equipped, all established by present owners and making money.

$5000—Grocery doing a business of more than $4000 per month. Party wishes to retire and would consider a small 4 or 5-acre ranch.

$6500—Grocery wit han established trade of $4000 to $5000 per month. Owner has other business interests and wishes to be relieved of some business care. Might consider good city property to about $3000.

$5000—Grocery established and run by same owner for past three years, business $150 per day. In our opinion, there is no better in the city. Will consider good property in southwest.

We make a specialty of business chances and can recommend any of the above as being first class. Don't delay seeing us at once, as these have just been listed.

YOU CAN INVEST $10 PER MONTH NOW in a town lot at Fort George, the geographical and strategic commercial center of British Columbia, and get in at the beginning before the first railroad. There are seven railroads building and projected to Fort George, which is at the junction of 1000 miles of navigable waterways and the metropolis of a splendid agricultural, fruit and mixed farming country of 30,000,000 acres, besides being the natural supply point for a tremendously rich timber, mineral and coal territory of millions of acres. Let us send you free a copy of "British Columbia Bulletin of Information," containing up-to-date news of investment opportunities in this vast, new and rich country, also synopsis of government land, mining, timber and coal laws, etc. Send your name and address today. NATURAL RESOURCES SECURITY CO., LTD. Paid-up capital $250,000. 422 Bower Bldg., Vancouver, B. C.

A BUSINESS THAT IS MAKING A PROFIT of 40 per cent. can be bought, if purchased this week, at a price that will enable the buyer to realize a full return of his investment in six months. It requires attention and ordinary business judgment together with $5000, but with these three requisites it will—in six months—return the $5000 and leave the original investment worth 50 per cent. more. An investigation will satisfy anyone as to the truth of these statements and that the business is for sale only for reasons that make an immediate sale imperative. The owner will not give the time necessary to an investigation except to one who honestly desires to purchase and can command $5000 in cash. Anyone so interested can secure further information by addressing P. O. BOX 671, Venice, Cal.

FOR SALE—

QUALITY PIANOS.
QUALITY PIANOS.
QUALITY PIANOS.

Proven Piano Quality by Years of Continuous Selling.

Price alone never made a bargain; remember, it requires Quality first.

FITZGERALD QUALITY, ASSOCIATED WITH FITZGERALD PRICE.

Always Constitutes a Bargain.

The question of economy, especially in piano buying, is quite important with a great many families; not that sort of economy, however, that hords and fails to provide the necessary things for our well-being—but the economy that seeks a good article of quality at the minimum price; that is the highest order of economy.

Customers of the House of Fitzgerald are not required to rely upon their word alone as to the superior quality of the pianos offered. The line speaks eloquently for itself:

KNABE MEHLIN
HAINES BROS. STEGER & SONS
KRELL FITZGERALD
MARSHALL & WENDELL and SINGER PIANOS
BEHNING (the Artist Favorite)
KRELL AUTO-GRAND (Concert Player)
J. TABER FITZGERALD (Auto-Player)
UNQUESTIONABLY THE BEST PLAYER PIANOS IN ALL THE WORLD.

To buy from the Fitzgerald Music Company is the safest, surest and most satisfactory way, whether it be by mail or in person; whether the purchase be one of an Art Grand Piano, or an upright of modest price, the protection is the same, and the quality and value are assured.

No matter what inducement you may have been offered elsewhere, just remember that you have your own bills to pay, and that you want quality as well as price, and that

You Get Both at
FITZGERALD MUSIC COMPANY,
Knabe Dealers,
523 South Broadway,
Los Angeles, California.

Building Pointers Free.

Are you thinking of building a fourteen-story steel frame office block or a five-room bungalow? If you have either project in mind you would do well to browse awhile in the Los Angeles public library before taking definite steps.

One of the first things noted by the new city librarian, Purd B. Wright, upon his taking charge of the local library, was an excellent and complete set of technical books on building which was not being used as much as its importance would appear to warrant. It occurred to Mr. Wright that this was just the kind of books which would be of real interest to many hundreds of persons in a city whose building operations were the wonder of the entire country and he at once began to devise a way to advertise the fact of the existence of such works to the public.

The result is that the library has just issued a pamphlet cataloguing the entire list of books containing special information on building subjects and hundreds of magazines and portfolios of plans. These pamphlets are for general distribution and the Fact and Comment man takes pleasure in acquainting readers of The Times with the fact.

The books and the general data which will be of the greatest interest of course are those pertaining to the construction and furnishing of houses, together with the layout of grounds and other items of appeal to the home builder. One group of books in the collection relates to plans and specifications for residences. These books contain hundreds of floor plans for houses of all costs.

Details of sanitation, heating, lighting, water supply and the like are set forth in another set of books. A third division treats of interiors, woodwork finishings, built-in furniture and the general principles of decoration. The books relating to landscaping and gardening are comprehensive and highly instructive.

A Fine Park Project.

Many property owners in the northwest part of the city have signed a petition for a new city park to extend down the valley west of Occidental boulevard, between Sunset boulevard on the north and Hoover street on the south. It is said that fully thirty per cent. of the dwellers in a large area which would most likely be comprised in any assessment district for such a project have placed their names to this petition.

There are many reasons why this park development should be encouraged. The northwest section of the city is coming into its own at a rate which is little short of astonishing and there are many improvements contemplated in that direction that will still further boom things toward Hollywood.

The very fact that there are such beautiful hill sites within twelve minutes of the heart of the city insures the compact settlement of the entire district now that the all essential transportation advantages are assured. The practical certainty of the boring of a tunnel under Bunker Hill at Second street has stirred the district with new life. The future of the San Fernando Valley insures the northwest a "back country" that will be surpassed by none other near Los Angeles.

By all means let the northwest have another fine park if it wants it. The necessary property to be condemned will never again be so cheap as it is now.

BACKERS OF LAND SHOW HAVE ACHIEVED WONDERS.

Complete Success of Month-Old Project Amply Assured—Personal Efforts of Representative Men on Committees Responsible for Wonderful Record of Accomplishment.

THE strong indorsement of the leading business and financial interests of the city and the active co-operation of a representative committee of fifty recruited from among the most prominent citizens of Los Angeles have together combined to absolutely insure the success of the great Pacific Lands and Products Exposition to be held at Shrine Auditorium from March 18 to April 2. The idea has taken hold of the public at large to an extent which has surprised even the most ardent backers of the plan.

It is the make-up of the executive and advisory committees of the land show, however, which has contributed most to the success that has marked the efforts of the Exposition management, and which has made it possible to prepare for an enterprise of almost national significance in so short a period of time. It has not at any time been necessary for the representatives of the show to go into an elaborate accounting for its reliability and standing. An inspection of the names on the committees has sufficed always to settle these important points. The result is that the big show will be ready to open its doors to a comprehensive display on strictly schedule time.

The manner in which the arrangements for the Exposition have been expedited is nothing less than a seven-day marvel. Barely a month old, the project has been heralded from the Canadian line to the heart of Mexico and from the coast to the Rockies. Exhibits are being rushed together throughout this wide expanse of country and some are even on the way. Inquiries, requests for information and reservations for floor space are coming in daily and all are attended to in an orderly manner, and without loss of time. When the Exposition officers declare that the great Jefferson-street they mean what they say, although the auditorium will be thrown open to the exhibitors and decorators on March 7, thing is almost inconceivable.

In fact the Exposition project is already so much of a taken-for-granted success that those back of it are carefully discussing the possibilities and advisability of making a land show for the exploitation of the wealth of the West an annual feature in Los Angeles. The willingness with which the railroads agreed to grant rates for visitors to the show and to prospective exhibitors is a most convincing testimony to the regard entertained by these corporations for the project as a dollars-and-cents proposition, and it is held by the show committees and others interested to be altogether likely that similar rates could be easily made an annual inducement.

No stone is being left unturned by the Exposition management to insure that the visitors to the land show will be well entertained as well as instructed. "Doubtless the experience of the present enterprise will be of great assistance in this respect when the time comes for another," said one of the members of the executive committee yesterday. "Los Angeles is the best exposition and convention city on the map," he added, "and it is a sort of reflection upon our perceptions that we didn't wake up more generally to the fact a long time ago. It is my opinion that this land show is going to open some peoples' eyes."

PREDICT GREAT ATTENDANCE.

The hotel men of Los Angeles and the neighboring towns are making extensive preparations for the great rush of exposition visitors who are expected to be attracted by the rates which are offered to the land show from all points in the United States. It is believed that there will be many thousands who will come here for the land show primarily, these swelling the regular heavy colonist traffic. The colonists last year numbered fully 60,000 and it is freely predicted that not fewer than 100,000 will take advantage of the rates which are this year moved up to March 10 for the express purpose of boosting the land show attendance. One thing is declared to be certain and that is that the railroads are neglecting no opportunity to advertise the exposition to the people of the eastern States.

The exposition officials estimate that the tourist travel will swell the total number of visitors in Los Angeles during the time of the land show to fully 150,000 and the vast majority of these, it is believed, will be regular visitors to Shrine Auditorium during the progress of the show. It is further estimated that 50,000 more will be attracted from the population of Los Angeles, bringing the total estimated attendance to over 200,000.

As a drawer of visitors the exposition will benefit not only the owners of farm and fruit lands but the property owners and real estate men in general. All the railroads in Southern California will outvie with one another in conducting the army of visitors to the various beach and mountain centers of interest. Excursions to San Diego, Riverside, Santa Barbara, San Bernardino and all the beach towns are already in contemplation and in most of these places plans are under way to devise special entertainment features for the easterners. Opportunities will not be lacking for the visitors to see nor for the various centers to exploit the peerless charms of the Southland.

GREAT AQUEDUCT DISPLAY.

Of all the exhibits of the land show none will probably have a greater fascination for the average visitor than the magnificent replica of the $23,000,000 Owens River aqueduct system. The effect will be carried out in the form of papier mache models and panoramic paintings so combined and lighted up as to present an almost startling likeness to the original. The aqueduct's course will be faithfully reproduced from the watershed of snow-capped Mt. Whitney to the gates of Los Angeles. The tunnels and cuts and siphons of the greatest engineering enterprise of the world will be represented. The exposition officials declare that the Mojave Desert will be so lifelike in the replica that it will make a man thirsty to look at it.

The nearer view of the replica will be naturally carried out in living moss, with small forms of plant life to represent trees. The vast reaches of fertile land in the lower San Fernando Valley will be reproduced even to the six great ranch houses on the old Lankershim and Van Nuys ranches. The whole will be set in the ample stage of Shrine Auditorium.

Another exhibit which will be an eye-opener to the visitors from abroad will be a splendid replica of the entire harbor district. This feature will graphically portray the splendid commercial advantages which Los Angeles expects shortly to enjoy. The full story of the power of the West Coast's future metropolis will be told in this display as no mere words could tell it. The actual construction of this replica will be commenced at once.

The cost of these interesting and probably permanent exhibits will be met by the advance sale of tickets of admission to the exposition. The sum already realized in this way is a considerable one and many merchants and others who, through not having lands or land products to exploit, can not properly be represented at the show, are taking this method of boosting what all realize to be a project of inestimable benefit to the city at large. A number of the leading firms of the city have purchased large blocks of tickets for distribution among their employees.

Following are the names of some of those who have contributed to the realization of the exposition's plans to show the world the aqueduct and harbor in miniature: Cudahy Packing Company, Union-Hollywood Water Company, Title Insurance and Trust Company, Clara Barton Hospital, Dr. Walter Lindley, E. E. Hewlitt, Home Telephone Company, Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company, Paul Haupt, California Vegetable Union, Edward Doheny, Japanese Association of Los Angeles, Henry E. MIGHTY ACHIEVEMENTS FOR CELEBRATION HERE.

THE COMPLETION of the $23,000,000 aqueduct, and the formal opening of Exposition Park, will be celebrated in 1913 in a manner commensurate with the supreme importance of both events, and eminently befitting the standing of Los Angeles as a world city.

Lasting from January to March, the proposed exposition is to be opened with a week crammed full of entertainment in the form of grand pageants and other appropriate exercises in commemoration of the significant achievements celebrated. That week is to be followed by the greatest live stock show ever held in the West, with animals from all over the world on exhibition.

A mammoth horse show, immediately following will, it is expected, attract exhibitors from every continent. A poultry and pet stock show will come next.

The greatest automobile show ever planned, to be held simultaneously with a tremenduous athletic tournament, second in importance only to an Olympiad itself.

The exposition is to be closed with a magnificent military tournament and whirlwind of social functions, including a great ball and reception for which the invitations will number thousands.

DECIDED YESTERDAY.

This is the result of the deliberations of a body of representative men called at the instance of W. M. Bowen, secretary of the Sixth Agricultural District Association. The meeting was held in the Council Chamber of the City Hall yesterday afternoon. Every man present spoke on the project, and every one voiced his strong approval of the idea. "Nothing too big for Los Angeles!" was the slogan of the meeting, and the opinion was strong that no celebration of the events to be commemorated could be of too great a BEAUTIFUL 11-ROOM HOUSE.

GREAT BARGAIN.

$15,500—In all the years of our experience here this is the biggest bargain and the biggest value for the price we have ever had. Located on high ground, west side, large east-front lot, new, never occupied, consists of 11 large beautiful rooms. The large living-room and library finished in Tabasco and Peruvian mahogany, large reception hall and dining-room in fumed oak all rubbed down to a piano finish. Handsome wall coverings, elegant fixtures, hardwood floors throughout, even on third floor; there are four large sleeping rooms and inclosed sleeping porch and two beautiful tiled baths on second floor. Large finished room on third floor. Servant's room and bath on first floor off back porch; furnace and automatic Ruud water heater; two-story garage. In fact there is nothing lacking, absolutely complete and a beauty. It is in the $20,000 class. If looking for a home of this description see us promptly.

ELEGANT WILSHIRE
10-ROOM HOUSE.

$12,500, without doubt the best value we have had in a long time in this beautiful 11-room residence, just completed, located on the best street off the boulevard Large east front lot, 60x150, commands a charming view of the mountains. Has cement porch, with brownstone trimmings across the front. Rooms all large; reception hall, living room, dining-room and library beautifully finished in oak and mahogany, beamed and paneled, with all built-in features; maid's room with private bath is off the kitchen. The upstairs is composed of five large sleeping rooms, all daintily finished and decorated and in white enamel. Also inclosed sleeping porch, a large bath with tiled floor and walls, together with a shower, also tiled. Equipped with expensive and the latest fixtures and oak floors throughout. Stairs lead to the attic; concrete basement, with best furnace and automatic water heater. Large garage, with cement drive. Will take pleasure in showing you this delightful property.

WILSHIRE HOME—10 ROOMS.

$8750—A new 10-room residence within half block of the boulevard in the heart of the most expensive homes, the house is a dream of beauty. Handsome without and elegant comfort within. A finely-constructed house with five sleeping rooms including a very fine close-in sleeping balcony and two baths. Elegant large living-room, library is a beauty, a breakfast or servant's room off kitchen. Best hardwood floors throughout; elegant lighting fixtures and solid brass hardware; rooms artistic and expensively decorated. Large stone and cement porch, basement and furnace, cement drive and garage; in fact, a most complete home, and the price only $8750.

ELEGANT WILSHIRE BUNGALOW.

$6250—There is just being finished a beautifully designed and stylish 7-room bungalow that will surely please you if you are in the market. Located on a 60-foot lot, two cement porches with Santa Barbara sandstone trimming, breakfast room and dining-room open onto the side porch. Bathroom is tiled, furnace heat to all rooms, cement drive and garage, hardwood floors throughout. There is nothing so handsome in the city at he price. It will suit the most exacting. Terms can be arranged if necessary.

BEAUTIFUL BUNGALOW BARGAIN, SOUTHWEST.

$4250—This elegant 7-room bungalow is worth $5000; we will match it against anything else in the city at the price, without doubt the best buy today; owner wants to buy a larger house and we are authorized to sacrifice this at once; only about one year old, finely finished and decorated; hardwood floors, handsome fixtures and buffet; besides the usual rooms there is a charming den and also a breakfast room, cement and granite porch across front, and another large cement porch on the side off dining-room; lot 50x135, and even better than a corner, there being a private 20-ft. walk along the side, gives plenty of room, no crowding; house flooded with sunshine; your opportunity; don't overlook it. Price only $4750.

FOR SALE—

KINGSLEY DRIVE BUNGALOW.

$3750—A Wilshire bungalow facing east on lot 174 feet deep. Has hardwood floors. Built-in bookcases. Good fixtures. Living-room and dining-room faces the front. Three fine bedrooms, big closets, and a good bath. $1000 cash. A snap.

KINGSLEY DRIVE.

$6250—Seven rooms on east front lot 50x150. It is located in the desirable Wilshire section, north of the Boulevard. The rooms are unusually large, and the arrangement is very attractive. There are plenty of windows, closets and built-in features. Has a furnace, garage, and a highly improved lot. It is a bargain.

NEAR HARVARD MILITARY SCHOOL.

$6750—One block from the Harvard School. Eight rooms, furnace, garage. Lot highly improved, house practically new. The arrangement is excellent and the rooms large. If you will investigate this property you will find an unusual value. Easy terms. Owner is going to build a larger home.

MANHATTAN NEAR SIXTH.

$10,000—Nine rooms with garage on lot 60x150, house is new, never been occupied. All the improvements in this vicinity are high grade. Would accept a good clear lot as part of consideration.

WESTERN AVENUE.

$11,000—About one block from the boulevard, east front on a 60-ft. lot, ten rooms, two baths, attic, garage, gas furnace, and an abundance of fine shrubbery. The finish is mahoganized cedar and selected slash grain, decorations are of imported tapestry. Servant's quarters and bath are on the first floor. There are several art glass windows and full sized mirrors which produce an artistic effect. Owner will consider a good Wilshire lot or a small bungalow as part payment.

WILSHIRE HOME.

$14,000—One-half block from Wilshire boulevard and east of Oxford. This is a 12-room mansion finished in genuine oak, furnace, attic, garage, plumbing arranged so you can install three baths. It is artistically decorated and has expensive fixtures, making an ideal home. Will accept a medium priced residence, clear as part payment and mortgage for balance.

This typical bungalow is in a charming southwest district, being surrounded with pretty homes, almost as charming as itself. It is brand new; the hardwood floors extend all through the house, and every one of the seven rooms is fitted with the cosiest and most modern ideas. There is a fine cement basement with furnace already installed; there is also a nifty hot water heater in the cabinet kitchen. We know of nothing to beat it for value, for beauty of line, and for solid worth. Terms $500 cash.

$4850.

Right in the heart of the Wilshire section, facing east, this seven-room bungalow has just been completed; has hardwood floors throughout, large cellar and furnace. The interior is most attractive, being beamed and paneled, having a cathedral ceiling in the large living-room, which gives a most beautiful effect. Three bedrooms and breakfast-room are very dainty in white enamel, as is the modern buffet kitchen, with its built-in features, woodstone sink, etc. Large screen porch, with wash trays, complete this up-to-date bungalow. Reasonable terms can be arranged.

Located on Normandie, just a little south of W. Adams, we have a very complete home which we can sell at a sacrifice. There are eight large rooms, cellar, furnace, hardwood floors—in fact, everything is modern, although the house is four years old. This property would be cheap at $6500, but, in order to move it quickly, the owner (who is a non-resident) has advised us to put it at $5250. Almost any terms will handle it; let us show it to you.

A Wilshire district bungalow of eight rooms, never occupied, on a sixty-foot, east front lot, for this ridiculous price! Can you beat it? We know you cannot find its equal. The house is of that attractive, story-and-a-half type, with a wide cement veranda running entirely across the front and part way down the side. The interior arrangement is particularly good, with a large living-room, a library with French doors leading to the veranda, dainty breakfast room, four excellent bedrooms, an upstairs den, and other features too numerous to mention. Hardwood floors, furnace pipes, extra lavatory, etc., make this house a $6500 proposition. Very reasonable terms can be had if desired.

This is one of the handsomest bungalows we ever saw; it has an air of artistic beauty which distinguishes it in a street of pretty homes. Standing on a fine 60-foot, east-facing lot, in one of the best Wilshire districts, the building has been designed after broad and spacious lines, which give us seven commodious rooms and two porches, each like a room in itself. All floors are hardwood; there is an old time log fireplace in addition to the furnace pipes, and a sleeping porch adds a last "comfy" detail. We believe you will find no house more typically and deliciously bungalow style in Los Angeles. And it is worth every dollar of the price, $6500.

Here is a property located on a northwest corner, 70x178 feet, with a south and east exposure, nine beautiful rooms, strictly modern, and, as an investment, we confidently believe that within ten years from now it should sell for at least five times what it will cost you today. The house is less than a year old, has hardwood floors throughout, five beautiful bedrooms, and very attractive living-room, den, reception room, dining-room and buffet kitchen, with screen porch, pantries, cellar and furnace. This property would be cheap at $18,500; for a quick turn we are offering it at $14,000. Reasonable terms can be arranged. For a home and an investment we do not think this property can be duplicated for the money.

$? ? ? ?

During the many years in which we have been in business we can honestly say that this is the biggest snap which has ever come into our office. The property has been held at $23,000 and we are now offering it at sacrifice price. Brand new and never occupied, standing on an east front lot, 60x165 feet, it consists of eleven large rooms, three beautiful tiled baths, finished billiard-room, cellar, furnace, automatic heater, two-story garage, with second floor plastered and arranged for chauffeur's quarters, and grounds improved with shrubs, flowers, trees and lawn. The lower floor is handsomely finished in fumed oak, genuine Tabasco mahogany, Circassian walnut and Peruvian mahogany, with specially selected wall coverings; the upstairs, consisting of four exceptionally large, light and airy bedrooms, and the baths, is in eggshell enamel, a very dainty scheme of decoration obtains throughout. There are numerous immense clothes closets, sleeping porch and outside porch. This house must be sold as the owner has changed his plans and cannot occupy it; if you are looking for a real bargain of this character, let us show this to you.

This magnificent 12-room house, just completed, is one of the best we have had listed in over a year.

The exterior is of stone, cement and frame, and has a very imposing appearance. The lower floor consists of a huge living-room, dining-room, library or reception room, finished in solid oak and mahogany, and a dainty breakfast room and perfect kitchen in white enamel. Also a large reception hall in selected mahogany, with massive stairway.

The second floor has four extra large bedrooms and a sleeping porch. There are two fully tiled bathrooms and a shower bath on this floor.

The third floor has a fine billiard or card room, two bedrooms and a good bathroom.

The walls of the first floor have been beautifully decorated by hand and the second-floor walls are tastefully papered. Furnace heat to every room, even those on the third floor. This house cannot be adequately described in an advertisement—it must be seen to be fully appreciated.

The workmanship is exceptionally good and the property is worth every dollar asked for it.

Five-room bungalow.

This corking, good up-to-date 5-room bungalow located in the southwest on a street almost built up solid, fine car service, electricity, gas, telephone, best of street work. We have three of these bungalows and can sell them on terms of $100 down,

Balance on easy monthly payments.

These bungalows are not the cheap affairs which you sometimes find in the outskirts of the city, but are really handsome houses located in a desirable neighborhood and houses which have the true bungalow effect, finished with every modern convenience.

We subdivided the acreage where these houses are located and are in a position to put them on the market at a price which cannot be duplicated. We have built in the past three years 600 houses, of which 594 have been sold. Phone us for an appointment and we will be glad to show you the property.

VICTORIA PARK
VICTORIA PARK
VICTORIA PARK

THE RESIDENTIAL PARADISE ON THE CROWN OF WEST ADAMS HILL

THE PROPERTY WITH A GREAT PRESENT
AND A GREATER FUTURE.

Brains, skill, money and all the landscape gardener's art have been lavished to make Victoria Park the crowning achievement in residence park construction in Los Angeles.

Every desirable feature of the few other high-class residence subdivisions in Los Angeles, as well as the most noted residence thoroughfares of Eastern cities, have been embodied in Victoria Park.

Its location on the summit of West Adams Hill, overlooking all surrounding property is magnificent. The panoramic view of mountains and valley cannot be surpassed and can never be obstructed.

Victoria Park, is laid out with 100-foot winding boulevards, 30-foot wide parkways, 7-foot cement sidewalks and four rows of trees along each driveway. The streets are paved with the very best petrolithic pavement. Every improvement is of the highest possible order.

The lots range from 88 to 110-foot frontage and average 150 feet in depth.

The parkway is illuminated by magnificent stone and iron electroliers, 15 feet high, each with five artistic electric globes.

No streets or driveway names are used in Victoria Park, the addresses being "Victoria Park" with the number of the lot.

Building restrictions are $5000 and $6000 according to the location. All of the homes so far erected exceed the requirements, and many modern mansions, costing up to $30,000 have been erected.

While Victoria Park is delightfully removed from the noise, dirt and smoke of the city, it is exceptionally well located and is easily and quickly accessible to the business center. Car lines immediately adjoining the north and south sides of the park. Fine asphalt boulevard entire distance from Victoria Park to business center.

Low prices at present, combined with an assured future, make Victoria Park the most attractive residence buy in Los Angeles today—whether considered from the standpoint of home or investment. We invite fullest investigation. Shall be glad to take you out to see this splendid property at any time. It is absolutely the finest residence property on the Los Angeles market today.

ALL THE COMFORTS ARE HERE!
Not "Going to Come."

If you're buying for a home, there are certain "don'ts" to observe. One of them is, don't pay for a lot where improvements are "going to be." You want these advantages at the very start. Arlington Square provides them for you. Here is a beautifully developed residence tract in the best part of the Southwest. Improvements are here—not "going to be." They include graded and oiled streets, cement walks and curbs, and wide, tastefully planted parking. Conveniences are here—not "going to be." They include telephones, near-by schools, stores, etc. Good car service is here—not "going to be." Several car lines serve this property, and the fare by all is only 5 cents. You can buy in Arlington Square for $725 up, on terms of only $25 cash and $15 monthly. Adjoining properties are priced much higher. People appreciate the conveniences and advantages of this home district, and hundreds of bungalows and houses are now going up. Come to my office for full details, or direct to tract office, corner Arlington st. and Santa Barbara ave., Inglewood car. Or see Mr. Potter at 2113 West Jefferson st. RAMPART BOULEVARD.
$2600.00.

A dandy high lot, 55 feet wide. The lot is worth $3000.00, but for the next few days we are in a position to offer it for $400.00 under the market.

Remember it is the Westlake district and close in.

We have three east front lots, 50 feet wide, one block from Corondalet street, and near Rampart boulevard, which we can sell for $1350.00 each.

These are east front lots and are desirable and charming locations for bungalows.

FOR SALE—
Business Property.

FOR SALE—OR TO LEASE FOR 50 YEARS, No. 607 S. Figueroa st., 63x265 feet.

Figueroa st. is now one of the longest and most central streets and will become one of the most important business thoroughfares in Los Angeles.

This property is very easy of access. The Sixth-st., Washington-st. and Glendale lines of cars pass in front of it and the Seventh-st. line is less than 400 feet away.

It is just inside the circle of the central business district, and on the side of the business center in which business is expanding. In every growing city the central business district expands toward the homes of the wealthy classes.

The well-to-do people of Los Angeles will always live west and southwest of Figueroa st. and must cross Figueroa st. in going to and from the banks, stores, hotels, theaters, etc., before they can reach Hill, Broadway, Spring or Main st.

It is this tendency in business expansion that explains why business first shifted westerly from Main and First sts. to Spring st. and thence to Broadway, and now to Hill and other westerly streets, and southerly from First to Sixth sts.

No. 607 S. Figueroa st. lies on a direct line between the present business center, at Broadway and Sixth st., and the beautiful Westlake and Wilshire Blvd. residence districts and in the direction also of the palatial homes of the West Adams Heights and Harvard Blvd. sections. The Sixth-st., Seventh-st. and Washington-st. car lines leading to these choice neighborhoods pass the property. The subway trains to Hollywood, Berkeley Hills, the Palisades, Santa Monica, Ocean Park and Venice will have their first station at Figueroa near Fifth st.

No. 607 S. Figueroa st. is as near the present business center at Broadway and Sixth st. as is the old business center of 1900, at Spring and Second sts., from which latter location the First National Bank will soon move to Spring and Seventh sts. From the present business center, where skyscrapers of steel construction are erected, the business district is naturally widening in the direction of Figueroa and Sixth sts.

Ask E. T. Earl and the Foye heirs what they will take for their choice corners of Figueroa and Seventh sts.

One hundred and twenty thousand dollars was recently refused for 120x240 feet on Figueroa st., between 6th and 7th sts., at N.W. corner of Orange st.

The 247 feet on west side of Figueroa st. between 6th and Orange sts. is the largest practically unimproved frontage of close-in business property in Los Angeles. It has a depth of 240 to 265 feet. Its great depth gives it additional value for many kinds of business.

This 247 feet should be kept together and have erected on it a large fine hotel, worthy and characteristic of Los Angeles, with operahouse attached, and the hotel set back from the street with lawn, palms, fountains, flowers, pergolas, etc. Valuable palms are already there. The large frontage and great depth of these lots will admit of such a hotel, while the demands of the growing city, the high character of Figueroa st., and the close proximity of this location to the downtown center will recommend it as an investment. There would and could be no other downtown hotel like it, for no other such central, spacious and desirable lot can be had. All present downtown hotels cover the lots on which they stand. They are too much like New York and Chicago hotels.

If Garland should predict 750,000 population for Los Angeles in 1920 I would expect the prediction to come true, for the past history and future prospects of that wonderful city fully justifies the prophecy.

Here are some of the things that promise Los Angeles one million population in the near future: First—Its matchless climate which is a powerful magnet that is attracting the civilized world. Second—Its inexhaustable supply of oil for commercial and manufacturing purposes. Third—Its abundant and ceaseless flow of pure mountain water from Owens River for domestic use, for irrigation and for generating electric current for light, heat and power. Fourth—The rich mines of gold, silver, lead, copper and other metals, developed and undeveloped, which lie within easy reach of it. Fifth—The Panama Canal and the stream of commerce that will flow through it night and day. Sixth—The Panama Canal Exposition which will contribute nothing but benefits to Los Angeles. Seventh—The harbors of San Pedro and Redondo. Eighth—The fertile valleys that encompass it with no competing city nearer than 400 miles.

In the early eighties Los Angeles, to the tourist, seemed to have no assets except climate. Now, to both tourist and native son, it seems to have everything good that is within the gift of God or man.

Long before Los Angeles gets its one million population, or two-thirds of it, Figueroa and Sixth sts. will be business property of the highest class. This property is now ripe and ready for permanent improvement, such as hotel, clubhouse, operahouse, convention hall, insurance office building, etc. A few years ago the southwest corner Figueroa and Sixth sts. was favorably considered as a location for the beautiful building of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co., afterwards erected northwest corner Sixth and Olive sts.

In making investments buy near the business center and make your money cover as much ground as possible. It is the ground that grows in value.

205 La Salle st., Chicago, Ill.

A SAFE AND SANE INVESTMENT.

SHOWING 100 PER CENT. PROFIT.

A strong claim but note the evidences, urgent need of ready money forces me to sell by subdivision located 20 minutes from Sixth and Main sts., right on the electric car line. The property is well improved shaded by fruit trees, cement walk and curbs, street work, etc. Merely requires ready money to carry it through. Soil deep rich sandy loam. I have already built and sold 60 houses, about 80 choice residence lots still remain. In short, I have done the pioneering, the capitalist with $10,000 and up, who takes hold now will reap the big profits. An investigation will show you where one dollar will make you two without the slightest risk. A SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY for an INVESTOR OR BUILDER.

For further particulars call and see OWNER, 107 W. Seventh st. near Main.

ACRE LOTS AT LAST.
ACRE LOTS AT LAST.

Ever since the successful sale and building up of EAGLE ROCK ACRE TRACT we have been endeavoring to secure a suitable piece of acreage in the Eagle Rock district to cut into big acre lots. The search has been a hard one, and for the reason that we wanted to offer to our clients:

FIRST—PERFECT SOIL CONDITIONS.
SECOND—CHEAP IRRIGATION WATER.
THIRD—FINE TREE GROWTH.
FOURTH—AVAILABILITY TO TROLLEY.
FIFTH—REASONABLE PRICES.
NOW WE HAVE THEM!

Reservations can now be made in EAGLE DALE ACRES—big acre lots—some covered with full bearing navel oranges, some with big peach, apricot and walnut trees.

CHEAP IRRIGATION WATER.
Water stock goes with every acre and gives the best water right in the district.

BEST STREET WORK.
All included in the price, including graded and oiled streets, cement curbs and sidewalks.

FINE SURROUNDINGS.
Eagle Dale Acres is within the city limits of GLENDALE and is surrounded by beautiful homes and suburban estates.

ALL CONVENIENCES
Best of grammar and high schools, convenient to churches and business centers of both Eagle Rock and Glendale. Gas, electricity and both telephones will be installed throughout the tract.

PRICES including all improvements and water right, acre lots $1400, easy terms.

OPENING SALE
will be on Saturday, March 4. Only 28 lots in the tract.

RESERVATIONS CAN BE MADE NOW.
We should not be surprised if every lot was reserved before the date of the opening sale, and would earnestly advise old customers as well as new ones, to make an inspection of the tract at once.

Take Eagle Rock cars on Broadway, get off at Colorado boulevard, and Central avenue, at our branch office, ask for MR. BOURNE.

ACRES IN
ACRES IN GLENDALE.

We are going to wake up you Glendale real estate folks by showing you the Eagle Rock way of doing things.

The Eagle Rock way is to buy the best acreage that can be bought, improve it with first-class improvements, and sell it quickly at the RIGHT PRICE.

By the right price, we mean a price that will allow a handsome profit to the next man, and the next man after him.

This policy has been pursued so successfully in Eagle Rock that we have no acreage left to cut up.

So we have come into the CITY OF GLENDALE to get acreage.

WHAT DO YOU THINK ABOUT THIS?

Acre lots, covered with full-bearing fruit trees, Navel oranges, lemons, peaches, apricots; finely improved streets, cement curbs and sidewalks; cheap water for irrigation; suitable building restrictions. THE FINEST SOIL YOU EVER SAW.

ACRE LOTS
$1400 TO $1700
ACRE LOTS

Terms, 1-4 cash, 1-4 one year, balance on or before 5 years, 7 per cent.

That's the Eagle Rock way—we let the next man get half the profit NOW.

A STRICTLY GILT-EDGE RANCH.
ALL MODERN IMPROVEMENTS.

60 acres, located near electric line, and in a famous ORANGE AND WALNUT DISTRICT; THIS IS HIGH-CLASS LAND, and in a HIGH-CLASS NEIGHBORHOOD. The price is LOW considering QUALITY and the MODERN IMPROVEMENTS. FORTY ACRES in a new and splendid stand of ALFALFA, cut nine times this season; 15 acres in full bearing WALNUTS that are big producers.

An 8-room, nearly new, strictly modern home, beautiful finish, solid oak floors, artistic interior decorating, finest bath, toilet and lavatory fittings; hot and cold water; cement basement, veranda, a splendid big barn.

A 25-H.P. PUMPING PLANT. THIS IS ONE OF THE CHIEF FEATURES OF THIS SPLENDID PROPERTY. It throws a stream in excess of 100 inches at a very low cost; two deep wells, with an everlasting and unlimited supply of water, fine equipment for pumping plant, and tank house, with water for domestic use piped over grounds.

A first-class team of horses, cow, wagon, buggy, harnesses, all farming implements and tools, and a GENEROUS SUPPLY, all practically NEW, included.

This entire 60 acres lies as pretty as a picture. IRRIGATES PERFECTLY. THE SOIL IS THE FOUNDATION of the property. EVERY FOOT OF IT IS GOOD. IN A FROSTLESS BELT, and ORANGES BEING SET ALL AROUND. Adjoining properties held at higher figures, and being SOLD. THIS 60 ACRES WITHOUT THE IMPROVEMENTS AND EQUIPMENT IS WORTH the price. IT'S RIGHT IN LINE OF ADVANCING VALUES. REALTY ACTIVITY IN EVERY DIRECTION. AN INSPECTION OF THE PROPERTY ITSELF WILL SURELY CONVINCE YOU THAT IT HAS UNUSUAL MERIT; AND AS AN INVESTMENT IS STRICTLY GILT EDGE. IT'S ONE OF THE VERY FEW CHOICE THINGS LEFT IN THIS SPLENDID SECTION THAT CAN BE BOUGHT AT A BARGAIN PRICE.

Owner will make unusually easy terms if wanted; does not need the money, but extensive interests elsewhere require his attention. THIS 40 ACRES OF ELEGANT PRODUCING ALFALFA IS A MONEY MAKER. THE WALNUTS ALSO SHOW A BIG INCOME. THE ENTIRE PROPERTY IS IN THE BEST OF CONDITION, and altogether it is a very attractive proposition. BETTER SEE US AT ONCE.

FOR SALE—
$10.00 LAND———LAND $10.00
FORT GEORGE———FORT GEORGE.
$10.00 LAND———LAND $10.00
CHEAP FARM LANDS. Few choice sections as low as $10 per acre, none over $22 per acre, easy yearly payments. Sure, quick fortunes made by the wise heads before the Grand Trunk Pacific, British Columbia & Alaska, Canadian Northern and other railroads are completed into Fort George, British Columbia. Fort George is destined to be the largest city in British Columbia, excepting only Vancouver. Navigable rivers, railroads, farm land, minerals, climate, every advantage to build a large city. Our lands are as close as 5 miles to this coming metropolis. You know that all this and much more is true of Fort George. Still you can't see the large profits in this close-in acreage. Sure, you couldn't see it in Los Angeles 10 years ago, when all your friends were getting rich. The famous Fraser Valley is 10 to 20 miles wide. Mild climate, no extremes; rainfall coming during growing season; no draught; snowfall very light; no destructive winds; soil rich black loam; clay subsoil; plenty pure water; no irrigation needed; wild meadows of rich grasses fatten cattle without feeding grain; hay 3 tons per acre; oats 75 to 100 bushels per acre; potatoes 600 to 700 bushels; other crops in like proportion. The rich valley lands of silt and loam soil, owned by this company, cannot be duplicated in other parts of America for $100 to $200 per acre. J. J. Hill says: "One good crop thrice more than pays for the land." We own the land we sell. Titles direct from the British Columbia government. Deal with a large, responsible corporation and be protected by a cash capital of $1,000,000. Call and see the photographs and field notes. It's a pleasure to answer questions. References, any bank in Vancouver.

FOR SALE—
$16,000.
THE "BANNER" WALNUT GROVE.

15 acres, set solidly to 15-year-old walnuts, GREAT BIG TREES, GIANTS AS COMPARED WITH MOST GROVES. WONDERFULLY UNIFORM, located right on fine wide oiled avenue, close to beautiful foothill town, only 3-4 hour run from Los Angeles. This grove is without question one of the HANDSOMEST in the country, and a dependable producer of from $2000 to $2700 per year; very little expense to a good walnut grove, positively nothing superior in the State.

Nice bungalow of 5 rooms, veranda and screen porch, bath, toilet, hot and cold water, nice fireplace and mantel, attractive yard of shrubbery, trees, lawn, etc., also 22 bearing orange trees.

Good barn and fine country equipment of houses and runs; splendid independent pumping plant with large tank and tank house and water piped all over grounds. Included is a good horse, buggy, harness, farming implements and tools and a fine lot of chickens.

This is a decidedly GILT-EDGE PROPERTY, being a FAMOUS GROVE IN THE WORLD-WIDE FAMOUS WALNUT AND ORANGE SECTION. Climate most delightful. Owner getting old and must sell. Very easy terms.

SUCCESS IS YOURS.
Do you often wish, when you read the success stories of California farmers, that you could do the same thing yourself? Success is yours if you go at it right. The same energy that you are putting into your present work will bring that about. And you don't need to have a lot of money to start. Secure land in my Fresno Valley tract. Here is deep, rich soil, with abundant, cheap, ditch and pump water—located a few miles south of the city of Fresno—crossed by the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe railways, each having stations at the tract. There is a good town there, too, with schools, stores, telephones, free mail delivery, etc.—no hardships to be met or pioneering work to be done. Big money from a number of successful crops; alfalfa, corn, tobacco, oranges, peaches, apricots, figs, walnuts, vegetables and berries. Perfect conditions for dairying, for general farming, poultry and hog raising. And the land is CHEAP; $40 an acre and up. Make a small cash payment, as little as $2.50 per acre cash, if you like. I can afford to name such terms as the land will make good and pay for itself. My free booklet of facts will give you a definite idea of what others have done here. My free exhibit of products will show you what to expect in the way of crops. My free excursions will enable you to examine the land and judge for yourself. Come in and learn about them.

FOR SALE—
OWENS RIVER VALLEY
RED APPLE LANDS

ENORMOUS PROFITS FOR THE MAN WHO GETS IN NOW

It is a fact which no one will dispute that apple growers who own REAL apple lands are getting rich. Even orange growers in the choicest orange districts of Southern California admit thatt Apple is King, for orange lands cannot produce as much net profits per acre as real apple lands in a proven apple district. We wish to go on record as saying that the man who has a real apple orchard and is not getting from $300 to $800 per acre each year for his crop—the fault is entirely his own. Hundreds are doing this—in fact, all are doing it who manage their orchards scientifically.
The cause of the high price of apples and the consequent big profits of apple growing, lies mainly in the fact that real apple lands are exceedingly scarce.
One of the West side of Owens Valley is a proven apple strip of about 30 miles. Our lands are right in the center of this proven fruit belt. Here every condition is perfect for growing the finest big red winter apples in America. Apples from here have sold on the Los Angeles market for $3.75 to $5.00 per box. The altitude is 4000 feet. Climate is delightful. No excessive heat in summer, no fogs or hail. Winter climate a trifle cooler than Southern California. 300 days of sunshine a year.
Soil remarkable for its productiveness. Grows alfalfa that can be tied over a horse's back—70 bushels of Corn to the acre—Potatoes as high as 500 bushels per acre—Alfalfa seed, 1000 pound to the acre.
Gravity, a steel and concrete irrigation system modeled after the most modern systems in Southern California now being installed. Inexhaustible water supply from the hundreds of lakes in the high Sierras. Extremely low water cost.
Southern Pacific's new main line to the East is already finished within a few miles of our lands and will be complete this summer. This will put Owens Valley within 10 hours of Los Angeles, and in quick touch with Eastern and Southern California markets.
Owens Valley is a delightful place to live. The scenery is magnificent. The opportunities for money-making cannot be duplicated anywhere else in America today. It needs only investigation to prove this. We have sold $100,000 worth of these lands in the last two months. Your opportunity is NOW. Come to our office and see exhibit of products, or write us for literature, "Fortunes in Apples," and "Questions Asked and Answered." Office open till 8:00 P. M.

Alfalfa—Walnut and Orange Land.
Adjoining the town of Puente we have some choice acreage to offer, that is certainly inviting to the home seeker or investor.
Puente is 17 miles east of Los Angeles, on the main line of the Southern Pacific and Salt Lake roads, and the new boulevard to Los Angeles is complete at this point. The road is as hard and smooth as a city pavement and travel will always prove to be a "joy ride." Puente has several large stores, First National Bank. High and public schools and all other branches of trade. The climate is ideal all the year around. The soil is a deep fertile loam and produces enormous crops of alfalfa, corn, potatoes, vegetables of all kinds, oranges, walnuts, etc. We have already sold hundreds of acres in the vicinity. Go out and investigate. Water can be had at low cost. Don't miss this opportunity as the amount of land for sale is limited. Lots of 10 acres and up. Price $250 and $300 per acre. Terms one-third cash, balance in 3 years at 7 per cent. Unlimited certificate of title, by Title Guarantee and Trust Co.

DAMP LAND.
South of El Monte we have a limited amount of choice sub-irrigated or damp land that absolutely requires no irrigation to grow alfalfa, potatoes, celery, corn or any kind of vegetables or small fruit. Its wonderful land. Let us show the growing crops and you will be convinced. Lots of 10 acres or more. Price $280, to $300 per acre, one-third cash, balance 3 years at 7 per cent.

FOR SALE.
NORTH EL MONTE WALNUT GROVE TRACT.
This beautiful subdivision consisting of mostly full-bearing walnut trees, is located about two miles north of El Monte, on the main road to Monrovia, and 15 miles from the city. The trees are in fine, thrifty condition and bear heavily. The soil is a sandy sediment loam of exceptional depth and fertility. The water right is all that could be desired, being supplied by a large pumping plant on the tract pumps 175 miner's inches, at bare cost of pumping.
We are going to sell this tract in lots of 5 acres and up. If you want an ideal home site, with a good income, this is just what you have been looking for. This property is in a neighborhood of high-class homes, and within easy reach of churches, high and public schools, electric and steam railroads.

OWENS RIVER LANDS—

FOR SALE—

OWENS RIVER VALLEY.

STOCK AND DAIRY

RANCHES.

720 acres with a never-failing mountain stream of water for power and irrigation purposes. This stream covers the entire tract. This is an ideal stock or dairy ranch, or it would make an excellent fruit subdivision proposition, as the locality is a proven apple district. Adjoining the property is an apple orchard that has not failed to produce a crop in 17 years. The soil is a limestone and volcanic ash combination, especially adaptable to the production of fruit, potatoes and alfalfa—300 acres of the ranch is now in a fine stand of alfalfa. Improvements consist of 6-room house, with bath; cut stone barn, 40x70; power house, 18x40, operated by a Pelton wheel with water piped to the plant in steel pipe; blacksmith shop, 20x45, with a complete equipment of tools; fully equipped slaughter house; stone smokehouse; complete outfit for dipping sheep; six large corrals, well fenced, with water piped to each; one circular corral, fenced with cut stone. A transcontinental railroad runs through the property, with a siding and station located expressly for this ranch. We can deliver this ranch for $65 an acre; with a cash payment of $20,000 and your own time on the balance.

240 ACRES. $75 PER ACRE. 250 inches of free mountain water. All in red top and timothy. This property is considered one of the best grain ranches in the valley and would make a splendid combination as a dairy and hog ranch. The improvements consist of two sets of buildings and the property is well fenced. ½ cash; easy terms on balance.

160 ACRES, $5 PER ACRE; DESERT FILE RELINQUISHMENT; ONE MILE FROM SOUTHERN PACIFIC STATION; IN OWENS VALLEY. WATER CLOSE TO THE SURFACE. THIS MUST BE HANDLED WITHIN TWO WEEKS—A BIG MONEY-MAKER.

40 ACRES. $110 AN ACRE. 40 inches water; all in cultivation, with a good house. This is fine for chickens or a small hog ranch, and is a cash proposition at a sacrifice.

ONE HUNDRED OTHER RANCHES IN OWENS VALLEY, VARYING IN SIZE FROM 20 ACRES TO 2000 ACRES.

163.

17½ acres—$25,000. 1400 Valencias, 100 navels, 200 lemons. Close to foothill boulevard. Easy terms. Fine location. A big bargain.

472.

50 acres—$65,000. 16 acres lemons, balance navels. A magnificent grove. Heavy crop. Fine modern ten-room house, barn and full equipment. A good buy.

576.

6 acres—$9000. 12 years old. Has a heavy crop, partly picked. Mortgage of $2854, balance cash, or would trade part of equity for a pretty modern bungalow.

370.

20 acres—$30,000. Valencias, lemons and navels, a good combination. No buildings. Trees 6 years old. Close to Claremont.

479.

20 acres—$25,000. 16 acres lemons, 4 acres navels. Full-bearing. 1800 trees. Good lemon house. $10,000 cash will handle this. One of the biggest bargains on the market.

368.

138 acres—$5000. A mountain ranch in Live Oak Canyon. From 60 to 70 acres of this is good tillable land. Small deciduous orchard. Fine live oak trees. Plenty of water. Automobile road to this property. Easy terms. No trade.

143.

5 acres—$6750. All Valencias, 2 and 3 years old. 5-room cottage, magnificent building site with fine live oak. Corners on two macadamized boulevards.

430.

5 acres—$10,000. All Valencias, close to Euclid ave., Upland, a fine grove with six-room, two-story modern home, hardwood floors and two sleeping porches, splendid investment and nice home.

126.

10 acres—$15,500. Half navels and half Valencias, uniform and in splendid condition. Ideal and frostless location on main county boulevard. Double pipe-lines, good six-room house and large barn. Ample water. Either as a home-place or for an investment, here is a property with big possibilities.

251.

10 acres—$17,000. All navels, a magnificent grove which has had the best of care, and is located just right, only a short distance northwest of Claremont on main macadamized road.

170.

18 acres—$27,500. 8½ acres full-bearing navels, 9¼ acres, half lemons and half Valencias, young trees. 5-room house and barn. Can divide this.

144.

10 acres—$18,000. Navels and Valencias about equally divided, trees 6 years old. 2500 box crop. Ample water. 8-room modern home, barn and garage; near school, and short haul to packing-house. This is a snap.

116.

10 acres—$15,000. All Valencias, 6 years old, a splendid grove, and a big bargain at this figure. At Charter Oak.

542.

10¾ acres—$20,000. Mostly navels with a few Valencias. A fine corner on beautiful Euclid avenue, Upland, car line past the door. Four to five thousand boxes on the trees, which are in splendid condition. Nice two-story, seven-room house with fine large barn. A beautiful home place and a bargain.

525.

10 acres—$12,500. All navels. A magnificent grove at Upland. Grove has been heavily fertilized and next season's crop will go 6000 boxes.

256.

10 acres—$7500. 8 acres navels, 2 acres Valencias, north of Claremont. A young grove well worth the money.

425.

17 acres—$31,500. 16 acres navels, one-acre grape-fruit. 7000 box crop. Extra water with this. 5-room comfortable home. Splendid location, on beautiful Euclid ave., Upland, and a grove in the very best condition. A good buy.

359.

10 acres—$10,000. Half navels and half Valencias, 5 years old; 4-room house. Owner leaving for the East and must sell quick. Claremont district.

224.

8 acres—$16,000. All navels, 9 years old. A magnificent young grove in La Verne. A beautiful home site.

366.

15 acres — $30,000. Lemons, Valencias and navels. Finely situated, near Claremont on main boulevard. A splendid grove. 8000 box crop. Double water right. An A1 investment.

367.

10 acres—$8000. 5 acres navels, 5 years old, and 5 acres vacant. Fine location, none better, and a bargain. Near Claremont.

404.

11 acres—$20,000. Mostly navels with a few Valencias. There is nothing better than this. Large uniform trees, and simply loaded with fruit. 6000 box crop. In the peerless Upland district. Nice nine-room, two-story house, barn and outbuildings. Considering heavy crop, valuable improvements and choice location, this is certainly a snap.

124.

6 acres—$11,000. All navels, fine large trees. Five-room house. Convenient location at San Dimas, and right on the San Dimas-Covina electric line now in operation.

332.

13½ acres—$35,000. A fine navel grove, 8 years old in La Verne. New and strictly modern 10-room home with magnificent view. Ample water. Team and implements included. Here is a bargain.

200.

10 acres—$15,000. One-third lemons, balance navels, trees full-bearing; 10-room house and good barn. La Verne district, conveniently located. Good home place and an opportunity to make money.

203.

13½ acres—$37,000. Part lemons, mostly navels. The banner grove of La Verne. 9000 box crop. Neat cottage and barn. On the Foothill boulevard.

REMEMBER THIS: ORANGE GROWING IS A DISTINCT SCIENCE, DEPENDING FOR ITS SUCCESS UPON A THOROUGH KNOWLEDGE OF ATTENDANT RISKS.

California offers no other investment so profitable—IF the grove you buy has no handicaps. See to it that your grove has the possibilities it should have, and protect your own interests by purchasing through a reliable agent who is a practical orange grower.

PASADENA, CAL.

10 ACRES, GLENDORA, CAL.
The best bargain on our books, navels and Valencias, full bearing. Good two-story house and barn. Best of location and the land vacant in this locality is bringing a better price than asked for this ranch.
PRICE $12,000; YOUR TERMS.

10 ACRES, GLENDORA, CAL.
Located on the boulevard near the electric line. Valencias and navels, 7 years old and in excellent condition. Good improvements. Get the price. It is worth your while.

10 ACRES, CHARTER OAK DISTRICT.
One of the prettiest home places in the valley. Valencias and navels, full bearing. A modern seven-room house, barn, etc. Will show good interest on price asked.

10 ACRES, GLENDORA, CAL.
All lemons and in the foothills. A fine new home of ten rooms, also garage and barn. One of the best located homes in the foothills. The price is right.

13½ ACRES, GLENDORA, CAL.
THE CREAM OF THIS DISTRICT.
Valencias and navels, all 8 years old. Heavy crop now on trees. This property is improved with the finest home in the San Gabriel Valley, which is new and modern. The property is well worth the price asked.

20 ACRES, CHARTER OAK DISTRICT.
All navels, 14 years old, except 200 Valencias; crop on trees worth $6000. Good 7-room house, barn, etc. The best of water, soil and location. Adjoining ranch could not be bought for $4000 per acre. Price $35,000.

20 ACRES, GLENDORA, CAL.
15 acres Eureka lemons and 5 acres navels, all 15 years old and in fine location and condition. Ranch will show $8000 per year net. Improvements alone, cost over $30,000, water costs only $32.50 for whole season. Price $52,500.

20 ACRES, SAN DIMAS, CAL.
The cheapest property in this frostless district for an income producing grove. One-third Eureka lemons, one-third Valencias and one-third navels, all bearing trees. This grove will show an income of at least $12,000 this year. Figure it out for yourself. The price is $45,000, including crop.

23½ ACRES, GLENDORA, CAL.
A beautifully located piece of vacant orange or lemon land. Owner will supply ample water, put in pipe lines and plant your trees for $650 per acre. This is less per acre than adjoining vacant land without water is held. Absolutely the best buy in the district. Let us show you a profit of one hundred per cent. in this inside of one year. Terms, one-third cash.

20 ACRES, COVINA, CAL.
Lemons, Valencias and navels. The best and most modern bungalow of six-room in the district. The price is right and should not be on the market long. Price $30,000.

20 ACRES, COVINA, CAL.
15 acres, Eureka lemons, 10 acres navels and 5 acres alfalfa. Covina water. An income of $7000 net per year now and will increase as trees grow older. We have the best only.

30 ACRES, SAN DIMAS-GLENDORA DIS.
The prettiest, most even, Valencia, lemon and navel grove in the valley of its size. The price of $800 per acre is less than vacant land with water is held. The terms are easy. Owner is a non-resident and must sell. If you have the money, can show you a net profit of one hundred per cent. in a year. There is absolutely nothing wrong with this. It's a snap. The best advertised today.

120 ACRES, FOOTHILL RANCH.
SAN GABRIEL VALLEY.
The prettiest, best improved, and that is saying a great deal, of any foothill ranch in the valley. This place is on the market until the first of April, as the owner is going to Europe, for several years, at that time. This place must be seen to be appreciated. The price is $100,000. It is well worth double that to one who appreciates a fine country home.

Every property is as advertised. We handle nothing but the best and will put our time against yours to show you. Isn't that fair? Our facilities for handling country property are the best in Southern California.

A. W. RICHARDS,
The Orange Grove Man.
Claremont. Pomona.

315. A splendid home place in Pomona, 10 acres oranges, $13,500. Good water right, good 7-room house, all kinds of family fruit trees, shrubbery and flowers. This is one of the prettiest home places in or around Pomona. Let me show it to you.

3. Here is a cheap place, 20 acres 4 years old, for $25,000. Extra water and packing-house stock. $14,000 cash and $2000 a year. Nearly all Valencias. It is nearer worth $35,000 now than lots of groves that are selling for that money. 3-4 mile from Claremont.

8. 12½ acres, 5 Valencias, balance Navels, $18,500. Good water right. $7000 cash, balance $2000 a year. Might take a nice Pomona property up to $3000.

10. 10 acres Navels, $20,000. Two water rights and free domestic water. 5000 box crop last year, 4500 year before, 2800. A big bearer. A splendid team and implements go with this place. $10,000 cash and easy terms. At Upland.

213. 9 acres, half Valencias and half Navels, $10,000. 1-8 interest in well and pumping plant, 45 to 60 hours water. Half cash and $1000 a year. This is a first-class grove, but one of the cheapest groves I have ever seen.

152. 10¼ acres, nearly all Navels. Small house. $12,500. Good water right. Just been covered with barn yard. $6500 cash and easy terms.

310. A splendid 6-acre grove at San Dimas, all Navels, $11,000. Double water right.

299. 10 acres Navels and Valencias, young, $7500. 1-3 cash and $1000 a year; easy.

303. 5 acres, 3 lemons and 2 oranges, $12,560. $4000 cash and very easy payments. February picking on the 3 lemons, 531 boxes. Do you want a bargain?

My branch office at Pomona will be open the first of the week. There will be a writing desk with stationery for all newcomers and strangers. Come in and make yourself at home. Old Savings Bank building.

WE HAVEN'T THEM ALL. Nor do we offer fire-sale bargains. We deal entirely in high-grade propositions with merit. We make the price right before presenting our goods to the public, thereby insuring good incomes with the investment.

The following sale last week of the high-grade New Maryton Apartments near the Angel's Flight. We offer today another opening on the hill:

142 rooms, best location, rent only $4.50 per room. House turns away people every day; 5-years' lease. Furniture in good condition. Owner sick and must sell. Will show you net profit of over $600 per month. $4500 handles this.

FOR LEASE—200-room apartment house to be constructed on close-in corner, five minutes' walk from 7th and Broadway. See further particulars.

FOR LEASE, FURNISHED—100-room American plan hotel doing land-office business.

FOR SALE, LEASE AND FURNITURE of high-grade American plan hotel, walking distance, 100-room capacity, netted $3000 in January. $7000 will handle.

We have a number of attractive openings in San Francisco. Now is the opportune time to get located in the Centennial City.

Will build for our clients:
100 rooms, hotel, Hill st., close in.
150-room hotel, W. 7th st., corner.
100-room apartment house, 6th and Orange.
300-room hotel, S. Broadway.
500-room hotel, S. Hill st.
Call at office for full information.

For Sale—60 rooms, apartments, cheap rent, long lease, $5500. Will take one-half cash and liberal terms on balance. House two weeks old.

For Lease—Unfurnished, in Figueroa district, 80-room apartments.

21 rooms, Westlake district,—give 10-years' lease.

42 rooms, down town, rent $6, 10-years' lease.

ARE YOU THE MAN FOR THIS?
I have for sale a high grade hotel of about 50 rooms. It is located just right. It must be to clear $600 a month. And again it is the cleanest, best arranged, has largest rooms and is altogether very, very attractive. Beautiful entrance, hot and cold water and steam heat, and nicely furnished.

FOR SALE—Here's one for the ladies. One that will make you a beautiful home. Fashionable surroundings. Building is new and is elegantly furnished. House is clearing $250 a month, and the owner really wants to sell. Price $4000; terms.

TO LEASE—20 rooms, ready to furnish.

FOR SALE—OR EXCHANGE—Do you want a modern hotel on EASY STREET? This is the one that will place you on THAT STREET. Don't wait to have one built; this one is ready for occupancy with a nine years' lease at $7 a room. It is strictly modern and the owner has instructed me to SELL and sell it at once. This is a real bargain and I invite the bargain hunters to call and get details. Just think of 130 rentable rooms, 30 private baths; price only $5000.

FOR SALE—A little darling, 20-room apartment house, located west side, close in, beautiful building and furnishings. Strictly modern; worth $2000; sell by Monday 10 a.m. $1100.

FOUND—On Hill street, 3 blocks from 3rd and Broadway, a site where I will build a strictly modern apartment house of about 50 rooms, that will have every known built in feature. I am ready to commence building on Monday. 10-year lease, $6 a room. Plans at my office.

CHOIX CONSOLIDATED—
There are many mines in Mexico which are paying very large returns to the stockholders. Some of them have been in operation for more than 300 years and are still paying big profits. There is nothing which pays better returns for a great length of time and produces great wealth faster than a good copper mine. Many stocks in copper mines are worth from ten to thirty times their par value and are paying dividends of from 25 per cent. to 75 per cent. on par value. The life of a good copper mine is practically unlimited. One mine in Spain—the Rio Tinto—has been in operation most of the time for more than 2000 years and is still one of the great dividend payers.

As soon as the smelter owned by the Choix Consolidated is installed and in operation, the shares should increase in value very rapidly and dividends should be large. Large ore bodies and low cost of production will make this a very attractive investment. Shares are now selling at $1. Call at 553 South Spring st. and see the fine ore display, get information and a new booklet describing the company's properties.

HEADQUARTERS FOR ALL OIL STOCKS. We are NOT members Los Angeles Stock Exchange, but are in better position than Exchange members to give information about California oil companies. We offer at lowest prices all active unlisted oil stocks, including American Crude, Midway Union, White Star, Midway Five, Brownstone Oil & Ref., Crown, Dawson, Section 6, Santa Maria Midway, Brownson, Midway Southern, etc. SPECIAL one big "yellow dog," answers to name of "Cleveland," purchased from member L. A. Stock Exchange for $170; will sell for $10. Will eat anything—especially fond of "suckers;" for information as to docility, ask Exchange members.
We will buy Midway Union, Hale-McLeod, United, Dawson and others. Will exchange Shell Petroleum preferred with common stock bonus for any of these.

YOU CAN GET THE STOCK OF A PROducing gold property at a price that will increase 30 to 40 per cent. in the next few months and bonds on which you can draw 6 per cent. will be put up as a guarantee that it will be done. It is no prospect, but a big, low-grade property, with stamp mill, cyanide plant, electric power plant, hoist and crushing plant and ore bodies that will yield a profit for years to come. A sale of the stock being offered will put the company on a dividend basis. Call and talk it over with C. A. SHORT, 707 O. T. Johnson Bldg., or phone 71647 for appointment.

THERE IS BIG MONEY IN OIL. I KNOW of an oil investment that is perfectly safe and will pay at least five for one within next 18 months. I will give you the information. You make your own investigation. Address Z, box 30, TIMES OFFICE.

RUSH TO WORK FOR FREE PORT.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE APPOINTS COMMITTEE.

Body of Representatives Will Go to San Francisco to Present Claims of This City to Control of Its Harbor—Will Ask That Ante-Election Promises Be Made Good.

Acting on the advice of Senator Hewitt, who has informed the Chamber of Commerce that help is needed from this city to present its interests before the legislative committees, the chamber held a special meeting at noon yesterday and appointed a committee to proceed to Sacramento for this purpose.

The committee consists of President Scott, Vice-President Slauson, Congressman-elect Stephens, Willis H. Booth and H. Z. Osborne.

This committee will first visit San Francisco and present the situation to the Chamber of Commerce of that city. The San Francisco Chamber of Commerce sent a strong delegation to Los Angeles prior to the election last year asking the support of the Los Angeles chamber to the $10,000,000 bond proposition in favor of improvements in San Francisco harbor.

At that time the San Francisco gentlemen were informed that the city of Los Angeles was not asking assistance from the State for its harbor, but that the people of the city through its municipality would expend several millions of dollars thereon, and simply desired the liberty to operate the harbor through its municipal officers. At the time, this was freely acceded to by the representatives of San Francisco.

Later another committee of leading San Francisco business men appeared before the Chamber of Commerce and earnestly urged the chamber to advise the voting of $5,000,000 by the State for the Panama-Pacific Exposition, which also was acceded to, and Los Angeles county gave a heavy majority in favor of this $15,000,000 addition to the resources of San Francisco.

The Los Angeles committee will now ask the San Franciscans to make good on this promise. The Senate committee hearing was fixed for Tuesday afternoon, but at the request of the chamber, Senator Hewitt secured a postponement until Friday.

The Citizens' Committee appointed by the Mayor, which will be headed by himself, will proceed to Sacramento at the same time with the Chamber of Commerce committee.

RIPE FOR ORGANIZATION.

Prominent Suffrage Worker Predicts That the Issue Will Carry Heavy in Fresno and Stockton.

The men of the North are preparing to deliver California over to the enemy, if they vote like they talk. Of this Mrs. C. F. Edson is convinced, although she does not call woman's suffrage the enemy, and does not think that a victory for her cause will be the fall of the State.

Mrs. Edson returned to Los Angeles yesterday, after an active week at Fresno and Stockton. She says that on the entire trip she never met a man who was opposed to woman suffrage, and she talked to numbers of enfranchised male citizens.

At Fresno, she found one man willing to take up the banner of suffrage and carry it to the ends of the State. That man was Judge Church of the Superior Court. He attended a meeting at Fresno which Mrs. Edson addressed, and, at the conclusion of her speech, arose and addressed the assembly most impressively.

Mrs. Edson found the women of Fresno ripe for organization and for action. After a conference of the club presidents of San Joaquin Valley, which proved a delightful social occasion, attended by Mrs. R. J. Waters, president, and Mrs. S. W. Davis, corresponding secretary of the State federation, Mrs. Edson had gone about the business of organizing a Political Equality League branch at Fresno, and this central branch will operate through the county. Mrs. Edson is satisfied that they will carry Fresno county for suffrage by three to one.

At Stockton Mrs. Edson attended the Alameda District Convention of Woman's Clubs, and she found the question of suffrage uppermost in the minds of all the women present. At this meeting she met Mrs. Emma Smith De Voe, who managed the suffrage campaign in the State of Washington. Mrs. De Voe carried every county in Washington by a vote of two to one and, in some cases, the majority for suffrage was three to one.

GAS AND REVOLVER.

Man Overcome by One Is Found With Other on Pillow Near His Head.

Though overcome by gas in his room in Hotel Locke, on Hill street near Second yesterday morning, it is believed the fumes saved the life of J. E. Hoover. When found, a revolver was on the pillow beside his head. His hand had relinquished its hold upon the weapon and had dropped to his side. It is believed that Hoover contemplated suicide, but was overcome by the gas.

When examined the gas jets in the room were all intact except one which had been partially opened. It is not known whether the jet was opened in that manner on purpose or was accidental. Empty whisky flasks in the room gave evidence of Hoover's condition before he was found.

He was hurried to the Receiving Hospital and partially revived. It is believed in the hospital that he will recover.

Hoover came to Los Angeles from Winnepeg, about three weeks ago, but has been unable to secure employment. He gave no evidence of being despondent until he was found in the gas-filled room.

"THE BOY OF THE HOUR."

Produced Twice Yesterday in the Auditorium for Benefit of the George Junior Republic.

"The Boy of the Hour," presented for the first time at the Auditorium yesterday afternoon and last night, for the benefit of the George Junior Republic, was well received. The play was written by Gertrude M. Caldwell of this city, and consists of a newsboy's dream. He falls to sleep by a lamp post and dreams that he is Prince Charming and sits on the throne by the side of Cinderella. Awakened by a policeman in the early hours of the morning, he is charged with complicity in a burglary, but proves the star witness against the two rear robbers.

The next day in Police Court all three were sentenced to the George Junior Republic, instead of to jail. It is meant to portray the dangers that beset small boys, who are left to go their ways earning a living on the streets.

The second act introduced a large number of dancers and other entertaining features, as enacted in the dream of Prince Charming. The hits with the audience were made by three little girls. They were Curtyne Englar, as Cinderella; Ollie Walter, as Prince Charming, and tiny Perley Blenn Goddard. The dancing of the latter two set the audience wild, while the acting of Prince Charming and Cinderella was fine. The play was rather long and tedious in some parts, but by proper trimming may be made an interesting vehicle for exploiting little players and dancers.

Proof That He Has Cure For Rheumatism

There are few discoverers of remedies who can give absolute proof that they have found a permanent cure. One of these rare exceptions is Mr. S. T. Delano. He is a living testimonial of the efficacy of his remedy. The photograph truthfully shows the terrible effects of the racking pains of Rheumatism, but today he is enjoying perfect health and is devoting his life to curing others.

Rheumatism was hereditary in his family. When only a youth the disease became chronic with him. He suffered untold agony for 36 years, and after spending $20,000 for medicines, doctors and experiments, he finally discovered the remedy which completely cured him.

He now offers to send any rheumatic sufferer a free package of the same remedy, and he has literally bushels of letters of gratitude as proof of his liberality. Address S. T. Delano, Dept. 101A, Delano Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y.

Interesting Reading for Tubercular Invalids.

The makers of Eckman's Alterative—the medicine that is curing tuberculosis all over the country—will send direct, a pamphlet and other literature, that every consumptive should read. It tells in their own language the story of those whom Eckman's Alterative has cured.

Such straight-from the heart evidence as this booklet holds is convincing.

No matter if you have unfortunately spent time and money experimenting with nearly every "cure" under the firmament—investigate Eckman's Alterative. If shown the heart-touching affidavit of a father whose only son was cured of tuberculosis by Eckman's Alterative after all hope had been abandoned, would it not carry some weight with you? A specimen:

718 Cherry St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Gentlemen:—"In July, 1905, I first noticed the conditions that showed I had Consumption. I lost weight rapidly; had a hollow cough, hemorrhages and very severe night sweats. My brother recommended Eckman's Alterative. In the Fall of 1905 I began to take it. At this time I am perfectly well and robust. My appetite is good and my weight has increased from 110 to 140 pounds. Not a trace of my old trouble remains. I will gladly express the merits of this medicine to anyone."

(Signed) M. L. GERHARDT.

Eckman's Alterative cures Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever; Throat and Lung Affections. For Sale by the Owl Drug Co., and other leading druggists. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence.

REVIVE STATELY DAMES.

Colonial Party With Old Time Dances to Be Given by the Gymnasium Department of the Y.W.C.A.

The gymnasium department of the Young Women's Christian Association will have its annual colonial party Tuesday evening. The members of this department have been practicing minuets and other colonial dances, looking forward with enthusiasm to depicting themselves as duplicates of the original George and Martha and other stately and dignified squires and dames of 1776. The young women of the city will thus have an opportunity of spending an evening with their illustrious ancestors.

Next Friday evening all classes of the gymnasium department will give national folk dances, robed in the national costumes. The races represented will be the American Indian, German, Irish, Swedish, Spanish, Russian, Colonial, Dutch, Austrian and American. A small admission fee will be charged and the proceeds will be devoted to the interests of the gymnasium clubhouse at Huntington Park.

BOYS CLIMB MOUNT.

Thirty-three boys from the Twenty-eighth-street school climbed Wilson's peak yesterday, accompanied by Joseph Netz, one of the teachers, and Messrs. Kincaid and Biezsch. By courtesy of Prof. Adams, acting director of the solar observatory, the lads had an opportunity to look through some of the telescopes.

By J. W. McPherson.

The writer met Col. John Sobieski who resides at 2807 Brighton avenue, Los Angeles, at the offices of the Teleconi Company, in the Hotel Rosslyn, where he had gone to call on his old friend and co-temperance worker, the Teleconi man.

Col. Sobieski has a history which falls to the lot of very few men. Born a patrician he is a plebeian in every sense of the word, with such a heart for philanthropy that had a fortune fallen to his lot, he would have wanted to give it all away. He comes of a famous family of Poland; but he scorns title or anything else that flavors of royalty and is a firm believer in American liberty and free institutions, holding that all men are born free and equal and that there should be neither king nor aristocracy in any land, and in this great and growing land of ours one man is as good as another, if he is just and law-abiding. "We are all God's children and should live for one another," is his motto.

On account of political reasons Col. Sobieski's father was executed under the order of the Czar of Russia and he and his mother were exiled from their native land and two hundred thousand acre estate. When he and his mother were sent for to bid a last farewell to the husband and father before the execution, she left behind her a half-million dollars' worth of diamonds and other precious jewels. These she never saw again. She was given the choice of giving up her boy to be educated at the expense of the crown or being exiled. Though given one day in which to decide, she answered that she needed no time to consider such a proposition, and she was immediately escorted by the soldiers to the borderland of the monarch's possessions and driven into exile. Even in foreign lands the fate of political refugees was their lot, and they were driven from country to country. That the mills of the gods do not always grind slowly is shown in their experience in Italy and the sequel which followed in Mexico less than twenty years afterwards.

Archduke Maximilian was Viceroy of Northern Italy and on account of joining a demonstration in honor of Capt. Ingraham, U. S. Navy, they were expelled from Milan. Sixteen years after that event Maximilian was himself executed in Mexico by Mexican troops, in which Col. Sobieski belonged to the command.

Col. Sobieski served ten years in the United States Army before he was twenty-five years old, commencing as a bugle boy. He served under McClellan, Burnside, Meade and Grant in the Army of the Potomac. At Gettysburg he was shot through the abdomen and was twice labeled for burial.

The second time when they brought the tag he took it off and told them he was not going to die. The physician told him to make his peace with God, as he had but a few hours to live at best and he replied that he had not been having any fracas with God. A Catholic nurse came to him and told him she would stay with him to the end and he laughingly told her she would have to marry him then, for he was going to get well, and he did. In thirty days he reported back for duty. But this wound was what brought on stomach trouble later in life, the ultimate cure of which brought about his great friendship for drugless treatment and the Teleconi man.

President Juarez of Mexico and Col. Sobieski were intimate friends and it was through their acquaintance that the Colonel became well acquainted with Diaz, the present President of Mexico.

Great as was the work of Col. Sobieski in the civil war and in Mexico, his greatest work was yet to follow. He organized an army of one hundred souls who went out to fight the battle against the ravages of intemperance, for it is in the field of temperance that he is best known. For forty years he has been a lecturer, most of the time in the temperance work. He has organized two thousand Good Templar lodges and enrolled one hundred thousand members.

His patriotism is shown from the fact that he will accept no pension from either this government or the government of Mexico. His wonderful life history is told in his book—his biography—which the writer recently read. It is a book that should be in every home and will serve as an inspiration to both young and old. It is a book that when read by a boy will bring in him a desire to grow up a good man, and will not arouse in him the militant spirit with the ambition to become a killer of men.

Col. Sobieski spoke of the Teleconi man and his work in the highest terms. "He is not only a genius, but a good man," said he. "During the past fourteen years he has probably healed more people than any man in the United States. Take my own case. The doctors told me fourteen years ago that I would soon be walking the golden streets of the New Jerusalem, but I am a pretty healthy looking ghost to be walking the streets of beautiful Los Angeles, but maybe that is what the doctor meant, because this is fine enough down here to be a paradise. The fact remains that at the time I was sick I could hardly retain food on my stomach, even though I was taking pills, powders and fluid medicines, but all of that the drugless treatment changed and I was able immediately to partake of a good meal. No more medicine for me."

A SIGNIFICANT PURCHASE.

Large Frontage on San Vicente Boulevard, Santa Monica, Bought for Improvement With Homes.

The Santa Monica Land Company has sold to E. W. Murphy, president of the Johnson-Carvell-Murphy Company of Los Angeles, a tract of land having a frontage of 612 feet on San Vicente boulevard. The rear of the holding overlooks the famous Santa Monica Canyon. This property contains four and one-half acres, and immediately adjoins the property recently sold to the Baroness Von Zimmermann by the same company.

Mr. Murphy intends to improve the holding with a handsome villa for his own occupancy, and friends of his are also planning to build fine homes on this tract.

The sale of this acreage, together with that of the thirty-four acres sold to Baroness Von Zimmermann, will mean the erection of splendid homes along the San Vicente boulevard from Brentwood Park to Seventeenth street.

While the consideration in this deal with Mr. Murphy has not been stated, it is understood to be at the rate of $50 per foot, as other property in the same vicinity is held at that figure.

BIG DEMAND FOR LOTS.

MONROVIA, Feb. 18.—Realty activity for the week was notable for the preponderance of demand for urban home building sites. Municipal interest in sewer construction and water system improvements is also a feature of recent development work. New schools have attracted many who seek homes and investments where there is real evidence of civic enterprise.

Sales reported are, Bunker & Wade, acting for Mrs. Annette Nye, to M. R. Williams, site on Palm avenue, between Encinitas and Ivy avenues, 260 feet frontage by 150 feet depth, consideration stated, $6250. Same firm, acting for M. Todd, of Long Beach, to George M. Blake, inside lot on Greystone avenue, consideration, $350.

Dr. Lougheed has sold to A. Stewart a cottage on North Myrtle avenue, frontage of lot fifty feet, depth 200 feet, consideration $4200. E. Lawrence has sold to G. A. Pullian, a seven-room bungalow on North Myrtle avenue, for $4500. W. A. Guyer has sold a bungalow and three lots on Mayflower avenue to James Frazier, the consideration being reported at $3000.

APARTMENTS LEASED.

Davis & Ryder, hotel brokers, report the leasing of a new apartment-house at the corner of Ninth and Hoover streets, consisting of twenty-three apartments with private baths, and all modern conveniences, to Mrs. A. A. Bohnert, for a term of ten years at a total rental of $43,640. The same firm has negotiated the lease of a new apartment-house at Eighth and Garland, consisting of fifteen apartments with modern conveniences, to Mrs. B. Hawes, for a term of ten years, at a total rental of $28,000, and reports the sale of the lease and furnishings of the Hotel Interlacken at No. 521½ South Main street, to George Nimeskem, for a consideration of $3000.

FINE TRACT ON MARKET.

The fact that the owners of Westmoreland place have announced that this property is for sale shows their confidence in local real estate conditions. Westmoreland place was laid out and improved something like six or seven years ago—but never, until now, has it been advertised for sale. The property is located between West Tenth and Pico streets, directly east of Vermont avenue. The property embraces about forty-four acres, the entire area being enclosed with massive iron fences. Two broad driveways intersect the holding from north to south, each of which is flanked by twenty-foot sidewalks and parkings. Walks and driveways are bordered with shade trees, semi-tropical plants and a profusion of flowers. There are now in the place about half a dozen homes, including those of the owners, Wesley Clark and E. P. Bryan, which represent individual investments of from $30,000 to $60,000, irrespective of the grounds they occupy.

LEASES BROADWAY SITE.

"Logan the Hatter" has closed a lease with the owners of the New Orpheum Theater on South Broadway, between Sixth and Seventh, whereby he is to take possession at once of a fine store room in that building for the term of ten years and the total rental called for is reported at $666,000. It is Mr. Logan's plan to expend about $10,00 in the equipment of the establishment, which he plans to make one of the finest and most complete stores of the kind in the country. The panels of the store are to be of Circassian walnut and into the interior woodwork will enter the finest of ebony and white Jamaica holly. C. A. Fitzhenry, who has been with Mr. Logan in his Spring street store for a period of six years, will have charge of the Broadway business house.

THE ARCHITECTS.

Architect S. Tilden Norton, who formerly had offices in the Byrne building, has engaged temporary quarters in room 418 Consolidated Realty building.

Frank T. Kegley, Jr., until recently head draughtsman for Edelman & Barnett, has opened office of his own at No. 1110 W. P. Story building.

Franklin Power, for some time chief draughtsman and designer for Harrison Albright, has opened an office in the Higgins building for the practice of architecture.

A. Burnside Sturges of Long Beach has opened architectural offices at 417 W. P. Story building. Mr. Sturges will continue to maintain a branch office in Long Beach.

THOUSANDS TAKE NEW SWITCH.

MANY TELEPHONES PUT ON WILSHIRE EXCHANGE.

First Official Cut-Over to the New Office of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company on Rampart Street Made Last Evening—Many New Features.

At 8 o'clock yesterday evening the first official cut-over to the new office of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company at No. 718 Rampart street was made and about five thousand subscribers of the company were given the first benefit of the new Wilshire district exchange.

The building is one of the most complete of its kind in the State and its exterior appearance is such that it might readily be mistaken for one of the fine apartment houses of the district. In exterior appearance it is patterned after the approved mission a brick body wih outside plaster finish.

All the wires are brought in through six large underground cables which enter through the basement. There are 1200 telephone connections through each cable so that the present arrangement will take care of more than 7000 telephones in the district which is one of the most rapidly growing ones in the city.

The basement also contains a complete heating plant, gas engines and dynamo for charging batteries in emergency cases and very modern toilet arrangements for all connected with the plant.

The first floor has been devoted almost entirely to personal welfare of employees of the company. A large rest room, cafeteria and kitchen occupy the main portions of the floor. A storage battery room and the superintendent's office are also arranged on this floor.

The second floor contains all of the wire racks where the cables terminate and where all of the working parts of the switchboard are located. The wire chief and trouble clerks have their stations on this floor.

The third floor contains the operating department of the plant. The switchboard is built of solid mahogany with steel and asbestos-concrete, frame, assuring perfect fire protection and insulation. The boards will keep twenty-eight girls busy when working to full capacity.

The desk of the chief operator is located here also. It is a solid mahogany affair. The cost of this single article of furniture with its peculiar requisites for good service was $860.

The preparations for the change of service in the Wilshire district have occupied three months. Alterations in every station in the city have been necessary to accommodate the move. While they were being made there were no disturbances of customers and many of the people residing in the western part of the city have only become aware of the new system by being notified of a change in their number.

The district is bounded by Pico street on the south, Valencia on the east and by the city limits on the north and west. All of the telephones in the territory will be given the prefix of Wilshire. A new directory containing all of this information and the numerous changes has just been finished and the distribution of it will be completed before the end of the week.

WRITES NOTE; TAKES POISON.

Man Drinks Carbolic Acid in Saloon and Dies Before His Suicidal Intention Is Known.

Obtaining a pencil and a piece of paper from a bartender in a saloon on South Main street near Ninth yesterday morning, Robert Simpson wrote a brief note to a friend, and then drank half a pint of carbolic acid. He was dead before his condition was discovered.

No reason is known for the man's act. A bank book in his pocket showed that he deposited $400 in the Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank early in December. He also wore a diamond ring.

According to correspondence which he had with him, his family lives in Burlington, Vt. Several of the letters asked why he had not written home. The writer of one also referred to his recent marriage.

Simpson had rooms in the Cadillac Hotel, No. 932 South Main street. No trace of his wife was found. He came to Los Angeles recently from Needles, and it is thought he had been unsuccessful in securing employment with the Santa Fe.

"BURY ME QUICK AND CHEAPLY"

Santa Barbara Man of Excellent Family Tires of Life and Shoots Himself.

SANTA BARBARA (Cal.) Feb. 18.—William Walter Stow, aged 50, a member of one of the best known and wealthiest families in this county, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head, some time Friday at the home of Dr. Lucas in Santa Maria, this county.

He left a note saying: "Put me in the ground as quickly and as cheaply as possible and without ceremony." Two other sealed letters were found in the room, one addressed to his wife in San Francisco, and the other to a friend in Los Angeles. No cause is assigned for the act.

SALES—Morning Session: 1000 May Flower Cons. at 1.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

The price of eggs declined another cent. There was a good demand for them but further declines in the North were announced and with cheap eastern eggs on the market the price has been forced lower. Local case count were sold at 21 cents. Candled brought 25 cents at the most. Eastern extra select eggs, fresh from Kansas and Nebraska, are bidding hard for the every-day business and candled stock is selling freely from 22 to 24 cents a dozen, the higher figure being the formal quotation on the eggs. Receipts of locals yesterday was 458 cases.

Arrivals of butter were heavy, 20,548 pounds. The demand was light and prices continued weak.

There were no changes in cheese. The market is firm owing to the fact that receipts of the past week have averaged less than for any week this year. Only 969 pounds were received yesterday. The storage stock of cheese is cleaning up fast on account of the short supply of fresh spot stock.

Potatoes were unchanged in their prices. Minnesota and Idaho spuds sold at $1.75 for fancy stock in car lots. Northern brought 20 cents more. Receipts were 2370 sacks.

There have been no more than two cars received throughout the week and the consumption is at least a car a day, so that the supply of all but one or two dealers is running very low. Bean arrivals have not amounted to half a car in the week past. Prices are all firm. There has been no change in the price of sweet potatoes, they remaining firm with light receipts due to wet weather.

Apples are moving very well as are all of the citrus fruits. Vegetable shipments have been of very good proportion.

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE.

End of the Week Finds the Local Market Strong, After Five Days of Brisk Business.

The past week was one of the best in the way of business transacted that the Los Angeles Stock Exchange has known for some time. The oil shares, as usual, have been particularly active and there has been considerable trading in bank and public utility stocks.

Probably the most active issue on the board during the past week was Consolidated Midway. Two or three weeks ago this stock touched rock bottom, and since then it has been steadily working upward in price until it has made a recovery amounting to 50 per cent. of the selling price at the present time. Yesterday it sold as high as 18 cents, closing at 17 bid.

Jade was quite active, making a one-point gain, while Palmer Oil gained 2 1-2 points over the preceding day. Mexican Petroleum common was a little bit off, but Union Oil made a slight gain. There was a small amount of trading in the mining list, and Home Telephone preferred changed hands in small lots.

Taken as a whole there was a splendid tone to the market, and there is no apparent reason why this condition should not keep up for some time.

SAN FRANCISCO EXCHANGE.

The Comstocks Furnish the Feature of a Generally Dull Saturday—The Goldfield Stocks.

[Special Service to The Times by B. F. Taylor, 118 West Fourth street, Los Angeles.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—The Comstocks furnished the most interest in a dull Saturday market. The opening prices were the best of the day. Ophir closed unchanged. Mexican showed a loss of 5, Consolidated Virginia 2½, Jacket 1, Sierra 2. Union was an exception to the rule, closing with a gain of 14 points, closing 75@78. Goldfield Consolidated was unchanged. Florence was off 2½, Jumbo Extension was up 1, Booth 1, the balance the same as last night. Tonopah Mining was strong and in demand at 8¼. There were no material changes in the balance of the Tonopahs. The stocks in the outlying camps were unchanged.

The Belmont directors meet in Philadelphia on the 27th inst. to take action on the dividend for the quarter. Compared with last Saturday, Consolidated shows a loss of 12½, Florence a gain of 12½, Jumbo Extension up 3, the Tonopahs practically unchanged. Ophir shows a loss of 10, Mexican 17½, Consolidated Virginia 10, Savage 4.

The following editorial published in the Commercial News, the leading morning financial newspapers of San Francisco, appears to be an intelligent summing up of the situation in the market for Comstock mining shares: "Taking the movements as a whole, there is every indication that they are of a more solid, substantial and legitimate character than at any time within the past twenty-four years or since the Consolidated Virginia deal in 1886. The only difference now, and that is very important, too, is that in 1886 the development was only in one mine, while now there has been good ore development in Ophir, with the outlook promising for more, a development in Mexican which looks as if it is liable to work into a good body of ore, while the work in Consolidated Virginia is being pushed forward into ground which will show up well, better, if anything, than the Mexican ore body. In Caledonia the chances are very favorable for an important strike, as it is in over two other mines, so that this year the mining share market is not a one-man proposition, but one that extends, or will extend, from end to end of the Comstock. Yet dealers should act conservatively, for there will not be any development that will carry the leading stock to any such figure as that touched by Consolidated Virginia in 1886. In the latter year the market was worked up by write-ups, cappers and other ways based on only a fair size ore development. Now it will take over developments and good favoring prospects backed by the moneyed syndicate to advance prices, and the latter will not back a proposition for more than it is worth legitimately."

New York Cotton Market.

[Special Service to The Times by E. F. Hutton & Co., Members of the New York Stock Exchange, 118 West Fourth st., Los Angeles.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Trading has been active during the last week at the declining prices. The greater part of the decline was the result of actual conditions, but may have been accentuated by the agitation in Washington. There has been no improvement in the textile situation and curtailment has increased both in New England and the South. Further beneficial rains were reported in Texas and the drought in the Southwest has now been effectually broken. Some cotton in South Texas has already been planted and preparations in all portions of the belt are unusually advanced, with conditions thus far exceptionally favorable for a large increase in acreage. Spinners' takings for the week were larger than expected, but this was partially offset by the relatively larger movement to market than one year ago. The market today was influenced by some covering and buying in Liverpool for bull account.

Logan & Bryan's letter says: "The amount into sight to date is 10,028,611 bales, against 8,424,293 to a similar date last year, and 10,809,450 year before. Judged from the reports on ginning, the final, this crop will not exceed 11,800,000, although the usual method of crop estimating is to guess the crop will be 500,000 bales larger than any one thinks it will be. With a crop of 11,800,000 as final figures, we have only about 1,800,000 to come forward, as against 2,200,000 for the same time last year and 3,000,000 two years ago. The visible supply now is 3,890,485, against 3,270,203 on this date last year, and 4,419,075, and by adding together the visible supply and the amount yet to come forward, we have the total available for the needs of the spinner in round figures 5,700,000 bales this spring last year, and against 7,419,000 two years ago. last year, and against 7,419,000 two years ago. This does not take into account the difference in the mill stocks in which an actual deficiency this year will be noted, nor does it take into account the supply of cotton of other growths than American, which is smaller today by 160,000 bales than it was a year ago, and is 37,000 less than two years ago. From this date forward last year the mills of the world had to curtail until about the middle of October because the cotton was not obtainable. There are more spindles than we had a year ago, and there is no desire to curtail except in a limited section of our own country, foreign nations seemingly enjoying a good trade. The mills takings for the past week were 324,000. Until the fourth of March our market will be nervous because of fear of legislation, but with this date passed the real merit of the staple as above recited will have its weight. It is quite too early to talk of Texas weather conditions, but to those who have concluded that recent rains have been of serious benefit they have only to consult the government maps since these rains began and see that they are from one-tenth to one-half-inch rains, and that the drought in Texas has not been broken."

TRADING "COMES BACK" AFTER RECESSION.

Unusually Large Volume of Business Marks Week's End—Sees Advance in Active Shares and Most of Less Important Issues—German Rate Reduction Is Potent.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Steady buying today resulted in marked improvement throughout the stock list and recovery of the greater part of the losses sustained during the mid-week recession. Trading was unusually large for the week's end, and the upward movement embraced not only the active issues but most of the less important ones as well. The greatest activity was again in Reading, the Harrimans and United States Steel. News of the day was of a character calculated to make for improvement. Reduction of the German bank rate was accepted as a natural result of the similar action taken early in the week by the Bank of England. A more important factor, however, was the resumption of dividend on Southern Railway, Preferred. International banking houses received intimation of the practical completion of the Southern Pacific financing in Paris and early announcement to that effect is probable. The usual contradiction of conditions was shown in the weekly statement wherein "average" loans increased $7,655,000, with an "actual" decrease of $4,800,000. The "actual" cash gain of $3,600,000 was below the most conservative estimates. The new issue of 4½ per cent. New York city bonds today touched the highest point, selling at 102. The general bond market was firm. Total sales, par value, $1,872,000. United States 2's advanced ¼ on call for the week.

ADJUSTERS GET TOGETHER.

Representatives of the Insurance Companies to Meet the Losers in the Byrne Building Fire.

Edward E. Eitel, William Maris and J. N. Coe, of San Francisco, representing all of the insurance companies with whom owners and occupants of the Byrne building had policies, are in the city for the purpose of adjusting the various losses sustained by those suffering from Friday's disastrous fire at Third and Broadway. The work of inquiry and preliminary arrangements was begun yesterday.

Mr. Eitel, who, it will be remembered, was the adjuster for the different companies in which The Times-Mirror Company was insured at the time of the horror of last October, is in charge of the adjustments resulting from the Byrne block fire. Although he would not violate the confidence of his clients, Mr. Eitel declared that the total amount of insurance to be paid as the consequence of the latter fire, would be approximately $250,000.

This amount includes dozens of policies ranging from $500 to $2000 and covering the insurance carried by the different offices of the building on furniture and other belongings. The Sierra Madre Club in the Columbia Trust building will receive a payment of insurance for damages done by water and smoke.

PEACEMAKER SUFFERS.

Dave Leashane was fined $30 by Police Judge Williams yesterday for "battering" a peacemaker. Cornelius J. McCarthy was the peacemaker. He told the court that he found two inmates of the House of Mercy on West Washington street settling their differences with their fists. He said he attempted to separate them and, in return for the service, was beaten by Leashane, who saw them scuffling but did not stop to ascertain who was fighting before he entered the arena.

DIDN'T GIVE A' ———.

As a result of Mrs. H. H. Rose, wife of the police judge, being arrested Friday for speeding, a complaint will be filed against her chauffeur. Police Judge Rose when asked about it said he didn't give a ——, and the way he said it left the impression that he didn't.

CURED IN FIVE DAYS
Hernia, Piles, Fistula and Varicose Veins

H. J. TILLOTSON, M.D.
Established 30 Years.

I am the only Specialist in Los Angeles who is sole owner of his office and equipment, who does not advertise a fictitious name and photograph. I publish my true photograph, correct name, personally conduct my office. I am the longest established, most successful and reliable, as medical credentials and press records prove. Imitation of my copyrighted announcement is an evidence that I am a bona fide specialist. I make this statement that you will know you consult a Specialist, who sees and treats patients personally. I possess skill and experience acquired in such a way that no other can share, and should not be classed with medical companies. Experience is the safe standard by which judgment may be valued, and it is unwise and expensive to embrace the statements of medical companies. It is impossible for a medical company to attend college. Companies have no diploma or license to practice medicine in California or any other State. Medical companies usually are named after a doctor. A portrait, whose personality and identity are indefinite, is selected and published as the legitimate specialist of the office. Hired substitutes, ordinary doctors with questionable ability give consultation, examination and treatment.

A thorough investigation should be made by every ailing person as to the specialist he consults. Duty and destiny to self and those who depend upon you demand the best medical attention. I have the ability and can give you this service. I have always charged a very reasonable fee, so that my services may be obtained by any man who sincerely desires to be cured. I make no misleading statements or unbusinesslike propositions; neither do I desire to be particularly independent, and I would like to have you for a patient, if you will come to me on a strictly professional basis, and the inducements that I offer, which are my ability and thirty years' successful experience. Time-saving treatment and guarantee of cure of certain diseases.

NO MONEY REQUIRED TO COMMENCE TREATMENT. Many patients have no confidence in their doctor, because he demands pay before a cure has been effected, and there are many who have been misinformed about their condition, or through unsuccessful treatment have become skeptical and think there is no cure for them. I want an opportunity to treat such cases. It makes no difference about the financial part, as I accept pay for my services as benefits are derived, when I am satisfied the patient is reliable. Health is capital at interest. I will prove my ability to cure you before asking pay for my services.

WRITTEN GUARANTEE.
Dr. Tillotson's written guarantee means a cure or no pay for services. I guarantee to cure certain diseases or refund every dollar you have paid me for my services. My services cost you nothing unless I cure your Varicose Veins, Hernia, Piles, Fissures, Ulcerations, or any disease I guarantee to cure. My terms are reasonable and no more than you are willing and able to pay.

Many Cases Cured Permanently in One TREATMENT. Most Time-Saving. Most Natural. Most Safe. No Detention from Occupation, Family or Home. A Radical and Permanent Cure. I Will Give $500 to Any Charity as a Guarantee That Every Statement in This Announcement is True.

I cure rapidly, painlessly and at small expense. Cured Patients are My Testimonials, however, I do not make patient's Names Merchandise by publishing them. I will give conclusive evidence of my merit which is obtained and maintained by ability. I invite you to come to my office; I will explain my treatment for Hernia, Piles, Fistula, Varicose Veins, Pelvic, Nervous, Blood, Kidney, Bladder and Rectal Diseases. I will give you free a physical examination; if necessary a microscopical and chemical analysis of secretions to determine existing pathological and bacteriological conditions. Every person should take advantage of this opportunity to learn their true condition. Certainty of cure is what you want.

Varicose Veins

In the cure of Varicose Veins, Rupture and Associate Diseases of the Pelvic Region, I am successful in bringing to bear the curative power of Nature's forces in such a manner as to supplant the old-time, wide-open surgical operations. Once it required several weeks to cure these conditions and the method which some still use is such as to endanger the life of the patient and require a long period of convalescence. Now an absolute cure can be accomplished in a few days and with perfect safety.

TRUSSES SELDOM CURE RUPTURE. Disregard for existing Hernias has cost many lives. The smallest hernias are the most dangerous to life, because of the increased liability to strangulation. I am aware that a great deal of fraud has been practiced on the public in connection with the alleged cure of Rupture, and when I say positively that I cure Rupture, to stay cured, I do not expect any one to accept my statement without investigation of my professional work. My claim to your confidence is based on absolute facts, accomplished results. A personal consultation. I will make a free examination and can explain every detail of your Hernia and demonstrate to you the curative value of the method I have discovered. I invite the careful investigation of any person who sincerely desires to be cured. I cure Rupture, in selected cases, with perfect safety, and entail no suffering, and do not detain you from occupation under Written Guarantee. Many cases cured to stay cured by one treatment.

PILES, FISTULA, RECTAL DISEASES. These diseases are very common; most frequently found in persons of middle, or advanced age; are exceedingly annoying, often very painful and sometimes very dangerous and frequently unfit one for pleasure or occupation. My treatment and successes are the result of years of experience; my treatment is kindly applied. I cure Piles without cutting. Some cases are cured by one or more treatments. If I do not cure your Piles, Fistula and other Rectal Diseases, my treatment does not cost you anything. Gentleness in treatment comes from treating many cases, as I guarantee a cure of Piles, Fistula, Fissures, Ulcers and all curable Rectal Diseases.

LIFE'S BLOOD STREAM. The great clearinghouse of a person's body is the blood stream. Your blood cells are your bank account. Your only defense against disease is by and through blood corpuscles. My blood-making, blood-purifying remedies have been tried and proven. My blood-cell remedies nourish, strengthen and increase the blood cells and nourish the nerve centers. I want to prove to you at my expense that my blood-making, blood-purifying remedies give power to weak brains and life to nerve centers.

KIDNEY AND BLADDER DISEASES. With these diseases you may have more complications than are presented by any other diseased organs. By my searching illumination of the bladder I determine accurately the diseases and by my microscopical examination and urinalysis I make sure of the condition of the kidneys, thus laying foundations for scientific treatment.

READ MY BOOK—It contains information every young man, husband and father should have regarding himself. Book Sent Free to those who, in my opinion, will be benefited by it. Call or write before treating for diseases or disorders.

One Treatment Cures

A WORD OF ADVICE.

Before beginning treatment elsewhere, take my friendly advice and ask the doctor to tell you of his qualifications to cure you, and then be sure he shows you the proofs of his ability. Mere talk means nothing; promises and guarantees without ability behind them are of no value to you or any one else. After you are satisfied and begin your treatment it is up to you to see the promises are carried out. If you should be unfortunate enough to select the wrong doctor and find it out in time, come to me and I will be glad to do all that can be done for you.

KIDNEY AND BLADDER DISEASES.

With these diseases you may have more complications than are presented by any other diseased organs. By my searching illumination of the bladder I determine accurately the diseases, and by my microscopical examination and urinalysis we make sure of the condition of the kidneys, thus laying foundations for scientific treatment.

VARICOSE VEINS.

Varicose veins do more to destroy human vitality than many other diseases put together. They sap up the strength of the body. You come to my office with your varicose veins, and you leave me an absolutely well man. One treatment is all that is necessary. Not weeks nor months of endless doctoring, but one single visit. I permanently cure you without the loss of time, no pain whatever, and no after trouble.

I will cheerfully donate $1000 to any charity if any statement in this announcement is not absolutely true.

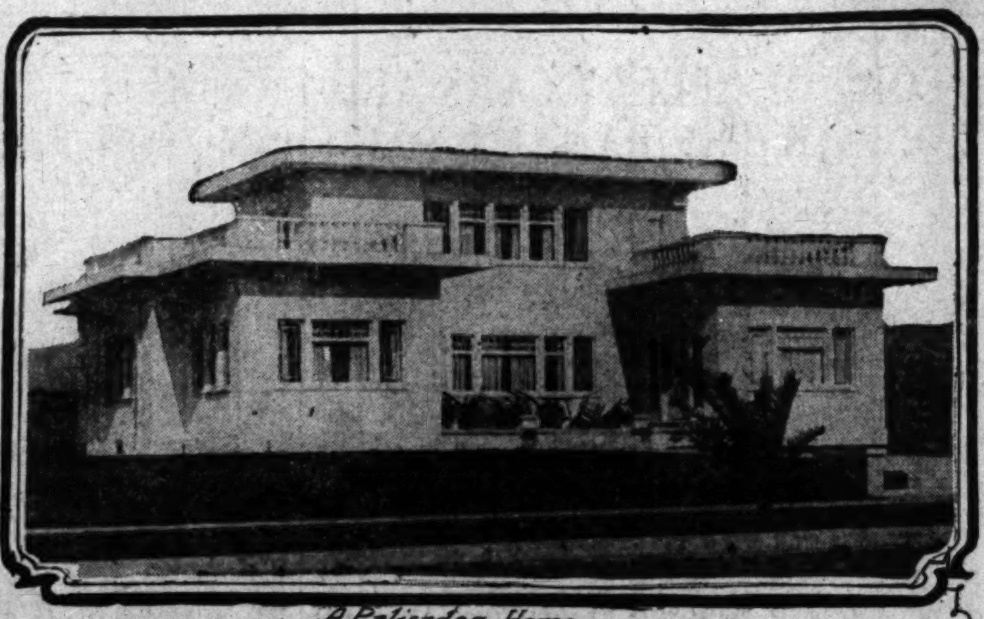
BUILDING A NEW WORLD RIVIERA AT THE PALISADES OF SANTA MONICA.

AT SANTA MONICA the signs of a new season are evident on every hand—not alone a new season of green hills and spring flowers, but a season of unparalleled activity and development of this favorite beach resort. From the rapidly growing Palisades on the north to the million-dollar pier which is being constructed at Pier avenue on the south, the ocean-front gives prophecy of harboring summer crowds of thousands. In anticipation of the subway transportation system that is to bring this part of the ocean within a few minutes ride of Broadway, beautiful year-round homes are being built and the awakening that took place last summer is assuming fresh impetus.

The Palisades, "where the mountains kiss the ocean," have since the last season more than doubled the number of beautiful homes within their limits. On the crest of the picturesque cliffs that rise from the ocean, on the rim of a canyon swathed in verdure, looking out upon blue sea and purple mountains some of the most attractive seaside dwellings in the world are springing into existence.



A Palisades Home

Residences of B.A. Nebeker Mrs. Campion, Mrs Miller and Walter Raymond

where a period of great activity in building and development is ushering in the new season.

Some of the best known residents of Southern California are now numbered among Santa Monica's population. In the Palisades on Adelaide Drive are the residences of Roy Jones, Col. Weaver, Bishop Conaty, H. M. Gorham and R. C. Gillis, the last two famous as types of Southern California's unique and beautiful architecture.

On San Vincente boulevard W. M. Ketchum has just completed a remarkably attractive villa. Mrs. W. T. Gillis, R. C. Gillis, J. A. Dubbs and Robert D. Farquhar also have erected residences on this street.

Georgina avenue is a street that has been built within six months. B. A. Nebeker gave this street its original start by building a handsome home on the ocean front and now the north line of frontage presents a fairly unbroken stretch of houses and lawns, all attractive in architecture and far exceeding the high restrictions that have been placed upon the cost of residences. On this street are the residences of Mrs. Campion, Mrs. Miller, Wayter Raymond, A. H. Fleming, J. B. Proctor, Mrs. R. C. Gillis, Maurice Hellman and H. G. Weyse.

Marguerita avenue also has made its promising beginning in the residences of B. O. Bruce and C. L. Stone. The coming summer will see a great many fine residences under construction. Among those who are to build at once are Isaac Millbanks, E. H. McPherrin and J. J. Davis.

The plans of the Baroness Rosa von Zimmerman promise to attract general attention to Santa Monica and the Palisades this summer. The Baroness has secured thirty-four acres of land adjoining the Palisades on the north and has divided it into seven villa building sites. The slopes of the Santa Monica Mountains that face the crescent bay are designed by nature to afford a yet more beautiful Riviera of the western world and the plans of the Baroness will initiate that line of development.

The Santa Monica Land Company, owners of the Palisades, have set aside fifteen acres at the head of Seventh street for a hotel, and the plans that have been drawn promise one of the most attractive hostelries of the Southland. It is the general plan of all the extensive land owners in the northern part of Santa Monica, among them Robert Marsh and Company and the Janss Investment Company, to keep the property in large building sites and without undue forcing to build up one of the most beautiful and artistocratic seaside resorts in the world.

There are a score of enterprising and vigorous men with money who are at present devoting all their efforts to the upbuilding of Santa Monica. Carl Schader has been transforming the old Santa Monica and the Arcadia Hotel grounds into the new Seaside Terrace, where there will be a building epoch this summer. E. S. Tomblin is improving a similar piece of the ocean front on the south with Vicente Terrace. A. R. Fraser, who is building the million-dollar pier at the extreme south of Santa Monica, promises to make it the finest amusement pier in America.

Among the real estate men there is general activity and preparation for the season already opening. C. P. Thomas, C. L. Bundy, Miles and Tegner, A. M. Montgomery, the Bank of Santa Monica, the E. W. Boehme Company, Sues and Cowan, F. E. Bundy, Thomas J. Hampton, E. Lellingston, William H. Lynch and Elliott and Hammond are working along various lines for the development of Santa Monica. The spirit of co-operation and public enterprise for which Southern California is noted is having its manifest effort.

TO BUILD ON FLOWER.

Handsome Five-Story Brick Apartment Hotel Will Be Started at Once by Orena Estate.

Plans have been completed by Architects R. B. Young & Son for a five-story apartment hotel of class B construction, which is to be erected by the Orena estate on the east side of South Flower street, between Sixth and Seventh streets. The structure will have a frontage of 110 feet and will contain 240 rooms. Its cost will be about $105,000.

The construction will start as soon as the cottages now on the site have been cleared away. The plans of the designers call for a building of attractive exterior, and elaborate interior finish. The Flower street facing will be

NEW MARYTON SOLD.

Olive Street Apartment Hotel Leased for Ten Years at Large Consideration—Deal Is Three-Cornered.

The New Maryton Apartment Hotel at No. 314 South Olive street has passed into the hands of J. W. Brooks. Mr. Brooks's purchase consists of the furniture, furnishings and equipment of the house, the consideration for which was $22,000. A new lease was secured from the owner, Mrs. Clara Newton Cattern, for ten years at a reported total rental of $168,000.

The building is of fireproof construction. It has 120 rooms, all outside, and is substantially furnished throughout.

The purchase was made from Mrs. Harriet Squires and Mrs. Nellie S. Meigs. The transaction constituted a three-cornered deal in which Mary A. Merrickel of Riverside exchanged a seventy-five-acre alfalfa ranch for the interests of Mrs. Squires and Mrs. Meigs in the New Maryton, that interest being in turn sold to J. W. Brooks.

The deal was made through the H. Jerome Toy Company, who also report the sale of the California cafe in the basement of the Lankershim building, to Horace M. Birge, late of Mexico, for a consideration of $5000, with a three-years' lease, at a total rental of $9900.

SELL TO HOME BUILDERS.

Activity in Tracts on Thirty-ninth Street, West of Western Avenue, Is Reported.

Sales of fifteen lots during the past ten days, practically all to home builders, is the report of the Victor G. Kleinberger Company for its new tracts on both sides of West Thirty-ninth street, west of Western avenue. These sales follow: William Martin, lot on north side of West Thirty-ninth street, adjoining corner of St. Andrews, $825; Charles J. McCarthy, north side of Middleton place, adjoining corner on Manhattan walk, $875; E. S. Ellison, two lots, south side of West Thirty-eighth place, 152 feet west of Manhattan walk, $900 each; Charles R. Blankenship, north side of Middleton place, 120 feet east of St. Andrews street, $825; W. C. Loughbom, Jr., north side of Middleton place, 250 feet west of Western avenue, $1050.

Mabel A. Richardson, north side of West Thirty-ninth street, 120 feet east of Manhattan walk, $1000; The Los Angeles Building Company, three lots, for improvement, north side of Middleton place, midway between St. Andrews and Manhattan walk, $2700; William S. E. Raines, six-room bungalow, south side of West Thirty-eighth place, 210 feet west of Western avenue, $3350 cash; S. W. Perkins, north side of West Thirty-ninth, 130 feet east of St. Andrews, $825; M. Gustavson, south side of Middleton place, 114 feet west of Manhattan walk, $950; H. L. Wagner, two lots, one on south side of Middleton place, between St. Andrews and Manhattan walk, $1000, and one on south side of West Thirty-eighth place, between St. Andrews and Manhattan, $900. These lots are all 40x135 to 45x135 feet in size.

The work of planting the wide parkings to palms and shade trees commenced the past week, and the contract was let for the paving of the streets in both additions. The walks are five feet in width and the parkings ten feet. Wide cement gutters are also among the specifications.

S. A. Engle and W. L. Stephenson are each now completing new homes in the tracts and the Model Building Company has three bungalows on Middleton place, each costing $2750, under course of construction. The Los Angeles Building Company, F. M. Wright, H. L. Baish and A. J. Koch will all commence building the first of next week.

A UNIQUE PLAN.

A unique tourist and colonization plan in connection with the sale of land in the great Lankershim and Van Nuys ranches, in the San Fernando Valley, has been adopted by the Janss Investment Company, which recently secured the general selling agency of the immense tract. The company has sent a representative to Oklahoma, which is considered a fruitful field for prospective homeseekers for the purpose of making up an entire trainload of excursionists to Los Angeles, and, according to advices received by officials of the company, he is meeting with even greater success than anticipated. Details of the plan adopted have not been divulged by the company, but it anticipates the purchase by a large percentage of the prospective excursionists of land in the Lankershim and Van Nuys ranches.

MANCHESTER HEIGHTS.

The J. M. Oswald Company reports the following sales in the Manchester Heights No. 2 tract: William Hewson, two lots, 90x135 feet, Seventy-ninth street, near Normandie avenue, $750; Paul C. Funk, 45x135 feet, Seventy-ninth street, between Budlong and Normandie avenues, $375; P. T. Porter, two lots, 90x135 feet, Seventy-seventh street, between Budlong and Normandie, $850; William Jensen, 45x135 feet, Seventy-eighth street, between Budlong and Normandie, $400; Walter Vance Cornett, 45x135 feet, Seventh eighth street, near Normandie, $400; Oliver Bailey, 45x135 feet, Seventy-seventh street, between land show will be a western enterprise in all that is implied by that term. The best soil products of Northern and Central California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Nevada, Montana, Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, Arizona and the west coast of Mexico will be on view, and the cultivation and irrigation methods of each section will be interestingly illustrated by life-like models and pictures.

LAND SHOW.

Naturally, the products and lands of Southern California will come in for the most comprehensive exploitation, Los Angeles, San Diego, Ventura, Imperial, Orange, Santa Barbara, San Bernardino, Riverside, Kern, Kings and Fresno counties contesting for supremacy from a display point of view. The North will, however, be advantageously represented, great exhibits being expected from Alameda, Santa Clara, Butte and San Francisco counties and from the rich Sacramento Valley.

The exposition will be of inestimable value educationally, even for the residents of Los Angeles. The full extent of the Imperial Valley's development and possibilities, for example, will be set forth at the land show in a manner which will be a revelation to the man whose only information on the valley consists of the rather vague realization that it is adapted to the growth of cotton. The adaptability of the various districts tributary to Los Angeles for the cultivation of different soil products will be exploited in a comprehensive and reliable fashion.

Following are some of the exhibitors who have already engaged space at the land show: Janss Investment Company, W. I. Hollingsworth & Company, El Sobrante Land Company, Inglewood Land Company, Scandia Land and Loan Company, Western Realty Investment Company, Planada Development Company, Phoenix-Maricopa Board of Trade, Fontana Development Company, Huntington Land and Improvement Company, Porterville Board of Trade, Imperial Valley, Bakersfield, San Diego, Alameda county, Sacramento Valley, San Joaquin Valley, Watsonville, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, Great Northern, Western Pacific, Salt Lake, Pacific Electric, Santa Fe, and the Edison Electric Company.

The project was introduced by Bowen, the "father of Exposition Park," who discussed it in glowing terms for nearly an hour. The others followed as called upon by the Mayor, who was chairman of the meeting. Those who were present by invitation were the Mayor, W. D. Stephens, representing the Water Board; R. M. Lusk, president of the Council; J. S. Slauson, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Mr. Blackstone, J. A. Foshay of the Chamber of Commerce Exposition Committee; Frank Wiggins, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; Arthur W. Kinney of the Chamber of Commerce Exposition Committee; John Parkinson of the Sixth District Agricultural Association; George T. Murdock, Fred E. Pierce, of the Sixth District Agricultural Association; Perry Weidner of the same body; Dr. Wing of the Municipal League; Wilbur David Cook, Jr., of the City Park Commission; C. D. Comstock of the City Planning Committee; Garner Curran, president of the Federated Improvement Association; Maj. E. F. C. Klokke of the Chamber of Commerce Exposition Committee; Capt. Osborne of the Chamber of Commerce; Councilman Gregory, Gen. Chaffee of the Board of Public Works, and Charles Silent of the Park Commission.

Certain interesting details of the plan now being evolved will be made public within ten days, and the backers of the project hope to have it in a shape to boost by a prospectus embodying most of the essentials in the way of general preparations within another four months. The meeting yesterday was for the express purpose of launching the enterprise. The scope of the plans and of the committees in charge of the arrangements will be constantly enlarged.

One very definite step was taken yesterday when Bowen was empowered to appoint committees to take charge of the various preliminary arrangements. The main thing in the minds of those present was to get something started, and to keep hammering at the project.

The show is not to be in any sense a rival to the 1915 exposition in San Francisco. In the words of Bowen, yesterday, "it is the aim of the Exposition Park project to keep the West constantly in the public mind until the great fair in celebration of the completion of the Panama Canal."

Roughly outlined the plans for the exposition of 1913 call for the erection of several temporary buildings in Exposition Park to round out the permanent structures now under way, and to be built in this magnificent playground and educational center. It is intended to have a lake at least 600 feet long extending across the front of the State Exposition building, and water fetes are a part of the programme as it is outlined. A huge fountain at one end of this lake is to be fed with the first water of the Owens River which enters the city by way of the aqueduct. Brilliant illumination features are planned.

Foreign associations of engineers will be invited to participate in the celebration of the consummation of the aqueduct enterprise. The week devoted to the aqueduct celebration will take the form of a continuous manifestation of the joy felt at the wonderful conduit's completion, and will be on the general order of a titanic fiesta. The pageants are to surpass anything of the kind ever seen in the country.

An effort will be made to have all of the baseball teams of the National League do their winter training in the splendid thirty-five-acre athletic field of Exposition Park.

DISCREPANCY EXPLAINED.

Do YOU RECEIVE

DIVIDEND CHE

EVERY 3 MONTH

Are you profiting by the tremendous residential growth of Los Angeles? Are you receiving a neat little dividend every three months representing YOUR share of the profits made by Los Angeles' ORGANIZED AND EQUIPPED co-operative home-building company? Can you find anything BETTER than an honest 10 per cent investment—with your original investment (stock) constantly increasing in value, and your dividend rate steadily climbing higher, too?

And your security is highly improved real estate in several sections of the city and suburbs. Better security than a first mortgage. Could any investment be more desirable? You get a high interest rate—your investment grows in value—and you have iron-clad security. The ever-increasing residential development of Los Angeles makes possible this condition. The slow-developing big cities of the East do not afford a similar opportunity. Hundreds of the most conservative investing element of the Southwest—yes, and people in all parts of the United States comprise our stockholders—merchants, manufacturers, doctors, bankers, lawyers and salaried people.

Present price of stock is $1.25 per share and just on the verge of advancing. The next dividend will be declared in days. For explicit information about the company—its assets—financial standing—building methods—testimonials—write or call on

MARTIN BEATS WALDO THROOP.

Rubio Refuses to Run Because Friends Josh Him.

High School Wins the Relay When Hill Runs.

U.S.C. Wins by Two and Two-Thirds Points.

BY RANDALL HENDERSON.

U.S.C., 59 2-3; L.A. High School, 53 1-3.

"Len" Martin furnished the sensation of the U.S.C.-L.A. High track meet at Bovard Field yesterday when he defeated Waldo Throop, the Pacific Coast champion sprinter, in the 100-yard dash. Rubio, the high school sprinter and track captain, did not enter the race.

Throop, peeved at being defeated by his less speedy running mate in the century, dug into the 220 sprint, ran one of the prettiest races of his life and won from Martin by two yards. Johnson of high school, finished third in each event.

Coach Cromwell of the university practically gave the relay race to Los Angeles High School athletes when he entered Arthur Hill, who has not been training during the past semester, in the third lap. Hill is a speedy quarter-miler when in running shape but lacked the endurance to finish in the 440. Ireland, who ran against him, gained a long lead.

Kenneth Wallace started in the last lap fully twenty yards behind Ed Stanton who finished for High School. Slowly he crept up on the speedy prep rumor and when three quarters around the course seemed likely to pass him Stanton let out his final sprint, however, and finished with a 2-yard lead, winning the relay and bringing the hill-top team within six points of victory.

"Micky" McClure the High School runner who holds the Southern California interscholastic record in the 440-yard dash was out of the meet on account of sickness.

The handicap caused by the loss of Rubio and McClure placed High School at too great a disadvantage to win. With these runners in the tournament it hardly seems possible that the 'varsity could have rolled up a winning score.

Few close finishes marked the events. High School had the advantage in the weight events and the university pulled a majority of the points in the running.

The results:

The 100-yard dash: Martin (U.S.C.) won, Throop (U.S.C.) second, Johnson (L.A.H.) third; time, 10 1-5s.

The 220-yard dash: Throop (U.S.C.) won, Martin (U.S.C.) second, Johnson (L.A.H.) third; time, 23 1-5s.

The 880-yard run: L. Smith, Walton W. Hall (U.S.C.) tied for first; time, 2m. 6 4-5s.

The 440-yard run: Wallace (U.S.C.) won, Ireland (L.A.H.) second, Davis (U.S.C.) third; time, 54 2-5s.

The 120-yard high hurdles: Dawson (L.A.H.) won, Hunter (U.S.C.) second, Bradway (L.A.H.) third; time, 17s.

The 220-yard low hurdles: Stine (U.S.C.) won, Stanton (L.A.H.) second, Blair (U.S.C.) third; time, 26 2-5s.

The hammer throw: Richardson (U.S.C.) won, Pettingill (L.A.H.) second, Fisher L.A.H.) third; distance, 125ft. 8in.

The shot put: Douglas (L.A.H.) won, Sheldon (L.A.H.) second, Dawson (L.A.H.) third; distance, 41ft. 6in.

The discuss hurl: McFie L.A.H.) won, Bogart (U.S.C.) second, Sheldon (L.A.H). third; distance, 107ft. 4in.

The pole vault: Richardson (U.S.C.) won, Watkins (U.S.C.) second, Condee (L.A.H.) third; height, 11ft.

The high jump: McFie (L.A.H.) won, Godbe, Chaffee (U.S.C.,) and Rodman (L.A.H.) tied for second; height, 5ft 6in.

The broad jump: Dawson (L.A.H.) won, Bradway (L.A.H.) second, Short (U.S.C.) third; distance, 21ft. 2 1-2in.

Relay race: Kidder, Bradway, Ireland, Stanton (L.A.H.) won.

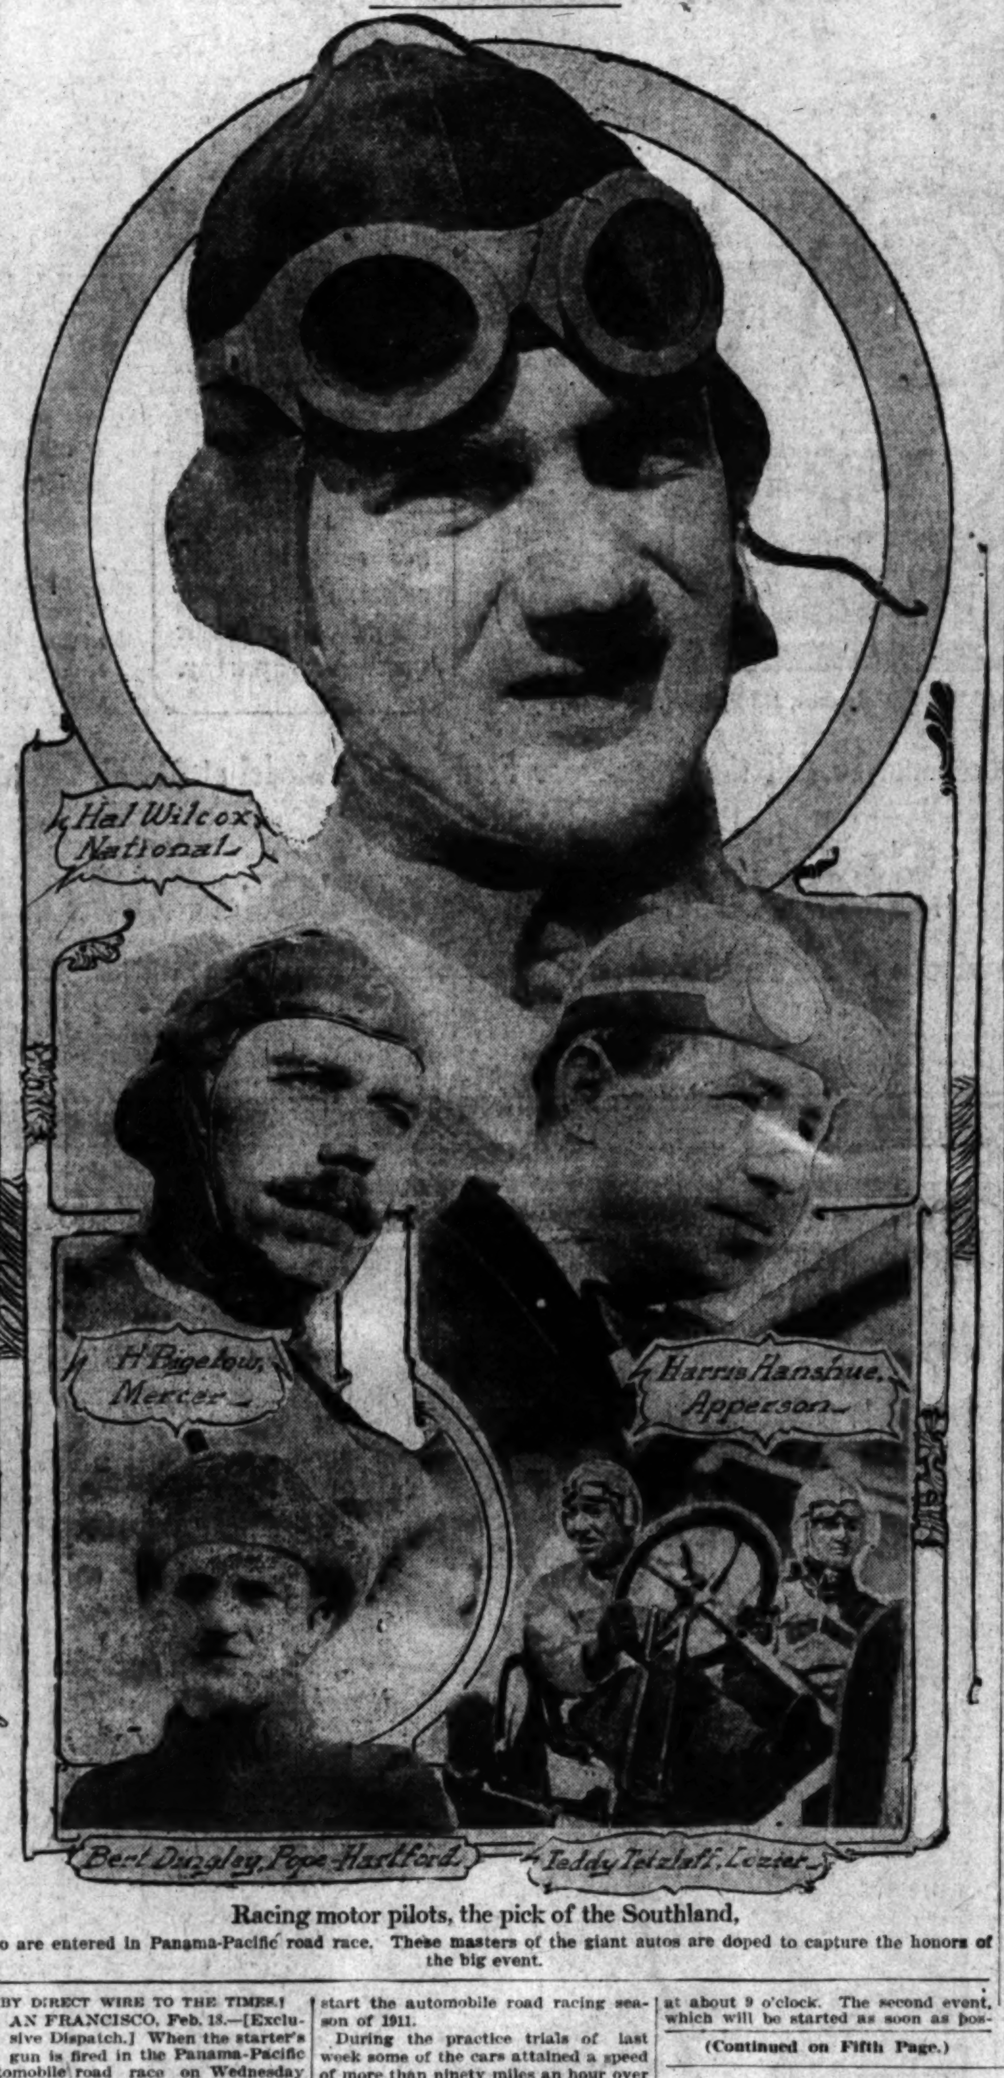
SCORE OF SPEEDY CARS ARE ENTERED IN THE PANAMA-PACIFIC MOTOR RACE.



Racing motor pilots, the pick of the Southland, who are entered in Panama-Pacific road race. These masters of the giant autos are doped to capture the honors of the big event.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] When the starter's gun is fired in the Panama-Pacific automobile road race on Wednesday nearly a score of cars will be ready. The course is fast, and barring accidents, new records should be hung up before the sun sets. High-powered cars and determined drivers should start the automobile road racing season of 1911.

During the practice trials of last week some of the cars attained a speed of more than ninety miles an hour over sections of the course and one complete circuit was made by Bert Dingley in a Pope-Hartford at an average speed of seventy-five miles an hour. This would break all world records in a race.

The course over which the race will take place is an irregular quadrilateral made up of the foothill boulevard and the country road between San Leandro and Hayward, with two short connecting roads.

The length of the course is 10.923 miles. There are four right-angle turns, practically all of which can be made at high speed. The long graceful curves make it possible for cars to negotiate them without shutting off speed.

There will be three events on the day's programme. The first will be for light stock cars, and the distance in this race will be 98.307 miles, making nine circuits of the course. For this race two trophies are offered with a value of $1000. This race will start at about 9 o'clock. The second event, which will be started as soon as pos-

BOXING GAME HAS SANCTION.

Legislative Committee Passes on New Measure.

Vote of House and Senate Expected to Pass It.

Eight-Ounce Gloves and Twenty Rounds.

BY W. R. WILLIAMS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After all amateur boxing is not to be exterminated in California. A decision by six of the nine members of the Assembly committee on public morals s to result in a bill that will permit the fight sport undre what are deemed "progressive" conditions.

Assemblyman Rogers of Alameda is the author of the new measure which will probably be reported Monday to the Assembly as a committee substitute for all pending bills. Supporting it are Sbragia, Kehoe, Stuckenbruck, Cronin and March.

It wil provide that boxing may be conducted by incorporated clubs to be regulated by the Supervisors of any county or the authorities of any city.

Eight ounce gloves may be used.

Bouts may last twenty rounds.

Every ring must have a flooring or at least two inches of boiler felt so tha knockdowns will not endanger life or menace limbs.

Before any boxing exhibition is given the principals must undergo physical examination by a competent physician and the bill says that no person may enter the ring unless in "perfect condition."

There is no restriction on boxing for prizes or money.

This outline represents the measure in its general terms. Rogers is still working on the final draft and will submit it to his committee colleagues early Monday morning.
agrees with Rogers in all except that

Assemblyman Young of Alameda agrees with Rogers in all except that he favors a limit of twelve rounds, regarding the twentyround limit as putting boxing in the "prize fight" class.

Assemblyman Cattell of Pasadena and Wyllie of Dinuba (author of the local option bill) favor the Hinshaw measure which provides a $5000 fine for engaging in a prize fight amateur or otherwise, with or without gloves.

The Rogers measure is promised general support in the Assembly, though there is no hint that it has the "big stick" behind it. If it passes there the progress through the Senate promises to be without serious danger.

WALGAST PEEVED.

ROASTS JACK O'BRIEN.

CADILLAC (Mich.) Feb. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Ad Wolgast, champion lightweight pugilist, has arrived at his home in Cadillac after his defeat at the hands of Knockout Brown in Philadelphia.

"Jack O'Brien gave Brown the best of the deal in every clinch," says Wolgast. "He would shove me away roughly and allow Brown to hit me before I regained my balance. I had the better of Brown on infighting and O'Brien knew that. He was sore at me anyway because he had to pay such a big purse to stage the fight. I am through with O'Brien for good.

"In Philadelphia they use different rules than anywhere else. They won't allow you to hit in clinches and you can see what that means. Brown had the best of it in every deal over there. He is an Easterner, and therefore gets credit for a lot more than a man from the West. They want to see native sons win.

"I will probably box Packey McFarland in Milwaukee on February 22, and if that bout is not staged I will stay home until February 25 and go to Chicago to meet Tom Jones."

ADOPT CAR MASCOTS.

Many English automobilists have adopted as car mascots the continental patron saint, St. Christopher, who is represented bearing a lamb in his arms and picking his way across a stream. But there are countless other badges of a less dignified and more humorous order. The comic London "bobby" ranks as the most popular of amulets among automobilists, closely followed by a weird specimen of a yelping dog. Then there is the black cat, the proverbial bringer of good luck; the golliwog, the jabberwock; a horned fawn, a crowing cock, and a spread eagle. The Teddy bear has fallen into disfavor.

CORONADO TEAM WINS BRUSH FOR MACKEY CUP.

BY CAPT. LESLIE T. PEACOCKE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RIVERSIDE, Feb. 18.—[Exlusive Dispatch.] The first match in preliminary round for the Mackey cup was fought on the Riverside polo grounds today before a large crowd of Southern California fashionable country clubdom.

The Coronado team was handicapped by ten goals but even with this severe penalty they won easily by five goals and an extra goal and a half through fouls incurred by the Pasadenans.

The large gathering is no doubt partly owing to the unusual attraction of seeing in the saddle the two cousins of the Duke of Marlborough: Lord Tweedmouth, whose family name is Marjoribanks, pronounced after severe struggles by the late Mark Twain as Cholmondeley; and Lord Alastair Innes-Kerr, younger brother of the Duke of Roxburghe who married Miss May Goelet of New York. The two titled polo players are officers in the Royal Horse Guards.

The other two members of the same team are Captain J. C. Beasley of cross Country Riding fame and Cheever Cowdin, H. H. Holmes, official umpire furnish great sport over the picturesque foothill route in this race, which will of the American polo Association is umpiring the event.

The game was played under the new rules which have been so consistently urged by the American Polo Association and which bid fair to be universally adopted. The line up for the game today and the result was as follows: oronado No. 1 Team Captain J. C. Beasley: No. 1, Lord Alastair Innes-Ker 2, Cheever Cowdin 3, Lord Tweedmouth 4.

The game was fought in eight periods.

First period—Game opened fast but Tweedmouth followed up a good drive and scored first goal. Second goal scored by Cowdin, third goal by Beas-

NATIONAL GUARD SPORTS TO RECEIVE BIG BOOST.

ATHLETIC training is to have a marked increase in the National Guard.

Col. Schreiber is planning to put the Seventh Regiment through a hard course of practice marches by battalions as soon as the weather conditions permit. The plans for the new armory in Exposition Park show that gymnasium work is to be encouraged in every possible way.

Only a trained athlete can stand the physical hardship of active service in the field and the War Department is directing all the work of the national guardsmen with a view of fitting them for an instant call to take the field.

In the new armory there will be a big gymnasium with courts for various indoor games, and probably an outdoor athletic field. In the basement of the building will be an immense swimming tank.

Special encouragement will be given to shooting matches. There will be indoor targets and a long outdoor range—the latter not at Exposition Park, however.

"Americans," said Capt. Sargent of the regulars in passing upon the plans the other day, "do not hoot as much as they did in an earlier generation.

"Training beyond ordinary shooting with sporting guns is necessary, anyhow. These military rifles are very fine and complicated weapons and special training is neded."

Col. Schreiber, in speaking of his plans for the "hikes," said that most of the marches during the coming spring and summer will be on a more ambitious scale than attempted before.

The men will be taken out a battalion at a time and the practice marches will last two days, with a night encampment.

Thompson in a Forty Horsepower Tourer Wins.

Santa Barbara Road Is in the Fiercest Condition.

C. H. Thompson of Chicago, who, with Mrs. Thompson, is passing the winter in California, is having some interesting experiences touring through the State in his Chalmers "40," which he shipped from Chicago.

Thompson first went to San Diego, where he determined to make the trip from Tia Juana over the El Camino Real to Sonoma, visiting all the twenty-one missions en route. Speaking of their experiences, Thompson said:

"We came near meeting our 'Waterloo' at the Santa Marguerita River, when we missed the bridge at 9 o'clock at night and had to ford the stream, which was swollen by recent rains. The water came up into the tonneau, but fortunately did not get into the carburetor.

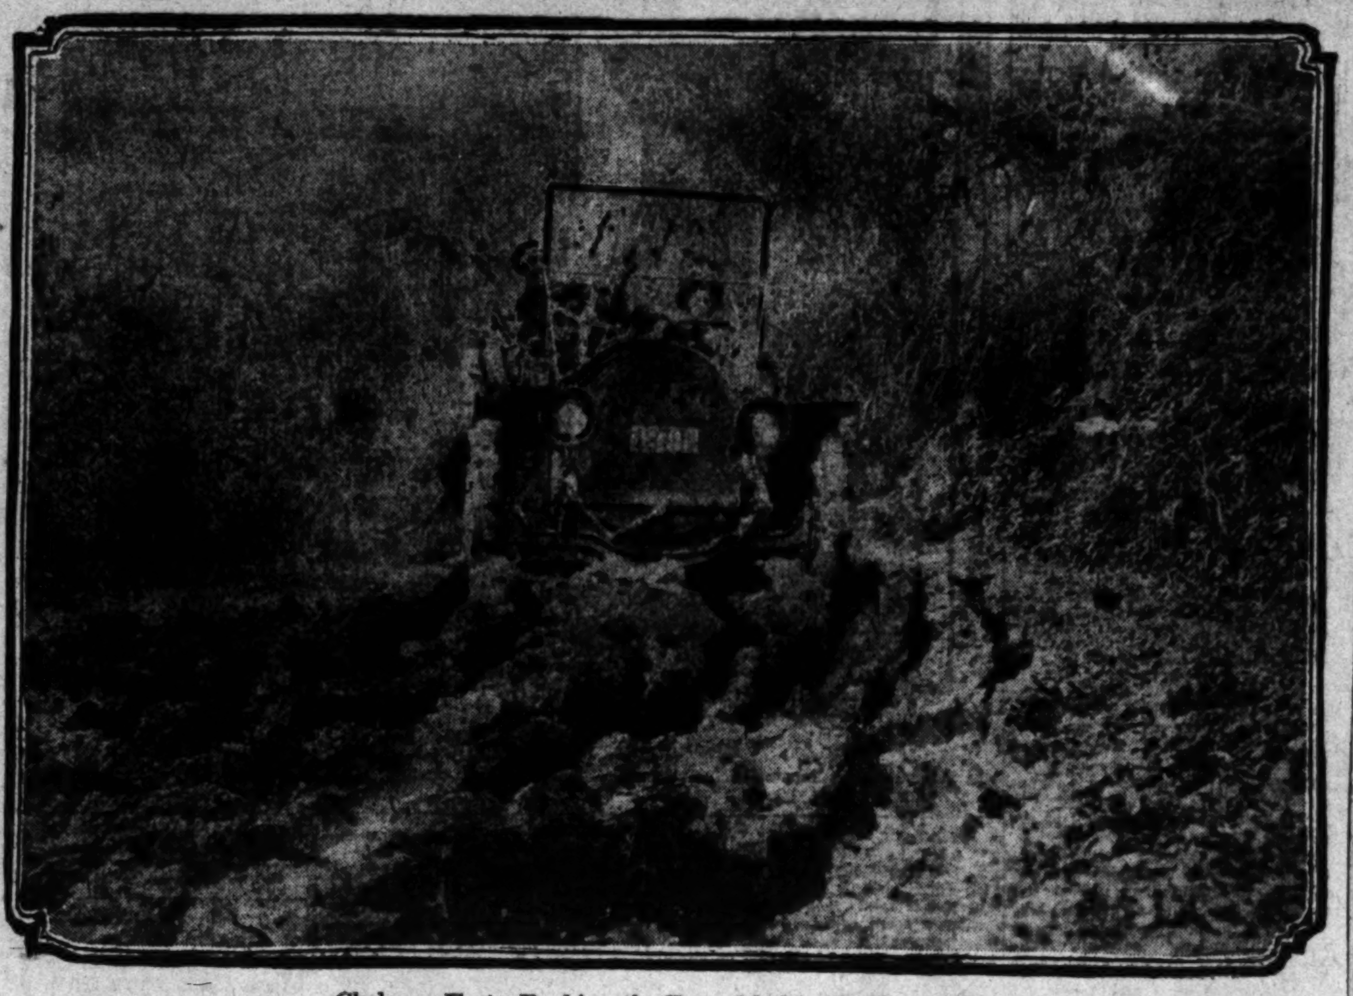
"The worst experience came in crossing the Casitas Pass to Santa Barbara. In all my travels I have nothing but the highest praise for the work of the Southern California Auto Club in making the traveling agreeable. It is in advance of any other organization of the kind in this country.

"I want to register a 'kick' against the commissioner or other officials who allow the pass to be in its present condition of practical impassibility without putting up signs at each entrance to warn the traveling public. It is practically impossible to turn around in the narrow road, steep grades and abrupt curves after once entering at either end.

"We made the east pass all right, and had just reached the summit of the west pass when we discovered a landslide on the mountain side. About 600 feet of the roadbed had slipped away. The road had been completely obliterated, but a pontoon bridge had been constructed over the gap.

"The roadbed at both ends was pure unadulterated gumbo and could only be negotiated by a running start. The engine had to lift the machine bodily from the deep mud to the end of the bridge. It was the prettiest piece of work I ever saw. We were about two hours making the distance of 600 feet. It will be weeks before the pass is in any condition for comfortable motoring unless fixed.

"The Chalmers is one of the finest cars I have ever used. There is nothing that my 40-horse-power tourer cannot do. It is a bear when it comes to fighting the roughest of roads. I'm in love with my Chalmers "40."



Chalmers-Forty Bucking the Deep Mud in the Casitas Pass.

C. H. Thompson is at the wheel of the car and Mrs. Thompson is with him. The two are in the worst piece of road between Los Angeles and Santa Barbara.

ELEPHANT RIDES IN CHALMERS.

Big Fat Baby Is Hauled Through City in the Tonneau of a Touring Car.

A live baby elephant, weighing 1400 pounds, belonging to a show company, was hauled about town in a 1911 Chalmers touring car, at Hutchinson, Kan., recently.

Planks were placed in the tonneau of the car and the elephant was led up on a platform. Besides the animal three men rode in the car, which was driven by Harry H. Taylor, the owner.

Jack Glazier, traveling salesman for the Toledo Scale Company, covering Oregon, Nevada and California, recently crossed the Sierra Nevadas for the eighteenth time in a Chalmers roadster. He has covered his entire territory eight times in the machine with a register of 36,000 miles.

One of the Chalmers "30" Pony tonneaus was recently installed as a mesenger car for the agricultural department of the Lehigh Valley Railroad in Pennsylvania. The auto was finished in the same colors as the famous Black Diamond express and has been termed the miniature Black Diamond.

AUTO FIRE ENGINE.

New York is anxiously awaiting a test of its new automobile fire engine, which is expected to make a speed of twenty-five miles an hour in the city streets. The difference between this machine and the automobile fire engines that have been in service for twenty years or more in different parts of the country is that this one is driven by gasoline, but is equipped with a steam pump. The combination of steam and gasoline has never been tried in service, the fire experts say. This piece of apparatus is said to be the first of its kind in this country or Europe. The machine weighs 14,000 pounds, and the motor engine is of 100-horse-power.

FLYING SPARKS OF MOTORDOM.

The Savannah, Ga., Automobile Club is said to be endeavoring to get both the Vanderbilt Cup as well as the Grand Prize race for the Savannah circuit this summer.

A race between Bruce-Brown or Hemery against Nazzaro is being arranged to be held on the Florida beach at Daytona next month. A purse of $2000 may be put up.

A State highway, reaching through Maine from Kittery at the New Hampshire line right through to Fort Kent on the northern border is projected in a bill before the Maine Legislature.

Since 1899 the progress of automobilism has caused a decrease of 15,798 in the number of horses in Paris. The census of the horses in the city taken in 1910, gave a total of 75,463. In 1899 the number was 91,261.

The Secretary of State in California got a letter a few days ago from a Napa man to say that his wife had discovered that the figures 43501 in their automobile license tag totalled 13, and that she refused to ride in the car until another number was had.

The Aeronautique Club of Chicago, Ill., has received a sanction from the Aero Club of America to hold a race on either Memorial or Independence Day. The start will be from Chicago, and it is said that the entries will be fifteen at least. The race will have an international flavor, as France and Germany have promised to enter.

The race for the Automobile Club of America Grand Prize Gold Cup is to be held on October 14. The place is not yet given, but in all probability is to be Savannah, again. The race was scheduled for October 15, on Long Island last year, but was postponed until November 12 to be held in Savannah.

One of the cars of the first good roads educational train ever operated by an eastern railroad, which has been making an extensive tour of Pennsylvania, contains the same exhibits used by the United States Public Roads Bureau at the Alaska-Yukon Exposition.

There remains just one argument in favor of licensing and examining owners. This argument applies to new owners. The purchaser of a car must learn to drive it; and while he is learning he should be subjected to a certain amount of supervision. But the difficulty arises as to just how expert the newcomer must become before receiving the approval of his examiners.

In advising farmers to buy automobiles a farm journal published at Chicago makes the point that "one wishes he can now buy an automobile with a body so constructed that it can, in two or three minutes, be changed from the regular touring car type to such form that one can easily haul sacks of grain, a crate containing animals or milk cans, etc."

The Wisconsin Brotherhood of Threshermen has adopted resolutions favoring the use of convict labor on good roads work. The proposition is the result of attempts in Wisconsin to turn all convict production into the binder twine manufacturing line.

The baby cried herself into the heart of the big policeman and he did not arrest the man at the wheel. Instead, the Ford was allowed to slip over the crossing and proceed down Broadway. You may be crossing without your babyk in the tonneau. If so, be careful, as it is a ten to one shot that you will not melt the heart of the policeman with your icy stare.

THOUSANDS OF TRUCKS.

It is estimated by those who have made a close study of the motor truck business during the last six years that there are approximately 20,000 motor trucks and delivery machines now in service, of which a very large proportion probably 50 per cent. are trucks of from one to seven-ton capacity. There are by careful count 130 active builders of omtor trucks, delivery wagons and other forms of industrial motor vehicles in America, and of this number thirty-six are manufacturing gasoline trucks of from three-ton capacity up; ten build electric trucks of one-ton capacity or more and the rest make trucks of from one to two-and-a-half tons. Assuming that the average value of motor trucks, ranging from 2000 to 14,000 pounds capacity, is approximately $3000, which is a conservative estimate, the 10,000 such machines in service represent an investment of about $30,000,000 in power vehicles alone.

FIESTA SHOW THE BEST EVER.

LEON T. SHETTLER SAYS OUR EXHIBIT WAS WONDERFUL.

Takes in Chicago Motor Salon and Is Satisfied That Display in the Big Tent Was the Finest Ever Held Anywhere—Comes Home to Boost Our Local Stock.

Los Angeles automobile people who saw the Chicago show are unanimous in the verdict that it did not compare with the Fiesta Park exhibit in this city.

"The public will be inclined to smile at this statement and consider it in the light of a California boost," said Leon T. Shettler, the Reo and Apperson agent, "but I can say with all sincerity that the two shows were of an entirely different class.

"At Chicago the one idea of the management seemed to get all the money possible out of the factories and the public. Exhibits were crowded into every conceivable place and it was almost impossible to walk through the accessory booths.

"Everything was poorly arranged and there were so many cars in the hall that none of them could be shown to advantage. There really was no feature to the exhibit. The floors were not covered and the decorations were of the cheapest material with no apparent color scheme.

"Against this we had in Los Angeles a perfectly arranged and highly artistic automobile show. Making money was a secondary consideration. Los Angeles people do not fully realize the class of exhibit held at Fiesta this winter but those who saw the eastern display can appreciate it."

NEW MOTIVE POWER.

Claiming that nitrogen is to take the place of gasoline for driving motors, a group of London capitalists is preparing to float a company with a capital of $7,500,000. The promoter proposes to take smoke which comes out of the chimney from an ordinary fire, refine the gases by blowing them upon metallic copper in a fire retort, take away the carbonic acid in liquid form, remove the black carbon atoms and then have left pure nitrogen, a colorless, non-explosive gas which is "infinitely more powerful than the steam which drives the steam engine." After he has accomplished all this, he intends to compress the pure nitrogen in cylinders up to 3000 pounds per square inch, and the nitrogen thus compressed will be the motive power which will supersede gasoline. Well, mebbe so, mebbe so, and then again, perhaps not.

SOUTHERN AUTO ROAD.

Much interest has been aroused in the South in the proposed construction of a road from Knoxville, Tenn., to Middlesboro and Pineville, Ky., and on to Cincinnati. This road would be through some of the mountainous country in the eastern sections of the two States, and if constructed would open to automobilists a splendid route for touring. It has been proposed to use State convicts in building a fine pike between the points named, and as those in charge of road development in both States seem to favor the plan, there is a good chance of its going through.

GRABOWSKY MAKES HAUL.

Jerks Big Tank Out of the Mire and Lifts Itself Out of Deepest Mud.

The superiority of motor power over horse power for delivery trucks was demonstrated the other day during the heavy rains when the Puente Oil Company sent its three-ton Grabowsky out on Fifty-ninth street to pull a tank wagon, which a team could not budge, out of the mud.

The truck not only pulled through the mud itself, but took the team and tank out with it. It was not many months ago when these conditions were exactly reversed. The motor trucks are no longer a joke with the teamsters.

Gilbert Woodill of the Hawley King Company, agents for the Grabowsky and Oakland cars, says the outlook for the present season at their end of gasoline row is brighter than every before.

He attributes a large part of the success of the local agents to the fact that they emphasize the instruction of buyers in the use and care of the machines. The company has an expert mechanician who devotes his time entirely to teaching novices the essential points in keeping the car in the best possible working order.

INVADERS WHET CAMPAIGN AXES.

Stanford Track Squad Eager to Tackle Puritans.

Many New Men in Team that Will Compete Here.

Promising Youngsters Step Into Veterans' Shoes.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Feb. 17.—Two weeks from tomorrow the Stanford track squad is to invade Los Angeles for the purpose of matching its prowess against that of the U.S.C. team. With the exception of the intercollegiate meet with California, the contest with the Puritans is the most important struggle on the Cardinal schedule. The trip south will be the only journey the Stanford team will make this year, outside of the short migration to Berkeley for the big meet.

The squad that will journey to Los Angeles will only include about thirteen men and as usual Stanford will depend largely on first place winners to score the number of points necessary to win, leaving nearly all the second and third lengths to the home team. However, when U.S.C. appears here later in a return contest, the tables will be switched about and the Cardinals will have a large number of men available for the second and third places.

The men who will appear in the Los Angeles meet will not be selected until a couple of days before the team leaves the campus. It is probable that not more than three or four of the men who competed in the south last year will be included in the team this year. Scott, Horton, Wyman, Johnston, Newman and other veterans have either graduated or are not available. However, the men who will replace the veterans promise to equal, if not excel, the marks of the well-known stars who have dropped out of sight.

Kenny Dole of Riverside and Olmstead of Los Angeles are doing fine work with the shot and Stanford probably will be as strong as ever in this event. In the hammer throw, Woolley and Olmstead are reaching 145 feet, which is even better than the average marks of former stars here. J. B. Leaman, a sophomore, is coming through in great style in the half-mile and from present indications Johnston will not be greatly missed. C. C. Taylor is running the quarter in fast time and he is being counted on to step into the shoes of "Bill" Wyman.

Capt. Bellah and "Pete" Richardson undoubtedly will fight a great duel in the pole vault on Bovard Field. Bellah is always good for twelve feet. Tom Coleman, as usual, will run in both sprinting events and is anxious to get another crack at Throop, if the U.S.C. phenomenon represents the Puritans. Throop cleaned up Coleman in both meets last season.

MANY POLE VAULTERS.

In addition to Bellah in the pole vault, Stanford has Miller and Stephens, both of whom have been clearing 11ft. 5in. in practice, and several other men who are good for 11ft. In the high jump, Horine and Argabrite have marks of 6ft. and better, and Finney, who came out recently, has been doing 5ft. 11in.

Despite the gloomy outlook at the beginning of the season, it now appears as if the Cardinal team this year will be strong in every event and evenly balanced. It is not yet known whether or not Eugene Kern of Pasadena will be available. He broke his leg in football last fall and while he has recovered is not yet very strong. If he is available in the low hurdle event, in which he won second place in the last intercollegiate meet, the team will be greatly strengthened. At present there does not appear to be a first-class man in sight for the high hurdles, but Dad Moulton is working hard to unearth a world-beater.

Newman of San Diego, who won the two-mile race in the last two intercollegiate meets, has withdrawn from the track, but Worthington, a point winner in this event three years ago, has returned to college and has been showing up in his old-time form. Shelton, a second place winner last year, is with the squad and with Worthington should win a good share of the points in the long grind.

Twenty-four men were placed on the rubbing list yesterday. Others will be added as they show better form. The names of the athletes in the first group follow:

Sprints: H. Smitherum '14, T. L. Coleman '12, E. P. Geissler '14, T. W. Dawson '14, P. B. McKee '14.

Middle distances: G. D. Perry '10, C. C. Taylor '11, D. H. Thomas '12, B. Wallace '12, N. R. Ferguson '13, J. B. Leaman '13.

Distances: J. E. Shelton '10, G. Bevier '11, K. E. Lee '12, R. S. Worthington '12.

Pole vault: S. H. Bellah '10, C. A. Waring '11, J. A. Miller '13.

Jumps: W. M. Argabrite '13, G. L. Horine '13.

Weights: K. L. Dole '11, J. E. Woolley '12, C. E. Olmstead '14.

Hurdles: H. J. Smith '11.

PEELS POTATOES TO EARN PASSAGE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] C. Pulliam, who says he is a cousin to the late president of the National Baseball League, is quite sure that he peeled all of the potatoes in the world while working his way home from Hamburg on the President Lincoln, which arrived today.

The young man, who says that he saw the elephant and the tiger at Monte Carlo, viewed the dashing procession in Paris, and bit a few chunks from the pie of adventure in other European centers, had $10,000 when he went forth to swap real money for experience.

He had the experience and 23 cents—the same being the value of the one mark (German money) he was paid for valiant unhiding of potatoes—when the ship tied up at Hoboken today. Pulliam found himself in Hamburg broke. The President Lincoln was in port awaiting her time to steam over the sea. He told his wild oats culture story to a steward, who offered to bring him over in exchange for sculpture work on the murphies.

LOCAL STUDENTS AMONG BEST STANFORD BALL TOSSERS.

Enderle, Santa Ana Twirler, Makes Fine Showing Against Strong Team of St. Mary's—Squad Is Rapidly Developing Strong Playing Qualities.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Feb. 17.—The cardinal 'varsity baseball team is rapidly rounding into excellent form. Yesterday the nine dropped a game to St. Mary's, 7 to 6, but the playing of the men was gratifying to the coach. Six weeks remain before the team will stack up against California, and during that time it is expected that the bunch will develop into the strongest aggregation that has represented Stanford on the diamond for many years.

Enderle of Santa Ana twirled the entire game yesterday, and he held the Catholics to fewer hits than Stanford made off the opposing pitcher. Enderle promises to give Gilfillan of Los Angeles, last year's 'varsity pitcher, a hard rub for the honor of facing California in the intercollegiate series. This is his first season with the squad, in which he has made much of a showing, and it looks as though it was "coming through" in fine style. Gilfillan, however, has not gone back since last year and his experience will hold him in good stead.

Louis Cass of Los Angeles, who was substitute on the 'varsity last season, is getting a thorough trial at second base and is showing up well, both in the field and with the stick. It seems likely that he will make a berth if he maintains the pace at which he is now traveling. Henshaw of Downey is being tried out in the field. He has had considerable experience at first base, but that position is occupied by Capt. Ball of Los Angeles, and Henshaw cannot expect to replace him this year. However, he is a good batter, and may land a place in the outer garden.

Stan Mitchell of Los Angeles appears to be a permanent fixture at third base, which position he occupied last year.

Coach Ganong, who is slated for the position of catcher, in which he worked last season, has not been playing regularly, as Achi, the Hawaiian player, has been doing excellent work behind the bat. However, Ganong will begin to play regularly after the players have got into better shape and do not require as much attention as they do now.

Latest Rounds.

PIERCE AND HOLT LEADING IN KING'S GAMBIT CHESS.

FIVE HUNDRED games have been recorded in the chess tournament of the Chess and Checker Club of Southern California, all being specimens of gambit play in the King-side openings, varied amply within the scope of the rules.

The popularity of the open game contest is a revelation to the few doubters who favor single lines of play, to the exclusion of all risks and the elimination of combinations wherever possible. The enjoyment of the participants in the more powerful attacks is indicated by the fact that two-thirds of the sixty-day schedule has been completed in less than three weeks.

In standing, the leading players retain their relative positions, Pierce with 31 wins and 1 loss, Holt with 32½ wins and 7½ losses, Gilbert and Pridham having nearly finished their schedules with good averages.

Some of the contestants who have played but few games have better percentages than the two last-named, but may not retain their average through the long list.

The latest round resulted as follows:

Richardson 1, Struve 0-King's gambit; Enwels 2, Mylrea 0-King's; Richardson 1, Bates 1-Knight; Peterson 2, McCallum 0-Vienna; Maas withdrew.

In the correspondence match with the San Diego Chess Club, I. S. Gilbert has been substituted for Major Hall at Board 6 for the local club team, ill health compelling the latter to forego the completion of his games against Victor Wildt of San Diego. It seems probable that the continued ill-health of Dr. Graham will compel a substitute in his case. In spite of these drawbacks the match is proceeding with the greatest harmony, the spirit of thorough sportsmanship prevailing in both teams.

The International Chess Masters' Tournament is to begin today at San Sebastian, Spain, with Jose R. Capablanca, Pan-American champion, and Frank J. Marshall, United States champion, among the competitors.

Marshall's recent winning of first place in the national tournament at New York, without losing a game, though making several draws, and Capablanca's sensational finish of seven straight victories, after a bad start, which landed him in second place in the same event, but half a game behind Marshall, together with the fact that this is the Cuban's first appearance in a world's arena, makes the contest one of extraordinary interest to Americans.

Not since the flash of the meteor, Pillsbury, upon the Caissan sky, sixteen years ago, have the achievements of a chess genius been watched so closely as those of the young Cuban-American, who decisively defeated Marshall in match play a few months ago.

A convincing instance of the returning taste for full-powered chess lies in the international gambit tournament under way at San Remo, Italy, in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of the Italian Union.

The affair is under the conduct of the German master, Herr von Scheve, and is limited to twenty-four masters and first-class amateurs, who are limited to choice of three gambits in their openings, namely: The King's gambit, the Evans gambit, and the Scotch gambit, with the P-QB3 continuation. This programme is issued for the avowed purpose of increasing the interest and enriching the literature of the game.

When Ryan came to the Coast four or five years ago with Madden and Raftery as payment for Donahue, the team had on it Cooney, Danzig, Casey, Ote Johnson and Bassey. Groom, Kinsella, Garrett, Graney, Pernoll and Pinnance were the pitchers. Ryan has remained with the Beavers and watched some of his old friends go to the big bushes and then back to the minors again.

That Kaufman Confession.

The alleged confession of Al Kaufman's manager that Kaufman and Sam Langford had a secret agreement to "box easy" at Philadelphia, sounds discouraging.

The one fighter in the world in whom every one wanted to believe, was Sam Langford. He and Bat Nelson were the two fighters who had the supreme confidence of the fighting public.

Happily Joe Woodman is not involved in any way, even in the alleged confession.

There is this to be said (assuming the story to be true) for black Tham. About the only way he can get a fight is to agree to box easy. It was the same at one stage of the career of Joe Gans.

Almost every white man whom Sam wants to fight discovers that he promised his grandmother on her death bed to draw the color line or that he has a bad knee.

The lofty pretensions to race aristocracy that began to bubble up in Bill Papke when he saw this dark cloud on his horizon were extremely funny.

The Pink, however, is by no means prepared to believe the story about Sam's agreement; not without better evidence.

Tender Athletes.

To read some of the "expert opinions" from the baseball reporters in the East, one would think that the Red Sox hadn't yet been weaned and were still nursing from a bottle.

The eastern papers are filled with solemn warnings that the long trip about to be undertaken by the Red Sox from Boston to Los Angeles will ruin the team.

The reason why is a mystery to the Pink.

You know, they can come right across the continent in railroad cars all the way. They don't have to fight Indians or travel in ox carts on the way.

One would think it was into the wilds of South Africa they were going.

If the Red Sox are put safely on board the train with the request to the sleeping car reporter to please be very, very kind and have the milk warmed before each meal, this team of husky trained athletes may possibly survive the trip and still have strength left to toss a few balls when they arrive in spite of the baseball experts.

Copa de Ora's Record.

Apropos of all this hullabaloo about Copa de Ora from the Savage stables, it seems a great pity that the Phoenix record of the great pacer could not have been allowed to stand.

On the protests of Savage, the owner of Dan Patch and Minor Heir, the National Board of Review was obliged to rule out Copa's record of 1:59 on what seems a miserable technicality.

Once during that famous mile, the running horse which paced the Bonfilio stallion, jumped a few feet ahead and continued so for about fifty yards.

The rule is absolute that the runner must not proceed the horse trying for the record; so when the point was raised, the Board of Review had no choice apparently, but to throw out the record.

As it looks to the Pink, however, the Savage racing people were up to a mighty small piece of business in raising the trivial protest.

SENDS GRABOWSKY FAR AWAY.

Hawley,King and Company recently reported the shipment of a special combination freight and passenger Grabowsky to the Isle of Luzon in the Philippines. Two more of these machines are to be sent ti the Islands as soon as they can be gotten out. American engineers are laying out several miles of macadamized roads and the company which ordered the Grabowsky trucks expect to use them to good advantage over these.

TRACK-MEET RESULTS.

Pomona a thirty-six point lead, the competition was good.

L. Gillette, Pomona's freshman sprinter, made the best time of the meet when he covered th 220 yards in 22 1-5 sconds, beating Francis Baer by more than five yards. This spectacular win came after Baer had won handily from Gillette in the hundred, the Pomona runner getting a poor start.

Results: Mile run won by Fischer (B;) Sturges (P,) second; Merritt (P,) third; time, 4:41 4-5.

The 100-yard dash won by F. Baer (O;) L. Gillet e (P,) second; McDonald (O,) third; time, 10 1-5s.

LITTLE BURGS PRODUCE STARS.

BIG BALL PLAYERS HAIL FROM SMALL HAMLETS.

Mathewson Was Born in Factoryville, Pa., and Collins in Millerton, N. Y.—Chance and Overall Are Native Sons of California and Coombs Is from Kennebunk.

It would naturally be supposed that most major league ball players hailed from some large town, where they could be seen by big league scouts and early in life get into touch with organized ball; but as a matter of fact, most of them hail from villages little known to fame and lightly regarded by the census takers.

Otis Crandall winters in Fowler, Ind.; Christy Mathewson put Factoryville, Pa., on the map; Bridwell hails from Portsmouth, O.; Fletcher is a resident of Collinsville, Ill.; Ames lives in Warron, O.; Becker in Wichita, Kan.; Birdie Cree in Khedive, Pa.; Warhop in Hinton, W. Va.; Gardner in Sparta, Ill.; Hemphill in Youngstown, O.; Criger in Jones, Mich.; Roach in Winbur, Pa., and Laporte in Uhrichsville, O.

Perhaps no one player on either the Chicago or Philadelphia team came in for more attention than Eddie Collins. He was graduated from Columbia University, and to look at him one would never guess that he first saw the light of day in Millerton, N. Y. Just where Millerton is located is a rather difficult question to answer, but it suffices to say that it is somewhere in the State.

Jack Coombs, who was the mainstay of the Athletics, is now listed in the city directory of Kennebunk, Me., if that burg is fortunate enough to possess such a luxury. It is generally supposed that Coombs is a real Maine Stater, but such is far from being the case, as La Grande, Iowa, claims him as its favorite son.

King Cole, who practically kept the Chicago Cubs in the running last summer, first jumped into fame as the star pitcher of the Bay City, Mich., team, but Bay City is a long ways from Cole's native heath. Cole was born in Toledo—not the hustling Ohio burg of that name, but a wide spot in the road in the wilds of Iowa. When any one asks Cole where he was born he hastily replies Toledo and then shifts the conversation.

Cy Morgan, of the Athletics, came into being at Pomeroy, Pa.

Frank Chance and Orville Overall, of the Cubs, are two native sons of California, who swear by the land of sunshine and flowers. One would hardly think, however, that two such athletes would hail from Fresno and Visalia, respectively.

From the way Frank Baker plays baseball you would never suppose that he started life with a heavy handicap, such as being born in Trappe, Md. Miner Brown came from Rosedale, Ind., and Chief Bender emitted his first warwhoop at Brainerd, Minn.

There are many fans who could not point out the location of these towns, but few indeed who could not instantly give any desired information as to the baseball records of the men.

PANAMA-PACIFIC ENTRIES.

Entries in the Panama-Pacific road race:

PANAMA-PACIFIC RACE.

sible after the finish of the first, will be for heavy stock cars which must cover a distance of 152.922 miles, or fourteen laps of the course.

In addition to the cash prizes offered in this race, the winner will get the St. Francis Hotel trophy, a magnificent cup valued at $2500. The last race and the feature contest of the day will be the free-for-all. This race will start immediately after lunch, probably about 2 o'clock. The length of this race will be 207.537 miles or nineteen circuits of the course. This race should be finished by about 4:30 o'clock.

THAT E. M. F.

The cars entered for the first event will include the Inter-State, Ford, E. M. F., Maxwell and Mercer. The appearance of the E. M. F. adds particular interest to this race as this car has never before competed in this section of the country. It will be driven by Bruce Aurendt. The Inter-State will have Harry Michener at the wheel, a driver who has gained fame in many races on both sides of the continent.

The heavy car race will have as competitors two Nationals, the Pope-Hartfords, the Apperson, Buick, "Forty," Amplex, Speedwell and the Lozier. The two Pope-Hartfords will be driven by Jack Fleming and Bert Dingley, while the pilots of the National will be Hal Wilcox and Will Merz. Hanshue will be at the wheel of the Apperson and W. H. Turner will drive the Amplex. If the Lozier car competes Teddy Tetzlaff will be the driver. The failure to arrive of some missing parts now on the way from the East may prevent the Santa Monica victor from taking part in the big race.

The free-for-all will have as contestants the same cars as the heavy stock car with the addition of the six-cylinder National. Wilcox will be at the wheel of the big National.

WILCOX FAST.

During the past week in the early morning hours from daylight to 7 o'clock the racers have been practicing over the course. The drivers have found the upper road in excellent condition, but the county road is somewhat dusty. Some rare bursts of speed have been shown in these early morning work-outs. Wilcox in the big National did better than ninety miles an hour over one stretch of the boulevard, while Fleming drove his Pope-Hartford an entire circuit of the course at an average speed of nearly seventy-four miles an hour.

Both Fleming and Dingley are confident that they can set a new mark in the coming race, while the National drivers are just as confident of the speed of their cars. Tetzlaff in his trial run has found evidence that he can break the record he made in the Santa Monica race when he averaged a little better than seventy-two miles an hour.

Harris Hanshue in his Apperson has shown wonderful speed. He is determined to wipe out the defeat inflicted by Fleming in the Pope-Hartford in the Portola race of last season. He says his car is faster now than ever before and that barring accidents he will win. The keen rivalry between Fleming and Dingley of the Pope-Hartford team insures a bitter contest between these two cars. Dingley's car comes as a Los Angeles entry, while Fleming's machine was entered from San Francisco.

BIG RACE.

One feature in connection with the coming contest makes it of particular importance. It is the first road race of the year, and the record made next Wednesday will stand practically unchallenged until near the close of the year. The winners of the Panama-Pacific race will retain the prestige of their victory during the entire summer season.

If Tetzlaff in his Lozier is considered a likely candidate for first honors, Teddy says that in his practice work he has shown a speed nearly ten per cent. faster than he made over the Santa Monica course.

RIVERSIDE POLO.

ley. Second period—Cowdin quickly scored for Coronado then Pasadenans adopted hugging tactics and penalized themselves by twice fouling.

Third period—Beasley got clear run and scored. Pasadena played up well but their repeated shots at goal went wide. Innes-Kerr scored from a long and difficult shot.

Fourth period—Pasadena fought their opponents off well but Cowdin eventually scored.

Fifth period—Pasadenans kept the ball well in enemy's country but Tweedmouth collared it from mouth of goal and drove it furiously to Beasley who scored easily. Cowdin followed this up quickly with another goal.

Sixth period—L. Roberts of Pasadena team obliged to retire through sudden weakness, his place being taken by H. E. Pattee of Riverside. This was a hard-fought perod but Beasley eventually scored with a long drive.

Seventh period—Pasadena pressed the game home but Tweedmouth extricated the ball beautifully and followed up a hard drive and scored. He is a wonderfully powerful hitter. Pasadenans fouled again and were penalized half a goal.

Eighth period—Pasadenans appeared to be played out in this period and Tweedmouth's team found little opposition. Tweedmouth and Cowdin each scored two easy goals. Score, Coronado No. 1 team, 15 goals; Pasadena B team, 10 goals (allowed by handicap.) Penalized by fouls 1½ goals. Coronado won by 6½ goals.

Tea and refreshments were served during the afternoon by the lady members of the Riverside Country Club, among whom were notably, Miss Wright, Miss Frost, Mrs. Nye, Mrs. Dixon, Miss Bakewell and Mrs. Gaylord.

Robert Lee Bettner, one of the pioneers of the game of polo in California, has charge of the ground arrangements, which in consequence are perfect, and the hospitality for which Riverside smart society is so justly famous is being extended with a lavish hand.

A ball was held tonight in connection with the event at the Glenwood Hotel, which is filled to overflowing with the elite from all quarters of the globe, the arrangements fo which were in the hands of Mrs. Alice Richardson, Mrs. De Witt Huchings and Mrs. Stebbins. Among those prominent at the ball were Mrs. Carling of Ottawa, and Mrs. Pattee, Mrs. E. O. McCormick, wife of the vice-president of the Southern Pacific, and her sister, Miss Florence Henry, Mr. and Mrs. Mandelbaum of Cleveland and party, Charles Sweet and party, George Thompson, editor of the St. Paul Despatch; Dwight Jones and party, Dwight Boyden, the well known artist and party; Lord Tweedmouth and party, Lord Innes-Kerr and party, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Vallely, Mrs. Robert Lee Bettner and party. Another ball and on a larger scale is scheduled for the night of Wednesday, February 22.

One of the most notable and earnestly-discussed topics of the day was the superlatively beautiful cut of the polo breeches which graced the limbs of the members of the Coronado English team and at which their opponents cast so many envious glances that it sadly divided their attention and more or less spoiled the chances of winning which they had undoubtedly possessed. It is on the unlooked-for little side issues that very often depends the tide of battle. We understand that Lord—well, we won't mention names—has ben beseiged with earnest requests for the address of his London tailor, but it is being religiously withheld, as it appears that he is the only one in existence who holds the secret of the approved cut.

One hour of our time, including salesman, gasoline, etc., is worth approximately $5. One hour of your time is worth the same amount, say.
We will spend this $5, if you will, in showing you why the Mitchell is the best car for you to own.
Other salesmen will take up your $5 worth of time showing you by means of talking points why their car should give you good service. This is the wrong end for you to begin at.
We will first show you that Mitchell cars have already given the kind of service you must have in Southern California—Twelve million miles of it. Then we will show you in detail on the car why it has been able to give this service—the kind you must have.
This is the only kind of investigation worth anything to you.
We claim that the Mitchell is superior to all other medium-priced cars for Southern California use.

Welcome to Our City.

BIG FRANKLIN MAN IS HERE.

Head of Air-cooled Factory Boosts Our Stock.

Leaves Snow-bound East for Sunny Southland.

Plans Mud-battle Over Roads With Ralph Hamlin.

H. H. Franklin, head of the Franklin factory at Syracuse, is in Los Angeles for the first time in his life. He comes here at just the right time to meet Ralph Hamlin, agent for the air-cooled cars in Southern California.

"Ralph Hamlin is my star agent," said Franklin yesterday.

Though Ralph blushed at the compliment, a little questioning proved the assertion to be more than a passing remark. Hamlin has sold more Franklin cars in his territory than any other agent in the world. The air-cooled cars are popular all over this country but are more popular in Los Angeles and vicinity than in any other place.

More Franklin cars have been sold in Los Angeles to date than in New York. This statement will surprise a number of autoists and it seems incredible but Hamlin has made good to such an extent that he takes the top notch place among the many Franklin agents and there are some good ones in the United States.

The big Franklin man came to town Thursday morning and Hamlin lost no time in getting H. H. Franklin into his air-cooled torpedo roadster and, whirling him about the city. When the sights of Los Angeles had been taken in the car was driven to Casa Verdugo where lunch was enjoyed.

NOVEL TRIP.

It was a novel trip for the Franklin man who had left the East snow-bound and autoists there planning different schemes to keep the air from freezing in the tires and the water from freezing in the radiators.

"Franklin cars are selling well in the East," said Franklin, "but Hamlin is making a record in Los Angeles. He holds the palm to date for the largest number of sales and the way things look he will break his last year's record which was a dandy.

"Conditions in the East are good. Times are excellent. Of course you have wonderful opportunities in the West because of your climate but as a matter of fact we are making 2000 Franklin cars this year and the whole output is sold.

"Yes, I expect to look out for Ralph Hamlin. He needs more cars I know and he will be able to get a few more. Our output is limited, however, as we do not believe in turning out more cars than we are able to finish with a degree of excellence which has made a name for us in this country.

ON A TOUR.

"Before I leave for the East I expect to take in San Francisco, Portland and Seattle and study conditions there. The Franklin is a great car and I am pleased with the success it has made in the west. It is popular in the East and a winner on both sides of the United States."

Ralph Hamlin expects to drive to San Francisco with President Franklin today. He will leave this morning for Santa Barbara in the Franklin torpedo and will try to make a three days' trip up the coast. He expects to take in the Panama-Pacific road race on Washington's Birthday.

The tour up the coast is severe at this season of the year. The Casitas Pass is in fierce shape. The mud is hub deep for miles and cars that have been driven over the divide have been forced through on low speed. It is a mud battle from start to finish but Hamlin has no fears and is certain he will reach the Bay City in time to witness the big race.

H. H. Franklin, Head of the Franklin Factory, and Ralph Hamlin, His Star Agent.

Hamlin is at the wheel of the air-cooled torpedo in which Franklin enjoyed his first ride over the streets of Los Angeles.

HANDSOME THOMAS-FLYER.

One of Most Costly Limousines Ever Built Is Finished for Mrs. Leslie Carter.

Probably the most distinctive and costly automobile, as well as the most luxurious ever built in this country, was the mammoth limousine built recently by the E. R. Thomas Motor Company for Mrs. Leslie Carter.

The car was built on a model K, 70-horse-power Thomas chassis. The body and interior is decidedly a Parisian type. No expense was spared as Mrs. Carter ordered the most beautiful motor in the country.

The color scheme is yellow and green, the yellow being of a distinctive shade which has since been standardized as "Carter" green. The upper panels of the body are yellow and are worked over with imported French cane work. The lower panels are green. Mrs. Carter's crest and coat of arms have been worked in back and also on the doors. Over $500 worth of gold lace which was imported from Turkey was used. The upholstering is of cream colored hand buffed leather which was brought from Paris.

Concealed cabinets are built in each side. These open when a hidden spring is touched. A gold speedometer and clock are among the attachments. Costly Turkish rugs and toilet cases are included in the furnishings.

NEW BUICK REDBIRD.

Handsome and Stylish Car Takes the Place of the White Streak and Makes Good.

The Buick "Redbird" has taken the place of the famous "White Streak." The white car is not included in the Buick line for the 1911 season and in its place the little red car is claimed to be much more attractive.

The Buick company has paid unusual attention to the exterior finish of the cars for the next season. The mechanical construction has been emphasized in the past until at the present there seems to be no further criticism in this regard.

The successor to the "White Streak" is attracting a great deal of attention wherever it is placed on exhibition. Six models are included in the 1911 Buick line.

James Radley, the English aviator who recently took a spin with "Max" Purcell, the Schebler carburetor expert, in Purcell's Buick "30" pronounced it the speediest ride he had ever taken in an auto. Purcell let the machine out at full speed and Radley, when he had recovered his breath, said it was the most thrilling ride he had ever experienced.

AUTO POLICE PATROLS.

Maxwells Make Good on Novel Tests and One Reaches Four-Thousand Mile Mark.

Automobiles are being used for quick police service in Toledo, where the United Motor Company fitted up a number of Maxwells for the accommodation of prisoners to assist in suppressing the wave of crime that has been terrorizing the inhabitants this winter.

These cars are held ready for instant use. They can be rushed to the scene of a crime the instant the alarm is given and have been instrumental in rounding up a number of lawbreakers. The chief of police at Toledo credits the use of the Maxwells for this service very highly and it is likely that several of the cars will be installed permanently.

The Maxwell Model "Q", which Harvey Smith of the United Motor Company of Columbus is driving on a 100-miles-a-day run has just passed the 4000 mile mark. The car is driven on the worst roads in Ohio and seems to be standing up well under the grind.

SOME FUNNY FLANDERS MARKS.

Non-Stop World Record Breaker Performed Some Sensational Tricks When Earning Mark.

The intense strain to which the small parts in the mechanism of an automobile are subjected in a long run is illustrated by some figures recently compiled with regard to the non-stop run of the Flanders "20."

During the 10,872 miles recorded before the machine was stopped by running into an unlighted street excavation, each wheel turned 6,135,000 times. The Spitdorf magneto gave 47,997,320 separate sparks; each valve opened and closed 11,999,330 times and the crank shaft turned 23,998,660 times.

This is the world non-stop record and was made under the careful supervision of expert observers. Harry Lord, of the Lord Motor Car Company, was the man who engineered the entire run which was held under the supervision of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Great Showing.

STODDARD WINS IN FAR NORTH.

DEMAND FOR HIGH-PRICED CARS IS BETTER THAN EVER.

Large Market Is Opened in Farming Districts and Agent Who Visits the Local Headquarters Tells of the Triumphs of the Handsome Lines in Other States.

"The demand for high priced automobiles in the Northwest is rapidly increasing," said J. A. Stoner, the Stoddard-Dayton traveling agent in Washington, Montana and Idaho who was in the city recently. Stoner was formerly of Los Angeles and says the Stoddard-Dayton cars are selling like hot cakes in the North.

The ranchers in the farming and cattle country are buying lots of machines and they demand the high price cars in preference to the cheaper autos every time, says Stoner.

A shipment of the new fore-door Stoddard "30" touring cars and demi-tonneaus was received by the Stoddard-Dayton Motor Company during the past week. Six machines were included in the consignment and only one remained at the end of two days. The new model is unusually attractive.

The Stoddard-Dayton people are using this small car to secure a hold with the class of people buying their first automobile. It is the type of machine for a beginner as it has just enough speed and power enough to be easily controlled by a novice.

A shipment of the Baker shaft-drive electric Victoria cars is to be exhibited on the floor of the Stoddard-Dayton Company in a few days. The spring demand will be for these, it is thought, rather than for the Baker coupe which has been popular all winter.

NEEDS MORE ROOM.

The Western Rubber Supply Company has just finished overhauling and enlarging its entire plant to make room for the rapidly increasing business. A private telephone system has been installed and the out-of-town shipping department enlarged. The company has been making a specialty of fitting out motors with electric lighting systems. The new Gray & Davis electric lights have recently been introduced and the Apple system of generating juice is being demonstrated.

RISKS HIS LIFE.

Plucky E.M.F. Driver Skates Over Snow, Ice and Tree Stumps in Desperate Drive.

In an attempt to save the life of a lumberman who had been dangerously wounded in a sawmill, Wallace Link of Fort Collins, Colo., recently drove his E.M.F. "30" over snow, ice, rocks and tree stumps far up into Buckhorn canyon, which was never conquered by an auto before.

Mountaineers said the run could not be made but the wounded man's only hope was in getting a doctor to him and the auto was the only means possible. It was a forty-five mile run and one of the roughest mountain passes in the Rockies. Much of the road is little more than a lumber trail and all the upper part of it was under a foot of snow.

Takes the Palm.

MITCHELL CARS MAKE BIG HIT.

HAVE HISTORY WHICH HARKS BACK TO PIONEER DAYS.

Wagons Once Trailed Across the Prairies with Same Name as the Four and Six-Cylinder Beauties Which Are Making Such a Hit This Year in the Motor Market.

Captain William Mitchell Lewis, president of the Mitchell-Lewis Motor Company of Racine, Wis., comes from a line of carriage and wagon makers that has manufactured vehicles of every type from "prairie schooners" to modern automobiles during the past sixty years.

Mitchell wagons followed Andrew Jackson in his victorious march through Mexico. Hundreds of them trailed across the prairies in '49. Early pioneers crouched behind the stout side boards of the Mitchell wagons for protection from the bullets of the Sioux and Apache.

Speaking of the success which had attended the use of the Mitchell truck, which is one of the company's most recent products, J. W. Bate, the factory manager, said:

"During the five years since we put out the first truck we have been enabled to perfect the car in many ways. It has passed through the experimental stage and has kept pace with the most advanced construction.

"For the present we will limit the output of the Mitchell commercial cars to 1000 and 5000-pound wagons. We expect to emphasize the commercial vehicle industry. That branch of the auto business has the big outlook at present and we intend to stay in the forefront in the manufacture of trucks."

The convertible torpedo type of car created by the Jackson Automobile Company's engineers this season promises to be one of the standard designs in seasons to come.

DOPE ABOUT HOPES.

Con Kelly Seems to Be the Most Promising Young Pug on Past Performances.

A statistical sporting man has given forth the following "dope" on the various "white hopes" now trying to nose into the limelight:

Con O'Kelley is a native of Ireland, 28 years of age; won the Olympic wrestling championship in London; weighs 220 pounds; stands 6 feet, 4½ inches. Ring experience — Seven months as a boxer; fought eight times; won four on knockouts, popular decisions in three and police stopped other to save opponent. Trained by Tommy Ryan, retired middleweight champion of the world.

Miles McLeod was born in Missouri and has been a farmer; 26 years of age; weighs 225 pounds; stands 6 feet, 5 inches. Ring experience—None. Trained by Joe Choynski.

Carl Morris hails from Oklahoma and has been a railroad engineer; weighs 240 pounds; is 25 years of age and stands 6 feet, 4 inches in height. Ring experience—Boxed a bit while a private in the army and since he entered the professional ranks three months ago has disposed of several third-raters. Also easily defeated Marvin Hart in three rounds. Trained by Eddie Robinson.

Jack Lester is a westerner, 19 years of age; weighs 187 pounds; stands 6 feet in height. Ring experience—None. Trained by Tommy Burns, ex-heavyweight champion.

Walter Monahan makes his home in Chicago, where he is now training partner of Jack Johnson; 21 years of age; weighs 204 pounds; stands 5 feet, 11½ inches. Ring experience—Showed absolutely nothing in his first appearance against George Cotton in Pittsburgh last month. Trained by Champion Jack Johnson.

BUCKS MUD IN PETREL.

Williams Makes Good Over Hub-Deep Muddy Roads in Friction-Driven Car.

Ted Williams of the Williams Automobile Company recently returned from San Diego in his Petrel machine with a hard-luck road story that would bring tears to the eyes of a non-stop-run artist.

Williams said, "I was sailing along a fifteen per cent. grade just figuring how I would make up time I had lost in repairing a puncture, when all of a sudden the bottom seemed to go out of everything. We sank in the soft mud nearly up to the hubs. Before we could get out of the stretch of adobe, which was about fifty feet long, it took four hours of backing and bucking and when I finally did succeed in reaching the far side I found the gasoline was gone, and I had to walk five miles to replenish the fuel tank."

HANDSOME FORD BUILDING.

New Administration Offices Completed in Detroit Are Ornate and Complete in Detail.

The Ford Motor Company recently completed a fine new administration building at Highland Park in Detroit which is claimed to surpass any manufacturing office building in the city for size and equipment.

Everything from the ventilation system to the messenger service is the most modern that could be secured and the whole building is a model for efficiency and sanitation. The outside of the structure is one surface of windows so that the natural lighting system is perfect.

Every detail of the enormous business of the Ford Company will be arranged at this building where offices were constructed for each member of the administrative force.

PLUCKY GIRL IN FLANDERS.

Drives Up Steep Stone Steps and Gives State Official a Real Thrill.

As a daring motorist, "Texas" Guinan, star of the "Kissing Girl" company, without a doubt takes first rank among the musical comedy queens who have taken to the motor car during the past year.

The fair motorist's daring drives in Denver, her home town and where she first sprang into fame, will long be remembered, and particularly by Gov. John F. Shafforth of Colorado whom she startled one day by climbing the steps of the State capitol in her Flanders "20" auto.

"Texas" drove up the steep flight of steps on a dare. The Governor was just leaving his office when suddenly the Flanders poked its nose over the threshold of the State house. The startled executive bolted to a place of safety behind one of the massive pillars.

The machine, which the actress uses, was given to her by her uncle, Senator Bailey of Texas. She carries it with her on the road and rarely fails to create a sensation.

HANDSOME JACKSON TORPEDO.

Convertible Type of Car Makes Great Hit in the East by Its Excellent Work.

The question whether they would equip the 1911 model with fore doors was solved by questioning many of the Jackson owners by post card. The vote was decidedly in favor of the fore doors. A large number suggested detachable doors, however, and this idea was put into form by the designers.

The detachable idea made a hit at the Madison Square, Coliseum and Detroit shows. The remarkable winter sales during the past few weeks have largely been attributed to the new design.

RELIABILITY TOUR.

Although no definite date has been selected for the start of the contest, the entry blanks for the Modern Power Canadian National Reliability Tour have been sent out by the Modern Power Company, Winnepeg, Can., promoters of the event. According to the entry blank, the entries are to close on July 15. Entries received before June 15 are $150, and after that time and prior to July 15, $200 will be charged for each car entered. The contest will be under the rules of the American Automobile Association, and the principal prize to be offered is the Modern Power Trophy. The pathfinding trip will be started not later than June 15.

TO STOP RATTLING.

All that is necessary to stop a rattling door is to get a thin brass plate, or, if preferred, one may use a thin piece of fiber or leather, and fit it on to the door post. Of course, a little judgment is required. One should see that the thicknes of the plate is only infinitesimally greater than the amount of play in the door, and if the door is loose all the way down another plate should be fitted about an inch or so from the lower end of the door jamb. It is obviously a makeshift, but there is no other easily applied remedy, as nothing but entirely refitting the doors would stop the looseness, and this would necessitate repainting.

SPLITDORF

A Magneto a Minute!

Three years ago we were making two magnetos a day.

To-day we manufacture magnetos at the rate of one for ev minute of every working day!

And the demand is taxing our exceptional supply faciliti represented in a factory equipped to the last detail with brains, and mechanical ingenuity.

There can be only one reason for such a phenomenal growth production, and that must be immediately apparent to the verie tyro.

SPLITDORF MAGNETOS are coming into their own sheer force of merit—they are winning out in the hard test of versal usage.

SPLITDORF MAGNETOS are made by American men, in an American factory, and at an American price, and in every way and excel in many the workmanship and operati anything produced in the foreign market.

Conservatism is now the keynote of the automobile situati but radicalism is rampant in the demands pouring in upon facturers for SPLITDORF MAGNETO equipment.

Mr. Automobile Owner, or Mr. Prospective Automobile Own exercise your right to try a SPLITDORF MAGNETO! Join procession of the world's heady race drivers, pilots of record-brea endurance cars and motorists innumerable who have been convin of the true merits of SPLITDORF MAGNETOS.

Over Good Roads.

MOTOR TOUR INTO POMONA.

"The Times" Pink Trip to Southern Cities.

Over El Monte Road and Baldwin Ranch.

Entire Trip Can Be Made Over Good Roads.

One of the most novel automobile tours ever arranged has just been carefully mapped by The Times. The Los Angeles-Pomona auto tour has been chosen as one of the best that can be made at this season of the year. An automobile can be driven over this route by way of the lower road to Pomona and can be whizzed back over the upper road from Claremont.

The new El Monte boulevard can be followed and the county highway will take the autoist to a point close to the city limits of Pomona. There is only one stretch of sand and that does not amount to much as the road over the entire course is in fairly good shape. The route is picturesque as the motor car is driven entirely through the Baldwin ranch. Lunch can be enjoyed at Pomona and the run back in the afternoon is delightful.

BY P. A. RENTON.

The tour can be made comfortably in a day and if you care to drive without making any stops in a half day. It is a delightful spin over some of our best highways.

Leave The Times office and drive out Main street. Go through Eastlake Park and take the road to El Monte. The new highway begins at the city limits just beyond Eastlake.

The going is excellent to the outskirts of El Monte. Through the town the road is rough, but on the other side of El Monte the good road is picked up again. Drive through Puente. It is just fourteen miles to El Monte. After leaving El Monte the road is [illegible] to Puente, twenty miles [illegible]. You keep straight on to [illegible], six miles from Puente, and the road is good.

From Puente you go to Spadra, [illegible] miles from Los Angeles, and then drive three more miles to Pomona, where you can get dinner. This is the turning point of the tour.

From Pomona you turn north to Claremont, a distance of six miles and you take the upper road back to Los Angeles.

From Claremont to Los Angeles it is [illegible] miles, but the road is fairly good and there are many interesting places to visit.

[illegible] from Claremont to Glendora, [illegible] miles from Los Angeles, and then through Azusa two miles beyond. There is a dangerous railroad crossing just outside of Azusa, but if you keep your eye open you need have no fear as there are no trees or barns to hide the trains.

From Azusa drive to Monrovia, which is [illegible] miles from Los Angeles, and then go through the Baldwin ranch on the road to Pasadena. Be careful after making the turn at the [illegible] bridge just as you leave the Baldwin ranch. This railroad crossing, [illegible] the Santa Fe Railroad crossing, [illegible]. After crossing the track [illegible] Colorado street and drive into Pasadena and you will be within ten miles of home.

WALSH CARRIES PASSENGER AND MAKES LONG FLIGHT.

CHAS. F. WALSH, a local aviator, made a pretty flight toward San Pedro from Dominguez Field, Friday.

A stiff breeze was blowing but the biplane rose to an altitude of 300 feet and apparently rode as smoothly as a regulation Curtis machine ever did. The flight came as the climax of a week spent in short daily flights over the field.

On returning, Walsh sailed around the course twice and alighted in front of the hangars without a mishap. Later he took Robert Lee, one of the mechanics, for a circuit of the field.

Walsh climbed from his seat at the end of the cross-country hike beaming with satisfaction. He was enthusiastic over the success which had attended his trip and said he would soon be carrying Los Angeles passengers as a regular business.

He was in the air a quarter of an hour and covered ten or twelve miles during the flight. The wind was blowing strong from the ocean but not once did the biplane dip or swerve from its course.

The aviator stated after his spin in the air yesterday that it was well worth the time and effort he had spent regardless of the hard luck that had accompanied his efforts up until recently.

A seven-cylinder Macomber rotary engine made in Los Angeles was used in the aeroplane. The motor is of fifty horse-power register and apparently is equal to any of the best aeroplane engines made.

Walsh stated that he would construct an extra seat on the biplane and begin carrying passengers in a few days.

Good Thing.

LOCAL RIDERS BECOME PRO'S.

Balke, Ward and Graves Are Shifted in Class.

Must Now Ride With Jake De Rosier and Whittler.

Amateur Motorcycle Racing Is Down and Out.

Amateur motorcycle racing in Los Angeles was practically placed on the "down and out" list last week when Charles Balke, Al Ward and M. J. Graves, the local speed trio of trade riders, were declared professionals by Dr. J. P. Thornley, chairman of the Competition Committee of the F.A.M.

These riders were notified by telegram of the decision of the committee. There has been rumor to the effect that such action would be taken for some time, but the boys professed much surprise when they were handed the telegrams.

That motorcycle racing in Southern California will gain by the action is the general verdict of those interested in that sport locally. These riders will now be forced to compete with Whittler, De Rosier, Renel and the other crack professional riders and the Los Angeles fans will be furnished with some of the best racing that has ever been pulled off anywhere.

Motorcycle races with these newly declared professionals and the regular professional riders in the city have been arranged for the Coliseum for the next few weeks. The first of the matches is to be pulled off February 22.

The Washington's birthday programme will include Graves, Whittler, McNeil, Ward, T. W. Samuelson, W. Samuelson, Renel, Balke and Kittle, with possible later entries.

A three-cornered match race between Graves on his Merkel, McNeil on a Thor and Whittler on a Merkel has been practically assured. This match will be best two out of three six-mile heats. The similar speed records of this trio make it possible that four or five heats will be necessary to decide the final winner.

A six-mile race with three heats to qualify for the final is to be another event on the programme. The winner in each heat and the second place rider in the fastest six miles will be entered in the final heat to decide the first prize.

A twenty-five mile race with practically all the local professional riders is to complete the racing schedule. This bunch of riders in the fastest that has ever been gotten together on any track and there should be new records made in many of the races.

All of the motors used will be seven-horse-power racing models except the 22 horse-power "Anzani" machine ridden by the Frenchman, Renel.

A white-enameled Thor racing motor has just been received by McNeil to be entered in the race. McNeil expects to figure largely in the races Wednesday.

PLENTY OF TALENT.

There are 997,000 families in the United States with an annual income of $3000 or more. As many of these are able to support an automobile so that the field is by no means as liable to be exhausted as some pessimists would insist.

Smooth as Glass.

WIDE MOTOR BOULEVARD FOR USE OF AUTOMOBILES ONLY.

AN AUTOMOBILE boulevard leading directly through the heart of the San Fernando Valley is nearing completion. Six miles of asphalt-macadam highway, with a surface as smooth as glass, has been finished and it is now possible to reach the new town of Van Nuys over a road as good as any of the county highways. One part of the new rock-ribbed roadway is to be devoted to the exclusive use of automobiles. The whole right of way is 200 feet wide and includes two thirty-foot roadways, two parking spaces and a double track for an electric line. This is one of the widest boulevard systems in the United States, and when completed will stretch for sixteen miles through one of the most fertile valleys in the world.

There is a mile and a half of uncompleted road from Lankershim to the beginning of the private automobile speedway. When this is finished it will be possible to drive the entire distance from Los Angeles to Van Nuys over a paved highway, and finish the tour over one of the most costly private speedways ever built.

Sunset boulevard could be followed to Hollywood, the pavement extending from the city limits to the foot of the Cahuenga Pass. The new road over Cahuenga leads directly into the town of Lankershim and will soon connect with the new macadam-asphalt auto road. Signs are to be posted on this road warning all but automobile drivers to keep off the speedway on penalty of arrest and a fine. Only motor cars will be allowed and for certain hours of each day there will be no speed limit.

One of the finest automobile tours Van Nuys, as sixteen miles of the asphalt-macadam road is to be built to a point a mile and a half from Calabasas. In addition to this it will be possible to drive almost to Chatsworth Park over new roads. The county highway to San Fernando will also be completed shortly and autoists will be able to tour in a day to the big city reservoir on the Owens River aqueduct and reach a hunter's paradise.

When completed this will not only be the finest but will be one of the longest stretches of good road given over to the exclusive use of motor cars. Horse-drawn vehicles are to be welcomed in Van Nuys of course, but will take the opposite or traffic side of the new boulevard from the automobiles.

An interesting experiment is offered on the Van Nuys road. Experts are to have a chance to study road conditions in a novel manner. The use and abuse of a road by an automobile can be noted and can also be compared with the wear and tear of heavy wagons and big teams of mules, which will travel on the general traffic side of the boulevard.

The Van Nuys boulevard is to be most picturesque. It will have a ten-foot parkway of roses and on either side will be lined with rare palms and shade trees. Thousands of dollars are being spent to make this new highway the last word in road building from the standpoint of the material used and methods employed.

It is possible to drive over the smooth roads into the Lankershim ranch where but a few weeks since no roads existed.

There is a six mile stretch of boulevard that is already completed and when the entire roadway is finished a fifteen mile stretch will lead across the valley from the county highway at Lankershim.

From Van Nuys an excellent view of the Newhall grade and of the mouth of the Owens River aqueduct can be obtained.

The town of Van Nuys is to be sold at auction on Washington's Birthday. The new boulevard can be reached by way of Hollywood, and over the Cahunega Pass to Lankershim. The short stretch of uncompleted road is in fairly good shape and opens to the new boulevard beyond which takes you directly into the center of the Van Nuys, which can be reached in an automobile in a drive of forty minutes.

REQUIRES INSPECTION.

During the winter the steering gear of a car requires more frequent inspection than at other seasons. The soft snow imposes stresses upon the front wheels more severe than those commonly encountered either in soft mud or sand, while the snow strains are continuous instead of intermittent as are those imposed by mud or sand. On this account the joints of the connections are far more likely to work loose in winter than in summer.

CHINESE ADOPT CARS.

Along with other modern ideas the Chinese are adopting the motor car. Although the roads adapted to its use are very few and mostly in the vicinity of the larger cities, wealthy Chinamen are buying cars. Consul-General Samuel S. Knabenshue of Tientsin reports that there are perhaps a dozen or more motor cars in Tientsin, two or three of which are owned by Chinese, the others belonging to foreign residents. There are also about half a dozen in Peking.

The route follows El Monte boulevard to Pomona and takes the autoists back over the upper road through the Baldwin Ranch, a scenic route that will interest you.

Dead Weight VS. Elasticity

Live Weight

Invite five or six of your friends to take a spin.

When you are all comfortably seated the chauffeur—maybe—carefully—applies driving power to the rear wheels.

Your party weighs about 1000 pounds—half a ton—in the aggregate.

The clutch slips in.

But,

You all "give way a bit."

Spring seats of leather, and your own muscular elasticity relieve the engine of much more than half of the load—for just an instant.

That moment is enough.

Engine speed means power. The slight bounce, scarcely noticeable, of "live weight," gives the mechanism time to get a-going.

Dead Weight

Start a loaded truck.

The instant you apply power you have to overcome the dead inertia of the load, plus the weight of the car.

A flat floor has none of the elasticity of leather lined seats. And packing cases are not likely to "give way a bit."

This is "dead weight."

You see, there is a fundamental weakness in most automobile trucks. Too often they are merely touring chasses with flat staked bodies instead of spring seats.

This principle is wrong.

The same power application that is designated to speed away with "live weight" will find it extremely difficult to pick up "dead weight."

It may be so today. Possibly again tomorrow. But, by the day after, it will have racked itself to pieces.

Pleasure Power

Consider the road conditions for ordinary passenger or touring traffic.

You will certainly agree that residence avenues are invariably smoother than the pavements surrounding dock and depot platforms. Better for tractive purposes than the highways devoted to freight hauling.

Then, pleasure car control is pretty much hit or miss.

The difference of a foot or two in stopping is of little consequence. No exact point must be located—few difficult maneuvers are required.

So, selective gears are universally regarded as supreme for "live weight" driving.

Commercial Hauls

But how about freight handling by "horseless" vehicles?

Touring cars start from a position parallel to the curbing.

Power trucks are backed up to a loading platform. In starting position, the rear wheels are usually several inches lower than the front of the truck.

Backing into this position requires considerable intricate manipulation of speeds, reverse, etc., and it all has to be done accurately—trucks are standing closely on either side.

The Problem

Trucks are expected to handle "dead weight" under exceedingly unfavorable road and operating conditions.

Therefore,

It logically follows that even the best passenger transmission is radically unsuited for truck driving.

The perfect commercial transmission must automatically and positively supply the elasticity lacking in the load. Garford engineers have been working on this problem for nearly a decade.

Not So Easy

Selective gears, that would run away with seven passenger flyers, were tried.

Yes, they were sorely tried and found wanting in that commercial necessity; freedom from destructive shock in picking up "dead weight."

Differentials gave trouble.

A two-ton load is almost immovable when a bemired driving wheel spins and splashes in futile tractive effort.

A Change

Then an old scheme was tried.

The engine shaft was coupled to a solid disc of alloyed metal. To this surface was applied the fibered rim of a driving wheel, whose jack shaft ended in two sprockets.

Thence, by chain, the power was transmitted to the car wheels.

This is single friction drive.

But the disc was under a constant side strain. Especially when the friction driven wheel was thrown into high speed. That is, placed at the extreme outer edge of the disc.

And the outfit was extremely difficult to reverse.

The Solution

Then, out of the Land of Mechanical Reason, there came a Big Idea.

So admirably it works that—like modern street railway traction alongside of horse-drawn tram cars—we wonder how we ever did business without it.

Why not eliminate side strains? Use no differential or selective gearings? Start, change speeds, stop or reverse instantly?

How?

Dual Friction

It is easy now.

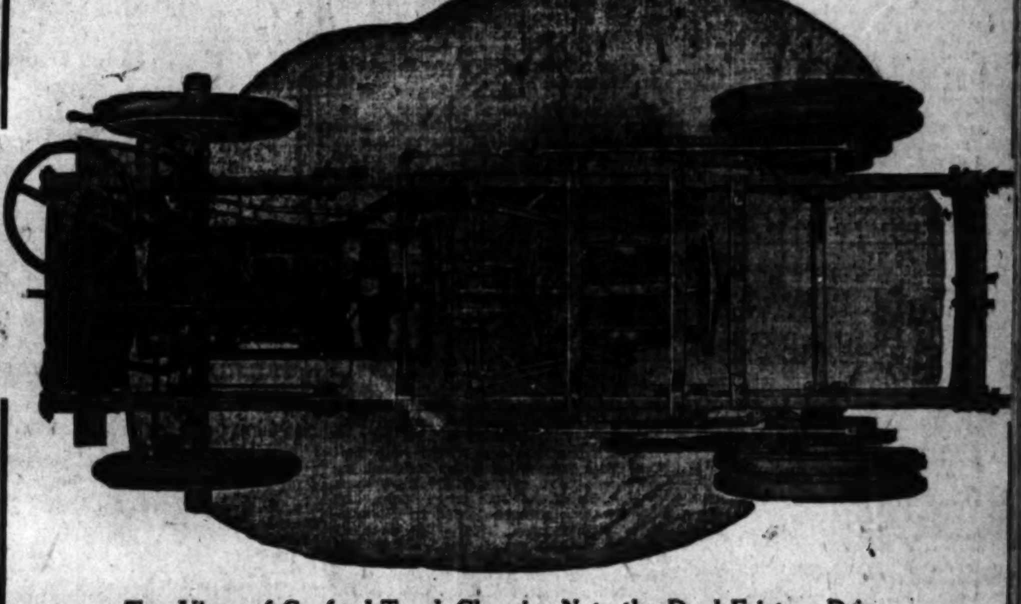
"Dead weight" finds ample elasticity in two fiber rimmed friction wheels. These engage either one of two revolving aluminum alloyed discs. (See Top View.)

One disc for forward speeds. The other is but a small fraction of an inch to the rear of the two friction driven wheels.

Foot pedal movement, instantly shifts the revolving discs forward. The rear points of the friction wheels then engage the back driving disc.

Immediate reverse.

And the truck can be backed as fast as will speed forward.



Top View of Garford Truck Chassis—Note the Dual Fricton Drive

No Racking

You see—the best part of it—there is no destructive jerking on frames, body, load, and engine.

The friction pressure, on either the reverse or forward driving disc, can be varied at will.

Does the fiber take ahold of the alloy when you want it to?

Yes, it does.

We can stall the 40-H. P. engine with the weight of a hand on the pressure pedal.

This proves the transmitting efficiency of Dual Friction Drive.

Elasticity

The friction surface will slip, ever so slightly, in picking up "dead weight."

Like the "live weight" in the touring car, the truck load will momentarily "give way a little."

Then it takes ahold gradually, smoothly and without destructive vibration.

Starting, varied speeds forward or reverse, climbing, turning—all are effected without the slightest unnecessary strain on the power plant, etc.

Durability

Think of what that means.

The motor is always in tip top condition.

There is no crystallization of metal from excessive vibration.

Rivets are not started.

Tires wear twice as long.

The entire outfit works, works right and keeps on working.

Our GARFORD Truck Catalogue is just off the press. It contains many items of vital interest to truck users. We will be pleased to mail you one on request. Remember, the GARFORD two-ton truck is in town, and we will be pleased to demonstrate and show you wherein the GARFORD excels.

BASEBALL CHIPS OFF THE DIAMOND.

How the Great National Game Is Played Around Winter Camp Fires—Spring Migration Begins to Warm Climes for Practice. Fans Rejoice over Activities.

The management of the Pittsburgh team is very anxious for some reason that Walt Nagle should make good as a pitcher in the National League. He probably will if his strength holds out. He is about the best that has ever gone from here to the big bush, in recent years, with the possible exception of Lively. Nagle has the curves and a lot of speed, but he relies on out-guessing the batsman. He is a brainy fellow, who studies each batsman, while Lively relies entirely on curves and speed. After Nagle has been around the circuit once he can tell whether he can make good.

If the big league magnates will try and make some regulation that will prevent their players from competing for autos and such prizes on batting and fielding averages, there would be no talk about crooked baseball. There was a sufficiently large scandal in the American League last year to make the directors sit up and notice.

The Toronto team of the Eeastern League has spent $10,000 this winter for new players that are expected to win the pennant for the team.

The Pacific Coast League is about the only one in the country in which the managers do not trade off ball players to each other. There may be trades at that, but these are always spoken of as "sales."

Frank Ish, principal owner of the San Francisco ball team, is believed to have about $125,000 invested in the plant at Recreation Park.

Wolverton of the Oakland team has bought Outfielder Powell from the Providence team of the Eastern League.

Some of the fans have gotten themselves into the way of thinking that the San Francisco and Vernon teams look about the best so far, and for no other reason than the pitching staff of each team is a strong one. Vernon has every one of its last year's heavers and all of them are reported in good shape.

The Coast League scheme to have but one game each week this season at the Vernon grounds and that on Sunday morning means that the umpire will have a chance for one exciting game each week, at least. Sunday morning games are bad on the umps for the average fan has not had time to recover from Saturday night before he thinks he is called upon to judge a morning ball game. And how he does guess things sometimes!

The Boston Red Sox special train is scheduled to leave Chicago next Monday morning and if it is not delayed it should reach Los Angeles by the following Thursday. Donovan was in Chicago Tuesday making arrangements for the train. The trip will be the longest one ever attempted by any ball club for training purposes.

Owner Charles Murphy of the Chicago Cubs is to have a big shake-up in his team this year. He has hired three new peanut boys and two additional pop water kids. He has released one peanut boy because he ate too many nuts and thus paralyzed the profits of the team.

Ernie Diehl, who is to play utility roles this year for Cincinnati is said to be the best amateur baseball player in the world, which may mean that he will be a bum professional. Still, he is rich enough in his own right so that he does not have to play ball.

Bradley, the new catcher for the San Francisco team is from the Johnstown Club of the Tri-State and has a real ball player's reputation. Last year he hit .283 and fielded .976.

Bowser the Oakland outfielder from Flint, Mich., looks good on paper for he led the Southern Michigan League last year with a batting average of .342 in 116 games, which is sousing the ball some. It's a 10 to 1 bet that he will not do anything like that out here.

There is a strong chance that McArdle, the San Francisco shortstop will be sent up to the Portland team of the Northwest League for he is not in very strong with Danny Long. When Long gets something on one of his players it takes years to get it off sometimes.

Horace Fogel, once manager of the New York Giants, released Jack Doyle because Fogel declared that he hit into a triple play, purposely. Washington signed Doyle at the same salary and gave him $500 as a bonus. Just imagine a ball player deliberately hitting into a triple play.

Had to Have 'Em.

PAIR OF "PANTS" PRODUCED FIRST NO-HIT, NO-RUN GAME.

Few of the fan flock are aware of the fact that but for a pair of trousers the debut of the first southpaw pitcher in the majors would have been delayed several years and the archives of the sport might be minus one great record.

It was the need of the wherewithal to purchase a pair of "pants" that induced J. Lee Richmond, the first southpaw in the big show to hurl against Pop Anson's team about thirty-two years ago and it was his remarkable work in that contest that caused his signing by the Worcester (Mass.) club, for whom he pitched the first no-hit, no-run, no-man-reach first base contest in 1880 against Cleveland.

Back in '79, Brown University boasted of a start left-hand pitcher who answered to the name of J. Lee Richmond. Rich was some hurler and his pitching was cutting quite a swath in collegiate circles. At that time heartside heavers were rarities, making him a curiosity on the diamond.

GOT $10 FOR PANTS.

The Worcester club, an independent organization, scheduled a contest with the Chicago National team, that mighty horde of sluggers, led by the redoubtable "Pop" Anson. At this juncture Worcester's pitcher fell ill and in this dire strait Bancroft, then manager of the club, wired for Winslow, and Richmond, Brown's star battery, offering them $10 each and expenses.

As the westerners had just beaten the Boston team three times in a row, Richmond hesitated about acepting the offer. Winslow, however, figured that he would shortly need a new pair of trousers and the ten would help foot the bill. Consequently he induced his batterymate to go for friendship's sake.

The dauntless swatsmen from the Windy City, unaccustomed to a southpaw pitcher, fell before his delivery with a resounding thump, being shut out in a seven-inning game, but twenty-one men facing him throughout the engagement. Not a hit was secured off him.

Wild with delight at the work of the youngster, the Worcester management signed him at once and, featuring him as the first and only southpaw in captivity, toured the New England States. Richmond returned to school at the close of the season to continue his studies.

PITCHED NO-HIT GAME.

In 1880 Worcester joined the National League and Richmond returned to the club after the spring term. The pitching distance had been changed that year handicapping the hurler to no little extent, but on June 12 of that year, Richmond succeeded in blanking Cleveland 1 to 0 at their park, without the semblance of a hit. Not a man saw first base during this contest. Five days later, Johnny Ward of the Providence team, duplicated this feat against Buffalo, shutting out the Bisons without allowing a player to see first base.

J. Lee Richmond's success in the box was owing to a peculiar set of curves that he had evolved, instead of throwing curves that broke in and out his ball broke upwards or downwards His jump ball was one of the biggest successes of the period, while his tantalizing drop greatly resembled the far-famed "fade-away" employed by Christy Mathewson of the Giants.

Richmond did not remain in baseball for any length of time. In 1882 he joined Providence, but left that club in '83, after his graduation from Brown, to practice medicine. At present he is an instructor in mathematics and the sciences at Toledo High School, a position he has held for twenty-one years.

Lyle McKenney,

Occidental third baseman, who is doing good work this year.

CRACK THIRD BASEMAN.

McKenny Plays on All College Teams and Takes Part in Occidental Student Activities.

Lyle McKenny, the crack third baseman of Occidental College, has played that position on the 'varsity baseball team for the four years of his college course. He is considered the best infielder on the Tiger team. Last season he was picked on the all-Southern California team to hold down the third sack. He was captain of the 'varsity last year.

McKenney has not been in good shape this season. He sprained his knee in a basketball game and it has not entirely recovered. But he is improving rapidly and the Tigers are looking to him to play his position again this year.

McKenny is not only a fine baseball player, but he is good along all lines of athletics. He has won his letter four years straight in basketball. He has played two seasons of football, and he has been a member of every team that his class has placed on the field in the inter-class contests. He has not only played third base on the ball team, but he has sung first base on the Tiger Glee Club for the last four years, and has been soloist on all trips.

Larry Has Idea.

LAJOIE KNOWN AS INVENTOR.

THINKS OUT SCHEME TO BREAK HIT-AND-RUN PLAY.

Bluff Dash by Runner on First Base Would Indicate to Batsman Where Grounder Might Be Batted Safely—Hit-and-Run Only Good on Swats Toward Right Field.

Larry Lajoie, of the Cleveland club, is credited with inventing a play which greatly reduced the effectiveness of the hit-and-run, and which limits that style of play to batters who can hit to right field.

A bluff start by the runner on first, when the hit-and-run was to be played, showed whether the second baseman or shortstop would cover second to take the throw, and the batter tried to hit through the position to be left unguarded. Larry saw that this could be broken up by switching orders on covering second. It was a simple play, but had long been overlooked. The batter, instead of hitting through an unguarded position, hit into a sure double play if he made a grounder. That was the end of the bluff start to see who would cover.

The necessity of both the second baseman and the shortstop being able to tag out runners was another result of Larry's play. It naturally followed that the better infielder at putting the ball on the runner would take most of the throws. The batter tried to hit through the strong player's territory, taking it for granted that he would cover second. The infielders at second began to divide the work according to the batters being right or left-field hitters.

The hit-and-run has came to be considered a good play only when the batter can hit the ball between the first and second baseman. As few can do this, the hit-and-run has ceased to be the style of any one team.

AUTOMOBILE ROUTES.

For some years the Belgian Congo has promoted the building of automobile routes for freight carriage in order to do away with costly transportation on the backs of men before the colony can be adequately supplied with railroads. One of these routes, starting from Stanley Pool, extends to the southeast and will penetrate the Kwango-Kasai country, which is particularly rich in rubber; another starts from Lusambo, at the head of navigation on the great Sankuru affluent of the Congo, with the idea of tapping the Katanga province, rich in agricultural resources, but noted chiefly for its extensive copper fields.

FARMERS BUY CARS.

Approximately 26,000 automobiles were bought by farmers in the United States during 1910, according to latest reliable estimates. This was an increase of 85 per cent. over the number of cars bought by farmers the year previous.

WILD CAREER HAD OLD TEX.

Found and Lost Several Large Fortunes.

Made One Million Dollars From One Saloon.

Dropped More Than That Sum in Recent Panic.

Rickard, probably the most in- character in the sporting world, last week told the story of his career, from a cowpuncher a millionaire. Forty years old now rolling in wealth, his life has been series of ups and downs.

At 11 years Rickard started life as cowpuncher on the Texas frontier. with barely car fare, he went Texas to Alaska. In less than years he made $57,000 on Daw- mining properties there. In June the following year, 1898, he was He had sunk his entire and things broke disastrously

In the spring of 1899 he went to with $35 and started a gam- house there. In the fall of the year he had cleared up $40,000. year after his $35 start he was to the good and in five years worth a half million. He sank in mining properties then and be- months had lost all but $16,- With this he went to Goldfield in and with a partner invested $15,- the Northern saloon. panic of 1907 came near put- down and out for good. Min- went bad, and he dropped in cash. He had held con- property, however, and when boomed again he sold his prop- realizing enough for another start. When he went east last to bid for the Johnson-Jeffries he was suspected to be broke, he was far from it.

Rickard is preparing for to South America.

"you contemplating anything of nature?" he was asked.

he replied, "the fight game is I'm going back to my cattle raising."

"Knockout" Brown,

showing wonderful muscular development of the boy who got the better of Ad Wolgast.

Stirring It Up.

HOT BOXING DOPE DISHED OUT FROM M'CAREY'S HEADQUARTERS.

FRANKIE SULLIVAN has returned from a trip to Bakersfield and would like to go on in the local ring with Kid Snyder. This Snyder is a good boy and he and Sullivan will probably meet in a preliminary at the Wolgast-Memsic fight next month.

Willie Fairbanks is in town again from San Francisco, where he has been living a number of months. He fought Young Harlem Coffee Cooler here, recently beat Norman Stone up north, and is anxious to get on here again.

Hobo Dougherty desires to step out of the preliminary class and is willing to fight Kid Dalton or some other of the local lightweights. As Dalton is also desirous, they will in all probability be matched.

Morrie Bloom got his in Oakland the other night when he was beaten easily by Johnny McCarthy in six rounds. Bloom came here last summer with quite a reputation, but has apparently lost it.

Joe Conley, manager of his brother, Frankie, is sending press agent letters all over the country in which it is stated that after the battle with Coulon on February 26, Conley intends to camp right on the trail of Abe Attell. In the first place, Abe has a broken arm, so they say, and in the second place, Conley had better try and get by Coulon before he goes after Attell.

Jim Flynn, not seeing a chance to get on with the Carl Morris, the white hope, has written to McCarey asking for a battle in this city with almost any one Mac can get for him. It strikes one that any pug who could persuade even dub critics to give him a "decision" over Sam Langford should be a big drawing card in any man's town. About all this is, however, is a theory.

Freddie Couture, who beat little Eddie Dennis up North last week, may be seen here against the winner of the Sullivan-Snyder bout.

Manager McCarey of the local club has no less than ten fighters in San Francisco alone who are anxious to come here and box for any old purse. With this bunch in sight the chances are that McCarey will soon arrange an inter-city programme, in which one set of pugs will be pitted against the other set.

Both Lew Powell and Frankie Burns are heralded as persistent challengers of Ad Wolgast and would like to fight him. Just ask Powell if he had the same idea the morning after Wolgast beat him to a frazzle in San Francisco a little more than a year ago.

trans-continental line of the Southern Pacific will soon be running through this country and then it will become a popular resort for Southern California hunters.

Already plans are being made at Lone Pine, which is one of the largest towns in the valley, for a magnificent hotel and summer resort. The El Camino Sierra, one of California's most beautiful roads, is bound to be one of the scenic spots of America and with the snow-capped peak of Mt. Whitney in the distance it can be questioned as to whether Switzerland and the Alps offer any more attractive inducements to the summer tourist.

The Owens Aqueduct together with the new railroad which has already entered the country, has opened up one of the most beautiful spots for grandeur and scenery that can be found in the world.

Why Is This?

THIRD BASE STARS SCARCE.

None in Either Big League Is a Wonder.

Morarity, Byrne and Lord are Most Thought Of.

"Sensation" May Be Shown in Coming Season.

"The major leagues can show a distinct star for every position on a baseball team but one," says H. G. Sakingar, in the Detroit News. "There is no real first-class third baseman in the game. Talk of pitchers, and Mathewson, Johnson, Walsh, Bender, Coombs and a few other names appear. Discuss catchers, and Gibson and Kling will be suggested. At first base are Chase, Konetchy and Chance. Second base has Lajoie, Collins and Evers. Bush, Wagner and Tinker lead the shortstop division. Cobb, Speaker, Milan, Mitchell and Magee are mentioned in the outfield—but mention third base and not one name stands out, distinct, prominent and undisputed.

"Some argue that third base is the hardest position on the team to fill. Others say that this is an era in which third sackers are absent. They point to the fact that the National League has no outfielder who can equal either Cobb or Speaker, while the American League has no first-class catcher, but in the case of third baseman neither league can claim superiority and neither can claim a star.

"Three men have been selected from each league. These three are picked to be the best in their organization. In the American League, Lord, Baker and Morarity lead; in the National the three are Devlin, Byrne and Grant. Each of these six men has his followers and they appear equally divided, and each player has some of the qualities that one of the others does not possess, and lacks some of those that the other has.

WHERE "MORRY" LACKS.

"Take in the American League. Detroit's George Morarity ranks as one of the most aggressive infielders in the game. But George is not a clean fielder. He does not play a ball cleanly like Lord and, although game to the core and of splendid physique, he does not use his body to the same advantage that Lord does.

"Morarity is a valuable infielder, a good man on the team. He is a good batsman, but he could be much better could he break himself of swinging hard on the ball. He swings himself out of a .300 batting average. He is good on inside baseball, good in pinches and good on the hit-and-run stunt.

"Lord is the cleanest fielding third baseman in the league. He is about the equal of Morarity as a batsman, but many will claim for "Morry" a better knowledge of inside baseball and Morarity is a far better team worker than Lord.

BAKER HAS BATTING ABILITY.

"Baker cannot stand alongside of Lord, but is Morarity's superior as a hitter.

"Baker can hit a ball as hard as any man in the American League. Bill Donovan and others claim that he seems to smash them harder than any batsman they ever hurled against. He is a clean hitter and a good man for clean-up purposes.

"That is the best in the American League. Could Lord hit like Baker, get the same aggressive style that Morarity has and work with his fellow-team-mates like Morarity can he would stand out as the best of third sackers, while if Morarity could learn to discard his terrific swings and field as cleanly as Lord he would occupy that position. Baker would lead if he could borrow from Morarity and Lord.

IN THE NATIONAL LEAGUE.

"Arthur Devlin and Bobby Byrne would fight for first place in the National League. Eddie Grant would lend some excitement to the race. They are easily the best the parent organization can offer at third.

"Devlin as a member of the Giants, has furnished much inside baseball and good team work. He is a good fielder, but unable to equal either Byrne or Grant when it comes to hitting.

"Grant does not possess the inside knowledge and the team work that Devlin can pull off, but he is a good fielder and also an excellent batsman.

"Little Byrne leads the third sackers of both leagues in hitting. Devlin and Grant are both said to be better fielders, however. Byrne is a valuable team worker and he has other valuable assets.

"So it remains for the season of 1911 or some season in the future to produce a third sacker who will rank with the men who lead at the other positions."

THISTLES AND RANGERS.

To Play Off Tie for Soccer Championship—Neither Has Suffered Defeat.

The Thistles and Rangers soccer football teams, which have been rivals for the championship honors of Southern California for the last three years, are to meet at Praeger Park this afternoon in the deciding match of the year.

Both teams have gone through the season with an undefeated record. The two elevens played a tie game early in the winter. The entire English population of Los Angeles is discussing the possible outcome of the game today and the twenty-two players will enter the contest with as much of the fight spirit as a soccer game will permit.

K. T. Low, the latest addition to the Ranger eleven, has an international record in Great Britain. He played with the Scotch team which won the championship of the island from England a few years ago. He just recently came from Manchester where he has been playing with one of the best soccer teams in the country.

The Thistles will rely on the team work of the speedy quartette of forwards, Gorfunkle, Buchan, S. Brown and H. Brown to run up the winning points.

The line-up:

Rangers.	Position.	Thistles.
McCubbin	G.	Burdon
J. Mitchell	R.F.	Murphy
Smith	L.F.	Newman
Mellor	R.H.	Carlton
C. Burleigh	C.H.	Milford
R. Riley	L.H.	Munro
Meldrum	O.R.	Gorfunkle
Low	I.R.	McDay
Mitchell	C.F.	Buchan
Other	I.L.	H. Brown
A. Burleigh	O.L.	S. Brown

HUGHEY SMITH, HOLD OUT.

There is only one "hold out" on the Los Angeles ball club, and that is none other than Catcher Hughey Smith. Manager Berry has received the signed contract of every one of his old and new players with the exception of Smith. When the new contracts were sent out this year Smith was given a raise of $25 a month, which was probably about what Dillon thought he was worth above last year's salary. Oh, horrors! Smith sent the contract back unsigned, and it is still in that condition. He even asked for more money than the raise given him. "I don't care if he don't sign it," is all Dillon says.

What Do You Think?

This is Ray Dooley, and Manager Worley of the Los Angeles Theater is fearfully agitated because petite Miss Dooley simply won't wear tights—or even long stockings. She says that she is supposedly playing a small boy—one of the knickers, bare knee and socks genus—and that realistic art demands that her own knees and adjacent limbistic territory be directly exposed to the circumambient. It may be noted, however, that while Mr. Worley has been biting his finger nails and agitatedly running back and forth, the front rows have never had a vacant chair at any performance since Miss Dooley has been upon the Los Angeles stage.

CORONADO GOLF.

Handicap for Men to Be Feature of Three Days' Tournament—Women to Compete for Trophy.

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 18.—Preparations have been made at the Coronado Country Club for the Hotel del Coronado cup golf handicap for men, which is to begin Monday, February 20, and continue three days. The dates for the Coronado championship for women have been changed to February 27, 28, March 1 and 2.

The cup handicap for men will begin with a qualifying round over 18 holes, 16 to qualify. The cup must be won three times by the same player. The winner of this year's tournament is to receive a gold medal, the runner-up a silver prize. The cup was won in 1909 by Chapman Young of San Diego, and in 1910 by G. A. Burrow of Liverpool, Eng.

The Coronado championship for women is to be for a trophy presented by the club. The qualifying round will be played over 18 holes, eight to qualify. For the best score a gold medal will be given the player. The winner of the tournament is to receive a silver replica of the trophy, which must be won three times to become the property of any player. A silver medal will be given the runner-up. Miss Isabella Smith won the trophy last year.

The California Women's Golfers' Association will hold its annual tournament at the Coronado Country Club March 3 and at the San Diego Country Club March 4.

FOOTBALL STAR THRASHES BULLY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RENO (Nev.) Feb. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] One of the fiercest fights ever witnessed in Nevada took place on the main streets of Yerington yesterday, when Charles Thrailkell, known as the "Bully of Bovard and Yerington," went down for the count from an uppercut delivered by Louis Leavitt, a University of Nevada graduate and a member of the All-Coast Rugby fifteen, which visited Australia last year.

The fight precipitated when Thrailkell applied a vile epithet to Leavitt. Leavitt immediately told Thrailkell to prepare to fight. Both men, large and athletic fellows, threw off their coats and went at it in the street. For twenty minutes they struck and countered, but finally the "bully" was laid low by an uppercut on the jaw. The fight was witnessed by almost the entire population of Yerington.

BOWLING SCORES.

Arbogast crept into second place in the individual standing of the Electric League bowlers at Brunswick Alleys last week by outclassing Roop, the Woodill-Hulse crack roller, who tied with him the week previous. The Woodill-Hulse team rolled up the high team game for the tournament, largely due to Myers 237-pin game which is high score for the season.

"CO-EDS" ADOPT BASEBALL.

Diamonds to Be Constructed for Stanford Girls and Inter-Sorority Series Is Being Arranged.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Feb. 17.—The "co-eds" at Stanford have "gone in" for real baseball. A diamond is to be constructed near Roble gymnasium and it will be supplemented by a practice field to be laid out at one end of the hockey field. The construction of these diamonds is necessary on account of the intense interest that is being shown in the sport. A large number of girls are engaging in the game daily and many are proficient in all departments of the game.

The new sport is expected to prove a beneficial addition to women's athletics. A series of matches is being arranged among the sororities and other girls' clubs. These contests are expected to furnish lots of excitement. Batting and fielding averages of the players are to be compiled by gallant members of the staff of the students' daily paper.

A Little Talk on Motor Ca

An automobile is not an extravagance. It is an economy. It increases your efficiency. It makes "two grow for you—where only one grew before." Some extravagant people buy automobiles, but not very Only a few really extravagant people ever can afford to buy them. They spend their money for less useful Think that over.

The automobile industry is now the third in the country in point of volume and is still growing. The sensible, careful-buying business man has made this volume possible. If the motor car was an extravag would soon find it out—and quit buying. But he goes on buying. He sees that the motor car is a necessity.

But there is something more than the mere buying of a motor car—for after you have taken delivery of car, all is not over.

This Question of Service

From the time you take delivery of your motor car this question of service enters. For no matter how good a car you buy, there will always be little matters come up in which the dealer can assist you. As it is to his interest to have pleased customers, so it is to the customers' interest to have a successful dealer back of the car.

A One Price Car

The Chalmers is a one price car. It is sold to every purchaser on the same basis. Every owner of a Chalmers is on an equal footing with every other owner.

Orphan Cars

These days of cut prices emphasize the fact that you should select the dealer back of the car as well as the car itself. Ask yourself these questions:

"Will the dealer from whom I buy my car, be in business so that he is in a position to take care of me a year from now?"

"Will he maintain the price of his cars, or will he sudden to retire from business leaving me with a homeless my hands?"

"Does he carry a sufficient stock of parts to take care case of accidents?"

"Has he a well equipped service department?"

Another Thing

Here is a plain statement of fact—indisputable. in your mind and don't forget it—

No dealer can sell you cars at a cut price, render after he has sold you AND STAY IN BUSINESS.

So In Any Event You Pay

Either a fair and legitimate price in the first instance good service rendered you by a dealer who remains in or you buy at a cut price and pay for your service

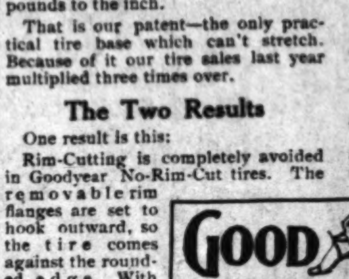
Tires 10% Oversize

25% More Mileage—At No Extra Cost

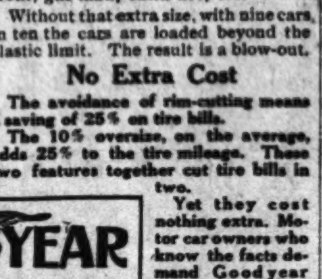
Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tires save one-fourth on tire bills by being 10% oversize.

They save another one-fourth by making rim-cutting impossible.

Yet they cost nothing extra. That is why 64 leading motor car makers have contracted for these tires for their 1911 models.



Ordinary Clincher Tire



The No-Rim-Cut Tire

All ordinary tires—clincher tires—have hooks on the base to hook into the rim flanges. That is how the tires are held on.

Goodyear-No-Rim-Cut tires have no hooks on the base. They stay on without hooks—and without tire bolts—because the base is made unstretchable. It can't be forced over the rim flange.

Into the base we vulcanize 126 braided piano wires. They contract under air pressure, so the inflated tire is held to the rim by a pressure of 134 pounds to the inch.

That is our patent—the only practical tire base which can't stretch. Because of it our tire sales last year multiplied three times over.

The Two Results

One result is this:

Rim-Cutting is completely avoided in Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tires. The removable rim flanges are set to hook outward, so the tire comes against the rounded edge. With the clincher tire they must be set to hook inward.

And those thin rim flanges digging into the tire cause all the ruin of rim-cutting.

Another result is this:

The No-Rim-Cut tire begins to flare right from the base of the rim. Thus we can make it 10% oversize and still fit the rim.

We do that. We give you this 10% extra air—10% extra carrying capacity—without any extra cost.

We do that to avoid overloading—to carry your extras, like top, glass front, gas tank, extra tire, etc.

Without that extra size, with nine cars in ten the cars are loaded beyond the elastic limit. The result is a blow-out.

No Extra Cost

The avoidance of rim-cutting means a saving of 25% on tire bills.

The 10% oversize, on the average, adds 25% to the tire mileage. These two features together cut tire bills in two.

Yet they cost nothing extra. Motor car owners who know the facts demand Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tires.

Marco Polo.

THE CHEVALIER BACK TO WORK.

SAMPLES TWENTY-NINE LANDS, BUT RETURNS HERE.

Being Some Account of the Adventures of Librettist Pixley on a Three-Year Tour—Shakespeare in the Orient—The Sultan With an Axe to Grind.

BY JULIAN JOHNSON.

Chevalier de Pixley, who has been Marco Poloing for three years, has returned to Los Angeles to work.

While wandering from Greenland's icy mountains to the extensively advertised coral strand of India, three comic operas have accumulated within Mr. Pixley's brain.

Literary surgeons pronounce the case grave and critical. Mr. Pixley himself feels that the imaginative pressure can only be relieved by a careful and extensive typewriter operation, so he is going to operate.

Mr. and Mrs. Pixley are at the home of a relative in the West End, and are as happy as Adam and Eve on the Tuesday after the first Monday, except that Mrs. Pixley's recent accident in Japan still deprives her of the use of a foot. She expects to be in edwardpaysonweston order in a few weeks, however.

The Pixleys have visited twenty-nine countries since leaving Los Angeles, and have traveled 57,000 miles. Put into a perpendicular line, that little distance would have established an altitude record not likely to be broken and would have sent them safely out of sight of the lights of Broadway and too far to hear the noises of Chicago—but probably not far enough to miss the siren note of expanding Los Angeles.

Mr. Pixley was received into citizenship by the seven warring nations of India, chummed with the Australians, gave points to the progressives of Japan on the building of their new national theater, was elected to honorary membership in the orthodox and pre-destined band of Philippine head-hunters, made newspaper copy on the wrangles of railroad graft in China, begged off from eating roast dog in Madagascar, wrested the secrets of mysterious and ancient Java from a priest as old as Methuselah, gained a sheaf of new legends of paradisial Taj Mahal, chummed with the Parsees of Persia, and went over Europe—which of course he already knew—with a fine-tooth comb. His European wanderings were from the Arctic circle to the blue waters of the Mediterranean.

Also the Sultan of Sulu took a great fancy to him.

But the Sultan was grinding the ax of personal glory.

When Mr. Pixley departed from the royal presence, there was an elaborate to-do, and he became the possessor of the regal silver ring, set with the sacred carnelian, presented to his dusky highness on his trip to Mecca. Mr. Pixley was almost in tears, but the mist of gratitude passed when the nabob, clutching him by the shoulder, whispered eagerly: "You funny play maker. Now you go home an' make me big man—hero. I don't like to be damn fool."

Mr. Pixley has traveled so far afield that he has left political squabbles and contemporary smallnesses well behind him.

Therefore none of his new works, concerning which he speaks only in vague generalities, will satirize passing events.

When he arrived here, the other day, he found a cablegram from his illustrious music-maker, Mr. Luders. The famous partnership, which created "The Prince of Pilsen," "The Burgomaster," "King Dodo" and other pieces is again in full swing.

NEW OPERA DAY.

The librettist plans to work here until next summer.

"A new day has dawned for comic opera," says he. "Years ago, they used to put all their dramatic art upon profoundly series plays. Only occasionally could an expert be found meddling with a thing regarded so trivial as comedy. But as the pressure of life became heavier and heavier, audiences turned away from tragedy to comedy, for relief, and today, I believe, you will find the finest genius of the stage at work upon comedy, or at most, upon plays of only semi-serious nature. The same thing happened to opera, but it was longer in arriving. Grand opera was once upon a time considered the only thing worth the attention of a really talented composer, and the geniuses who ventured into serious music were so occasional as to be remarkable. Nowadays the very finest arts of composition and melodic design are not deemed too choice for comic opera, hence we have the works of Strauss and Lehar, and their kind—really an ornament to European music as a whole. America is not going to fall behind Europe, either. This is a Renaissance, as you said in The Times last Sunday."

ORIENTAL SHAKESPEARE.

Mr. Pixley's keenest theatrical entertainment was at Shakespearean productions in the Orient.

"In Rangoon"—says he—"I visited the theater of a native company which was attempting 'The Merchant of Venice.' For an orchestra they had a wheezy melodeon, and the music was more accidental than incidental, since the chauffeur of the tune-box was a native and unlicensed amateur—and his only library was a book of antiquated American popular songs. At the approach of Shylock he strummed 'If Yo' Ain't Got No Money Yo' Needn't Come 'Round,' and in the love scenes played with sentiment, 'My Gal's a High-Born Lady.'

"In the theaters of Japan a play was formerly considered all too short unless it ran three or four days, but to the dismay of the stand-patters the progressives have tri-sected the time-limit, so that now a respectable dramatic offering is supposed to endure from 11 in the morning until midnight. The audience stands it very well as far as the Orientals are concerned, but Occidentals go visiting and accept dinner engagements between the acts.

"When they come to play Shakespeare they have to double up a little. Therefore, I saw, at one performance, 'Hamlet,' 'King Lear' and 'Othello.' Others offered them a puzzle in casting. Why should a black man be an object of antipathy? There's no reason at all, as far as the Japanese can see, for a black man is as good as a white, and maybe better—if he's healthier and has a more amiable disposition. The genius of this theater, however, saw a way out of the difficulty. To the chosen of Japan a Chinaman is indeed a Gentile and a barbarian; so Othello was a Chinaman.

"The end of the play was not quite satisfactory, either. The Japanese mind is not satisfied unless the tragedy is complete, and the idea of Othello surviving his asphyxial crime was appalling. Remorse was not sufficient as a punishing agent, so five husky coolies entered, seized the pig-tailed villain, broke all the furniture and most of the windows with his unfortunate body, and then uncermoniously dropped him off the back porch into a lake. We were assured that he drowned, for we heard the splash. Then the five grinning coolies took all the curtain calls and the entire honors of the play. They were the ultimate avengers, and therefore the sole heroes.

"Funny? Well, I saw one performance of 'Othello,' farther south, at Singapore, that was funnier than that. All the participants were almost black by natural color, and to differentiate they had an albino Othello. For the English-speaking auditor, it was to yell.

"At the present time the most expensive Japanese theater probably cost no more than $15,000 for its component parts are principally paper and bamboo. The progressive Mikado has set apart ground for a new national theater, which will be a magnificent structure embodying every detail of architectural technique known to the greatest playhouse builders of modern times.

"Then, in all probability, there will be a serious attempt at drama as we know it.

"On the legitimate stage of Japan, women are never seen—as yet Japan's greatest actor was Danjairo, who died a number of years ago, and who is accounted the equal of any actor of present-day Europe or America. So great was Danjairo's mimetic power and art in make-up that at the age of 59 he could impersonate, with the most exquisite delicacy and youthful grace, a luscious, red-lipped young Geisha.

CORSET TROUBLES.

"The Empress is bound not to be behind the Emperor in up-to-dateness, and she is rigid in conforming to the requirements of the latest European dress for all official and semi-official court occasions. Once a year a Japanese woman exactly of the Empress's figure is sent to Paris. Accompanying her are line-for-line duplicates of each of the crown princesses, and these models return with complete outfits from Worth's and Pacquin's. No grande dame was ever more elegant than this little old lady of 60 years, trudging sturdily about on high French heels with her shimmering boulevard gowns clinging about her slender figure. When she first adopted European attire the Empress was paralyzed at the sight of a corset. When it was laboriously explained to her that this inquisitorial instrument was a necessary accompaniment of decollete gowns, she said a ceremonious Japanese equivalent of 'Well, I'm a sport!' and retired to her boudoir, where she donned it. It was evident, all through a state dinner which followed, that the tiny body which had never known the confinement of a stay was suffering intensely, but she smiled cheerily through the meal—and fainted at the end of it. When her maids removed her ornate attire, they found the corset—wrong side out!"

India, according to Mr. Pixley, presents little that is of new interest in the arts, for the inhabitants are a group of smileless nations, chafing sullenly under the English yoke, but absolutely ruled by the foreigner, who, with a prestidigitator's skill sends regiments of native Mohammedans to keep the lid on Buddhist districts, and sets the Parsee on police duty in the midst of Shintoism. The hill men abhor the denizens of the plains, and no conspiracy is ever formed which is not broken by the revelations of the interwrangling natives themselves. But for all that British regency is enthroned on a powder can, and in these free-trade ports there is the most rigid of customs inspections—for arms.

Mr. Pixley visited for some days with the Maharajah of Udapur, and was entertained by him at his marble, lake-encircled palace—a palace humming with the prattling tongues of the Maharajah's 700 wives. This out-classer of Brigham Young offered to share his connubial estate with Mr. Pixley, to the extent of at least one, but Mrs. Pixley couldn't decide just which solemn, cow-eyed beauty she preferred for a traveling companion; so the polygamizing of our librettist was indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Pixley has entirely recovered from the indisposition which laid him low in Italy last year.

TRAVELING SHOWS NEXT WEEK.

"Taxi Girl" at Theater de Wyatt, While "Merry Widow" Will Return to Majestic.

"The Girl in the Taxi," a hilarious melange of music and merriment, will be the attraction at the Mason for the week beginning Monday night, February 27. In Paris, it scored a sensation and its engagement eclipsed all previous long runs in that city where long careers are common. In Chicago, where the first American presentation was made, it ran for upward of 250 nights. At the Astor theater in New York the play was equally successful and capacity audiences were in evidence. The story of "The Girl in the Taxi" concerns the escapades of pretty Mignon, the wife of a perfume manufacturer, and the efforts of Bertie Stewart to keep an appointment with her for a midnight supper at the Cafe Churchill. Papa Stewart, Bertie's father, while posing as the possessor of all the domestic virtues, goes away to the same restaurant to meet a couple of chorus girls. Bertie's cousin from Philadelphia, Percy by name, who has come to New York for throat treatment by a physician who practices chiefly among the girls of the stage, turns up at the same dining place to keep an appointment with a vaudeville artiste. From this one can judge how amusing the complications that ensue must be when all three meet.

Henry W. Savage's production of "The Merry Widow" will start a week's engagement, with the usual matinees, at the Hamburger Majestic one week from tonight.

This presentation of Franz Lehar's light opera classic is a sort of a farewell, as the piece will not be seen again in this part of the country for four years. Beginning next season, Mr. Savage has decided to divide the United States and Canada into four sections which will be played alternately. For the production to be shown at the Majestic Mr. Savage has assembled a cast of excellence, it is said, the members of which were drafted from the numerous "Merry Widow" companies which have been playing the principal cities of America during the past three years. Mabel Wilbur, who headed the company that made the transcontinental tour from New York to San Francisco, last season, will be seen in the titular role; Charles Meakins will play Prince Danilo; Ivy Scott, an Australian songbird, who is appearing for one year under Mr. Savage's direction, will sing "Natalie;" R. E. Graham, Fred Frear and F. J. McCarthy, the three leading comedians of the original company that played "The Merry Widow" in New York, will appear in the parts with which they have become so thoroughly identified. Harold Blake, a foremost lyric tenor, will sing De Jolidon.

Solace and Sentiment.

UNUSUAL RUN STILL UNBROKEN.

AMAZING "CAMPUS" WILL ENTER EIGHTH WEEK TODAY.

Belasco's Success, "Is Matrimony a Failure?" at Burbank Today. Continuance of Success at Belasco Theater—Interesting Vaudeville Announcements.

"The Campus" will commence the eighth week of its run at the Grand Operahouse this afternoon. This announcement might be expected by everyone who has had occasion to venture near the box office during the past week.

From the size of the audiences that have attended the performances of the seventh week of "The Campus" and from the demand for seats it is evident that the De Leon play is still one of the most popular entertainments on the local stage and so far there is surely no indication that the public interest is decreasing.

Two new features will mark the opening of the eighth week. The scenic production will be new yhile the presentation will be considerably brightened and beautified by new costumes which are much more elaborate than those which have so far been shown in the play and which will be indentical with the costumes used by the company when Walter De Leon and "Muggins" Davies go forth on their starring tour at the close of the present season of the Hartman company at the Grand.

Another enjoyable feature is the new song number which has been added to the second act and which promises to be a distinct hit. This is entitled the "Musical Hug" and is all the result of Mr. De Leon reading an article in The Times in which Herbert A. Howe, dean of the Denver University slips dancing an awful jolt by claiming it is nothing less than a musical hug. The song as well as the dance is original and catchy and will undoubtedly become as popular as others of the song hits of the play.

The cast for the eighth week remains the same, with Walter De Leon, Ferris Hartman, "Muggins" Davies, Josie Hart, Robert Leonard, Myrtle Dingwall and the other principals of the company still receiving praise for clever work, while the chorus comes in for its share of applause for spirited and delightful work in the ensemble numbers.

"Is Matrimony a Failure?" a comedy by Leo Deitrichstein, author of a score of successes, will be given its first Los Angeles production at the Burbank Theater this week. It was given for an entire year at the Republic Theater, New York, under the direction of David Belasco, and is now being played with much success in London. While the title of the comedy propounds a problem as old as the world itself, the proposition is not treated so seriously as to assume the aspect of a debate. It is all for fun, and if the wise ones can read a little philosophy into the merriment they get that much added enjoyment from it. There will be a special matinee Wednesday, Washington's Birthday.

"Is Matrimony a Failure?" takes its name from the title of a play which the leading character in it, Skelton Perry, has written. This play declares that matrimony is a failure, and when its authorship is discovered it causes a tremendous sensation in the little town where Perry lives. He is denounced by every one, including his own relatives. Suddenly it is discovered that a great many of the marriages in the town have been illegally performed and the couples are free. Perry has previously declared that if the matrimonial shackles were removed very few would willingly resume them, and events temporarily justify his belief. The remainder of the play has to do with the complications which follow the separation of the erstwhile married couples. There is no cessation in the fun until the final curtain.

The Burbank company will give a splendid performance of this piece if it ever has given one in its entire history, as it has had five weeks' almost constant rehearsal. The entire company will appear, as well as auxiliary players, as there are twenty-three speaking parts in the comedy.

As was almost a foregone conclusion at the first performance of Lewis S. Stone and Marjorie Rambeau in "The Girl in Waiting" at the Belasco, this Hartley Manners comedy will be continued for another week. At her first appearance with Mr. Stone and his associates Miss Rambeau received an ovation which lasted for fully five minutes and it seems certain that she has leaped into instant popularity with the Belasco patrons. That the combination of Lewis S. Stone and Miss Rambeau has been received with pleasure by local play patrons is shown by the audiences which have attended the Belasco during the past week, for the attendance has taxed the house to its utmost seating capacity.

Not only have Mr. Stone and Miss Rambeau scored a decided hit in "The Girl in Waiting," but every member of the company is admirably cast and all have come in for their share of praise from both the press and the theatergoers. Arthur Hull, a newcomer to the Belasco forces, who made his first appearance in "The Girl in Waiting," is suave and well-groomed as the rascally "Mr. Bland;". Charles Giblyn has made a distinct hit in the role of Montague Witherspoon, while Adele Farrington is exceptionally well cast as Mrs. Georgiana Witherspoon.

The scenic production reflects much credit upon Artist Brunton, for the five settings shown in the play, especially the rain effect in the prologue, are by far the most elaborate and complete that have been seen on the Belasco stage in many months.

The play is given by special arrangement with Cohan and Harris, and this is the first time it has ever been presented in the West, while it is the first presentation by a stock company anywhere.

For its headliner the week beginning Monday matinee, February 20, the Orpheum will offer one of the strangest sketches in vaudeville. It is called "The Visitor," was written by Oliver White and is interpreted by Porter J. White, his brother, and an effective company. The sketch is a mystery whose plot does not become clear till the very last line, yet throughout it is of thrilling interest. Oliver, the author, and Porter, J., the interpreter, have worked closely together in the effort to provide something different, and yet of decided merit, and the co-partnership is said to result in all that was hoped, as Oliver is a skilled and popular dramatist, and Porter J., has won high honors in "The Fool's Revenge," "Faust," "Robert of Sicily," and a number of other standard works. It is confidently aserted that in this sketch, will be found a tabloid dramatic work of decided worth and unique interest.

Hugh Lloyd, not a brother of Alice, but distinctly related to her, comes to do some new stunts on the suspended rope. Lloyd carries no balance pole and scorns the usual umbrella, but his balancing feats, rope walking, and the like are declared by experts to be distinctly achieved by him alone. Especially is he clever in leaping, twisting and turning while in midair.

The Victoria Four is the newest of the really good quartettes to come this way. The men eschew the usual farcical makeup, and appear in fitting evening clothes with top hats, but this does not prevent a large injection of comedy material into their efforts. One of their stunts is the singing of a number in Hebrew, Irish, German and Italian, all at the same time, each man taking one of the dialects. Their songs are new, well rendered, and all around, the impression they have made everywhere has been of the very best. It is sometime since a good strait quartette was heard here, and this one is sure therefore of a decidedly strong welcome, as it will undoubtedly duplicate here the success achieved everywhere so far.

Arthur Borani and Annie Nevaro will furnish the new comics. They are a pair of clever patterers, with some new dance twists, turns and frolics, and as a tramp, Borani has few equals. Clever acrobatics are a strong feature with them, and a never to be forgotten dog has a large part in making the act a big go.

"Cherie," with Clayton White and Marie Stuart holds over—and is still a strong popular favorite. Others who remain are the five Cycling Auroras, who live up to the promises of novelty made for them, Frank Rogers, the negro ventriloquist, and Kennedy De Milt and Kennedy, who sparkle with fun, do some excellent dancing, and sing more than well. The new motion pictures will be of the usual standard.

With such acts as the Three Alverettas, Howard Truesdell and company and Merritt and Love as the headline attractions, Sullivan and Considine will open a new eight-act bill at the Los Angeles Theater on Monday afternoon which promises to be as good as any bill that has ever occupied the stage of this popular priced variety house.

The Three Alverettas are a trio of comedy acrobats that stand foremost foremost among the greatest enterainrs of his character that have ever appeared in vaudeville. For years these young men were one of the big features of Ringling Bros.' circus. After several seasons with this big tent show they decided to go into vaudeville and their advent was a notable success from the beginning. They not only offer a skillful exhibition full of thrills but combine this with a capacity for real funmaking that is not excelled.

Another notable comedy offering on the new bill will be Howard Truesdell and his company in the novel farce called "A Corner in Half." This farce is from the pen of Una Clayton, herself an accomplished actress, and is said to be one of the best comedy successes that has been seen on the circuit in months.

Merritt and Love will also figure prominently among the newcomers with their popular parodies and patter talk, which is good for fifteen minutes of fun. Phil and Nettie Peteres have an offering which is a combination of songs, dances, music and tomfoolery which should prove enjoyable, and Tom and Edith Almond offer much that is unique in the dancing line, together with some clever musical specialties.

An unusually interesting and entertaining feature with the atmosphere of the West will be the exhibition of the Chamberlains with the lasso and bull-whip. Their exhibition is far above anything of this sort that has been offered on this stage and is the only act on the bill which is neither music nor comedy. The Olio Trio will be seen in their musical moments, and concluding the new bill will be the new comedy motion pictures.

The programme at the Hyman for the coming week will present a diversity of acts that must please the most fastidious vaudevillians. Each act is a distinct feature and has the charm of novelty.

Veolette, of Veolette and Old, is a thought reader. Not the old-time tedious act, but a new idea, brim full of action and more mystifying than any of the others. Convincing, too, for she tells people in the audience their names without the slightest hesitation, the dates on coins or bank notes, and does a hundred tests of the most intricate nature. It is an act that will make the close student of psychology think and the casual onlooker sit up and pay attention.

Romanelli, the "mad musician," will thrill his hearers with wierd strains of harmony evoked from the violin. His ability does not end here, for he does solo and fancy playing of the most entertaining sort.

Teddie La Due is a singing and dancing soubrette. She has a good voice and range in the selection of character songs that are her forte. Her dancing is of a spectacular nature. She will undoubtedly run a close race with the other acts on the bill for first place.

Work and Play are a pair of grotesque comedy acrobats that go about their performance in an original manner. They have succeeded in producing an act that is different.

The motion pictures will, as usual, all be first run and carefully selected. One thing that has served to popularize this house is the quality of the pictures shown and the great range in the subects.

Lillian May Lancaster's orchestra, directed by Miss Hardy, will play a complete new programme of popular music.

A fine array of vaudeville talent has been provided by the management of Pantages for the week starting Monday. For the children, there will be Blake's big animal circus, composed of seven demure Shetland ponies, a baker's dozen of comical monkey's, a troupe of well educated dogs and above all the original "Hee-Haw Maud," the unridable mule, with whom a famous cartoonist made merry in the newspapers.

Willard's Temple of Music is a spectacular musical offering. There are four women and two men instrumentalists in the act. They begin with a selection upon the xylophone, followed by 'cello effects, obtained by drawing a bow across the chimneys of lighted lamps. Two of the girls get tunes from a string of alarm clocks, followed by musical effects from coffee grinders. They play an instrument manipulated by ropes, which has the effect of a huge pipe organ, with bell chimes attachment; a row of large circular saws, revolving at high speed, are made to give forth beautiful music; the stage lights are turned out and the sparks from the saws make a sensational effect.

Pealson and Hill are a duo of singing comedians; they are good looking young fellows, with good voices and are artists upon the piano. Joseph and Louise Swickard have a musical comedy, "The Shoplifters." Both are the possessors of trained voices and in the burletta there is some good comedy about a shopping tour that closes with a song entitled, "It Won't Happen Again for Months and Months." Hanlon, Dean and Hanlon are a trio of acrobats and gymnasts, whose specialty is head to head and hand to hand equilibrium. Moore and Addison, high wire experts, and new motion pictures close the big bill.

Too Cheerful to Keep.

The servant problem has hit H. H. Smith, and he is now busily hunting a competent cook. "We had a good cook," said he the other day. "A Chinaman. But we had to let him go. He was too cheerful."

There seemed an inconsistency in that position. The idea of any one firing a good cook, in New York, and especially a good cook who was likewise cheerful, seemed to call for explanation.

"Well, said Mr. Smith, "he kept singing all the time. But I'm not used to Chinese music. I couldn't tell whether he was singing or whether he had just burnt himself."—[Cincinnati Times-Star

EVENING OF MACDOWELL.

COMPOSER'S WIDOW WILL SPEAK ON HIS WORK.

Harry Lott's Second Recital This Week—Lillian Adams in Concert. Bonci Coming—Incidental News of Pupils, Teachers, Studios and Concertizers.

Edward MacDowell has long been considered the greatest of the modern music writers of America. His death brought such a revelation to the musicians of this country of the passing of a musical genius that from that time to the present it has been the endeavor of American musicians to give him some memorial for his work so lately recognized, and to perpetuate the beauties of his compositions in one musical literature.

His wife, Mrs. Edward MacDowell, is now in Los Angeles and plans are being made to arrange an evening, possibly Friday, February 24, at Simpson Auditorium, to give her an opportunity to speak regarding the aims and ideals of the memorial association, and the importance and usefulness of the association work at Peterborough, the old MacDowell farm in New Hampshire. It is a work of love that is being done and no one can speak of it better than Mrs. MacDowell, who was so earnest in the assistance in founding the association, and securing sufficient income to keep it alive. Mrs. MacDowell will be assisted here by Miss Zerlina Bartholomew, lyric soprano, who makes a specialty of the MacDowell songs, and renders them at the time of the Peterborough pageant.

In addition to Miss Bartholomew, Miss Margel Gluck, violinist, of London, and Miss Ivimey, pianist, will render a group of the MacDowell compositions. It is the desire of all members of the American Music Association that this evening be kept open for them and their friends to do honor to the name of this foremost American writer.

Lillian Adams.

Miss Lillian Adams, one of the best known of the local piano soloists and teachers, will present a piano recital at the Gamut Auditorium next Tuesday evening, February 21. Miss Adams has surrounded herself with other artists of equal value, her soloist being Mary LeGrand Reed, an excellent soprano, well known to the music lovers of this city. Homer Grunn is the accompanist. The programme has been carefully arranged, as a glance at the numbers will show: (a) Etude, Op. 10, No. 3, (b) Waltz, E minor, (c) Butterflies, (Chopin,) Lillian Adams; Jewel song from "Faust," (Gounod,) Mary Le Grand Reed; "Hark, Hark, the Lark!" (Schubert-Liszt,) concert staccato, (Rubinstein,) Lillian Adams; "Ah! Love But a Day," (H. H. A. Beach,) "Like a Rosebud," (La Forge,) "Beat Upon Mine Little Heart," (Nevin.) "Love Has Wings," (Rogers,) Mary Le Grand Reed; Slavisher march, (Tschaikowsky,) Lillian Adams.

Second Lott Recital.

The second recital of the Harry Clifford Lott series will be given at Cumnock Hall on Thursday evening, February 23. Mr. Lott's first recital, which was a miscellaneous one, demonstrated the ability of this most clever baritone. The second programme will be a decided novelty, as it is devoted almost exclusively to musical settings of poems by Rudyard Kipling. In the "Barrack Room Ballads" are found many artistic poems suitable to the aggressive ideas of Walter Damrosch, Arthur Foote and Arthur Whiting, who early discovered the possibilities of surrounding the Kipling works with artistic musical settings. The first half of the programme will be given over to these, and the latter half reserved for the "Just So" songs of Edward German. Mrs. Lott will preside at the piano. The programme: "Barrack Room Ballads:"

"Danny Deever," (Walter Damrosch;) "On the Road to Mandalay," (Oley Speaks;) "Soldier, Soldier," (Arthur Whiting;) "Fuzzy Wuzzy," (Arthur Whiting;) "The Eden Rose," (Arthur Foote;) "Mother o'Mine," (Frank E. Tours;) "Recessional," a Victorian Ode, (Charles Fonteyn Manney.)

"Just So Songs:" "When the Cabin Port-holes," "The Camel's Hump," "This Uninhabited Island," "Six Honest Serving-men," "Kangaroo and Dingo," "The First Friend," "Rolling Down to Rio."

Bonci.

Alessandro Bonci, considered today to be the greatest lyric tenor in the world, a man who has studied for years to perfect himself in the delicate art of bel canto, and who gives a long and most generous programme, will come to Simpson Auditorium for a recital Tuesday evening, February 23.

He will come to Los Angeles to open his Coast tour. He is likewise going to show why the practice of bel canto is essential to the establishing of grand opera in English and particularly toward the establishment of an institution that will go far toward assuring the United States grand opera sung in our own tongue by our own artists. He will present here a comprehensive programme, which will give his hearers an excellent opportunity to judge the quality and range of his voice: "Spiagge amate," "Helen and Paris," (Gluck;) "Caro mio ben," (Giordani;) "Chi Vuol la Zingarella," (Paisiello;) "On Wings of Music," (Mendelssohn;) "Who is Sylvia," (Schubert;) "Hark, Hark the Lark!" (Schubert;) aria, "M'appari tutt' amor," "Martha," (Flotow;) piano solo, "Allegro appassionata," (Saint-Saens;) "Vielle Chanson," (Bizet;) "Romance," (Debussy;)

Mrs. George R. Hamilton,

formerly Miss Alice Blanchard, who was married in the presence of many friends Friday evening.

The next large function to be looked forward to is the last of the subscription dances, which probably will be given at the Alexandria Hotel Tuesday evening, the 28th inst., has been chosen for the event, which formally will close the season until after Lent.

Of course, the arrival of Capt. Ross, who is at present taking examinations in San Francisco, will be the cause for several informal affairs during Lent. Really it would be impossible to resist the temptation of an impromptu affair at least, as Capt. Ross is recognized as the beau ideal of the navy. Lieut. Paulson and Chief Engineer Leonard, together with Ensign McCreery, who are at present in San Diego, also hope to be able to come up for a few days, and during their visit, the debutantes will enjoy another delightful season.

These four young naval men are among the most popular of the younger officers, and have long held an enviable reputation for wit and gallantry.

Their visit in San Diego has been very gay, and many delightful parties have been given in their honor. A number of Los Angeles matrons, visiting at the Coronado, enjoyed a visit to the torpedo boats Preble and Fox, on which the young fighters are stationed.

—o—

From England.

Mrs. W. E. Cross, of No. 1154 West Twenty-sixth street, is planning a musicale tea for the afternoon of March 1. Mme. Hortense Paulsen of London, will be the guest of honor. Mme. Paulsen, who is making a short visit in California, enjoys the distinction of having sung before the royal families of England, among whom she is a great favorite.

—o—

New Song.

It is with delight that friends of Mrs. Gertrude Ross will read that her recent song is soon to be published. It is entitled "To My Baby," and is a sweet lullaby. It was sung last evening at one of the large Pasadena hotels, and the guests were delighted.

—o—

Into New Home.

Judge and Mrs. William Frederickson have moved from West Twenty-eighth street to Nichols Canyon Road, Hollywood.

—o—

Del Monte Lively.

Del Monte has been the scene during the past week of many elaborate affairs given by guests from Southern California who went North for the golf tournament. Every afternoon and evening tea parties, luncheons and dances have been enjoyed. The sport closed with a brilliant ball.

—o—

Sorority Party.

Members of the Xi Chapter of the Zeta Tau Alpha sorority of the University of Southern California, entertained a number of out-of-town guests at the sorority house at No. 915 West Thirty-sixth street. The honored guests were: Miss Zella Bryan, Miss Laurel Mayhew, Miss Alice Spier, Frank Allen, Ptis Allen, Mr. Mack, Mr. Hammel and Mr. Kingdon. Others present were: Dr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Stowell, Mr. and Mrs. William Robins, Miss Backstrand, Miss Abor, Miss Moore, Miss Fredenburg, Miss Poggi, Miss Grace Sweden, Miss Amis, Miss Willett, Miss Underwood, Miss Bostleman, Miss Hunter, Miss Nellie Sowden, Carroll Hunter, Mr. Wirsching, Mr. Bailey, Mr. Eliott, Mr. Sherer, Mr. Matoon, Mr. Lee, Mr. Willett and Mr. Ham.

—o—

Mrs. Doheny, Hostess.

Mrs. Edward L. Doheny presided at a large dancing party Friday evening at her home in Chester Place, planned in honor of Miss Caroline Canfield and her betrothed, S. Spalding. The hostess was assisted by Mr. Doheny, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Noyes, Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Barham, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. H. Myers, Dr. and Mrs. Norman Bridges, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Morehead of San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Larned, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. J. Crampton Anderson, Miss Lucy Smith and Miss Ruth Larned.

—o—

Birthday Celebration.

Master Ygnacio Forester, son of Mrs. Joseph del Valle de Forest, of No. 2201 South Grand avenue, entertained eight of his friends with a loge party at the Grand. The friends were entertained in celebration of the host's twelfth birthday anniversary.

—o—

Miss Kavanaugh Hostess.

Miss Stella Kavanaugh gave a theater box party at the Belasco Monday, followed by tea at Hotel Alexandria, as a courtesy to Mrs. William B. Cleary of Bisbee. The honoree, who left yesterday for her home, was the house guest of Mrs. Shoeman of Philadelphia, who is passing several months in Los Angeles.

—o—

Card Party.

Mrs. Edward Madison Howes and Miss Howat of Clinton, Iowa, were the complimented guests at a card party Thursday given by Mrs. Benjamin Durward Howes ,at her Colonial bungalow on Cahuenga boulevard.

—o—

Young Guests Honored.

The Misses Louise and Carroll Wyman entertained with a Valentine party at their home on Essex street, Tuesday evening, violets and greenery forming artistic decorations. Those asked to be present were: Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Wyman, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde C. Aldrich, Miss Lillian Carroll, Miss Ruth Dickey, Miss Sophia Dickey, Miss Ida Desy, Miss Alma Hicks, Miss Charlotte Himburg, Miss Elsie Herrmann, Miss Virginia Linehan, Miss Adele Lund, Miss Kate McDonald, Miss Minnie McDonald, Miss Grace Middlecoff, Miss Elizabeth Tanner, William S. Ackerman, Jack Cooper, William Durr, William Evans, J. Frank Herrmann, Karl Henrick, E. C. Lange, Kert O. Lee, and George P. Low.

—o—

Valentine Ball.

One of the most enjoyable affairs of last week in out-of-town society circles was the El Rodeo Club Valentine ball, given Friday evening in the beautiful ballroom of the Virginia Hotel, Long Beach. About 100 members of the younger social set of Los Angeles attended.

The valentine, symbolic of the saint was used to a pretty advantage in decorating. The ballroom, with its massive marble columns and huge mirrors, bore a close resemblance to a large valentine in motion, as the dancers swayed to the music.

The patronesses were: Mrs. Milton Doolittle, Mrs. Robert Fowler Cummings, Mrs. Stephen Long, Mrs. C. H. Russell, Mrs. Arthur Ross, Mrs. S. E. Kennedy, Mrs. George H. Bixby and Mrs. C. H. Brunn. The ball was in active charge of the following members of the club: Frank Vail, M. Baughman, Don Darby, A. A. Vivian and Walker Saunders.

Around the World.

Mr. Henry Gennett, accompanied by his wife and daughter, will leave Los Angeles on the 26th inst., on an extended tour around the world. They will visit Honolulu, Japan, Korea, Manchuria, China, Ceylon, Egypt, Italy, France and Spain, after which an extended tour will be made through Europe. Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Sprigman, Judge and Mrs. C. H. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Thomas will also travel around the world on the same steamer.

—o—

Frat Party.

Last Friday evening, at Kramer's Hall, the Psi Omega Fraternity held its annual social dance. The patronesses were: Mrs. A. Halden Jones, a charming January bride; Dr. E. L. Leonard, Dr. Amy G. Bowman, Mrs. William Bebb and Mrs. A. B. Launder. The hall was beautifully decorated with smilax, Psi Omega shields and red hearts. The music was furnished by an orchestra. At midnight refreshments were served.

—o—

Theater Party.

Miss Ivy Reed complimented a number of guests Tuesday last with a theater party at the Orpheum, followed by tea at Christopher's. Miss May Brant, a young woman from the East, was the honoree and others present included Mrs. Heber, Mrs. J. W. Reed and Miss May MacGowen.

—o—

Popular Guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Campbell, who recently came to Los Angeles from Kansas, have been royally entertained since their arrival. Friday evening Mrs. Campbell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Van Burent Huff of the Country Club Terrace, complimented them with a dinner party. Covers were laid for fourteen and the table was gay with beautiful flowers. Another affair to be given in Mrs. Campbell's honor is a tea at the Alexandria with which her friends will entertain.

—o—

Smart Party.

Characterized by its artistic decorations, the party given by Miss Elsa Stern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Stern of "Casa De Las Palmes," in honor of Miss Blanche Meyer of San Francisco, was a delightful success. The table represented a corner in Golden Gate Park. Palms, shrubs and a stream of water which trickled over small rocks added to the effect. This was completed with an aeroplane with the date 1915 in gold. Dainty pots of ferns and poppies were given as favors. Covers were laid for twenty.

—o—

At Long Beach.

A luncheon was given by Mrs. C. H. Lippincott of Chicago at the Virginia hotel, Long Beach, yesterday. Among those present were Mr. Lippincott, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Allen, Moline, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Porter, Chicago; Mr. and Miss Hamilton, Pasadena; Mrs. Stephens, Moline, and Mrs. Fred Stith, Hollywood. The decorations were pink stalks and violets.

—o—

Wedding Announcement.

Announcement is made of the marriage, on the 4th inst., at the St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, New York City, of Miss Ida Ol Hedling, daughter of Mrs. Martha Hedling and sister of Mrs. Katherine Taylor, to Everett C. Parker, son of A. F. Parker, all of this city. The bride is a girl of charming personality and has a large circle of friends in this city and elsewhere.

The groom is a law student of Ann Arbor, Mich., formerly a resident of Redlands, and a graduate of the High School of that city. The young couple will make their home in New York City for the present.

—o—

Bridge Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred R. Howe of No. 1227 Hollywood boulevard entertained Thursday with a bridge party, as a courtesy to Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Lydick of Cynthiana, Ky., and A. C. Godin of Mason county, Ky., who are guests of Mrs. Myall of Hollywood.

—o—

In New Home.

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Sandberg entertained in their beautiful new home on Hawthorne avenue, Hollywood, Wednesday night with a dinner in honor of Mrs. C. M. Davison. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Cooke, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Long, Frank Platt and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Stacy.

—o—

Return to City.

Walter J. Ballard and Miss Ballard, who have resided at Ocean Park the past four years, have returned to Los Angeles and made their home at No. 637 South Burlington avenue.

—o—

Guests of Cousin.

John B. Adams and his daughter, Miss Olive Adams, of Chicago are visiting their cousin, Mrs. Melancthon Smith, No. 2366 West Twenty-second street ,and are making Los Angeles their headquarters while seeing Southern California for a few weeks.

—o—

Prominent Guests.

A. B. Stickney, former president of the Chicago Great Western, now living in St. Paul, is registered at Hotel Virginia, Long Beach. He is accompanied by Mrs. Stickney, his son, C. A., wife and daughter and R. C. Wright.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Roberts of High River, Canada, have returned to the Virginia after a stay away of a few weeks. Mr. Roberts is a member of the Canadian Parliament.

—o—

Five O'clock Tea.

A dainty 5 o'clock tea was given Friday afternoon by Mrs. Harry E. Andrews of No. 433 Park View avenue, in honor of her sister, Mrs. Louis N. Felt of Chicago, who is her guest, and her niece, Miss Beatrix Felt of Chicago, who has been spending the winter here, the guest of Mrs. B. Lee Vickrey, and who has made a great hit in socitl circles, due to her charm and accomplishments. About sixty ladies enjoyed the tea, musicale and conversazione.

—o—

Whist Party.

Miss Lena Burke of No. 1305 West Thirty-fifth place entertained Tuesday with a whist party. Prizes were captured by Miss Osee Few, Mrs. John L. Richardson and Dave Topper. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Reiche, Miss Polly A. Chandler, Miss Mynette Levy, Miss Lillian Schneider, Miss Rena Marks, Miss Leora Lunez, Miss Mathilda Lehman, Miss Lillius Samuls, Miss Estella Deman, Miss Maizee Lankenoff of St. Paul, Jack Rodman, Harry J. Moulton, M. Marks, D. M. Marks, Frank Nunerus, Robert Luney, Lydney Lehman, Loring A. Day, A. Goldring and M. Samuls.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5th, 1911.

DEAR MR. EGAN:

To London next month.

We have visited the Dramatic Schools and find NONE equal to yours. We take special delight boasting about The EGAN DRAMATIC SCHOOL of Los Angeles.

You give our pupils so much individual attention, something THEY DO NOT DO IN NEW YORK, as they have too many pupils.

We always did appreciate your work, but since seeing theirs we doubly appreciate yours.

You can prepare a pupil for the stage in one-third the time they can, and do it better.

At Riverside.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Will of Brighton avenue, with Mrs. Wellington W. Cummer of Jacksonville, Fla., and Mrs. Delos F. Diggins of Cadillac, Mich., are spending the week-end at the Glenwood, Riverside.

—o—

Maryland School Party.

One of the most delightful parties given in celebration of Valentine Day was that presided over by the faculty of the Maryland School, Friday. The decorations were attractive, and the evening was one of many surprises.

—o—

Another Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Norton of No. 1909 West Twenty-first street also entertained with a Valentine party. Her guests were members of the Simplicity Bridge Club. Red carnations and ferns ornamented the home, and scores were kept on Cupid cards. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Greenhow and Mr. Goldsborough. The guests enjoying the evening were Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Milburn, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Willets, Mr. and Mrs. Ashley, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Greenhow and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Goldsborough.

—o—

Whist Matinee.

Mrs. George B. Walrath of the Moss Rose apartments had as guests Tuesday members of the Golden West Whist Club. Score cards were hand-painted with heads, and pink carnations were used in decorating. Prizes fell to Mrs. M. Myers, Mrs. Frank E. Young, Mrs. J. Haverstuhl, Mrs. Thomas Van Pelt, Mrs. H. C. Fortier, Mrs. Minna Young, Mrs. O. J. Perry, Mrs. H. Biddleton, Mrs. F. J. Young, Mrs. C. Baxter, Mrs. Frank Mason, Mrs. C. A. Graves, Mrs. J. N. White and Mrs. Frederick L. Goldsborough.

—o—

Sorority Affair.

Members of the Beta Phi Sorority of the University of Southern California were responsible for a merry affair of the week when they entertained about thirty friends at the frat house, No. 1104 West Thirty-fifth street. The guests came in fancy costumes.

—o—

Luncheon Yesterday.

Mrs. Leslie Howard Lord of No. 327 Hobart boulevard was a charming hostess of yesterday. Mrs. Lord entertained with a luncheon for Mrs. A. M. Thomson of San Francisco. Guests asked to meet the visitor were Mrs. F. C. Finkle, Mrs. Leonard Selig, Mrs. C. C. Loveland, Mrs. R. P. Goodhue, Mrs. Frank Talamaries, Mrs. F. Sennet, Mrs. W. H. Faust, Mrs. Margaret Bakewell, Mrs. O. H. Kiefer and Miss Rose Tomering.

—o—

Mrs. Lyster, Hostess.

An after-theater party was given Monday by Mrs. George A. Lyster at her home, No. 3950 South Olive street, in compliment to Miss Marjorie Rambeau. The home was profusely decorated with beautiful flowers and the guests were entertained with vocal selections by Mrs. Phillip Zobelein. The evening was shared by Mrs. Rambeau, Mr. and Mrs. George Zobelein, Sr., Mrs. Charles Lick, Mr. and Mrs. John Zobelein, Justice and Mrs. J. W. Summerfield, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Zobelein, Mr. and Mrs. George Zobelein, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Philip Zobelein, Mr. and Mrs. R. Bruce Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. George H. This Home-Made Cough Syrup Will Surprise You Stops Even Whooping Cough Quickly. A Family Supply at Small Cost.

Here is a home-made remedy that takes hold of a cough instantly and will usually cure the most stubborn case in 24 hours. This recipe makes a pint—enough for a whole family. You couldn't buy as much or as good ready made cough syrup for $2.50.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. This keeps perfectly and has a pleasant taste—children like it. Braces up the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

You probably know the medical value of pine in treating asthma, bronchitis and other throat troubles, sore lungs, etc. There is nothing better. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guiaicol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The prompt results from this inexpensive remedy have made friends for it in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada, which explains why the plan has been imitated often, but never successfully.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

$2.25 to $3.50 Tailor Suitings $1.5

This Season's Greatest Dress Goods Sale

About twelve hundred yards of this season's most favored patterns in ported English and Scotch suitings. Notice that we say THIS seas fabrics---we wish to emphasize that fact, for fear the absurd reduct might lead you to think they must be left-overs from past seasons.

In every instance the weave, weight and colorings are those now in strong deman tailored suits—and well worth regular prices: $2.25, $2.50, $3.00 and $3.50. Choi the lot, on Monday, for $1.50 a yard; 56 and 58-inch widths. One of the Broadway dows shows a few of the many handsome patterns.

Girl's Lingerie Dresses

Many distinctively new styles in lingerie dresses and one-piece gowns of net, chiffon and India silks, in children's sizes, misses' sizes and the intermediate sizes which few stores carry Six-fifty to thirty dollars.

Misses' Spring Suits $17.50 to $45

The richness of materials and perfection of tailoring in even the lowest priced suits will prove a revelation to those of you who think a really good suit cannot be sold under $25.00.

All made in the jaunty short coat effects. And the skirts are full three yards wide, like the best dressed young women of New York are now wearing—the hobble effect is no longer in favor among the Eastern women.

Among the high-priced sorts are many luxurious creations of black and navy blue satin.

And a splendid showing of cream serge suits—some for as little as $20.

VANADIUM'S IMPORTANCE.

Has Revolutionized the Making of Steel and Made of It Practically a New Product.

In the days of the mediaeval alchemists it was believed that it was possible by means of some undiscovered laboratory operation to convert the baser metals into gold. With the development of modern chemistry this belief was shown to be baseless, at least in the sense in which the older workers held it, says Cassier's Magazine.

At the same time there has been evolved as a result of the work of the more recent chemists and metallurgists a transmutation in the the properties of that most widely used material steel which is of far more real value to the world than any formula for making gold could ever be.

The discovery that iron containing a certain proportion of carbon constituted steel transformed society and created modern civilization; without steel we should relapse into barbarism. Today it is known that in addition to carbon there are other elements the addition of which will impart to steel certain properties increasing immensely its value as a material of construction and of operation.

Among the substances which were formerly classed as the "rare" elements there are several which were rare only because there was not sufficient use for them to provide an incentive to discover natural sources of supply.

Thus vanadium, known as an element for a hundred year, estimated as having a value many times that of gold, and used solely for a few artistic purposes in coloring fabrics, has within a few years risen immensely in importance because of the knowledge which has been acquired of the valuable properties which it imparts to steel, while at the same time it has fallen in cost to a point about one-half that of silver because the very demand has revealed hitherto unknown deposits.

The influence of vanadium upon steel may well be regarded as a triumph of modern metallurgy, and vanadium steel has become one of the most important of the so-called alloy steels. The older steels, now known broadly as "carbon" steels in distinction to the various alloy steels, had certain fairly well ascertained properties together with determinate limitations.

They could be made ductile within certain limits of strength or strong within certain approach to brittleness, but when both strength and toughness were demanded it was realized that something else in addition to carbon was essential. That something has been shown to be vanadium.

The influence of the addition of small proportions of vanadium to steel is twofold; it acts as a scavenger, removing oxides, nitrides, etc., in a form easily carried away to the slag, and it also toughens the steel directly, by its solid solution, under normal conditions, in the carbonless portion, known as ferrite. In addition, it forms complex carbides of such a nature as greatly to strengthen the steel statically.

The result is a product so vastly superior to the ordinary carbon steel as to render it practically a new material of construction, especially for situations in which shocks must be met and resisted.

"THE OPIUM HABIT," is the subject of a truthful story which will appear in The Times Magazine the coming Sunday. It is written by one who has experienced the terrors of the habit.

Elsinore.

THE ladies of the Presbyterian Church gave a pleasant Valentine party Tuesday evening in the Bank Hall. A large crowd was present. Old-time love songs were sung by the ladies, and Miss Ruth Frothingham sang most charmingly "Comin' Through the Rye." There were archery and Cupid contests, and Mrs. H. J. Powell told the fortunes of the populace as they crossed her palm with silver, with remarkable accuracy. The hall was prettily decorated with red hearts, as were the pretty tables where the lunch was served.

Miss Ministа Lemon and mother, who have spent a couple of years in Elsinore, left Wednesday for Los Angeles, where Miss Lemon and Noland Nichols of Perris will be married this week. Miss Lemon was given a shower last week at the home of Mrs. M. B. Herbelin.

Miss Effie E. McCoy has returned to Los Angeles after spending a week at the home of her brother, Edmund McCoy of North Main street.

A daughter was born Friday morning to Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Clewett at their home on Peck street.

Mrs. A. G. Keck went to Long Beach Thursday to visit a week.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lloyd of Portland, Or., who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Anna Burnham, for some time, left for Los Angeles Thursday.

Mrs. Mary Mathews of Santa Ana is the guest of her sister, Mrs. H. H. Neiman.

Mrs. H. H. Glasby of Providence, R. I., is the guest of Mrs. C. S. Bolting.

Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Smith are here from Los Angeles. Mrs. Smith is a daughter of S. L. Lauler and resided here formerly.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Burnham entertained the Elsinore Valley Whist Club Thursday evening at their home on Graham avenue. Mrs. S. J. Powell and T. L. Rush were the prize winners. Refreshments were served after the game.

Alhambra.

GUEN OAKLEY gave a masquerade party for a number of his friends at his home, No. 1119 St. Charles Terrace, Saturday evening. The room was covered with the national colors, intermingled with palm leaves, and the window sills were banked with blooming plants, the whole combining to make a pretty picture. The costumes were elaborate, ranging from the gorgeous uniform of a German field marshal to that of the clown of the circus. Dancing was the programme for the evening, terminating with a grand march at a late hour. Following the removal of the masks refreshments were served. Among those present were Lieut. and Mrs Walter M. Hotz, Mrs. S. H. Halderman, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Hazelhurst, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Halderman, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Ferson, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Oakley, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hazelhurst, Mr. and Mrs. Will Horton, Misses Violet Halderman, Emma, Gertrude and Lena Funke, Miss Alice Ferson and Jessie Oakley; Messrs. R. B. Hazelhurst, Richard M. Hazelhurst and Walter Moore, Franz Fredenhagen of St. Charles, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Reilly and Miss Florence Connell of Los Angeles.

Mrs. J. B. Sexton went to Fullerton last Tuesday to attend the Reciprocity Day exercises of the P.E.O. Mrs. Sexton is the First Vice-President of the State organization of the P.E.O.

Mrs. E. Cundy of Los Angeles was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Edwin W. Griffin of No. 625 South Sixth street, last week.

The members of the Five Hundred Club were delightfully entertained at the home of Miss Florence Knesel, No. 117 South Hidalgo avenue, on Thursday of last week. Red was the color scheme in the decorations and in these the Valentine idea was happily carried out. After the card games the guests enjoyed themselves for a time at the game of matching hearts, after which refreshments were served.

Miss Gladys Knesel of No. 117 South Hidalgo avenue entertained twenty of her classmates at the High School at a Valentine party last Saturday evening. Red hearts formed the decorations. The guests played various games and sang college and school songs.

The February Committee of the First Baptist Church, of which Mrs. Dorrance is chairman, promises something interesting in the way of a George Washington social the evening of February 24 at the home of Mrs. Reynolds, 122 South Second street.

About twenty-five couples attended the dance given by the "Jolly 23" in the Woman's Clubhouse last Tuesday evening. It was a Valentine dance and the decorations were in keeping with the occasion. Music was furnished by a Los Angeles orchestra. The hostesses were Mrs. Harry Rose and Mrs. John L. Chase and the arrangements for the affair were in the hands of Paul Newjin and Bob Foote.

The Modern Woodmen of Alhambra have elected the following delegates to attend the county convention of the order, to be held in Long Beach on April 5: L. J. Parnim, R. M. Clapp, Capt. A. V. Jones and Dan Airing. The alternates are J. Scanlon, C. E. Graves, Harry Lynch and L. H. Dequein.

R. D. Langworthy, at one time a resident of Alhambra and who since has become known as one of the most noted guides in the Sierra Nevadas, was the guest of R. M. Clapp of No. 103 Curtis avenue for a few days last week.

Mrs. J. W. McKeum and son, Charles, who have been at the Garfield apartments for the last six weeks, have gone to Ocean Park for a week. They will then go by boat to San Francisco, from which point they will leave for their home in Montana.

One of the most charming of last week's affairs was the thimble party given Friday afternoon by Mrs. Charles Lee Levis, at her home, corner of Stoneman avenue and Pine street, in honor of Mrs. Cochrane of Chicago, mother of Mrs. Fred H. Sears. Receiving with the hostess was her mother, Mrs. Gulberson. Others present were Mrs. Fred Jones, Mrs. Foote, Mrs. John Chase, Mrs. J. B. Sexton and Mrs. Clarence Van Graham. The latter part of the afternoon was devoted to a musical programme.

About fifty of the younger set enjoyed a skating party, at the Walhalla rink, on St. Valentine's night. They were chaperoned by Prof. Wilson and Miss Keeler.

The brotherhood of the Presbyterian Church held a Valentine social last Tuesday night. The postoffice was in charge of Judge W. M. Northrup, W. F. Lawson and H. L. Nye, and every man present received a Valentine. At the dinner interesting addresses were delivered by former Senator Seymour of San Bernardino and Col. Daniels, a member of President Lincoln's body guard.

Mrs. Ralph B. Clapp entertained at cards at her home in Lister Court, Saturday evening. Five tables were used and whist was played.

The card party given by the Wednesday Afternoon Club Association last Monday night was a highly-successful and enjoyable affair. Bridge whist and five hundred were played. Mrs. H. C. Abel won the five-hundred prize; W. K. Walker, the gentleman's prize for whist, and Mrs. J. B. Sexton and Mrs. W. M. Northrup cut for the ladies' prize. The following ladies had charge of the arrangements: Mmes. C. D. Magee, Clarence Van Graham, F. M. Fowler, H. B. Gurley, E. E. Bailey, P. T. Anderson and F. B. Elwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Kennedy of Chicago were the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Haviland.

Mrs. Foster Elliott had as her luncheon guests last Wednesday, Mrs. George Barndollar of Long Beach, Mrs. Luther Wood of Los Angeles and Mrs. J. B. Sexton.

The High School class of 1911 gave a farewell party one evening last week in honor of Miss Elizabeth Bush, a former teacher in the High School, who left the following day for an extended trip to South America. The party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Bailey. The rooms were beautifully decorated in violets, the class colors, and smilax.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Coleman and son, George, formerly of Dayton, Ky., but now of Portland, Or., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Krummert of South Marguerite avenue.

Claremont.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE A. RATHBUN and two children of Los Angeles spent the day in Claremont, Wednesday.

A simple yet beautiful wedding was that of Miss Amy Pinkham Hill of La Mesa, to Chesney Winans Carver of Los Angeles, which occurred at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. S. Earle Blakeslee, Wednesday evening. The bungalow was beautifully decorated with almond blossoms and palms and behind a screen of them the musical programme was rendered. Mr. Kaufman Carver singing "A Prayer," S. E. Blakeslee playing the "Love Song" by Nevin, and Mrs. S. E. Blakeslee singing "Without Thee," by Hardelot. As the strains of the music died away, the bride and groom stepped before the officiating clergyman, the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Hill of La Mesa, the bride's father, who used the Episcopalian ring service. The bride was gowned in white with a tulle veil caught into place with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and maiden-hair fern. A reception was held after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Carver left for Los Angeles later in the evening. The following were the guests: Mr. and Mrs. Carver and two daughters, of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Winans, Mr. Gowan, C. A. Benner; the Misses Winans, Atsatt and Boyd of Highland Park, C. B. Sumner, Dr. George Sumner, Dr. and Mrs. A. M. Smith, Professor and Mrs. E. C. Norton, Professor and Mrs. F. A. Bacon, the Misses Allen and Norton of Claremont, Miss Dickson of Hemet, Mr. Bailey of Honolulu, Hawaii, and the Rev. Dr. C. W. Hill, Mrs. Hill and daughter of La Mesa.

Ray Stannard Baker, the famous writer and one of the editors of McClure's, spent Monday and Tuesday in Claremont with his brother, Prof. C. A. Baker. Mr. Baker gave an optimistic address before the college students, Tuesday, on "Politics." He is on his way to investigate conditions in the Philippines.

Dr. George S. Sumner entertained the bridge club on Monday. Three tables played, the guests being Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Rich, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Cowan, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Griswold, C. E. Phelps, Marvin Fox, Miss Caroline Rice and Miss Glyde Maynard.

A Valentine party was given Tuesday evening by the guests of the Claremont Inn.

Miss Chisholm of Los Angeles is visiting her brother, Robert B. Chisholm.

Miss Marjorie Woodford visited Miss Marie Chandler of Highland Park over Sunday.

Dr. and Mrs. R. P. Myers returned Monday from a three weeks' stay in Santa Barbara.

Miss Bernice Jones was a charming hostess to a number of her high school friends at a Valentine party Monday evening.

Mrs. S. A. Gelien and her brother, H. C. Knight of Colton, were the guests of the Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Jewell, Sunday.

James A. Blaisdell left Claremont on a business trip to New York and New England, Monday. He is to give the Washington's Birthday address at Beliot, Wednesday.

Harold Powell entertained twelve of his boy friends Monday afternoon. After games had been played bountiful refreshments, appropriate to St. Valentines' Day, were served.

Mr. and Mrs. William Smith were the hosts of the Claremont Whist Club, Monday evening. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Beach, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Hudson, Mrs. H. S. Bennett, T. D. Duke, A. D. Thorburn, Miss Julia Steffa, Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McConnell.

Mrs. C. C. Johnson entertained thirty ladies Monday afternoon in honor of Mrs. H. L. Churchill, Mrs. S. C. Kendall and Mrs. J. S. Baker. The rooms were decorated with strings of Valentines and the amusements of the afternoon carried out the ideas suggested by the good saint.

The Pomona College Lyceum banqueted at the Claremont Inn, Wednesday evening. Shirley R. Shaw acted as toastmaster and speeches were made by J. A. Prizer, J. G. Garrison, A. H. Hankey, P. E. Sloane and F. N. Edwards. Prof. M. G. Frampton was the guest of the evening.

Mrs. Helen G. Renwick read a most scholarly and interesting paper on Holbein at the Rembrandt Club on Thursday.

The Rembrandt Club presented Augustus Daly's "A Night Off" in the college chapel last evening for the benefit of the new art building fund. The cast was composed of a number of the faculty of Pomona College, and some of the ladies of the club. The play, which deals with the trials of a university professor in having his play staged by a traveling stock company, was full of fun and was received enthusiastically by the large audience.

ONE OF the most delightful social events of the week was the dinner party with which Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Morgan entertained a coterie of friends at their home on Central avenue Sunday evening. A large bowl overflowing with marguerites and resting on a centerpiece of rare lace graced the center of the table. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Addison B. Shephard of Fort Madison, who are spending the winter with their daughter, Mrs. Emil F. Tholen, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Webster, Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Tholen, Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Lynch, Misses Lila Webster and Leola Webster.

Delightful indeed was the Valentine dinner party that Mrs. David H. Imler gave at the home Palm Villa on Tuesday evening, to celebrate her daughter, Marjorie's, twelfth birthday anniversary. Broad bands of crimson ribbon and dainty Valentines with crimson-hued blossoms transformed the dining-room into a veritable bower of beauty and fragrance, where covers were laid for twelve. A musicale preceded the dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Reynolds entertained as their week-end guests at their home on Park avenue Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Reid of Burbank.

N. P. Banks Post and Corps observed Lincoln's anniversary at G.A.R. Hall Sunday afternoon. Rev. C. R. Norton delivered an able address on Lincoln. The Marple quartette rendered vocal numbers and Joseph Marple added to the patriotic programme by singing a baritone solo.

Mr. and Mrs. Millard Hunt accompanied by Mrs. Ella Wilson Boyer of Terre Haute, Ind., who are the house guests of their cousin, Mrs. David H. Imler of Palm Villa, have returned from a sojourn at Avalon.

Miss Ellen Fletcher of Park avenue has returned from a pleasant visit with friends at Burbank.

Alfred Engelhardt of Central avenue left for San Francisco the first of the week, where he will spend a week or more.

Mrs. J. B. Gascoigne arrived from Chicago the latter part of the week and will be the house guest of her brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Ellias of Tropico avenue.

Mrs. J. E. Barhenburg of Twin Pines has been spending the week in Los Angeles, as the guest of former Chicago friends.

J. Bailey Hickman, who has been spending the past month at his ranch in Imperial Valley, returned to his home on Park avenue Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Samuel A. Pollock and Mrs. F. L. Fishback were guests of a matinee party on Wednesday, when they enjoyed "The Chocolate Soldier." A dainty luncheon was discussed at a popular cafe following the matinee.

Health and Beauty Notes

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN

Maid Marian: The only greaseless face cream I know of is an almozoin massage cream jelly, which you can easily prepare, as the ingredients are inexpensive and can be had at any drug store. Dissolve one ounce almozoin in half-pint cold water, then add two teaspoonfuls glycerine, stir well and let stand several hours. Massaging the skin nightly with this removes blackheads, reduces large pores and softens and tones the skin, giving it a healthy, ruddy glow. It also corrects greasy and roughened skins and prevents and arrests wrinkles.

Madam X.: Be frank with your husband and do not try to conceal anything from him. For that scaly condition of the face, I would suggest a spurmax lotion. This is superior to powder in many ways, easier to apply and dries quickly, giving the skin a smooth, satiny feeling. You can prepare this lotion at little expense, by dissolving four ounces of spurmax in a half-pint hot water, then adding two teaspoonfuls glycerine. Shake well; when cool it is ready. This makes the most reliable and satisfactory skin beautifier of which I know. You can get spurmax in any drug store.

Phoebe M.: The reason your hair is stringy and hard to manage is because the roots are in a starved condition. I am giving you a recipe for an inexpensive hair tonic, which, if used regularly, according to simple directions, will correct this condition and promote a fine, healthy growth of hair. Get an ounce of quinzoin from the drug store and dissolve in half-pint alcohol, then add the same quantity of water. Using this nightly as a scalp massage strengthens the hair roots, and its continued use will give life and luster to the hair.

Young Wife: Don't despair. I don't think your husband loves you less, but the condition of your face is jarring to the eye. Your pimply, muddy complexion is caused through impurities in the blood, and what you require is a good tonic and system regulator. Get from your druggist one ounce kardene; dissolve in one-half pint alcohol, adding one-half cup sugar, then enough hot water to make full quart. Take a tablespoonful before meals, and you will find it will clear the skin and bring back the rosy blush of health to the cheeks. With this use the almozoin massage cream, mentioned in another paragraph, as it removes blackheads and other impurities from the pores and makes the skin soft and satiny.

Typist: Your increasing weight is no just cause for alarm, but if you fear your form is losing its symmetrical lines, and want a fat dissolvent I would suggest the following, which can be had at any drug store and is not expensive: Dissolve four ounces parnotis in 1½ pints hot water. Take a tablespoonful of this before each meal, and you will gradually regain your natural weight and contour of form. This parnotis treatment requires no violent exercise nor dieting, and is really quite harmless.

Eva: My dear girl! The downy growth on your lip is not so serious a matter, and I would not shun society on that account, were I you. You can easily remove the fuzz if you follow these simple instructions: Get an ounce of delatone, and mix enough water with a little to make a thick paste. Cover offending hairs deeply with this and let remain two or three minutes, then remove and wash the skin carefully. Any druggist can supply delatone, and while it costs a dollar an ounce, it is worth it, as it does the work, and it is seldom necessary to apply it more than once.

Jane: It is annoying to have an itchy scalp, but you can easily correct this and keep it sweet and clean and in a healthy, vigorous condition if you use a canthrox shampoo. You can prepare this at trifling cost, and any druggist can supply it. One teaspoonful of canthrox dissolved in a teacup of hot water makes sufficient mixture for one shampoo. Pouring a little at a time on the head and massaging the scalp vigorously, then rinsing thoroughly, removes dust and dandruff and adds new life to the scalp and luster to the hair. With this shampoo the hair dries quickly and is not stringy or hard to do up.

Brown Eyes: (1) Before you buy eyeglasses, try the simple eye tonic I have suggested to others. This is easy to prepare and quite inexpensive. Buy an ounce of crystos at the drug store and dissolve in pint of warm water. Drop one or two drops in each eye with a medicine dropper. You will find this removes dust and small particles and soothes the tired, inflamed eye muscles, giving the eye a sparkle and brightness. (2) For a complexion beautifier, read answer to Madame X.

Mrs. Collier, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Shoebottom and Mrs. C. L. Judkins and three daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. George Adams, Huntington drive and Marengo avenue, left Friday for a ten days' trip to Arrowhead Hot Springs.

Mrs. John W. Moore of El Centro street gave a luncheon in honor of Mrs. James S. Bryan and her mother, Mrs. Barbara Gakeler of Philadelphia, who are the house guests of Mrs. Bryan's daughter, Mrs. Harrison N. Gifford, Friday at 1 o'clock. The luncheon was served at small tables, which were ornamented with pink enchantress carnations and asparagus plumosus, all the appointments being carried out in pink and green. Covers were laid for Mrs. James S. Bryan, Mrs. Barbara Gakeler, Mrs. T. I. Gifford, Mrs. Harrison N. Gifford, Mrs. George Waller, Mrs. Rebecca Cairns, Mrs. Samuel Custer, Mrs. John N. Hunt, Mrs. Z. L. Parmalee, Mrs. Estelle Johnson, Mrs. E. L. B. Godfrey, Mrs. George Bailey and Miss Ethel Bailey of Alhambra and Miss Florence Gifford.

Mrs. Lillian Johnson, No. 1106 Mound avenue, left Thursday morning for a month's visit to Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Newerf, No. 320 Monterey road, were the victims of a surprise party Monday by members of the Ums A Wee Pedro Club, to which they belong, the occasion being the birthday anniversary of Mr. Newerf. "Five hundred" was enjoyed, and refreshments which the guests brought were served. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Matheson, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Engin, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Daniels, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Van Valer, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Newerf, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Deifel, Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Newerf, Miss Anna Shields, Mr. and Mrs. George Buttress, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Buttress, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Price, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Babcock and Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Scott.

Mrs. Charles Custer and daughter Dorothy, who have been the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Custer, No. 1500 El Centro street, left for their home in Chicago Thursday morning.

A social event that will be of deepest interest to many friends both in Milwaukee, Wis., and this city, was the wedding last Tuesday of Miss Josephine Bangs to Mathew Wachtel in the Catholic Chapel of the Holy Family Church on El Centro street, which was exquisitely decorated with calla lilies mingled with asparagus plumosus. Little Joseph Mallon led the wedding party as Mendelsohn's wedding march was played, bearing the ring on a white satin cushion, and the flower girls were the pretty little daughters of Mrs. Marx Groner and Mrs. Harry Strople, who carried baskets of roses, scattering the perfumed petals before the bridal couple. Miss Bertha Lithiere and Frank Wachtel, brother of the groom, were the attendants. The bride, becomingly attired in a white embroidered net over silk, her veil caught back with ropes of pearls and orange blossoms, was met at the altar railing by the groom, where Rev. Dr. Cotter performed a very impressive ceremony, including mass. In connection with the service Mrs. C. W. Allen rendered an Ave Maria, assisted by Mrs. Rose Chillicote. The altar was fragrant with orange blossoms, tied with ferns and white tulle ribbon. After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Wachtel will be at home to their friends at No. 265 Pasadena avenue.

Redondo Beach.

THE engagement of Miss Adelaide Ratrie Barkley to Louis Hartman Heath was announced on Tuesday evening at an announcement party given by Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Barkley at the Arrowhead Club. Owing to the prominence of the two young people, the engagement is of more than ordinary interest. The wedding will take place some time next June. Miss Barkley, who is the only daughter of Postmaster and Mrs. Barkley, and who is a favorite throughout the city, will be the first native-born Redondo Beach girl to be married, as well as the first member of the class of 1910 of the Redondo High School to wed. By reason of her gracious ways, as well as her beauty, which is of the brunette type, she is a social favorite here. Her parents are among the oldest residents having lived here almost since the beginning of Redondo Beach. Mr. Barkley has for many years published and edited the Redondo Breeze. Mr. Heath, a prominent member of the Arrowhead Club, and of other organizations here is book-keeper at the Ganahl Lumber Company's local office.

The announcement party Tuesday evening was in the nature of a Valentine party. The clubhouse was decorated in red hearts and the game of hearts was played. Heart-shaped Valentines with Cupids were used as place cards. Following the card games the guests were taken to the Mission Ice Cream Parlors, where a two-course supper was served. Here Mr. Barkley formally announced the engagement.

The guests were Misses Adelaide Barkley, Georgia Burke, Hazel Venable, Florence Bowman, Victoria Chrisman, Myrtle Kessler, Ida Feder, Dora Campbell, Margaret Furlong, Hazel and Jeannette Kindig, Clara Calley, Maude Welton, Maude Gillespie, Leona Hutchinson, Ruth Hutchinson, Dollie Mings, Marian Albee, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Heath, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Heath, Mrs. Clara Heath, Messrs. Louis Heath, R. C. Bourne, J. Welsley Combs, Leonard Forbes, George Shaker, Edward Lechner, Will Carnie, Wilson Albee, Louis Pardee, Deal Barkley, Hal Weddington, Charles Malby, Percy Furlong, Harry Edwards, Ward Ridgley, Alfred Moore, Elwin Lechner, Everett Lechner, Ludwig Langer.

Mrs. Louis Field gave a pretty birthday party Wednesday for her little son Goldwin Louis who celebrated the fifth anniversary of his birth, at her home on Diamond street. Pink table decorations, a pink cake, tiny animal cookies on which were the names of the small guests, lemon pigs, turtles fashioned from prunes and many other novelties delighted the small host and his friends of which there were a dozen present.

Mrs. George Cate entertained the Ladies' Aid Society of the Congregational church Tuesday afternoon at her home on North Catalina avenue with a charming valentine tea. Valentines and red hearts decorated the rooms while heart shaped sandwiches, cakes and bon-bons carried out the idea of the day. A programme of music was rendered.

Mrs. Fred Baetz entertained members of the local hive of Ladies of the Maccabees Monday afternoon with a tea.

Mrs. Armenia Packer of South Pasadena, district deputy grand matron of the Eastern Star, was a guest of Carnation Chapter of this city Tuesday evening. A banquet was served in the banquet hall after the regular meeting.

Mrs. A. L. Walton and children Marian and Norman have gone to Las Vegas, Nev., for a month's visit with the family of C. C. Corkhill.

Mrs. C. S. Colburn and daughter, Miss Dorothea, returned from a six months' trip in the East and South, Tuesday. They will make their home in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Ray McKnight and Mrs. J. E. Morehouse and son of Chicago arrived here Monday to spend the winter with Mrs. McKnight's sister, Miss Gretchen Neumister.

ARMY AND NAVY MEN.

Maj.-Gen. William P. Biddle, the new commandant of the marine corps, does not reach the retiring age of 64 years until December 17, 1917, and under the conditions heretofore existing he would ordinarily serve as commandant until that date. However, the Navy Department has not given up hope of having enacted into law a provision which it has been advocating for some time, which provides that the position of commandant of the marine corps shall be filled by details for four years. Even if this provision were enacted, it would not affect the new appointee, but it is understood that Gen. Biddle has agreed to apply for transfer to the retired list after service of four years as commandant. The advancement of Col. Biddle to major-general commandant will result in the promotion of Lieut.-Col. Franklin J. Moses and Maj. Benjamin H. Fuller to the next higher grades, respectively.

Capt. Henry W. Carpenter was examined late last week for promotion to the grade of major, to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement last October of Col. Paul St. C. Murphy. The impression in marine circles is that Capt. Carpenter will be placed on the retired list with the rank of major. In this event, the next on the list, Capt. Randolph C. Berkely, will be promoted on the Murphy retirement, and Capt. Arthur J. Matthews will be promoted to major as a result of the advancement of Col. Biddle.

President Taft has approved the application of Col. Thomas C. Prince, United States Marine Corps, for voluntary retirement after more than thirty years' service. Col. Prince was formerly on duty in the quartermaster's corps in Manila and was ordered to Washington several weeks ago.

A number of officers of the line of the marine corps have applied for transfer to the quartermaster's department to fill the two impending vacancies. Among them are First Lieuts. Hary O. Smith, Lovick P. Pinkston, Jeter R. Horton, Clifford P. Meyer, Tom D. Barber and Howard W. Stone, and Second Lieut. John Marston, III. No officer below the rank of first lieutenant is eligible for the transfer to the position of captain and assistant quartermaster, but it is likely that Lieut. Marston will be promoted to first lieutenant by the time a vacancy is available.

Col. George F. Cooke, retired, will probably be the lowest-paid person on the pay rolls of the military establishment for the next four years. His monthly pay is $312.50. He was held responsible for the loss of $10,000 of government funds from the post in Alaska, of which he was in command several years ago. This sum is supposed to have been taken by an enlisted man who absconded, but $150 of Col. Cooke's pay is retained each month by the government until the $10,000 is made up. It will take nearly four years more to recover this sum. Col. Cooke was tried and sentenced to dismissal on charges alleging failure to properly care for the government funds and the use of government facilities for the transportation of private property while on duty in Alaska. The President commuted the sentence to forfeiture of one-half the officer's pay for a period of ten years. As one-half of $312.50 is $156.25, he will receive only $6.25 a month until the lost $10,000 is made up.

Rear-Admiral Schley, retired, recently broke two ribs by slipping on the icy pavement of Washington. His condition is not serious, and he is expected to make rapid recovery.

The Doctor's Answers On Health and Beauty Q

By Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are [illegible] symptoms or diseases are given and the [illegible] any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may [illegible] Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood Sts. [illegible] closing self-addressed, stamped envelope [illegible] and address must be given, but only [illegible] will be used in my answers. The prescriptions [illegible] any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist [illegible] saler.

School Girl: A very superior home-made tooth powder has been recommended by me before in these columns, and if you want a cheap and very effective powder, obtain the following ingredients and make at home yourself; this makes enough to last a whole family six months or a year: Precipitated chalk 5 ozs., powdered sugar 3 ozs., antiseptic vilane powder 2 ozs., powdered soap 1 oz. Mix thoroughly and apply with tooth brush once or twice daily. This destroys germs, prevents decay and removes the unsightly accumulations upon the teeth.

J. K. O.: The symptoms you name, such as bloating, belching, pains in stomach, pains under shoulders, foul breath, headache, weakness, nervousness, dizzy spells, etc., indicate a chronic form of dyspepsia and indigestion. For some time you should eliminate pastries and sweetmeats from your diet. Have the following prescription filled and take a teaspoonful after each meal: Essence pepsin 3 ozs., compound essence cardiol 1 oz., syrup of ginger, 1 oz., neutralizing cordial 3 ozs. Mix. If you will continue this treatment several weeks, it will correct and cure you.

Thos. R.: You are undoubtedly a victim of catarrhal trouble which has affected your kidneys and bladder, both of which need a good tonic treatment. The symptoms—thirst, feverishness, pains in the back and groin, swelling of the ankles, puffiness under the eyes, inflamed eyelids, painful, smarting and frequent urination, especially at night, sleeplessness—are easily recognized, and the following treatment should be used: Fluid extract buchu 1 oz., comp. fluid balmwort 1 oz., comp. syrup sarsaparilla 4 ozs. Mix. Take a teaspoonful before or after meals and one on retiring. Drink plenty of water between meals. Continue the treatment six to eight weeks.

M. A. H.: I have never derived much satisfaction from use of hair tonics made with alcohol. Alcohol simply allays the symptoms and temporarily stimulates the scalp. When suffering from dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair and premature baldness, something is needed to destroy the microbes which attack the roots of the hair, and in all my experience I have found nothing so prompt, satisfactory and altogether harmless as Plain Yellow Minyol. It is packed in 4 oz. jars with full directions for using. Any up-to-date, well-stocked druggist can supply you.

Farm Life: If you and your children are affected with chronic bronchitis, especially night and morning, you should have a laxative tonic cough syrup, such as the following which will quickly relieve and cure any cough that is curable. Every household should have a supply, and you can safely recommend it to your neighbors and friends: Obtain from any well-stocked drug store 2½ oz. package essence mentho-laxene and make it into a full pint of cough syrup according to directions accompanying it. Simply use ¾ of a pint of granulated sugar and ½ pint of boiling water; stir and cool and add the mentho-laxene to it, making a full pint, superior to patent or labeled goods and about eight or ten times cheaper. This is a fine remedy for whooping cough.

Mollie: Neuritis is an inflammation of the nerves, due to deficiency in the blood supply. Follow same treatment as given C. W. H. Also take tablets triopeptine to improve digestion.

FRESH LITERATURE—BOOK REVIEWS.

By Willard Huntington Wright.

HOMELY NARRATIVE.

JIM HANDS. By Richard Washburn Child. The Macmillan Company, New York. (Price, $1.50.)

A mighty stack of books glares me in the eye, big and little, gaudy and quiet, foolish and intelligent, frivolous and serious, philosophical and fictional; inane tales by anaemic authorines; adventurous yarns by dashing war correspondents; novels solving the profound enigmas of sex written by hipless virgins; terrible tales of the woolly west, fabricated by innocent young men who have never been outside of New Jersey; uplift novels and novels pornographic; quasi-novels; Blavatsky philosophies, books of near-poems, essays, rhapsodies, sagas, kammererzaehlungen, dietetical tracts, cook-books, and stuffed short stories—all awaiting a charitable hearing. Therefore I must be brief. I cannot linger. Let us plunge headlong into this chromatic pile of documents.

Our first encounter is with "Jim Hands," a tiresome, but somewhat unusual novel by Richard Washburn Child. The story is supposedly told by a horny-handed foreman in a New England shoe-factory. It deals principally with the problems and troubles of Katherine, Jim's daughter—an ingenious and resourceful young lady who has determined to marry Bob Harvey in spite of her father's objections. The tale is loose-jointed, full of digressions, and not without the usual amount of sentimental pathos which our soft writers nowadays always lay on thick when those of the horny hands are being dealt with. The book, though, occasionally gets up some real interest, and a saving vein of humor runs through it.

WOOED IN THE WEST.

WHITE ROSES. By Catharine Holland Brown. Duffield & Co., New York. (Price, $1.50.)

A novel which has struggled to adhere to all the league rules for best-sellers is "White Roses," by Catharine Holland Brown. The result is a foolish and feather-brained fiction whose characters are merely figures in the flat.

The story tells in a brisk manner of how Corinna Curtis, a somewhat frivolous young lady, but nevertheless an accomplished man-eater, leaves her suitors in the East and hies to Arizona with her cousin and his wife. In Arizona she is besieged with a whole army of suitors and her manipulation of these Lochinvars of the plains makes up the body of the book. The hero of this amatory romance is a gent by the name of Morgan. Despite the fact that Corinna snubs him, he bombards her with white roses, and in the end you may be sure he is rewarded for his romantic courtship by being permitted to settle all of her bills for the rest of her life.

A book of safe mediocrity.

WHO SWIPED THE PEARLS?

THE SOCIAL BUCANEER. By Frederick S. Isham. Bobbs Merrill Company, Indianapolis. (Price, $1.50.)

In "The Social Bucaneer" we are led a merry chase for some stolen pearls.

Chatfield Bruce, a blue-blooded and idealistic nincompoop of the type that so delights the readers of the six-best-sellers is accused of having stolen a rope of gems from his employer's daughter. The heroine, a beautiful and charming society leader, loves Chatfield to distraction, and even though she thinks he filched her jewelry she continues to love him just the same. Oh, noble young lady!

Did he steal the jewels for the sake of sweet charity? I'm sure I do not know.

A DEUX.

US TWO COOK BOOK. By Jennie B. Williams. Barse & Hopkins Company, New York. (Price, $1.)

Next a cook book!

But at the outset I wish to say that I am not prepared to state, offhand, whether or not the recipes are all they should be. I have tested none of the book's concoctions, and can only say that the recipes are methodically arranged, and interspersed with blank pages on which the diligent housewife may write additional formulas for food-building.

At the opening of each chapter there is much advice given as to the methods of selecting fresh fruits, meats and vegetables. The virtue of the book, as I understand it, lies in the fact that the recipes have been reduced to the proper proportions for two persons.

Go to it, ye blushing brides!

A FLYING HERO.

THE FLYING MECURY. By Eleanor M. Ingram. Bobbs Merrill Company, Indianapolis. (Price, $1.50.)

The Williamses, I believe, started the fad of making automobiles the heroes of popular novels. Now we have a new author who has adopted this method of courting popularity.

In "The Flying Mercury" we encounter all the regulation claptrap of the "popular" novel—stern papas, pasty love-making, incessant automobiling, the sweet and bowelless young lady who has rapturous yearnings for an immaculately-dressed masculine dummy, the reformation of a mighty lusher, and the burning heat-waves of the ante-nuptial buss.

A thrilling and romantic tale, indeed! Especially designed for those whose waist diameter does not exceed sixteen inches.

AFTER THE ULTIMATE.

LIFE TRANSFIGURED. By Lillian Whiting. Little, Brown & Co., Boston. (Price, $1.25.)

In "Life Transfigured," by Lillian Whiting, we have a muddled combination of quasi-science, psychical research, diluted theology, and beatific platitudes.

Miss Whiting is a devout disciple of that pseudo-scientist and spiritual speculator, Sir Oliver Lodge. Gathering up all the stray ends of the cabalistic jargon of such empirics as Flammarion, Nordau, Lombroso, Lodge and Zola, Miss Whiting endeavors to prove the existence of a personal life after death. She has made the profound discovery that Sir Oliver, in his booklet on "The Ether of Space," has unconsciousy postulated the environment of the future life and revealed the conditions that apparently fit the problem as to the environment of the spiritual man immediately after his withdrawal from the physical world.

There is much nebulous talk about 'divine healing,' "holy spirit,' and other Babu expressions which only retard the spread of clear thinking and the research of real science.

Miss Whiting is always on the side of the metaphysical ink-fish. When [illegible] from which to choose, she invariably takes the vague and meaningless one. She is always giving a hearty "Aye!" to the professors of confusion. The scientists from whose works she draws her syllogistic material are never such men as Haeckel, Erlich, LeDantec, Weismann, Welch, Koch or Lankester; but always the semi-mystagogues with their smattering of science and their verbalistic calliopes.

A fair Daniel come to judgment!

THE LOVE ROUTE.

YOUNG LIFE. By Jessie Leckie Herbertson. Duffield & Co., New York. (Price, $1.20.)

Hester Stanton is the foolish young virgin who moves and weeps and has her being in the pages of "Young Life," a soggy novel over whose pages hangs an atmosphere of introspective melancholy. It tells of how this young English girl goes to live with a friend of her guardian's, and hits it off along the love route with indifferent success. She nearly makes matrimonial connections with Wollaston, an artistic cad; but he discovers that her grandmother was not all she should have been, and turns elsewhere. In the end, there is nothing for the poor girl to do but marry her fond guardian, a dull and commonplace individual, settled in his habits and twice her age.

It is a dispassionate climax to which we are led:

"So you're not marrying Wollaston?" Garfield said. "What do you say to coming with me, instead?"

Hester seemed to think that wouldn't be a bad idea, and the curtain descends with the two characters in a frigid embrace.

BLIGHTING AN IDEAL.

PAN'S MOUNTAIN. By Amelie Rives. Harper & Bros., New York. (Price, $1.50.)

An ultra-emotional lady is Amelie Rives. Her heroics all have hyper-erotic natures; they are neurasthenes in a continual state of hysteria.

In "Pan's Mountain," we encounter in Dione a psychiatric victim quite up to the standard already established in the neurotic "Virginia of Virginia," and the ash-clutching heroine of "The Quick and the Dead." Dione is a cross between an Italian and a Slav. But her mystical nature has taken on the paganism of the ancient Greeks, and we find her secretly worshiping the god Pan, much to the horror of her sane and sensible old nurse, Cecca.

At this juncture there looms on the horizon a poet from England whose ideas, so he informs Dione, are the same as hers. There is considerable soul-talk and interchange of pagan ideals; and anon they drift into the Great Adventure.

But alas and alack! The poet has been but a gay deceiver. And when the child is born he reveals the fact that he is married already! Of course, Dione is much put out over the discovery of her poet's wife. What to do? Anyone can see that her predicament was not a pleasant one. But, true to her paganism, she decides on a hysterical plan quite in keepink with her neurotic nature. She lures the astonished Englishman to a lonely spot and slays him.

And there you are!

A POWERFUL PLAY.

ANATHEMA. By Leonid Andreyev. The Macmillan Company, New York. (Price, $1.25.)

A grim and powerful playwright is Leonid Andreyev. In his plays, as in his fiction, there is a powerful simplicity, a bitter economy, yet withal a vividness and effectiveness that make him undeniably the greatest writer in Russia today. In "Anathema" we find Andreyev at his best. The imagery, the earnest philosophy, the haunting mysticism, the naked power of his others works are here.

At the rise of the curtain we behold the guardian at the gates of the Unknown, to whom comes Anathema, a fantastic, ghost-like figure, cringing, blasphemous, accursed—wriggling like a worm.

He questions the keeper of the Unknown. What is Truth? What is ahead of the men who suffer? Where is Eternity? What is the meaning of life? Why were men put upon the earth?

And the guardian tells him there is no name for what he asks; that there is no number by which to count, no measure by which to measure, no scales by which to weigh the answer. Every one who has said the word Love has lied; every one who has said the word Wisdom has lied, and those who have uttered the word God have lied with the greatest and most terrible lie.

They shake dice for the soul of David Leizer, a poor shopkeeper who is ever bemoaning his ill-fate. Anathema wins and departs for the earth.

The main part of the play opens upon a deserted highway near the city where David Leizer lives. In the guise of a lawyer, Anathema comes to him and bestows upon him great wealth. So greatly has David suffered through poverty and want that he decides to spend his fortune helping the sick and the poverty-stricken, in relieving the sufferings of his people.

So the poor and the sick and unfortunate flock to his mansion, and the old Jew pours his gold upon them. His son dies and his daughter markets her flesh. But still they come—the maimed and the poverty-stricken—and demand their share of David's wealth. His fortune dwindles until he has nothing left. The needy storm him in hosts, cursing and reviling him, accusing him of cheating them and of hiding his money. He flies in terror, but they run him down and stone him to death.

In the Epilogue, Anathema again comes to the guardian of the gates. Again he demands to know the secret. He hurls his curses upon the silent figure. He calls him a liar and a murderer. He threatens.

Then the hideous and eternal silence engulfs him.

THE AMERICAN SHOTGUN. By Charles Askins. Outing Publishing Company. (Price, $1.50.)

"The American Shotgun," by Charles Askins, is a comprehensive volume on gunnery written from an American's standpoint, and dealing for the most part with American arms. It is of interest to every scatter-gunner; and although the writer's viewpoints are original, some of his advice to beginners is shooting is decidely sound, and of more practical value than a great deal of such matter that has been printed in the past.

It is admittedly an impossibility to teach a man to swing a shotgun by diagram and precept; every shooter's style and system are laws unto himself; but there is many a valuable little hint buried in Askin's experience. His work shows the enthusiasm of a skilled sportsman all the way through and bears the evidence of a great deal of careful thought. The chapters on the various guns, and their care, performance, the various types of repeating and auto-loading guns now on the market, are good, and, comparatively speaking, up-to-date—as nearly so as anything can be which in the nature of events must stop while being printed, while the subject with which it deals continues without hesitation.

Askin's division of the styles of shooting is a departure. He brings some good arguments to substantiate his claims. And, all told, the book is well worth while, although it contains considerable matter that does not square with the writer's experience, or that probably would not fit that of anyone else. The field of gunnery is so broad, and so much of a shotgun's performance is debatable ground, that many of Askin's conclusions are not to be taken too finally.

LITERARY GOSSIP.

Few lovers of Rudyard Kipling's "White Man's Burden" would suspect that that poem was originally written in prose in a two thousand-word letter, and crossed the ocean addressed to George Cram Cook, the author of "The Chasm," published this spring by Stokes. Such, however, is the case. Mr. Cook had volunteered for the Spanish American War and in 1898 was encamped with his regiment in Florida with no better fighting in front of him than that with typhoid. One result was a lengthy correspondence with Mr. Kipling, whom he had previously met, concerning the war, its political and spiritual consequences, and the relations between England and America as two big parts of "The Tribe." The important letter in question came addressed to "Ex-Professor Corporal Cook, Seventy Million Strong."

Dr. James A. Honey, author of "South African Folk Tales," has the double qualification of Boer ancestry—which led him to take an active part in the South African War—and of scientific training for the medical profession, which has enabled him to make discriminating choice of the varied material offered for his book.

Mary Garden in the February Century gives her views of "Acting in the Lyric Drama."

"Opera," she says, "the drama that is told in music, can make a stronger appeal to the emotions than the spoken drama. Nor is it necessarily less human. It is a wider employment of the resources of art, and, therefore, in my opinion, a higher form of it. But the human quality is a thing found only in modern opera; it was not considered in the works of the earlier composers."

The twentieth annual meeting of the New York Kindergarten Association on January 17, took the form of a reception to Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin, whose influence as a kindergartner, author and playright has been of such value in extending the ideas for which the kindergarten stands. Mr. Hamilton W. Mable presided.

Mr. Oswald Garrison Villard, whose "Life of John Brown" was one of the most notable biographies of the past season, spoke at the Boston City Club last week on the New York political situation. Mr. Villard is the publisher of the New York Evening Post.

J. C. Grow, author of "Sport and Travel in the Far East," who for the past two years has been second secretary of the American Embassy in Berlin, has been promoted to the first secretaryship of the American Embassy in Vienna.

In the March installment in Scribner's of F. Hopkinson Smith's serial, "Kennedy Square," there is a description of a dinner party in Baltimore where one of the guests was Edgar Allan Poe.

Amelia Rives has gone from Castle Hill, her Virginia home in Albermarle County, to New York, where she will spend the remainder of the winter. Her last novel, "Pan's Mountain," has scarcely reached the public when she comes forward as a playwright. Mrs. Patrick Cambell, who read the play some time ago, has obtained the dramatic rights. It is called "Kid Faun," and will be presented on February 20. It is in no sense a dramatization, although the spirit of paganism in "Pan's Mountain" suggests the character of the faun in the play, which is laid in one scene, but will take nearly an hour in presentation.

At the recent suffrage baazar in New York, where William Dean Howells in an autographed copy of "My Mark Twain" declared himself for the cause, Don C. Seitz did not commit himself quite so completely. The author of "Discoveries in Every-Day Europe" presented to the committee a copy of his latest book, "Elba and Elsewhere," in which he wrote: "When the women get their rights they will please remember ours. Don C. Seitz."

In his "Essays on Russian Novelists," William Lyon Phelps, tells the following story about Robert Louis Stevenson as illustrating the cosmopolitanism of Russian character, which Prof. Phelps says is accountable, in a measure, for the international effect and influence of Russian novels.

Stevenson, writing from Mentone to his mother, January 7, 1874, said: "We have two little Russian girls, with the youngest of whom, a little polyglot button of a three-year-old, I had the most laughable scene at lunch today. . . . She said something in Italian which made everybody laugh very much . . . after some examination, she announced emphatically to the whole table, in German, that I was a madchen. . . . This hasty conclusion as to my sex she was led afterwards to revise . . . but her new opinion . . . was announced in a language quite unknown to me, and probably Russian. To complete the scroll of her accomplishments, she said good-by to me in very commendable English." Three days later, Stevenson added, "The little Russian kid is only two and a half: she speaks six languages."

H. G. Wells and his family are in Switzerland on a brief holiday. They left England more than a fortnight ago, simultaneously with the publication of the new "Machivelli."

Walter H. Page appears on the title-page of a new edition of "The Southerner" as the author of that hitherto anonymous "Autobiography of Nicholas Worth."

It is said that Rudyard Kipling invented the phrase "hell with the lid off." It was applied to Medicine Hat, Alberta, during a visit which the author made there. So well did the people of Alberta like this unsolicited testimonial that the next city that sprang up in the provinces was named "Kipling."

The absurdity and elasticity of the English libel-law were demonstrated the other day when one Harold Belcher was given a verdict against Lloyd's Weekly News for publishing a serial story in which the villian was named Harold Belcher. The jury naively decided that one reading the story might connect the villian with the plaintiff and thereby injure his character.

BOOK NEWS.

It is said that the two-volume work on "Railroad Traffic and Rates," which the Appletons are publishing this week, contains the first comprehensive account ever written of the several systems of rates in force in different parts of the United States. The book is by Profs. Emory R. Johnson and Grover G. Huebner of the University of Pennsylvania.

Charles Scribner's Sons state that "Children of Tomorrow," by Clara E. Laughlin, and "Her Little Young Ladyship," by the late Myra Kelly, which were announced for publication in the early spring, will not appear until summer. The publications have been deferred to give a magazine the opportunity to present them serially before they are issued in book form.

Houghton Mifflin Company have just published a book on "Public Ownership of Telephones on the Continent of Europe," by Arthur N. Holcombe. The tremendous growth of the telephone business in the United States under private companies, the general need of readjustment of rates, and the recent attempt of a Massachusetts State commission to fix new rates, make this careful study of European conditions extremely opportune and valuable.

Doubleday, Page & Co. have taken from Altemus the Potash and Perlmutter stories by Montague Glass, and are bringing out a new edition of these inimitable short stories which have taken so prominent a place in magazine fiction. A second volume of the stories will be published by the same house later on.

Anne Warner has returned to this country for the winter, after having resided in Germany for the past few years. She has written for spring publication a romance of an American widow in Europe, entitled "How Leslie Loved." The book will be illustrated by A. B. Wenzell.

Moffat, Yard & Company announce the early publication of a book by William Winter, entitled "Gray Days and Gold." This is not the popular old book of that title, but a greatly enlarged and rejuvenated book with so much added that it can be called quite properly a new book.

How to Stop Pimples

In Five Days You Can Get Rid of All Skin Eruptions by the New Calcium Sulphide Wafers.

Trial Package to Prove it Sent Free.

Any man or woman gets awfully tired going around with a pimply face day after day. And other people get awfully tired, too, seeing them go around with their faces full of disgusting pimples.

If you are one of the unfortunates who can't get away from your pimples, and you have tried almost everything under heaven to get rid of them, take a few of Stuart's Calcium Wafers every day. Do that steadily for a few days, and in less than a week look at yourself in the mirror.

You will then say that Stuart's Calcium Wafers are a wonder in getting rid of the eruptions.

These wonderful little workers contain the most effective blood purifier ever discovered, calcium sulphide.

No matter what your trouble is, whether pimples, blotches, blackheads, rash, tetter, eczema or scabby crusts, you can solemnly depend upon Stuart's Calcium Wafers as never-failing.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers have cured boils in three days and the worst cases of skin diseases in a week. Every particle of impurity is driven out of your system completely, never to return, and it is done without deranging your system in the slightest.

Most treatments for the blood and for skin eruptions are miserably slow in their results, and besides, many of them are poisonous. Stuart's Calcium Wafers contain no poison or drug of any kind; they are absolutely harmless, and yet do work which cannot fail to surprise you.

Don't go around with a humiliating, disgusting mass of pimples and blackheads on your face. A face covered over with these disgusting things makes people turn away from you, and breeds failure in your life work. Stop it. Read what an Iowa man said when he woke up one morning and found he had a new face:

"By George, I never saw anything like it. There I've been for three years trying to get rid of pimples and blackheads, and guess I used everything under the sun. I used your Calcium Wafers for just seven days. This morning every blessed pimple is gone and I can't find a blackhead. I could write you a volume of thanks. I am so grateful to you."

Just send us your name and address in full today, and we will send you a trial package of Stuart's Calcium Wafers, free to test. After you have tried the sample and been convinced that all we say is true, you will go to your nearest druggist and get a 50c box and be cured of your facial trouble. They are in tablet form and no trouble whatever to take. You go about your work as usual, and there you are—cured and happy.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 175 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

FRESH LITERATURE—BOOK REVIEWS.

By Willard Huntington Wright.

HOMELY NARRATIVE.

JIM HANDS. By Richard Washburn Child. The Macmillan Company, New York. (Price, $1.50.)

A mighty stack of books glares me in the eye, big and little, gaudy and quiet, foolish and intelligent, frivolous and serious, philosophical and fictional; inane tales by anaemic authorines; adventurous yarns by dashing war correspondents; novels solving the profound enigmas of sex written by hipless virgins; terrible tales of the woolly west, fabricated by innocent young men who have never been outside of New Jersey; uplift novels and novels pornographic; quasi-novels; Blavatsky philosophies, books of near-poems, essays, rhapsodies, sagas, kammererzaehlungen, dietetical tracts, cook-books, and stuffed short stories—all awaiting a charitable hearing. Therefore I must be brief. I cannot linger. Let us plunge headlong into this chromatic pile of documents.

Our first encounter is with "Jim Hands," a tiresome, but somewhat unusual novel by Richard Washburn Child. The story is supposedly told by a horny-handed foreman in a New England shoe-factory. It deals principally with the problems and troubles of Katherine, Jim's daughter—an ingenious and resourceful young lady who has determined to marry Bob Harvey in spite of her father's objections. The tale is loose-jointed, full of digressions, and not without the usual amount of sentimental pathos which our soft writers nowadays always lay on thick when those of the horny hands are being dealt with. The book, though, occasionally gets up some real interest, and a saving vein of humor runs through it.

WOOED IN THE WEST.

WHITE ROSES. By Catharine Holland Brown. Duffield & Co., New York. (Price, $1.50.)

A novel which has struggled to adhere to all the league rules for best-sellers is "White Roses," by Catharine Holland Brown. The result is a foolish and feather-brained fiction whose characters are merely figures in the flat.

The story tells in a brisk manner of how Corinna Curtis, a somewhat frivolous young lady, but nevertheless an accomplished man-eater, leaves her suitors in the East and hies to Arizona with her cousin and his wife. In Arizona she is besieged with a whole army of suitors and her manipulation of these Lochinvars of the plains makes up the body of the book. The hero of this amatory romance is a gent by the name of Morgan. Despite the fact that Corinna snubs him, he bombards her with white roses, and in the end you may be sure he is rewarded for his romantic courtship by being permitted to settle all of her bills for the rest of her life.

A book of safe mediocrity.

WHO SWIPED THE PEARLS?

THE SOCIAL BUCANEER. By Frederick S. Isham. Bobbs Merrill Company, Indianapolis. (Price, $1.50.)

IN "The Social Bucaneer" we are led a merry chase for some stolen pearls.

Chatfield Bruce, a blue-blooded and idealistic nincompoop of the type that so delights the readers of the six-best-sellers is accused of having stolen a rope of gems from his employer's daughter. The heroine, a beautiful and charming society leader, loves Chatfield to distraction, and even though she thinks he filched her jewelry she continues to love him just the same. Oh, noble young lady!

Did he steal the jewels for the sake of sweet charity? I'm sure I do not know.

A DEUX.

US TWO COOK BOOK. By Jennie B. Williams. Barse & Hopkins Company. New York. (Price, $1.)

NEXT a cook book!

But at the outset I wish to say that I am not prepared to state, offhand, whether or not the recipes are all they should be. I have tested none of the book's concoctions, and can only say that the recipes are methodically arranged, and interspersed with blank pages on which the diligent housewife may write additional formulas for food-building.

At the opening of each chapter there is much advice given as to the methods of selecting fresh fruits, meats and vegetables. The virtue of the book, as I understand it, lies in the fact that the recipes have been reduced to the proper proportions for two persons.

Go to it, ye blushing brides!

A FLYING HERO.

THE FLYING MECURY. By Eleanor M. Ingram. Bobbs Merrill Company, Indianapolis. (Price, $1.50.)

THE WILLIAMSES, I believe, started the fad of making automobiles the heroes of popular novels. Now we have a new author who has adopted this method of courting popularity.

In "The Flying Mercury" we encounter all the regulation claptrap of the "popular" novel—stern papas, pasty love-making, incessant automobiling, the sweet and bowelless young lady who has rapturous yearnings for an immaculately-dressed masculine dummy, the reformation of a mighty lusher, and the burning heat-waves of the ante-nuptial buss.

A thrilling and romantic tale, indeed! Especially designed for those whose waist diameter does not exceed sixteen inches.

AFTER THE ULTIMATE.

LIFE TRANSFIGURED. By Lillian Whiting. Little, Brown & Co., Boston. (Price, $1.25.)

IN "Life Transfigured," by Lillian Whiting, we have a muddled combination of quasi-science, psychical research, diluted theology, and beatific platitudes.

Miss Whiting is a devout disciple of that pseudo-scientist and spiritual speculator, Sir Oliver Lodge. Gathering up all the stray ends of the cabalistic jargon of such empirics as Flammarion, Nordau, Lombroso, Lodge and Zola, Miss Whiting endeavors to prove the existence of a personal life after death. She has made the profound discovery that Sir Oliver, in his booklet on "The Ether of Space," has unconsciously postulated the environment of the future life and revealed the conditions that apparently fit the problem as to the environment of the spiritual man immediately after his withdrawal from the physical world.

There is much nebulous talk about 'divine healing,' "holy spirit,' and other Babu expressions which only retard the spread of clear thinking and the research of real science.

Miss Whiting is always on the side of the metaphysical ink-fish. When choose, she invariably takes the vague and meaningless one. She is always giving a hearty "Aye!" to the professors of confusion. The scientists from whose works she draws her syllogistic material are never such men as Haeckel, Erlich, LeDantec, Weismann, Welch, Koch or Lankester; but always the semi-mystagogues with their smattering of science and their verbalistic calliopes.

A fair Daniel come to judgment!

THE LOVE ROUTE.

YOUNG LIFE. By Jessie Leckie Herbertson. Duffield & Co., New York. (Price, $1.20.)

HESTER STANTON is the foolish young virgin who moves and weeps and has her being in the pages of "Young Life," a soggy novel over whose pages hangs an atmosphere of introspective melancholy. It tells of how this young English girl goes to live with a friend of her guardian's, and hits it off along the love route with indifferent success. She nearly makes matrimonial connections with Wollaston, an artistic cad; but he discovers that her grandmother was not all she should have been, and turns elsewhere. In the end, there is nothing for the poor girl to do but marry her fond guardian, a dull and commonplace individual, settled in his habits and twice her age.

It is a dispassionate climax to which we are led:

"So you're not marrying Wollaston?" Garfield said. "What do you say to coming with me, instead?"

Hester seemed to think that wouldn't be a bad idea, and the curtain descends with the two characters in a frigid embrace.

BLIGHTING AN IDEAL.

PAN'S MOUNTAIN. By Amelie Rives. Harper & Bros., New York. (Price, $1.50.)

AN ULTRA-EMOTIONAL lady is Amelie Rives. Her heroics all have hyper-erotic natures; they are neurasthenes in a continual state of hysteria.

In "Pan's Mountain," we encounter in Dione a psychiatric victim quite up to the standard already established in the neurotic "Virginia of Virginia," and the ash-clutching heroine of "The Quick and the Dead.". Dione is a cross between an Italian and a Slav. But her mystical nature has taken on the paganism of the ancient Greeks, and we find her secretly worshiping the god Pan, much to the horror of her sane and sensible old nurse, Cecca.

At this juncture there looms on the horizon a poet from England whose ideas, so he informs Dione, are the same as hers. There is considerable soul-talk and interchange of pagan ideals; and anon they drift into the Great Adventure.

But alas and alack! The poet has been but a gay deceiver. And when the child is born he reveals the fact that he is married already! Of course, Dione is much put out over the discovery of her poet's wife. What to do? Anyone can see that her predicament was not a pleasant one. But, true to her paganism, she decides on a hysterical plan quite in keepink with her neurotic nature. She lures the astonished Englishman to a lonely spot and slays him.

And there you are!

A POWERFUL PLAY.

ANATHEMA. By Leonid Andreyev. The Macmillan Company, New York. (Price, $1.25.)

A GRIM and powerful playwright is Leonid Andreyev. In his plays, as in his fiction, there is a powerful simplicity, a bitter economy, yet withal a vividness and effectiveness that make him undeniably the greatest writer in Russia today. In "Anathema" we find Andreyev at his best. The imagery, the earnest philosophy, the haunting mysticism, the naked power of his others works are here.

At the rise of the curtain we behold the guardian at the gates of the Unknown, to whom comes Anathema, a fantastic, ghost-like figure, cringing, blasphemous, accursed—wriggling like a worm.

He questions the keeper of the Unknown. What is Truth? What is ahead of the men who suffer? Where is Eternity? What is the meaning of life? Why were men put upon the earth?

And the guardian tells him there is no name for what he asks; that there is no number by which to count, no measure by which to measure, no scales by which to weigh the answer. Every one who has said the word Love has lied; every one who has said the word Wisdom has lied, and those who have uttered the word God have lied with the greatest and most terrible lie.

They shake dice for the soul of David Leizer, a poor shopkeeper who is ever bemoaning his ill-fate. Anathema wins and departs for the earth.

The main part of the play opens upon a deserted highway near the city where David Leizer lives. In the guise of a lawyer, Anathema comes to him and bestows upon him great wealth. So greatly has David suffered through poverty and want that he decides to spend his fortune helping the sick and the poverty-stricken, in relieving the sufferings of his people.

So the poor and the sick and unfortunate flock to his mansion, and the old Jew pours his gold upon them. His son dies and his daughter markets her flesh. But still they come—the maimed and the poverty-stricken—and demand their share of David's wealth. His fortune dwindles until he has nothing left. The needy storm him in hosts, cursing and reviling him, accusing him of cheating them and of hiding his money. He flies in terror, but they run him down and stone him to death.

In the Epilogue, Anathema again comes to the guardian of the gates. Again he demands to know the secret. He hurls his curses upon the silent figure. He calls him a liar and a murderer. He threatens.

Then the hideous and eternal silence engulfs him.

The author of "Discoveries in Every-Day Europe" presented to the committee a copy of his latest book, "Elba and Elsewhere," in which he wrote: "When the women get their rights they will please remember ours. Don C. Seitz."

In his "Essays on Russian Novelists," William Lyon Phelps, tells the following story about Robert Louis Stevenson as illustrating the cosmopolitanism of Russian character, which Prof. Phelps says is accountable, in a measure, for the international effect and influence of Russian novels.

Stevenson, writing from Mentone to his mother, January 7, 1874, said: "We have two little Russian girls, with the youngest of whom, a little polyglot button of a three-year-old, I had the most laughable scene at lunch today. . . . She said something in Italian which made everybody laugh very much . . . after some examination, she announced emphatically to the whole table, in German, that I was a madchen. . . . This hasty conclusion as to my sex she was led afterwards to revise . . . but her new opinion . . . was announced in a language quite unknown to me, and probably Russian. To complete the scroll of her accomplishments, she said good-by to me in very commendable English." Three days later, Stevenson added, "The little Russian kid is only two and a half: she speaks six languages."

H. G. Wells and his family are in Switzerland on a brief holiday. They left England more than a fortnight ago, simultaneously with the publication of the new "Machivelli."

Walter H. Page appears on the title-page of a new edition of "The Southerner" as the author of that hitherto anonymous "Autobiography of Nicholas Worth."

It is said that Rudyard Kipling invented the phrase "hell with the lid off." It was applied to Medicine Hat, Alberta, during a visit which the author made there. So well did the people of Alberta like this unsolicited testimonial that the next city that sprang up in the provinces was named "Kipling."

The absurdity and elasticity of the English libel-law were demonstrated the other day when one Harold Belcher was given a verdict against Lloyd's Weekly News for publishing a serial story in which the villian was named Harold Belcher. The jury naively decided that one reading the story might connect the villian with the plaintiff and thereby injure his character.

BOOK NEWS.

It is said that the two-volume work on "Railroad Traffic and Rates," which the Appletons are publishing this week, contains the first comprehensive account ever written of the several systems of rates in force in different parts of the United States. The book is by Profs. Emory R. Johnson and Grover G. Huebner of the University of Pennsylvania.

Charles Scribner's Sons state that "Children of Tomorrow," by Clara E. Laughlin, and "Her Little Young Ladyship," by the late Myra Kelly, which were announced for publication in the early spring, will not appear until summer. The publications have been deferred to give a magazine the opportunity to present them serially before they are issued in book form.

Houghton Mifflin Company have just published a book on "Public Ownership of Telephones on the Continent of Europe," by Arthur N. Holcombe. The tremendous growth of the telephone business in the United States under private companies, the general need of readjustment of rates, and the recent attempt of a Massachusetts State commission to fix new rates, make this careful study of European conditions extremely opportune and valuable.

Doubleday, Page & Co. have taken from Altemus the Potash and Perlmutter stories by Montague Glass, and are bringing out a new edition of these inimitable short stories which have taken so prominent a place in magazine fiction. A second volume of the stories will be published by the same house later on.

Anne Warner has returned to this country for the winter, after having resided in Germany for the past few years. She has written for spring publication a romance of an American widow in Europe, entitled "How Leslie Loved." The book will be illustrated by A. B. Wenzell.

Moffat, Yard & Company announce the early publication of a book by William Winter, entitled "Gray Days and Gold." This is not the popular old book of that title, but a greatly enlarged and rejuvenated book with so much added that it can be called quite properly a new book.

How to Stop Pimples

In Five Days You Can Get Rid of All Skin Eruptions by the New Calcium Sulphide Wafers.

Trial Package to Prove it Sent Free.

Any man or woman gets awfully tired going around with a pimply face day after day. And other people get awfully tired, too, seeing them go around with their faces full of disgusting pimples.

If you are one of the unfortunates who can't get away from your pimples, and you have tried almost everything under heaven to get rid of them, take a few of Stuart's Calcium Wafers every day. Do that steadily for a few days, and in less than a week look at yourself in the mirror.

You will then say that Stuart's Calcium Wafers are a wonder in getting rid of the eruptions.

These wonderful little workers contain the most effective blood purifier ever discovered, calcium sulphide.

No matter what your trouble is, whether pimples, blotches, blackheads, rash, tetter, eczema or scabby crusts, you can solemnly depend upon Stuart's Calcium Wafers as never-failing.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers have cured boils in three days and the worst cases of skin diseases in a week. Every particle of impurity is driven out of your system completely, never to return, and it is done without deranging your system in the slightest.

Most treatments for the blood and for skin eruptions are miserably slow in their results, and besides, many of them are poisonous. Stuart's Calcium Wafers contain no poison or drug of any kind; they are absolutely harmless, and yet do work which cannot fail to surprise you.

Don't go around with a humiliating, disgusting mass of pimples and blackheads on your face. A face covered over with these disgusting things makes people turn away from you, and breeds failure in your life work. Stop it. Read what an Iowa man said when he woke up one morning and found he had a new face:

"By George, I never saw anything like it. There I've been for three years trying to get rid of pimples and blackheads, and guess I used everything under the sun. I used your Calcium Wafers for just seven days. This morning every blessed pimple is gone and I can't find a blackhead. I could write you a volume of thanks. I am so grateful to you."

Just send us your name and address in full today, and we will send you a trial package of Stuart's Calcium Wafers, free to test. After you have tried the sample and been convinced that all we say is true, you will go to your nearest druggist and get a 50c box and be cured of your facial trouble. They are in tablet form and no trouble whatever to take. You go about your work as usual, and there you are—cured and happy.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 175 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

When You Furnis
That Home

You owe it to yourself, you owe it to your family, you owe it to your friends and you owe it to your pocketbook to see the furniture, carpets and draperies that we carry, and know for yourself what the Pease policy and the Pease method of conducting business really means.

We appreciate that is is somewhat difficult to convey to the reader through our newspaper announcements as clear and comprehensive an understanding of our methods of conducting our business as we should like to or as would be possible if we could meet you all face to face.

There is, after all, no way in which we can so satisfactorily and accurately know a firm as by doing business with them.

Our advertising is, of course, not directed so much toward those who have made our acquaintance as it is toward those whom we have not had the pleasure of receiving any business from, and we want to assure you that there is no business house that could possibly possess a greater desire or willingness to serve its customers, or any house that has a better equipment, a better stock, a more intelligent or courteous corps of salesmen and whose guarantee could be stronger than our double guarantee—our own and that of the manufacturer—and above everything that gives that full measure of satisfaction which has brought to this store a large and ever-increasing patronage.

You may have the finest home in Southern California to furnish. You may have a moderate priced home, a bungalow, a mountain or seaside cottage. Whatever the need may be, we can supply it to your entire satisfaction, and, we honestly believe, just a little bit better than anybody else can do it for you.

In fairness to yourself, if for no consideration for us, we ask you to investigate and substantiate our claims.

Our policy, briefly stated, is this: One price, and that the lowest; 2 per cent. for cash, rational credit, every article fully guaranteed, prompt delivery in perfect condition, a willingness to right any error.

Our customers always come back.

till they had become beautifully and delicately yellow. The spelling was quaint and archaic, and all the S's—so squat and saucy in modern books—were masquerading in the stiff and formal poses of F's. The thought struck me, at the moment of reading, that the strange and gruesome tale might make a fine motive for a picture."

"Ah!" said the Painter, interested at once. "Tell it to us."

"A certain blacksmith living on the outskirts of the Black Forest had been bitten by a mad dog. The hours passed, and at last he felt the insidious venom of hydrophobia creeping through his body from his heart to his brain. Saying not a word of his mishap or his great fear to his wife and children, he betook himself to his gloomy smithy and carefully bolted the door behind him, for he must not be interrupted. There, after committing his immortal soul to his Maker, he began to forge, in grim silence and melancholy isolation, the links of a chain."

The Poet paused and glanced at his auditors.

"Go on," said the Editor.

"When all the links had been joined, he welded one end of the chain to the heavy anvil, the other he fastened around his leg. Then he flung his tools far beyond his own reach, and with folded arms awaited his awful and inevitable doom. But come what might, he knew now that it was not in his power to inflict his own monstrous fate upon any of his loved ones."

"The situation is fine, even epic in its grandeur," said the Painter, after a long silence. "Yet it is not a subject for a picture."

"And why?"

"Ruskin would perhaps have told you because the idea is too horrible for human contemplation. You remember, do you not, that he once induced a young American painter, Stillman, to destroy a noble picture of a wounded deer because it depicted agony and death. However, that is not my objection to your blacksmith. The idea is fine and beautiful. But you could not tell the whole story with a brush or a pencil. No matter how well you painted in your figure and its accessories, the picture would be meaningless without the aid of words. This printed explanation would help to make it literary and to be literary in painting is almost a crime. Every painting must tell its own storp, without help from literature. What would you think of a poem that needed the commentary of a painting to make it understood?"

"Not much, I'm afraid," the Poet confessed. "Undoubtedly it would be a pretty lame affair—a monstrosity."

"The story of the heroic blacksmith shall be allowed to remain in prose," the Editor put in with great decision. "While it is noble and inspiring toward the end, some of its preliminary details are too sordid for the higher flights of poetry. The old chronicler had the true art instinct when he told the tale in prose."

Then, at the earnest request of the others, the Poet went in search of the mildewed little volume, that they might see the book and read the tale for themselves.

International Studio.

The leading article of the International Studio for February is an appreciation of the marine paintings of Charles H. Woodbury, by Arthur Hoeber, with numerous illustrations. Of almost equal interest and value are A. Lys Baldry's account of the recent decorative work and sculpture of W. Reynolds-Stephens; J. B. Manson's exposition of the paintings of Alexander K. Jamieson, and the paper on the etchings of Herman A. Webster.

Leila Mechlin writes of the Corcoran gallery's third biennial exhibition, mentioning, among other pictures of note, William Wendt's California landscape, "Silence of the Night;" J. William Fosdick treats of the fourth annual exhibition of the National Society of Craftsmen.

"Japanese Temples and Their Treasures," by Prof. Jiro Harada, with fourteen illustrations; a note on Edward J. Detmold's drawings and etchings, by T. Martin Wood; "In the Galleries," "The Lay Figure," etc., complete the number.

ART NOTES.

An exhibition of paintings by Ralph Davison Miller opened in the Steckel gallery last Monday, to continue till March 7.

The exhibition of the California Art Club, held in Hotel Ivins, has proved so successful that it has been decided to keep the gallery open till the end of this week.

Norman St. Clair will hold an exhibition of some of his recent water colors, in his studio, No. 700 Herkimer street, Pasadena, beginning Monday, February 27, and continuing for one week. About ten new pictures will be shown.

Mary Chase Gardam of Ypsilanti, Mich., who is visiting her mother, Laura Chase Smith, for the winter, has brought with her a portfolio of charming water color sketches which she painted on a recent trip to England.

An exhibition of the private collection of paintings owned by Herbert C. Simmons will be held in the near future at the home of Mr. Simmons, No. 911 East Thirty-first street.

Adaptations of "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," and "Carmen," in soliloquy, will be given on Friday evening, February 24, by Mrs. Alexander Fiero in thes tudio of Walter H. Pritchard No. 157 Oakland avenue, Pasadena.

The Pasadena Music and Art League will hold a loan exhibition of pictures and sculptures at No. 31 North Marengo street next week, beginning tomorrow. Among the exhibitors will be Benjamin Chambers Brown, Rob Wagner, Jean Mannheim, William Wendt, Julia Bracken Wendt, Ralph Fullerton Mocine, Kenneth Newell Avery, Elmer Wachtel and Marion Kavanaugh Wachtel.

The recent landscape works of Ernest Browning Smith will be exhibited in the Blanchard gallery some time in March. Many of the pictures will be Catalina subjects.

Woman's Club, Hollywood.

At its session in the "Bungalow" on Wednesday last, the women of Hollywood enjoyed an entertaining talk by Mrs. D. C. McCan concerning the Island of Ceylon, its cities and excavations, and its pearls. Rare photographs and some beautiful examples of its pearls were shown. Tea was served with Mrs. Edward Winterer presiding and Mrs. J. W. Morgan and Mrs. B. S. Phelps assisting. Owing to the illness of Mrs. C. P. Wilson, who was to entertain the club on the 22nd, no meeting of the club will be held on that date.

Young Lady's Birthday.

The marching years go by,
  And brush your garment's hem;
The bandits by and by
  Will bid you go with them.

Trust not that caravan!
  Old vagabonds are they;
They'll rob you if they can,
  And make believe it's play.

Make the old robbers give
  Of all the spoils they bear,
Their truth, to help you live,
  Their joy, to keep you fair.

Ask not for gauds nor gold,
  Nor fame that falsely rings;
The foolish world grows old
  Caring for all these things.

Make all your sweet demands
  For happiness alone,
And the years will fill your hands
  With treasures rarely known.

Mr. Lauder.

The coming visit of W. Waugh Lauder, the well known pianist and lecturer of Chicago, is attracting much interest among musicians in the southwestern end of the city. Mr. Lauder was the originator of the piano lecture recital, or "pianologue," as he calls it and has given these in more than a thousand music schools in this country and Canada. He is assisted by his daughter, Miss Marguerite Lauder, contralto, and a course of four recitals is to be given at the University of Southern California February 23 and 24, as follows: Thursday, Feb. 23, 11:30 a. m., Popular Programme. Thursday evening, Chopin and Schumann. Friday at 3 p. m., "Life with Liszt at Weimar and Rome"—Liszt programme. Friday evening—Miscellaneous programme.

Logan Pupils.

Pupils of the Logan Academy were heard in their regular semi-monthly recital on Friday evening. Those who took part in the programme were the Academy orchestra, Genevieve Flagg, Dimple Selig, Thelma Black, Carl Bilger, Irma Krueger, Chloe Henderson, Emily and Cora Lietzau, Leona Forgue, Bernice Holl, Madaline Simpson, Caroline Payne and Eva Noble.

Moore's band, at Hollenbeck Park today, will play a selection from "La Sonnambula," Tobani's "Poem d'Amour," "Dolorosa," the overture to Auber's "Massanielo," "The Mill in the Forest," Laurendeau's "The Peacock," Kissler's "On Mountain Heights," and Godfrey's "Souvenir de Beethoven."

George W. Jenkins, Welch tenor who was with the Savage Opera Company, is in Los Angeles for the first time, will sing eight numbers this afternoon at 3:20 o'clock in the Young Men's Christian Association auditorium.

FLANEUR'S FLIGHTS AMONG NOTABLES.

Count Albert Apponyi, whom many regard as the greatest Hungarian statesman of this age, has come to America to lecture under the auspices of the civic forum and the Pease Society. The subjects on which he is addressing the American public are the problems presented by the peace movement and the relations existing between Hungary and Austria.

The Count is a member of the Hungarian Parliament and The Hague Tribunal of Arbitration and is privy counselor to Emperor Franz Joseph as King of Hungary. He was born in Vienna in 1846. His parents were Count George Apponyi, late Chancellor of the Empire, and Countess Julia Sztaray, zealously religious, saintly woman, whose benevolence and charitable activities still are quoted in Hungary as examples.

Count Stephen Szechenyi, surnamed "the greatest Hungarian" (an ancestor of Count Laszlo Szechenyi, who married Gladys Vanderbilt,) always referred to him as "der kleine Gott Albi" ("Albert, the little God.") He received his first education in an institution of the Jesuits in Kalksburg, and later became a student of the Vienna, and subsequently of the Budapest University. In 1872 the district of Szent Endre honored him with a seat in Parliament. Ever since, during the last forty years, he has been one of the foremost leaders of Hungarian political and social life.

But his activities are not confined to Hungary alone. He has been a member of the Interparliamentary Peace Conference ever since its organization, and as such he delivered several speeches at the peace conferences of Brussels, Christiainia, St. Louis and London—speeches which compelled attention in all parts of the world and were highly complimented by the press. He was the chairman of the international conference held at Paris to discuss the situation of the unfortunate Boers.

The Count is an enthusiastic admirer of America. His first American tour exercised great influence upon him. It strengthened his democratic convictions, and it is highly probable that it was the result of his American visit that upon his return to Hungary he assumed the leadership of the radical Kossuth party. He has not accepted a single decoration or order, despite the fact that he has achieved everything which a statesman in a monarchial country can achieve. Another fact proving his democracy is that he always signs his name as "Albert Apponyi," leaving out his title of "count." His children also are educated in accordance with democratic principles. His son is not allowed to use his title, nor are his daughters called countesses, simply "Miss Mary" and Miss Julia."

When, in 1904, he visited America, his suite in the hotel, when he arrived at New York, was all that could be desired, but the Count found it somewhat too expensive. "It seems," he said, "you do not know the story which almost every one tells in Europe. It is said that some time ago two footpads attacked a well-dressed gentleman in New York. One of the rogues pinned the arms of the victim to his sides, and the other began to search through his pockets. The first thing he found was a bill of the same hotel in which you hired rooms for me. When he saw it he turned to his companion and said: 'It's a bill from the Hotel ———. We might as well let the poor devil go. I do not think he has any money left for us after having been in that place.' No doubt, my friend, if you had known this you would not have taken me to that hotel."

The Count's wife, Countess Gotilde Apponyi, is the daughter of Count Alexander Mensdorff-Pouilly, Duke of Ditrichstein-Nicolsburg, and of the Countess Alexandria Ditrichstein, and her brother is the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador to Great Britain. She is a near relative of the English royal family through her grandmother, who was a sister of Queen Victoria's husband, the Prince Consort, Albert. In her girlhood she was one of the favorites of the exclusive Viennese aristocracy, but today she is a true Hungarian lady.

It is in his home, among the members of his family, that the count finds himself happiest. His children fire at him a whole volley of questions, and the count supplies the information the youngsters are seeking with readiness and pleasure. He even finds time to inspect the lessons of his children, to supervise their progress, and to select the books he desires them to read. He lays great importance on having his children brought up in a democratic and religious spirit.

The young count and countess attend regular public schools, and their religious education is in charge of a priest. The count also makes it a point to have his children learn German, English, and French, and music also is an important subject of the curriculum. The count himself is a great music lover. He plays the piano very well and is an ardent supporter of every movement in connection with music. He is particularly fond of Wagner.

The extent of his correspondence is marvelous. He has friends and acquaintances in all parts of the world many of them having a hand in shaping the destinies of their respective nations, with whom he is in constant correspondence, and the most important English, French, German and Italian papers often contain articles from his pen.

The count passes the summer in his castle of Eberhard, where he received a visit from ex-President Roosevelt on the latter's return from Africa. In olden times the castle was the home of the Paulin monks, and later it became the property of the Illeshazy and Balassa counts. It is an ancient structure, one story high in front, but two stories looking toward the park, with great massive walls and arches. Although the castle was modernized lately, its furnishings, with the exception of one or two drawing-rooms, are of the sedate old feudal style. Both the exterior and the interior of the castle are the carefully preserved mementoes of an old oligarchic aristocratic family, and to this atmosphere the comforts of modern life, such as elevators, electric lights and parquet floors, supply a strange contrast.

Rarest Gems of Perfect Purity

¶ It is a widely known and acknowledged fact that Brock & Feagans maintain one of the most important stocks of rare and unusual gem jewelry pieces to be seen anywhere in America.

¶ This is true not only of the beauty and and exclusiveness of the Brock & Feagans designs—but of the absolute purity and perfection of all Brock & Feagans gems. It is important to know that you cannot buy an imperfect diamond here—for only the entirely perfect—blue white and extra white stones are ever admitted to our stocks.

"Absinthe" Diamond Ring—one of the rarest and most beautiful gem pieces of the Brock & Feagans stock.

An exceptionally fine "Absinthe" or "Canary" diamond square shape—a duplicate of which perhaps does not exist anywhere. Weight just under 9 karats—closely surrounded by small, perfect blue white diamonds. Mounting entirely of platinum. Price, $2250 00.

NUNS OF NOBLE BIRTH IN ANCIENT POLISH CAPITAL.

Order of Canonesses Whose Members Must Show a Faultless Pedigree for Eight Generations and Whose Order Allows Many Relaxations of Severity of Religious Life—Opera After Religious Duties.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

WARSAW, Feb. 1.—All over Europe in the last year or two the most noticeable tendency has been the revival of the religious life among society women and this winter has seen a great influx of girls of good family into the various orders of nuns and canonesses formed specially for their benefit. These religious houses exist in several European capitals but are most influential in Warsaw. The idea of society girls as nuns and canonesses—with all the social prestige and influence of canons—is so familiar to the Polish aristocracy that its members strive to send young girls into the order. The best known and most fashionable here is the "Canonesses of the Virgin Mary," founded by a Countess Zamoyska, in the early part of the eighteenth century. The order possesses a large house and church of its own in the center of the city, in the Opera Square, and holds other property besides. At one time it owned the land on which the Operahouse stands; but a business-like Mother Superior sold it to the government and invested the money to such advantage that the order is now an uncommonly rich one.

A Society Nun.

One of the Canonesses of the Virgin Mary in the habit of her order.

The task of entering the order is by no means an easy one. To begin with, no candidate who is not of noble birth, no matter how wealthy she may be, has any chance at all. In this respect the order probably is unique. Then it is composed of two classes. The first class is only accessible to girls who can prove that their ancestors on both sides of the house have been of noble birth for eight generations. A grandmother of middle-class family, for instance, debars the candidate from entering this class. If her male ancestors have been noble for eight generations she may enter the second class. She must be an orphan on both sides, though exception is sometimes made for those who have a father who has married a second time. At the beginning, both classes lived more or less together; now, they only meet in church and at meals, though they are served at separate tables.

Every cannoness must bring at least $5000 into the order and most of them bring far more. The interest of this money is given to them for clothes. In church they wear the blue robes and veils of their order; when the daily mass is over they return to their rooms and, putting on Paris frocks, receive their friends, or go out themselves. There are rules to keep, but these are no stricter than many society women lay down for themselves and far less strict than those unwritten laws which bind unmarried girls in Europe. For instance, when they return from a party late at night they must be escorted by a maid. Each nun of the first class has a maid. No matter how late they are the night before they must be at mass by 8 o'clock next morning. If they are absent the Mother Superior assumes that they are ill and orders them to keep their rooms for that day. But there is nothing to prevent their returning to bed after mass, and they can take breakfast in their rooms if they wish. There are certain rules as to the color of their clothes. They are not supposed to wear pink, blue, red or green; but many of them dye their hair and a good hairdresser is always in attendance at the convent. They may not dance, but they may go to look on at dances. They are supposed to dine in the refectory of the order; but permission is always given for them to dine out, even in fashionable restaurants, if they ask for it. It is quite a common sight to see canonesses supping at a smart restaurant after the theater or opera, while their dresses vie with those of their lay friends in elegance and richness. The wearing of jewels is not supposed to be good form, but pearls are an exception.

The only rigorous time for the canonesses is Lent and Holy Week. During Lent they abstain from meat three times a week and lead a quite life, without parties. Holy Week is practically spent in church. Easter Sunday and Monday are passed in the archbishop's palace, where they are received solemnly by the archbishop and his canons. Here, they wear blue robes and white veils. If, after three years in the order, a canoness wishes to live a more secluded life, she takes a blue veil. Then, she puts away her dresses and gives up going to parties and theaters. But she continues to receive female friends from the outside world.

Once a candidate has been elected by the canonesses her life lies in very pleasant places. As Countess Valeska—one of the canonesses, and a descendant of that Countess Valeska with whom Napoleon the Great fell violently in love—often remarks, they have all the prestige and liberty of married women without the responsibilities of a house and family. Each canoness has her own suite of three rooms—one as a bedroom, the other as a "salon" and the third as a maid's room. These rooms are furnished with comfort and refinement. Besides the more ceremonious receptions, which are attended by canons and the higher clergy, the canonesses have informal tea parties and soirees, where society people of both sexes gossip, and listen to the latest musical attraction. Their position as members of the order of canonesses opens even the most exclusive houses for them, and everywhere they are treated with a respect which is not accorded to an unmarried woman in continental cities.

Their exclusive position arouses a good deal of comment from people for whom the order is beyond reach. Many criticise them and say the order is a hotbed of snobbiness, because those of the first class have the best rooms while those of the second are lodged in damp, dark apartments. Several years ago there was a great outcry because a rumor got abroad that the second class nuns served those of the first class at dinner, and even washed the dishes for them. Then the Mother Superior gave orders that those of the first class should have their own maids. There is a special fund for keeping up two carriages; but both are at the sole disposal of the first-class nuns. It is said that somebody has complained about the order to Rome and that steps will soon be taken to reform the statutes. These were drawn up so long ago that none of the canonesses know what tthey were like originally. The order has been so relaxed that a canoness wearing the white vein can even get the Mother Superior's permission to leave the order and marry. Henry Sienkiewicz, the well-known author of "Quo Vadis" is married to a lady who lived as a canoness for twenty years. His own sister, who died a few months ago, was also a nun of this order. When a nun dies her age is not mentioned in the death notice, or put upon her tombstone. She is buried in the church of her order with great pomp and ceremony and her sister nuns watch over her coffin for several days and nights before the funeral.

There is little doubt that any new commands coming from Rome will be as unpopular among the canonesses as they were among the Capuchins and Benedictines of Austria. About two years ago an attempt was made to reform the rules of the Benedictines of Austria and Hungary, of whom there are ten thousand, but the order proved more powerful than was imagined and the reforms were abandoned. In the case of the Capuchin monks, whose laxity is also criticised, it is thought that the House of Hapsburg will intercede for them. Members of this imperial family have been buried in the Capuchin church at Vienna for many generations. When a Hapsburg dies the reigning emperor raps at the monastery door and begs admission for the dead. The monks have the right to refuse even so august a person as the emperor, and have done so in the past.

The nun canonesses of the Blessed Virgin have not a monarch to plead their cause; but they have an aristocracy which has always been well received at Rome and which will fight for their privileges with all the influence at its command. After all the order has been singularly free from any breath of scandal and it performs many works of charity and affords a home for women of good family who otherwise would be cast on the world.

K. DUNBAR.

ON THE FENCE.

BY LILLIAN COLLINS.

It's a lonesome job, siting on the fence, in these progressive days; but even if the fence is not as comfortable a roosting place, in this era of barbed-wire contraptions, as it was in the good old "stake and rider" days, there are other places less comfortable than just a good, solid fence. I know, for I've been there myself, and not so long since; while now—but that's the story.

No longer ago than last week I was sitting in comfortable ease, on the topmost rail, congratulating myself upon the foresight which had secured me this point of vantage, where I could watch the manoeuvering of both wings of the friendly skirmishers. It was better than a reserved seat at a two-ring circus; and to think that my downfall was accomplished by my own good-natured complaisance.

One day, in an idle mood, I yielded to the solicitations of a friend, and attended a meeting for the discussion of political equality—whatever that means. Up to that time I had fancied that all politics were about equal already, but it appears that I was mistaken. Politics are not yet equal; they are only, just now, going to be equalized, and, unlike taxes, they are not going to be sat upon by a board, either; not much. Women are going to do the equalizing this time. I learned all that in the first few minutes, before the real meeting began.

Then the president brought down her gavel, and the recording secretary sat up straight and looked busy. After the routine business had been cleared away, a woman came forward and announced that the object of the meeting was to settle the suffrage question. She wanted to say a few preliminary words upon the subject, after which the question would be open for discussion. Then she walked with deliberate ease over to the desk, calmly adjusted her glasses, and began to read a carefully prepared paper on—"preliminary words," I suppose.

I was in no hurry, however—and besides I had a problem of my own to work out—so the time didn't seem long to me; but presently I became conscious of a restlessness in the women around me. Some of them were peeping into their handbags for a surreptitious look at their watches; others were almost dislocating their necks in lady-like attempts to consult little chatelaine affairs which they carried on their left shoulders; while still others were behaving with an utter disregard for that commonest rule of politeness which says, most positively, that you must never snap your watch in any woman's face—even if she has talked so long that she knows, herself, it's time to quit.

After the speaker had read her preliminary words, to the tune of forty-five minutes, she announced that the question was open for discussion; but we didn't discuss it much. She took off her glasses, jabbed them on to their accustomed hook, and stepped forward to the edge of the platform. "Before proceeding to the discussion of this most important of all the important questions which confront us today," she resumed, "I want to say a word to the woman on the fence. I sat forward and began to listen. It might mean another forty-five minues, but—as I said before—I had lots of time that day.

When she alluded to "the woman on the fence," a lady in the audience rose, without being invited to speak. In a full, rich, deep voice of authority she said: "Women have no right to sit on the fence." And there we were, nearly all of us, sitting right on that very fence, where we had no right to sit. True, some of us dangled our feet one way and some the other; but there is no denying the fact, that the great preponderance of weight was on the fence. It was disconcerting, to say the least.

She didn't tell us why we had no right to be on the fence—I suppose she knew that place was reserved for men. The simple statement, however, carried the assurance that she knew all about it. That made it easy for the other women; they didn't have to bother to investigate for themselves. Right then and there, they began tumbling off the fence so fast, that some of them landed on the other side from the one they had intended.

A single breathless moment—then I saw by the look of conviction spreading to the faces about me, that the women were pretty well lined up, on one side or the other, and that I had practically the whole fence to myself. To a person of a retiring nature, that is a very trying position. One of a quartette, a trio, or even a duet, is not so bad; but to sit entirely alone, with no one to cuddle up to or rest one's backbone against for a moment of relaxation, is nothing short of harrowing. I don't mind having my feelings cultivated, but I do decidedly object to having them harrowed. I tried to look happy and unconcerned, in the hope that no one would notice that I was shy on convictions. It was a critical moment, but just then, to my great joy, luncheon was announced.

Since that meeting, however, I have never been really comfortable in my mind. I know there is something wrong with my convictions. They are too strong, or not strong enough, or something. Anyway they need attention, and I seem to be the only one around handy to give it to them. Convictions that will not stand the strain of an ordinary club meeting, are pretty poor things; and I want really good ones.

Well, never mind. "While the pulse beats there's life," as Susan Clegg says. Perhaps some fine morning I shall wake up and find myself a "rampant, militant suffragette." I like the rhythm of that phrase. There is a sweep to its measures that carries one insensibly into poetic expression—but no; I shall not poetize today. There are two reasons for this seeming sacrifice. The first, and, I don't mind confessing, the chief reason is that poetry doesn't sell well. The other reason? Oh, it's a very small one, and to a writer less tenderly conscientious than myself would be no reason at all. I can't write poetry; indeed, it is sometimes difficult for me to even read poetry, after some other person has gone to the trouble to write it—but let that pass. If I finally decide to be a suffragette, I'm going to be that kind.

In the meantime, being a law-abiding citizen—no, that's all wrong; I'm not a citizen, they tell me. Well, at any rate, being the wife of a law-abiding citizen, I can't consistently remain where I now know I have no right to be. And that is why I am no longer on the fence.

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS.

ROSE L. ELLERBEE.

That the women of the suffrage movement in this city have planned for a vigorous campaign of education is evinced by the plans announced. A series of public meetings is to be held this week which should reach many not hitherto especially interested in the question. On Monday afternoon members of the teachers' club will meet in Olive-street High to listen to an address on suffrage by Russ Avery. On Tuesday, at 4, a mass meeting of teachers will be held in Blanchard Hall, which will be addressed by Mrs. Tolhurst and Mrs. A. S. Lobingier. On Friday a meeting is scheduled in the Universalist Church, Pasadena, at which prominent suffragists will discuss the subject. At the Normal Auditorium, at 2:30 p.m., Saturday, Mrs. Mila Tupper Maynard, and other speakers will address Normal students.

All of these meetings are under the auspices of the Political Equality League, and arranged by the committees on public meetings and speaking, of which Mrs. Berthold Baruch and Mrs. Shelley Tolhurst are chairmen. The executive board meets regularly on Mondays and the Press Committee, which is planning a State-wide campaign on broad lines, meets every Thursday with its chairman, Mrs. D. C. McCan. Certainly the women who are engaged in such a thoroughly organized effort as this will gain experience which will prepare them for future shares in politics as done by the men. The Votes for Women Club and the College Woman's Suffrage Club are also laying plans for active and effective work in the cause.

Benefit for Main-Street School.

Wednesday afternoon, February 15, the Parent-Teachers' Association of Main-street school gave a Valentine tea and musicale at Rhodes Hall. Misses Grace Hilgen, Loretta Payson, Nellie Brigham, Leah Ryker, Winona Spencer, Rose Manning and Pauline Spencer gave instrumental numbers and Mrs. George W. Evans, Mrs. S. N. Gangstad, Mrs. William Conklin and Ruth Cooley rendered vocal solos and duets. Refreshments were served and the afternoon proved both a social and financial success.

Wednesday Morning Club.

Since the Wednesday Morning Club occupied its new club house, interest and membership have increased and most enjoyable meetings have been held. On Emerson day, Mrs. Julia Bracken Wendt, the sculptress presented the club with a large photogravure of her beautiful bas-relief or Emerson. Other gifts have come to aid in furnishing and decoration. The club house has already proved a long felt need in that part of the city, other clubs and social functions making it a center of activity. On Wednesday the Shakespeare section met to study the play of King John, a paper being read by Mrs. O. H. Bachellor. Mrs. J. E. Brown was hostess at the luncheon that followed. In the afternoon the choral class, with Fred Ellis as teacher, held an interesting session. This class numbers some sixty or seventy members and is working enthusiastically under their new leader.

Friday Morning Club.

G. C. Waterhouse, superintendent of the George Jr. Republic, opened the programme of the Friday Morning Club with an appeal for the boy and the republic, which places the boy in the same social and civic relations as he will later sustain as a citizen. He gave a brief account of the work of the institution and its purpose to supply the homeless or wayward boy with a purpose and strength to carry out his aim. He asked the support of the Friday Morning Club, declaring that all had a direct interest in the salvation of boys no matter whose boys they might be. Attention was called to the play to be given at the Auditorium for the purpose of raising funds for a dormitory to accommodate thirty boys.

The talk of Rev. Hodgkin was witty and touched with kindly satire; at the same time the philosophy of what sometimes seems the unreasoning folly of following the fashions was analyzed with keen insight. He showed that both men and women were slaves of "fashion" because of fundamental principles underlying it—its appeal to the impulse of collective and individual action, of variation and of imitation. He declared that we had no suffrage in fashion, that the women of the world blindly followed the dictates of a small coterie of men in Paris, who elected what they should wear, with an eye solely to the financial end—all the traffic would bear, being their rule. He declared he would have more sympathy with the movement for political enfranchisement of women if they would first enfranchise themselves in the matter of clothes, and adopt a standard of their own. The speaker suggested that women were holding conventions to discuss almost every subject except the one which came nearest to their own lives, and that they might well take up the subject of fashion and set their own standards—and prices.

Cosmos Club.

A Washington luncheon and party at the Venice Recreation Home will be participated in by the women of Cosmos Club. Colonial costumes will be worn and a patriotic programme rendered.

POOR WOMEN MAKING LACE FOR QUEEN MARY'S CORONATION ROBE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

Making the Queen's Lace.

Scene in the school at Shaldon, Devonshire, where Queen Mary's coronation lace is being made. Mrs. French, the teacher, who is seen on the right of the photograph, has been a lace maker for over seventy years.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Queen Mary has shown once more her real desire to encourage home industries by ordering all the materials for her coronation robe to be made in England, and great satisfaction and not a little excitement reigns just now in the lace school in the tiny village of Shaldon in Devonshire where she has placed a large order for lace to be worn on the great occasion.

This is not the first royal order to find its way to Shaldon, however. Mrs. French, the teacher, who has been a lacemaker for over twenty years assisted in making the lace that formed part of the wedding dress of Princess Louise, King George's sister, when she became the Duchess of Argyll, and her Royal Highness and Queen Alexandra made purchases from the same school last Christmas.

The school was started in 1904 by Miss Lancaster Lucas, and was the first attempt to start lace-making in this part of England. About half a dozen children and fourteen women, most of them widows, form the staff, and they are looked after zealously by Miss Lucas through whom all the sales are made. When times are "booming" the women earn from $1.50 to $2 a week and in addition to this, the profits, if any, as the lawyers say—are allowed to accomulate during the year and are divided among them at Christmas time. Last year showed a deficit of $250, but now that the Queen has brought the school into prominence, its prosperity is assured for a good while.

Similarly in accordance with the Queen's strict orders, the crimson velvet for her robe is being made on hand looms by an old man and his wife at Sudbury, Suffolk, another small country village. It will take them three months to make a length of forty yards, after which it will be specially dyed; not one inch will be made like it for any other purpose.

In fostering British industries, Queen Mary is following the good example set her by her mother. When she married the Duke of York, as the King was then, every thread of her trousseau was produced and every garment made in England, and she is careful to follow this rule as far as possible with both her own and her children's clothes.

Mountain's eye smiled. The longer he looked at Dayton's refined yet resolute face, the better he liked it. "Sit down," he said in an ironic tone of mock resignation. "But be quick, and be careful not to irritate me with questions that are—audacious. My digestion is poor, and therefore my temper is not—what it might be."

That is the first recorded story of Dayton's "colossal cheek." Now for the last one—the one since which his "cheek" has been thought of and spoken of, admired and envied, as "Napoleonic daring."

He soon rose to be a notable special correspondent. One winter afternoon at a musicale in the studio of his friend, Brownlee the artist, he met a girl with whom he straightway fell in love. She was Elsie Grant, the only daughter of Mrs. James Wickford Grant. She had spent most of her life abroad, and her mother was even then negotiating for an Italian Prince who thought well of Elsie and also of her large dot. As for Elsie, she had been brought up to the fate of marrying a nobleman, educated for it, convinced that any other marriage would be a failure. But in her winter in New York, she had mingled with a "mixed crowd"—Mrs. Grant was a patron of arts and letters, as became a grande dame whom a freak of fate had condemned to one earthly pilgrimage as a common American woman. Elsie had a quick mind and a latent streak of Americanism—unsuspected by her mother, and at first shamefacedly concealed by herself, even from herself. And then Dayton had come—and he was never the man to shy at obstacles.

He beguiled her mother into not seeing what was going on. He made love to her daughter in a straightforward way. To Elsie, who then could think only in terms of the Almanach de Gotha, it seemed the way of a Rudolph of Hapsburg issuing from his barren mountain farm in Switzerland to conquer men with his sword and women with his smile, and to found an empire. When the Grants went abroad in March, he succeeded in getting a roving European commission from his newspaper and went in the same steamer. He put the issue squarely before they landed—he did not speak of love until she had given him the right, not only by encouraging him, but also by making it plain that she passionately wished to hear the words that lay behind his looks and tones.

"Don't answer me now," he said. "I don't want you on the impulse. You're going down into the country for a week. When you come up to London, you will know."

He went on to London and began to cast about for something out of the ordinary to send his paper. In a Times report of a meeting of the Royal Society he found the hint he was seeking. The world-renowned philosopher and scientist, Lord Frampton (Hubert Foss,) had addressed the society on "The Destiny of Democracy." Incidentally he had said of America that in his opinion the swift segregation of wealth there meant "a cruel and conscienceless despotism in the near future, with a bloody but probably futile attempt at revolution as an immediate consequence."

"I'll interview Foss," said he to Iveagh, the London correspondent of his paper. "Everybody in America knows his name. And what he'll say along these lines will make a lot of talk over there just now."

"But"—Iveagh was an Englishman, unused to and abhorrent of American ways—"you can't do it, Mr. Dayton. Lord Frampton," with emphasis on the title, "is a very old man—almost 90. He lives as quietly as possible; sees no one. He wouldn't think of interviewing. He's very old-fashioned, dislikes even our newspapers. And he's been a sort of recluse all his life."

"No harm in trying," said Dayton. "I'll just drop him a line."

Iveagh went away with an expression of irritated amusement—irritation because Dayton did not accept his judgment as final, amusement because he knew what a blow Dayton's "damned Yankee cheek" would get. Dayton sat at his desk for two hours preparing the "line" he was to "just drop" Lord Frampton. "I've got to hit the old fellow between the eyes," he muttered, as he struggled with the thirtieth draft of his note. "I must reach his vanity, stir his curiosity, make him feel how important and valuable what I'm asking him to do would be." The letter that resulted from this travail was not long, but Dayton felt that it was a masterpiece. "He'll bite at that bait if he's human," he said to himself.

In the mail two mornings later was the answer. Dayton opened it in the presence of Iveagh. It was a printed slip which read:

"Lord Frampton appreciates your courtesy. He regrets that age and the state of his health make it impossible for him personally to thank you."

"I thought so," said Iveagh, not concealing his delight at Dayton's discomfiture. "He sends that to everybody who tries to intrude upon him."

Dayton mechanically turned the printed slip over. "What's that?" he said. There was writing in a feeble, cramped hand:

"My Dear Sir—I am lunching at the Atheneum Club the day after tomorrow (Thursday), and shall be pleased to see you there afterward—at three.
"FRAMPTON."

Dayton thrust the note into his pocket, concealing his feeling of triumph. "I may cable what he says—if it's worth while. It might make a good feature for them on Sunday." And he went away.

Iveagh looked after him, dazed. "Yet there are some people who say there's no such thing as luck," he grumbled. "Who'd have thought old Frampton had gone stark mad?"

At the Carleton, Dayton found a telegram:

"Shall be at Claridge's tomorrow. Be sure to come at three, precisely.
"ELSIE GRANT."

"Whatever shall I do?" he said after he had re-read the telegram and Lord Frampton's note, to make sure. "Both for Thursday. Both at the same hour. I can't put either of them off. What shall I do with Foss?"

No, Foss could not be put off. He must be seen at the time he had appointed, or the great Sunday feature would be lost. "I must send some one in my place. But who? It must be a newspaper man, a man with the newspaper instinct and training; it must be a man of the best possible address, and up in philosophy and sociology and Foss. Where shall I get him?"

It seemed absurd to think on such a problem. Yet after nearly an hour, Dayton jumped up and said, "Why, of course—just the man—better than I could possibly do it myself," and began fumbling in a compartment of the trunk that was full of letters, papers and cards. He soon found what he was searching for—a card bearing the address of Henry Carpenter. A common friend in New York had given it to him, saying: "Look Carpenter up, and, if you can, put something in his way. I hear he's badly off."

As Dayton said to himself, Henry Carpenter was probably the best-equipped man in the world for an interview with Foss for an American newspaper. He was a Yale man with a Ph.D from Goettingen, and a writer on economic subjects who had won some fame. But philosophy is not profitable, and Carpenter made his living as a newspaper reporter. He had been one of the cleverest in the profession, then had married, had taken to drink, had gone to the bottom. Discredited, harried by debt, humiliated, he carried his family off to England, there to try to recover himself.

The address on the card was in the far end of Pimlico. Dayton set out, calling at the Victoria. There were several New York newspaper men in the lounge. He asked them if they had seen Carpenter. "Just left him," said one. "He was bound for the Criterion." Dayton drove to the Criterion and began a search of the crowded rooms. He soon saw Carpenter wandering about the bar, noting each face as if he were looking for an acquaintance. His clothes, his very expression, proclaimed poverty and failure. And Dayton, knowing his habits, was particularly impressed by the weakness of his chin. But in spite of the air of "hard luck," Carpenter looked the gentleman, the man of superior intelligence. He greeted Dayton effusively, and as soon as the business was disclosed eagerly offered his services.

"There's only one difficulty—will Lord Frampton receive you when he is expecting me?"

"We'll have to take our chances on that," said Carpenter.

"But I never take chances if I can help it. I've been thinking—he doesn't know me and he doesn't know you. Why shouldn't you send in one of my cards—impersonate me?"

Carpenter's face brightened.

"Yes—that is the best plan," continued Dayton. "With your special knowledge you'll do the interview far better than I could. He'll really profit by the deception."

It was so agreed and Carpenter went away, Dayton advancing him two sovereigns. When he returned the next afternoon his appearance was in every way satisfactory, and Dayton's last misgivings disappeared. He went with Carpenter to the Atheneum. "It's a little early, old man, but you can send in your, or, rather, my card, and wait. And, don't forget—you're both under assumed names. If you are calling yourself Dayton when you're Carpenter, isn't he calling himself Frampton when he's Foss?"

"You may rely on me—I'll do my best," said Carpenter.

He saw Carpenter enter the clubhouse, saw him give his card to the attendant. Not until then did he drive away. His heart was light. Fate had been kind to him. On the stroke of three he was in the writing room at Claridge's. Elsie did not keep him waiting.

"Mother has changed her plans," she said, hurrying in. "I thought we'd have a clear hour. But she may be back at any moment."

He was looking at her steadily. "Well?" he asked.

She flushed and cast down her eyes. Then she lifted them and returned his gaze steadfastly. "Yes," she said.

He gave a long sigh.

They were silent for a few minutes. "Mother——" she began.

"She will not consent?"

"It's no use to ask her. You know that." He nodded cheerfully. "But, we don't need her consent. You're of age."

"What do you suggest?"

"Well, I had arranged—in case you accepted and your mother wouldn't have it—that we should marry at the American Consul-General's. He's an old friend of mine, and has promised to attend to everything for me. All we have to do is to let him know when we're coming. He's even got an American preacher at hand."

She laughed. "And when did you dare do this?"

"Yesterday—as soon as I had your telegram. It wasn't daring, was it, to assume that you meant what your telegram implied?"

"Whatever it was or was not, I like it."

"I thought," he continued, "that we would better marry in some way that would leave her a chance to come round quietly afterward."

"Yes—that is better than going to Scotland," said Elsie, reflectively.

Dayton laughed. "And who dared to think out an elopement way off to Scotland?" he said.

Elsie was still blushing when her mother came in. Dayton invited them to dinner and the theater and Mrs. Grant accepted. Mrs. Grant was gracious to Dayton; she had often told her daughter that she regarded him as a "very worthy person in his way." That night, when when and Elsie were alone, Elsie tried to draw her on to talk of Dayton. But Mrs. Grant's suspicions had been aroused; during the evening something—perhaps a kind of electric disturbance in the air between her daughter and the "worthy person"—had set her to thinking that she had not been so prudent as she might. "Of course," she said to herself, "Elsie has been too well brought up to think of him for an instant. Still——"

II.

At 8 o'clock the next morning, as Dayton had finished shaving and was going into his bath, there was a knock at the outer door of his sitting-room.

"What is it?" he called.

"A gentleman to see you, sir," came through the door.

"Carpenter," he said to himself. Then to the servant: "Show him up, please. Bring him into the sitting-room and tell him I will see him directly."

With this he unlocked the outer door and went back through the bedroom into his bathroom. Soon he heard the outer door open and the servant showing his caller in. When he had bathed he returned toh is bedroom—the portiere was drawn across the door into the sitting room. He could wait no longer. "I say, old man," he shouted, "did you get a good yarn."

There was a sharp rustling, then silence. He went to the portiere and threw it back and stood in the doorway, his bathroom half open, his face and neck red from the cold water, his hair tumbled. He was transfixed. Before him, gaping at him, sat an old man, a study in the black of broadcloth and the white of linen and skin, and wool-like hair and side whiskers. His head was wagging and his mouth was ajar as he stared stupidly at Dayton. He raised himself with the aid of a gold-headed cane and put up his eyeglass. "I must apologize to you," he quavered. "I'm so disturbed that I hardly know what I'm about this morning. I fancied I was in the rooms of a Mr. Fenimore Dayton."

"I'm Fenimore Dayton," said Dayton. And then a horrible thought flashed into his mind.

The old man's mouth had flown open again. "What!" he exclaimed. "Impossible!"

Dayton, all the blood in his body in his face, stood there, unable to speak or move. "Great heavens!" he thought, "what shall I do? What has Carpenter been up to?"

Lord Frampton passed his hand over his face. "Impossible!" he muttered. "Incredible!" And he again rubbed his face confusedly. "Tell me!" He looked strangely at Dayton. "Did you or did you not have a talk with me at the Atheneum Club yesterday in the afternoon?"

Dayton opened his mouth several times before he could articulate: "I did not—not that is——"

"Then who was it? Where is he?" Lord Frampton looked angrily around. "I insist upon an explanation, sir!"

"Excuse me—just a few minutes—I must finish dressing—I was and I wasn't there—I'll explain." Dayton withdrew to the bedroom, pulling the portiere over the doorway. He sat on the end of the bed. "What can have happened?" he said to himself. "Did Carpenter sneak away and get some drinks while he was waiting? What has he done? What shall I say?" He could hear the old man muttering and mumbling.

He hurried into his clothes and returned to the sitting-room. He stood before Lord Frampton, looking ashamed, repentant, honest. "I am going to make a clean breast of it, sir," he said. "I could not keep my engagement with you yesterday. I sent a perfectly competent man, thinking it made no difference to you, as you did not know me or care especially who did the interview, so long as it was done properly.

"But—where is he? Where is he?" Lord Frampton tapped his cane angrily on the floor.

"I don't know, sir. I——"

"This is outrageous. A person representing himself to be a Fenimore Dayton, an American journalist, wrote me a note. I don't know what demon of ill-luck possessed me—I had never submitted to an interview—I am a very old man and in poor health—I permit no strangers to come near me. But something—perhaps in the note—I don't know—at any rate I consented to receive this person at my club He—or some one representing himself to be him—came and we talked for about two hours. He was most agreeable—most intelligent—but he had been drinking—at least, I feared so—I became nervous about the interview. He promised to bring me what he had written last night. As he did not—I came here this morning—I wish to recall the interview—I forbid the publication of a word from me—I shall hold you responsible, sir! It is an outrage! It is scandalous! I shall protest publicly, sir!"

The old man, who had risen in his excitement, seated himself again, and, trembling from his exertions, fell to rubbing his face violently with the head of his cane. "At my age! What folly!" he fumed, more to himself than to Dayton. "To entrust my reputation to an unknown, irresponsible creature! He may publish anything—have the whole world laughing at me."

"I've no excuse to offer, sir," said Dayton humbly. "I can only throw myself on your mercy. But first let me say that your interview is safe—at least it has not been published—and will not be." Then he went on to confess the whole truth, holding back nothing—his love for a young American, the impossibility of keeping both engagements, the impossibility or breaking either. "And I suppose, sir," he said in conclusion, "that Carpenter slipped away and took several drinks before seeing you, and then kept on drinking afterwards. In spite of his habits, sir, there isn't a man in the world more competent to get such an interview than Henry Carpenter."

"Hasn't he written on sociology?" inquired Lord Frampton. He had been interrupting Dayton's narrative with a descending series of exclamations, beginning with "Shocking!" and "Depraved!" and "Insolent!" and ending with such milder ejaculations as "Most astonishing!" "Extraordinary!" "Surprising!"

"Yes," replied Drayton, eagerly entering the openingand hurring on to remind Lord Frampton of the titles and subjects of Carpenter's best known essays.

Lord Frampton was somewhat mollified. He said: "It was a disgraceful trick to play upon an old man, sir,—but—I've been young myself. You Americans! A wonderful people, sir, but,"—with a sudden twinkling in his old eyes—"will you get the young lady?"

"I think so," said Dayton.

"I don't doubt it if impudence is as effective with the ladies as it was when I was a young fellow," Lord Frampton chuckled.

"Would you mind if I showed you a photograph of her, sir?" asked Dayton, shamelessly using his bride-to-be as a pacifier of the old man's wrath. He brought the photograph—a fair-haired, clear-eyed girl with a resolute face looking straight out of the picture at you.

"A fine American type," said Lord Frampton.

They talked for a few minutes of America, then Lord Frampton suddenly remembered his wrongs and was angry all over again. "I am very old," he said peevishly. "This will shorten my life. And where sir, is that associate of yours—this Carpenter?"

"We'll find him," said Dayton, and after he had hastily taken coffee and a roll, they set out for the far end of Pimlico. They found Carpenter's lodgings down a dismal alley in a house which, had it been built of wood instead of stone, would have been obliterated decades before. A pinched New England female face answered the knock at the door, to which the slattern in charge had directed them. "What do you want?" said she, in what is sometimes called the "pie and pickles" voice.

"Where is Mr. Carpenter?"

"That's what I'd like to know," Mrs. Carpenter answered.

While Dayton could not blame the woman for any degree of exasperation against Carpenter, still the tone, the manner, the look, combined to convince him that she was not without her share in the responsibility for the disintegration of Carpenter's character. "She would have either held him together or left him years ago," he said to himself, "if she'd been of the right sort." As if to strengthen this conviction, four dirty and ill-manered children now swarmed rudely from behind her and stood gaping at Lord Frampton and Dayton.

A few minutes talk made it clear that no news was to be got there. "We'll have to look for him," said Dayton, as if they were sure to find him. And on the way back to the Piccadilly-Strand district, he tried to persuade Lord Frampton to go quietly to his club and wait.

"No," said Lord Crampton, crossly, "I go with you. Really, Mr. Dayton, this is a most extraordinary proceeding. When peace and quiet are absolutely necessary to me, I find myself rushing about London in search of a wild drunken creature. My whole life has been spent in quiet. And now, at 90, thanks to my accursed folly in answering a note from a wandering American journalist—I must have been out of my mind! I feel like pinching myself to see whether I am awake. I shall not leave you until we find him. I must look to my reputation. Why did I, why did I answer that devilish note?"

It was a strange afternoon and evening they spent, looking for Carpenter in his haunts, so far as they were known to his newspaper acquaintances. The world-famous philosopher went through a succession of diverse moods. Now he would heap reproaches on Dayton, and now make sly inquiries about Elsie. Now he would rage frantically against Carpenter, and now would be profoundly interested in the unfamiliar sights of the seamy side of London. Most of the time he seemed to be in a daze. "Did ever a man of my age and habits and reputation have such an experience?" he repeated again and again. "Why did I answer that note?"

Toward 9 at night Dayton, in the effort to calm one of the old man's tirades—he was very tired and sleepy—told him that Elsie and he were to be married on Monday. "As her mother won't consent, we shall go quietly to the American consulate; I've arranged it all with a friend of mine."

"Most extraordinary!" muttered Lord Frampton. "More impudence! And what am I doing here—at my age—in my health——"

"Will you come?" interrupted Dayton.

"Come! Come where?"

"To the wedding. We'd be delighted."

Lord Frampton stared. "God bless

The Names Whose First Bearers Were Men and Women of High and Noble Birth—Hermione, the Daughter of the God of War and the Goddess of Love, and Wife of the King of Thebes—The Saints Who Made Basil and Sebastian Popular Names—Don Sebastian, the Sixteenth Century King, Whom the Portuguese Peasants Still Watch for—The Aristocratic Name of Priscilla, and Its Popularity Among Puritans and Pilgrims—Camilla, a Freeborn Servant of the Temple.

BY FRANCES MARSHALL.

The first men and women named Basil, Sebastian, Camile or Camilla, Priscus, Prisca or Priscilla, Hermia or Hermione, were of high and gentle birth. Whether the famous men or women of the name in later times could trace a lengthy pedigree or not, whether they lived in a palace or a cottage, most of them lived up to the modern standard of gentleness, a standard which rates something accomplished for the betterment of mankind higher than it rates blue blood.

Hermia and Hermione are Greek names, meaning "a maiden of high degree," and the first woman to bear either of them was Hermione, no less than a daughter of Mars, the god of war, and Venus, the goddess of love. This first Hermione married Cadmus, who according to tradition, came from Phoenicia—bringing the alphabet with him—to Greece, where he founded the city of Thebes. Another early bearer of the name was Hermione, the only child of Helen of Troy and Menelaus, king of Sparta. Hermione married Neoptolemus, son of Achilles.

Although these high-born maidens of early Greece have occasional namesakes, neither form of this name is often met with nowadays.

Erminia, a name which is more usual, is sometimes supposed to be equivalent to Hermione, for its French form is Hermine. Erminia, however, is a name of Latin origin, but although it is in no wise connected with Hermione, it does belong to the names of high birth, for it means lordly. Erminia Rudersdorff Mansfield was the mother of the great actor, Richard Mansfield.

Basil and Sebastian are two masculine names of high birth taken from the Greek. Basil means kingly; Sebastian means venerable or majestic.

The first famous Basil was a saint of the fourth century. St. Basil, surnamed the Great, was one of the fathers of the Greek Church, and in his lifelong work for orthodoxy in the early church he endeared himself to all who knew him. In Russian, especially, his name became very popular, and in that country, in the form of Vassili, it is to this day a favorite name.

There were two Byzantine emperors named Basil, or Basilius. Basil I., born in 812, was surnamed "The Macedonian." Basil II, born in 958, was called "The Slayer of the Bulgarians."

One of the romantic figures of the middle ages was Basilius Valentinus, an alchemist who was born, probably, on the upper Rhine. In 1412 Basilius became a monk at Erfurt, and gained several notable discoveries in chemistry and metallurgy.

In the eighteenth century two men of this name were born who worked to uplift their brother men. One was the English jurist and writer, Basil Montague who, through incessant labor, brought about the abolishment of the death punishment for certain crimes, and the betterment of the condition of debtors. The other was Vasili Philaret, a Russian ecclesiastic, a man of great learning, who drew up the manifesto which led to the abolishing of serfdom.

Two modern bearers of this kingly name are Basil Lanneau Gildersleeve, the American classical scholar, and Vassili Vereshcagin, the Russian military painter, who, in order to discourage war, pictured its horrors, and who was killed while seeking fresh material for his canvasses on the battleship in the Russo-Japanese war.

The name Sebastian was used by the emperors of the east, after the Roman empire was divided, to express their own majesty, just as the Latin name Augustus was used by the emperors of the west.

It was a saint of this name, however, a martyr celebrated in legend and picture, who made the name Sebastian one of the usual names of Europe. Sebastian was born in Gaul in the third century, and was educated at Milan, in Italy. He was a Christian, and without making his religion known he entered the Roman army under Emperor Diocletian, hoping in this way to protect others of his religion when the soldiers were sent to persecute them.

St. Sebastian gained a high place in the army, and finally was made commander of the first cohort at Milan. But at length his religion was discovered and he was condemned to die. A company of Mauretanian archers shot him with many arrows, and left him for dead, but he was revived and cared for by a widow named Irene. When he was once more well, Sebastian spurned protection, and as soon as he was discovered was again condemned, and was beaten to death. St. Sebastian is the patron saint against plague and pestilence.

A later Sebastian of daring and bravery was Don Sebastian, king of Portugal from 1557 to 1558. The young king was only 23 years of age when he succeeded his grandfather to the throne. He yearned for fame as a conqueror, so, with youthful courage and energy, perhaps with youthful rashness as well, he started forth to invade Morocco.

Don Sebastian was doomed to failure. His army was almost annihilated and he was killed. His body was never found, and there is a tradition that the young king never died, but will some day reappear to lead his people to glorious victory. Several pretenders availed themselves of this tradition, and from time to time claimed that they were the missing king, but they were never able to convince people of their claim, and the peasants went on hoping for the return of Don Sebastian.

Other famous men of this name are Sebastian Vizcaino, born in 1550, the Spaniard, who discovered and named the Bay of Monterey in California; Sebastian de Vauban, marshal of France, born in 1663, who took part in 140 battles and fifty-three sieges, and Sebastian deli Tillemont, who died in 1698, the French historian, who is an authority on ecclesiastical history.

Priscus and Prisca, with the diminutive Priscilla, are Latin names meaning aristocratic, or of ancient birth. There was an ancient Roman tribe called the Prisci, and the name was inherited by members of this tribe.

The popularity of Priscilla, especially in America, is due to the fact that one of the fellow-workers of St. Paul was Paul. They joined the great apostle at Corinth, and traveled with him and under his direction on many missionary journeys.

It was due, probably, to the liking of the early New England colonists for this Priscilla that the hero of Longfellow's poem, whom John Alden sought for the wife of his friend Miles Standish, but won for his own, was called by her name.

Still another Latin name of high birth is popular. It is Camilla. Camillus and Camilla were the masculine and feminine names signifying "freeborn servant of the temple." Young boys and girls were so called who attended the priests and priestesses in the temple as they performed their religious duties, and such attendance was esteemed a great honor, for it often led to selection as priests and priestesses.

Camilla, the virgin queen of the Volscians, whom Virgil mentions in the "Aeneid," received her name because she was an attendant of Diana. This Camilla was said to be so light of foot that she could pass over the ocean without wetting her feet, or tread over a field of grain without bending a single grass.

In the sixteenth century there lived a St. Camillus, who made his name famous among men. He was born at Naples, about 1550. When he was only six years old he was orphaned, and not many years later he entered the army. From the other soldiers he learned a love of gambling and gaming, and when the army in which he served was disbanded he found himself penniless, for he had used all his fortune to pay his debts.

So Camillus, untrained in any art save that of war, went to work laying bricks, and driving the asses that were the beasts of burden of Naples. His work took him to a Capuchin monastery, and there the good friars chided him for the habit which had improverished him, and urged him to repent and join their brotherhood. Camillus was won over by their pleadings, was made a Capuchin friar, and became the most zealous worker in the monastery. Later he went to Rome, where he won great renown for his tending of the sick, and where he was made director of St. James's Hospital. Before his death in 1614 he had not only helped many sufferers and won over many men to the order, but he had founded a large number of Capuchin houses.

Count Camille Cavour, the Italian statesman, who in 1861, brought about the unification of Italy under King Victor Emmanuel, and Camille Flammarion, the noted French astronomer, who was born in 1842, are two famous modern namesakes of the friar saint.

"Mr. Dooley's" Quick Retort.

Members of Philadelphia's literary colony are laughing over the quick-wittedness of Peter Finley Dunne, author of the immortal "Mr. Dooley," in connection with an introduction to Richard Harding Davis.

According to the story Mr. Dunne had never met Mr. Davis until a mutual acquaintance introduced them in the Lamb's Club in New York. Mr. Davis, with an air distinctly Davisesque, remarked:

"Mr. Dunne, I have read some of your things, and do you know you look different from what I imagined. I thought you would be a little short Irishman, smoking a clay pipe."

"Do you know, Mr. Davis," retorted Mr. Dunne, "I have heard all of your stories with great pleasure, and you look different to me from what I thought you would. I imagined I would

SUFFRAGE HELP TO MOTHERHOOD.

WOMEN WOULD MAKE MEN GET BUSY EARNING LIVING.

Advocate of Eight-Hour Law for Gentler Sex Thinks it Would Operate to Give Them Chance to Become Home-Builders by Creating Bigger Demand for Male Help.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

DENVER (Colo.) Feb. 12.—Woman suffrage in Colorado does not mean that a man may sit around and wear the "seat of his pants" out, according to a ringing speech made in the State Legislature by Mrs. Agens Riddle, representative from Arapahoe and Elbert counties in support of the eight-hour law for working women. Her speech was so effective that the bill passed on the second reading with only one dissenting vote.

"This law should be passed," declared Mrs. Riddle, "not only to help the women who are employed, but to help the men and also to make the men go to work.

"In the cities women work such long hours and for such small pay that the employers hire them instead of men.

"This results in the woman doing the work while the man sits at home and wears out the seat of his pants. And while the woman is working and coming home each evening to a stuffy little flat she is not going to raise a family.

"This condition is wrong. The men should go to work and the woman stay at home and raise families. The nation needs mothers, homemakers and housewives.

"We women in the country work longer hours, but our work is not monotonous. We get up at three or four o'clock in the morning and get the breakfast, milk the cows and attend to our garden.

"We are out in the open air and are strong and healthy. We raise large families and it don't bother us to get up in the night and nurse a sick baby.

"And I want to say right here that our men work, too. They don't sit around and wear out the seat of their pants, and besides, we wouldn't let them.

"In the city where so many girls are employed, many of them get married and keep right on working. They are away from home so much they cannot always become good wives. They are thrown into contact with too many men and some of them find a man that they like beteer than their husband.

"Then comes a divorce.

"Pass this bill and make the men go to work. Let the women stay at home and do their housework and raise a whole flock of children. That is the way things should be and that is the way I want to see them."

Then He Got It.

Minister: Now, Tommy, suppose you did something naughty, and were asked if you did it, what would you say?

Tommy: I dunno.

Minister: You don't know? Why, why! What would happen if you told a lie?"

Tommy: The devil'd git me.

Minister: That's right. And what if you told the truth?"

"THURSDAY AT THREE."

my soul!" he ejaculated. "Am I dreaming? I—invited to take part in a runaway marriage—I!"

"I suppose you're afraid there will be a mistake and you will be the bridegroom."

Lord Frampton smiled, then chuckled, then laughed. But they were just at Carpenter's lodgings—their fourth visit. Yes, Carpenter had returned; had staggered in about an hour before, and was now upstairs. His wife opened the door. There he lay upon the bed, his clothes torn and mud-bedaubed. He was in a stupor, and was exhaling fumes like an open barrel of bad whisky. Dayton shook him violently. He snorted and struck out with his fists, but did not awaken. Lord Frampton, very dignified and very dazed, looked on in disgust.

"Roll 'im on the floor," suggested the eldest boy. "Let me throw water on 'im—mar'm always does; don't you, mar'm?"

All, including the renowned philosopher, who used his cane vigorously as a prod, joined in the effort to revive the drunken man. When he at last opened his eyes, Dayton said: "Here, here, Carpenter, where's that interview?" and kept on shaking him to prevent his lapsing into the stupor

"Pocket," mumbled Carpenter. "Iss a gran' ol' man. Ol' Frampy passed 't out hot. Gran' ol' man, Frampy—"

Dayton reached into the inside pocket of the coat, and drew out a notebook.

"Ha!" "Ol' Frampy" clutched it, put on his eyeglass and glanced over the pages. "Yes—that is it. I never expected to see it. Bless me, what a relief!"

Dayton gave Mrs. Carpenter a sovereign, "on account," he said, for lack of any other disguise of the charity, "and when he comes around tell him I want to see him."

Dayton and Lord Frampton hurried away.

"Where shall I set you down, sir?" said Dayton.

Lord Frampton gave the number of a private hotel in Dover street. They drove in silence for ten minutes, then the philosopher chuckled. Dayton glanced at him furtively. He had been devising a plan for approaching the subject of the interview—perhaps he could induce Lord Frampton to give up the notebook. When the old man chuckled again, he ventured to speak.

"Will you forgive me, sir?"

"Forgive you, you young rascal? I oughtn't, but—it is certainly very ridiculous—how many friends, my readers all over the world, would laugh if they could know what I've been doing." He chuckled again.

"Then you'll come to the American consulate on Monday at 10—to the wedding?"

"The spirit of adventure has got into my blood. Yes — I'll be there — if I don't die of the reaction."

"And that interview——"

"There—there! Not a word about that. I'll overlook it——"

"But I mean — it's a great impertinence to ask it—only——"

Lord Frampton turned in the cab and looked at Dayton's calm, earnest face in amazement. "You don't mean, my dear sir, that you are daring to ask me to — no, it's impossible — even you wouldn't dare!"

"But, sir, it seems a shame for you to have all this annoyance for nothing. I can transcribe the notes and have them typewritten and bring them to you. And if you are not satisfied, you can tear them up, or use them for some other purpose."

Lord Frampton was laughing. "I have always held," said he, "that surprising results were to come from your race under the political, social and geographic conditions of the New cable it over tomorrow for Sunday's paper, and I'm sure it would be a great hit. The Americans are tremendous admirers and readers of your work."

"Yes—I have been much gratified at the sales of my books over there—far better than here. But—it is tempting fate."

"Dayton was discreetly silent. "You Americans!" Lord Frampton exclaimed humorously, as he after a few minutes handed over the notebook. "I've rescued my reputation from a drunken man only to give it into the keeping of a harum-scarum rascal who is probably crazed by—by—she is a devilish pretty girl, young man!"

"But wait till you see her on Monday," said Dayton. "I'll call with the copy at—what hour in the morning?"

"I shall rise late. I need rest. Call at 11."

And at that hour the next morning—Saturday—Dayton brought the typewritten interview. Lord Frampton was looking fresh and cheerful.

"How do you feel, sir?" inquired Dayton.

"I ought to feel done. But the fact is I never felt better. I think it did me good—stirred me up. Astonishing! I must be out of my mind!"

Lord Frampton sat at his desk, reading, making slight changes, nodding approval. "A most interesting young man," he mumbled, "in spite of his bad habits—most intelligent. I certainly talked surprisingly well—bless me! I had no idea I had put that so effectively."

"Are you satisfied to have it go, sir?" asked Dayton, when the old philosopher had finished.

"I think so—I think so."

"And I'll see that you get a copy of it, and also all that is said about it in the American journals."

"That will be very interesting—I think it will cause a profitable discussion—I've long wished to say those things—but there seemed no way—I knew of no way—of getting them before the public I wished to reach—the wider public."

On Monday, at the appointed hour, with Lord Frampton as one witness and the Consul-General as the only other, Dayton and Elsie were married. Lord Frampton was more than cheerful—he was gay. He had come with his top hat a little back on his head, and noticeably tilted to one side.

"Oh! I almost forgot," said Dayton. "Here's a cablegram from the office on your interview."

Lord Frampton read:

"Dayton, Carleton, London: Frampton stuff howling success. Congratulations."

"Stuff"—"Howling"—Lord Frampton repeated the words as if he delighted in them. "Most gratifying," he said, "most gratifying I'm sure. God bless me! I'm getting demoralized."

"And now for your mother," said Dayton to Elsie.

Lord Frampton noted with astonishment the calmness of these two young people. "Will she be angry?" he inquired.

"Angry! She'll be wild," said Dayton, cheerfully. "She's mad on the subject of titles. Now, if Elsie were going to tell her that she had married you—"

Lord Frampton laughed till his sides ached at the implications of this idea. It seemed to take another ten or twenty years from his rapidly rejuvenating mind.

"That suggests an idea," he said. "If I went with you—interceded for you—do you think it would help?"

Elsie put out her hand to him. "Isn't he fine?" she said to Dayton.

And the three of them advanced upon Claridge's in a cab, Lord Frampton with his arm along the back of the seat, patting Elsie on the shoulder—merely to encourage her. Mrs. Grant went rapidly through her moods

THE STARTLING WEAKNESS OF OUR U. S. MILITARY FORCES.

Seacoast Fortifications in Progress, But Not Well Manned and Unprovided With Ammunition--We Not Only Lack Men But What We Have are Poorly Armed.

BY FREDERIC LOUIS HUIDEKOPER.

[Interviewed by Edward Marshall.]

FREDERIC LOUIS HUIDEKOPER, who, in the following interview, mercilessly dissects the United States Army, is one of the best-known writers on military topics in the United States or Europe. His researches have been extensive, not only in American military lore, but in the archives of the War Departments in Paris, Vienna and St. Petersburg, where he has been granted privileges probably never offered to an American before. His writings upon military topics have been extensive and important, and have included "Military Studies" in the International Military Series, many articles in the Journal of Military Service Institution, The United Service Magazine, The American Historical Review, Etc. An article which he prepared for The North American Review, under the title "Is the United States Prepared for War?" was, in 1907, republished in pamphlet form, with an introduction by President (then Secretary of War) Taft, and has had a world-wide circulation.

There is no denying the fact that in Washington there is nowadays a continual undertone of war talk. So strong and constant have I found this, during the last few weeks at the National Capitol that I have been more than astonished—I have almost been dismayed. And everywhere, among men qualified to know, the impression seems to be firmly fixed that if, as Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson recently predicted, war with Japan should come before the opening of the Panama Canal, our land forces would be utterly incompetent to meet the situation.

Naturally the army heads are loth to talk about this matter; among the members of both houses of Congress there seems to be a singular lack of exact knowledge. Indeed, I almost despaired for a time of my ability to secure an accurate, unbiased, and expert statement of the precise situation. Presently, however, one man after another in Congress, in the War Department, and in other branches of the government began to speak to me of Frederic L. Huidekoper, and I went to see him.

The following "interview" is really a statement prepared by Mr. Huidekoper with the utmost and detailed care. It covers the army and fortification situation more completely than any statement hitherto made in print or on the floors of Congress.

I have in my possession a minutely exact and comprehensive list of authorities for every statement of fact made in the extraordinary presentation, and have submitted its main details to more than one eminent military man, in each instance finding confirmation for the statements and indorsement for the deductions. Mr. Huidekoper's statement offers an excellent opportunity to the lay reader to learn what military men have long known but said little of. In the opinion of a very large number of men important in the government, the conditions which it sets forth are so deplorable and the necessity for their correction so great that no matter of greater importance confronts the government. The statement offers an excellent opportunity to the non-military reader to learn existing facts as they have never been arrayed before.

Our navy is reasonably competent; but our army is almost hopelessly behind the times; we lack men to man our defenses and lack ammunition for the guns which guard them; we are even short of small-arms ammunition, and our field artillery is weak; our sea coast guns are good, but we have nothing to fire from them; of reserve supplies we have almost none; the branches of our military service are badly proportioned, as well as weak, and we have less than half enough rifles to arm a competent force; we have no adequate reserve, and the militia is not properly available—what there is of it. And there are other details of the situation which are equally alarming.

Here is, in detail, what Mr. Huidekoper has to say:

"Of late years Congress has appropriated large amounts for the navy, with the result that it is today ranked third among the navies of the world, and our naval gunners have not their equal," said Mr. Huidekoper. "The army has not fared so well, and its efficiency is considerably below that of the navy. The United States ought either to have an army, which for its size is as well organized and equipped as any other army in the world, or else we ought to do away with the army altogether.

"Fortifications have been authorized and constructed, but there are not enough men to man them, nor has Congress provided all the necessary accessories, without which the guns will be of no more value in defense than so many dummies.

"There is not a sufficient amount of infantry for the field armies deemed necessary for national defense.

"There is not enough small-arm ammunition on hand to meet the requirements of our field service regulations for an army of 150,000 infantry.

"There is not enough field artillery or field artillery ammunition to go into a campaign.

"We have no reserve for the regular army such as almost every European nation possesses.

"The existing laws are inadequate to deal with the situation at the outbreak of war without additional legislation. The history of our past wars measures cannot be expected to provide for the necessities which only time and thorough preparation could properly and economically meet. Our present condition is one of unreadiness for war with any first-class power, and today there is abundant reason for apprehension concerning our military forces.

SMALL ARMS—LITTLE AMMUNITION.

"In one respect Congress has been decidedly generous to the army. When the small-arms for which appropriations have already been made are all manufactured the United States will have on hand 675,000 Springfield rifles of the latest model. The Ordnance Bureau would like, however, to have a reserve of 1,000,000 rifles, which would be abundant for the present.

"The present sources of supply for small-arm ammunition are the Frankford arsenal and certain private manufacturers. The Frankford arsenal produced 80,000,000 rounds last year, and 8,000,000 rounds were obtained from individual makers; but from this amount must be deducted the 40,000,000 rounds consumed each year in target practice by the regular army and organized militia, and in the supplies furnished to the navy and marine corps.

"In other words, the present actual increase in the reserve each year is limited to about 48,000,000 rounds. If the expectations of Gen. Crozier, the very able chief of ordnance, are realized, we shall have on hand, on June 30, 1911, a reserve of 152,000,000 rounds.

"According to Gen. Kuropatkin's own account of the Russo-Japanese War, the average expenditure of small-arm ammunition in a one-day's battle was fully 300 rounds per man engaged. At that rate an army of 600,000 infantry would use in one single day's fight no less than 180,000,000 rounds, which is 28,000,000 rounds more than the United States will have on hand on June 30, next. Yet Mr. Hull of Iowa, in a speech made in the House of Representatives on January 17, stated that 'with 150,000,000 rounds in reserve we are in no danger of running short in one battle with 40,000 men, or a great many battles with 600,000 men'—and Mr. Hull has been the chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs for nearly fourteen years.

ARTILLERY INADEQUATE.

"The field artillery is totally inadequate for war. Almost every large army has four guns to each 1000 rifles, while France has nearly five and Germany six guns per thousand.

"The available infanty of the regular army and organized militia in the United States, recruited up to its full war strength, would number approximately 212,520 rifles. According to our field service regulations this force would need at least 850 guns; but Gen. Leonard Wood, the chief of staff, testified before the Committee on Military Affairs of the House of Representatives on December 14, 1910, that we have only 432 three-inch field pieces. We are, therefore, 418 guns short of what is necessary in war. The German army has 2800 rounds per gun, while our field service regulations require only 1856 rounds for the three-inch guns.

"According to Gen. Wood's testimony, we have less than one-third the amount prescribed, and, moreover, that port as chief of staff, laid special emphasis on the fact that at the present rate of appropriation it will be more than fifty years before an adequate reserve supply of field artillery ammunition is accumulated.

" 'The existing want of field artillery, guns, carriages and ammunition,' he declared, 'constitute a grave menace to the public safety in case of war.' He pointed out that 'once a state of war exists with a first-class power there will be no opportunity to buy this material abroad or time to manufacture it at home, even if all available plants were running at the maximum capacity, without such delay as would be fatal to our hopes of success. This shortage of field artillery material is the most serious feature of the present military situation, and one which should be immediately corrected.'

"Our sea-coast defenses are, fortunately, in a better condition, and, so far as concerns the installation of armament, are well advanced toward completion. The armament of a few posts is insufficient, and two more ports should be fortified. There is, however, a marked deficiency in the requisite supply of ammunition, searchlights, and apparatus for fire control.

"For 1911 the appropriation for reserve ammunition for the ports within the United States was only $140,000, and for the preceding four years only $325,000 per annum. Even if the appropriations are continued at the rate of $325,000, it will be no less than thirteen years before the full supply of reserve ammunition for our home ports is accumulated, and twenty-one years before this supply will be completed for the present batteries and for those to be constructed for the ports within this country.

"The searchlight installation for the fortifications in the United States is slightly more than half finished; but nearly ten years will be needed to complete it, judging by the average rate of appropriation for the past five years.

"The apparatus for fire-control is also about half completed. Much needs therefore to be done in this respect; but if Congressional appropriations in the future do not average more than those during the last five years this work will not be finished for eight years to come.

"Without searchlights, fire-control apparatus, and above all, without reserve ammunition, the expenditures already incurred—amounting in round numbers to $70,000,000—will have been virtually wasted. Let us hope that Congress by liberal appropriations will promptly complete the work so well begun.

"There is a decided dearth of large organized reserve supply depots. These depots should be located with reference to supply centers or at such points as to be best utilized during the mobilization and concentration of the regular army and militia. Each depot should contain sufficient supplies of every sort, except perishable stores, such as food, to equip fully all troops which may be recruited or mobilized within its sphere. This system is used by nearly every European army, and its merits are well known.

"Inferior as is the condition of our the personnel conditions are worse. The backbone of an army is the infantry. The brunt of the fighting falls on the infantry. At present we have only thirty regiments of regular infantry. Eight are in the Philippines, one in Honolulu and Alaska, and only twenty-one in the United States. A very considerable increase of this important arm will be necessary.

"The War Department has planned a joint force of regulars and militia for national defense. Orders have already been issued for the formation of the first field army; but, as a matter of fact, this is a field army in name only, so deficient is its organization and equipment today. As for the other proposed field armies, they will be little more than mere skeletons, and as such would cut a sorry figure if enemy opposed to a properly organized army.

"Both in the regular army and militia the field artillery falls short of its correct proportion with respect to the infantry and cavalry. If the present army and militia were recruited up to their a shortage of over 50 per cent. in the number of guns they ought to possess. This force would amount approximately to 300,000 men. In time of war twice this number would probably be required. The lack of guns, to say nothing of ammunition, necessary to equip such a force is consequently all the more striking.

"The report of the Chief of the Division of Military Affairs shows that the light batteries in the militia are deficient in organization, personnel, and instruction, and that they are very deficient in the number needed to make their existing infantry effective as fighting units. For this reason increased efforts should be made to organize, equip, and instruct this very necessary part of our citizen-soldiery.

"The 'Extra Officers bill,' now before Congress, provides for the creation of 612 additional officers, 300 of whom are to act as instructors and inspectors of militia. It is to be hoped most earnestly that Congress will pass this excellent measure.

"The Coast Artillery is likewise far short of its requisite strength. There are 42,065 Coast Artillery troops needed to provide one-manning detail for the seacoast fortifications already constructed within the United States. At the present time there are available 18079 regular Coast Artillery troops and 6864 militia, a total of 24,943.

"Therefore, 17,122 troops are required to provide one complete manning detail for the home fortifications, not to mention the 13,045 who will be needed for the Panama Canal and the insular possessions; 55,000 field troops will also be necessary in time of war to secure these fortifications against attacks from the rear.

"The location of some posts in the army might be greatly improved, and many posts and garrisons within the United States abandoned to advantage. The concentration of troops in larger bodies would unquestionably result in greater military efficiency, as well as in reduced expenses. Many of the business methods employed in the War Department might be improved. The institution of a Supply Corps, such as the Intendance in the French and German armies, could accomplish much in the

ACTIVITY IS SIGNIFICANT.

Climb in Population Shown by Demand for Houses.

Growth Is in Every Section of Los Angeles.

Residence Areas Invaded by New Apartments.

The steady climb of population in this city since the census enumeration was made public is convincingly attested by the phenomenal activity in residence and apartment house construction in Los Angeles today. The rest of the 350,000 so persistently and conspicuously predicted through many years by one of the leading realty men of the city are all here by this time to judge by the demands made upon the local architects for new house plans.

The evidences of growth are not confined to any one section; they are everywhere. Areas thought yesterday to be too far out for apartment houses are today being dotted with these metropolitan buildings. The barley fields of a year ago are being laid out in streets which tomorrow will be lined with attractive homes. Such activity is the answer to the question: "What becomes of all the new people out here?"

The following are among the new apartment houses which are as yet only in the form of sketches on the draughting boards of local architects: Jeffrey and Van Trees have prepared plans for a three-story and basement apartment house to be built at Third and Boylston for Allison Barlow. The site is irregular in shape and the building will have a large central court with a frontage of 100 feet and one wing extending back 248 feet, the other 167 feet. The foundation of the structure will be of concrete, the superstructure of frame, the exterior being plaster over metal lath. The appointments will be of the most modern type throughout. Besides the lobby, hall and lounging rooms, there will be seventy apartments.

J. T. Zeller is preparing plans for a four-story and basement brick apartment building to be erected on the southeast corner of Pico and Wright streets for Mrs. E. Johnson. The structure will contain 120 rooms, divided into fifty apartments of two and three rooms each, with private baths, ballroom, social parlors, storerooms, roof garden and sun parlor. In size it will be 60x125 feet. The facing on the street sides will be of pressed brick. The vestibule is to be in tile and marble. The cost of this building will be about $50,000.

H. L. von der Kuhlen will within the next sixty days commence the construction of a three-story apartment building on West Ninth street, between Francisco and Georgia streets. It will contain between fifty and sixty-five rooms, arranged in suites of two and three rooms each. C. W. von der Kuhlen is preparing plans for the structure. C. C. Rittenhouse is preparing plans for a three-story frame and plaster apartment house to be built on West Tenth street near Figueroa, for George R. Tedford. There will be sixty rooms, divided into twenty-four apartments, with private baths and wall beds.

A two-story, sixteen-room frame flat building will be erected on Forty-seventh street, near Moneta avenue, for Charles Reinhardt. The plans were drawn by Fred Biren.

FIREPROOF SANITARIUM.

Plans for the reinforced concrete sanitarium building, which, as previously reported in The Times, is to be erected by Dr. W. J. Geiermann at the north end of North Lake avenue, Altadena, will be drawn by Architect A. C. Martin of Los Angeles. The structure projected will be four stories high, the main portion being 200x40 feet, with a wing 40x80 feet. The building will contain 150 rooms and will be modernly fitted up.

The exterior of the sanitarium will be plastered, the general design being of the mission character. The roof will be of clay tile. Several small frame buildings providing quarters for the employees will also be constructed.

Other out-of-town building projects for which plans were drawn in the offices of Los Angeles architects are reported by the Southwest Contractor and Manufacturer as follows: Work will commence next week upon the erection of a two-story and basement brick building on the southwest corner of Fair Oaks avenue and Mission street, South Pasadena, A. C. Ong, owner. The building will contain a bank and six storerooms on the ground floor and seventeen office rooms and lodge hall on the second floor. Train & Williams drew the plans.

The Los Angeles Planing Mill Company was awarded the contract at $14,550 for the erection of a part one and part two-story brick theater building on Ocean Front and Zephyr avenue, Venice, for David Evans of that city. The building will be 50x100 feet, with plastered exterior, stucco ornamentation, marble and tile lobby. B. Cooper Corbett drew the plans.

A one-story brick store building will be erected on the northeast corner of Marine avenue and Speedway, Santa Monica, for W. Holmes of Alhambra. The structure will contain three stores.

Bids are being received by the trustees of the East Whittier school district for the erection of a concrete and brick four-room school building in accordance with plans prepared by A. C. Smith. The building will cost about $18,000.

Other projects reported by the same publication are: The Los Angeles Public Market Company is negotiating with the Channel Commercial Company, wholesale grocers, for a lease on a three-story and basement, reinforced concrete building the market company proposes to erect at Alameda and Sixth streets. The new building will be fireproof, with reinforced concrete walls and floor slabs, metal frames, rolling doors, elevators, sprinkler system, etc.

A. L. Haley is preparing plans for a two-story brick store building to be erected at Eighth and Los Angeles streets for George K. Darling.

The Davidson Construction Company will soon commence the construction of a one-story brick garage 150x160 feet, on Wall street, near Seventh street, for A. N. Davidson.

Mines and Mining in Southwest.

Phoenix.

ONE OF WORLD'S COPPER CAMPS.

Great Property Being Built at Ray, Arizona.

Millions of Tons of Metal Are Blocked Out.

D. C. Jackling Master Mind of Undertaking.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Feb. 17.—One of the greatest copper camps of the world is now evolving about eighty miles southeast of Phoenix, where within a year will be an ore extraction far greater than that now known at Bisbee. It is probable that the entire copper ore extraction of Arizona at present is new camp of Ray, the daily production of one mining company alone will be 8000 tons, compared with about 8000 tons at Bisbee.

The Ray Consolidated Copper Company is a Guggenheim concern and has gone into the copper manufacturing business not in any spirit of speculation but from a manufacturing standpoint, with fullest assurance of the quality and quantity of raw material it possesses and of the exact cost of extracting the copper and of marketing it. For a year or more, a concentrator of fair size was kept intermittently running in order to absolutely sample ore from every part of the company's ground. Various methods of concentration were tried and the best was selected. Then expert engineers determined upon the best location for the reduction works and foundations were laid for a concentrator which eventually will have a capacity for more than 15,000 tons of ore a day.

The copper mines around Ray are not new by any means, for the richness of the ground in copper was noted by the first military expedition that followed down the north bank of the Gila soon after that region was acquired from Mexico in 1846. Mines have been under location along Mineral Creek for at least forty years. Richer kidneys of ore have been worked and several small smelting plants have been operated but the reduction processes of the olden time, after bitter experience, were found unsuited to the ores of the Mineral Creek district. Only occasionally were bodies found rich enough to pay the cost of smelting.

A few years ago, a new era came in with the introduction of churn drills. By means of these economical exploration devices, it was found that underneath the oxidized capping lay great bodies of sulphide ore of varying depth. In several of the properties it was found that these sulphide lenses lay one beneath another, but the main ore bodies thus far explored on the Ray Consolidated appear to have a definite country rock bottom.

The value of the ore, as a whole, averages only 2.17 per cent, a quantity which would appear infinitesimal to the old-time Arizona miner, but it lies mainly in schist, generally in low conical hills, in which the extraction cost will be light and the copper constituent can so readily be recovered that large profit has been figured out in the handling.

The Ray Consolidated Copper Company has 2000 acres of mineralized ground, of which only 176 acres have been prospected by drill or other unground workings. Within these 176 acres have been blocked out and absolutely outlined bodies of ore aggregating 75,000,000 tons. At the average copper content, these ore bodies will contain over 3,000,000,000 pounds of copper, worth, at 13 cents a pound, about $400,000,000. Due to the magnitude of the work and the system that has been outlined, there is every prospect that the gross cost for mining, treatment and transportation will not be over 9 cents a pound. The balance realized by the company will be the small amount of $130,000,000.

Yet this represents only about one tenth of the probable capacity of the ground owned by the company, for the lateral limits of the ore blanket, averaging 118 feet in depth, have not been reached by boring at any point thus far explored. There can be no doubt that not only is the full 2000 acres of similar character but that there are several thousand acres of like ground within the ground of other mining companies around Ray. On one claim of the Hercules company is a drill hole over 1200 feet deep, which has outlined not only one ore body but three, at varying depths. Within the Hercules ground and that of the Ray Central about 20,000,000 tons additional have been blocked out by means of churn drill work. The capping of the ore bodies averages 240 feet in depth. Most of this carries good values in copper but, not being sulphide in character, it cannot be concentrated with profit. Possibly some process may be invented for its utilization in days to come.

Ore will be extracted through two great shafts, 4000 feet apart, with inclination of about 30 degrees in order to eliminate the cost and danger of handling men in the skips. Each shaft will have three compartments, in two of which will be operated 12-ton balanced skips. The head frame will be 110 feet in height, of steel, with a steel shaft house containing an electric hoist. The ore will be unloaded at the shaft head and then go to steel ore bins above the railroad tracks, each capable of holding 25,000 tons. Trains will be loaded automatically. An air compressor installed will furnish 8000 cubic feet of free air every minute. Power will be transmitted from the main power works at Hayden. Underground hauling will be by electric trab, 300 five-ton cars having been ordered. Thus far about nine miles of underground work have been completed, the lowest level being 1600 feet long. This is to be extended to 4000 feet. The ore dump now contains 145,000 tons of reserve ore, which will soon be drawn upon for the filling of the ore bins at the concentrator.

Ray lies seven miles up Mineral Creek from Kelvin, with which it has been connected by a magnificent broad-gauge railroad, with ninety-pound steel, built by the Ray Company, replacing a light narrow-gauge of earlier construction. From Kelvin to the reduction works at the new town of Hayden is a distance of fourteen miles, eastward up the valley of the Gila River, by way of the Arizona Eastern Railroad, a Southern Pacific branch. One hundred sixty-ton steel hopper cars have been ordered for the ore trains. As this traffic may be too heavy for the single-track line of the Southern Pacific road, plans have been made for extending the mining company's rails through to the concentrator.

Hayden, named after the senior member of the mining firm of Hayden, Stone and Company, lies about a mile north of the town of Winkleman, which it appears is destined to succeed. Its own independent postoffice was opened only this week. Yet for more than a year 400 men have been working on the great concentrator. The first 1000-ton unit of the plant is now nearly ready and is to be started within a few weeks. Housing has been provided for the full 8000-ton plant and construction work will continue to be pushed till the entire equipment is in operation. Ground has been left for later extension of the plant to 15,000 tons daily capacity.

The concentrator building, of steel and concrete, in size is 400x370 feet. The ore will be delivered into immense steel bins along the upper face of the building and thence will pass automatically through the various processes, down the slope of the ridge on which the plant has been built. Belt conveyors will take the ore to sixteen Garfield roughing rolls. Thence the oversize will pass to twenty-four Chilean mills, seventy-six Garfield concentrating tables, twenty-eight Wilfley tables and 768 vanners, incidentally being handled by a number of processes that are a bit too intricate for explanation in an article of this length. The tailings will be impounded in a large flat that lies handily below the works, but their volume will be so great as to necessitate changing the Southern Pacific to a line nearer the hills, passing through Hayden and leaving Winkleman to one side.

On the opposite side of the same ridge, foundations are being completed for a 1000-ton smelting plant, which is to be ready for work by the late summertime. It will embrace four 100-foot reverberatory furnaces, beside roasting and drying furnaces and converter equipment. It is understood that a blast furnace may be added, for use in handling outside ores. Till the smelter is ready, the concentrates will be sent for final reduction to the Guggenheim smelter at El Paso.

The Hayden plant is especially well situated from a transportation standpoint, being immediately on the new Southern Pacific low-grade line, which will soon be extended through the Gila Canyon to a connection at San Carlos with a railroad that gives access to the great mining camp of Globe and which will offer cheaper eastern communication by way of Bowie on the present Southern Pacific main line, as well as direct connection with Colorado. Near at hand, too, are a number of noted mines, such as the Saddle Mountain at Christmas, and the Troy-Manhattan, a score of concentrating properties along the Gila toward Kelvin and many more to the southward in the region below Dudleyville and around Mammoth. It is not improbable that one of the greatest custom smelters of the country will eventually be logically placed at Hayden. The plant is favored also with an abundance of water, secured by great pumps from the Gila River bottom.

Electricity will propel every wheel in the big works. The power plant is designed to furnish 10,000 horse power, with four 1750-kilowatt generators driven by four Allis-Chalmers engines of the largest type known in the Southwest. The power line to Ray, across the hills, is about complete.

As may be imagined, the transformation of mountain scenery around Ray, Kelvin and Hayden has been attended with some considerable cost. It has been told that the total expenditures up to date approximate $8,000,000, of which $3,000,000 lately was secured on mortgage given the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, though understood to have been taken through subscriptions from the stockholders. It is reported on good authority that the first profits of the concern are to be devoted to extending the capacity of the reduction plant to 15,000 tons a day. The company has 1,200,000 shares of stock outstanding, of $10 par value, and will soon be listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

At the helm of the Ray Consolidated is D. C. Jackling, who acts also as general manager for the Utah Copper Company, an even larger enterprise, and for the Chino Copper Company, where a 2000-ton concentrator is now being finished. Mr. Jackling is distinguished as the miner who first demonstrated the possibility of using the steam shovel for taking out low-grade copper ores in the blanket deposits of the West. He has not been able to do this at Ray, but has evolved a caving system that will be operated almost as cheaply. In immediate charge of the Ray-Hayden work is David Cole, who till the first of this year, was assistant general manager of the great mines and smelter at Cananea, Sonora. Louis C. Cates is superintendent at the Ray mines.

The problem of working the mines and operating the concentrator has brought out the very human problem of housing the employees, who now number 1600, and who will soon be counted by thousands. At Hayden a new city is being built from the bare ground up. At Ray have been provided three settlements for the Americans, the Mexicans and the Indians. The Mexican section already is well settled and is full of business, set to one side of the central section, wherein the offices of the company and its shops surround the entrance to the main lower shaft, opening close beside the channel of Mineral Creek.

In the general change there has been little consideration of Kelvin, save as the place where the employees' clubhouse is to be turned into a hospital. This clubhouse dates back to the days when an English company controlled the destinies of the Ray property and the reduction works were by the river, when the best sort of a material yard was sacrificed to become a polo ground, when the office force knocked off for afternoon tea and when dinner was a dread function ever marked by evening dress. But they don't work that way nowadays, under Jackling.

Favor Grass Valley Mine.

Los Angeles and eastern capitalists are negotiating for the Town Talk mine, located between the Empire and Union Hill properties, in the Grass Valley district. The Town Talk first attracted attention as a noted placer producer, and was subsequently worked with some success as a lode proposition. Lack of finances, however, forced a suspension of activities, although indications were decidedly promising. The property comprises 417 acres, and lies in one of the richest sections of the famous Grass Valley gold belt.

Bullion Hill Coming to Front.

The Bullion Hill mine, near Exchequer, Mariposa county, is attracting much attention. The lower crosscut recently intersected a thirty-foot vein of milling ore, which is developing into one of the best ore bodies in the Quartzberg district. The vein has been opened to a depth of 135 feet and is showing splendidly with depth. The ore assays $4.60 to $50 per ton, and the higher grade is shipped by teams and rail to San Francisco, via Merced Falls. It has been decided to install a modern mill as soon as satisfactory methods of treatment have been decided on.

Despite the unusually heavy snowfall in this section, a number of mining companies are showing great activity. Reno, Nev., people have opened a three-foot vein of milling ore in the Nonpareil and are pushing work. At the Tightner, arrangements are under way for the reopening of the old workings. Drifting is progressing at the Sixteen-to-One. Important discoveries are reported from the Gold Star, Gold Canyon and German bar mines.

MINE HOLDINGS ARE INCREASED.

Scott Bar Hydraulic Company Gets Properties.

Los Angeles Capitalists in the Corporation.

Dredging Ground near Yreka Being Tested.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

YREKA (Cal.) Feb. 17.—The Scott Bar Hydraulic Mining Company, No. 2, composed of Los Angeles capitalists, has secured full control of the properties of the Scott Bar Hydraulic Company, the Morrison & Capock Gold Mining Company, C. C. Hicks & Brothers, all placer holdings, and the Mabel quartz mine and the quartz properties of J. B. Chase. Most of these are located near Yreka and have been developed to a point where their merit is unquestioned.

The placer holdings are particularly valuable, as vast quantities of excellent-grade gravel have been opened up, and immense belts of virgin territory remain to be worked. For years this section has been one of the richest gravel districts in California, and the fact that hydraulic mining is permitted here enables the companies to operate at low cost. It is understood that the Angelenos will immediately inaugurate a comprehensive policy of developments, and that before another season passes several more giants will be placed in action. It is also possible that where conditions are favorable a dredge will be installed, this method being particularly favored on the flats, where it is difficult to mine gravel by the hydraulic process.

The San Jose ditch, the main water carrier of the company, will be completed from its present terminus, near Thompson Creek, to the Klamath River, at a cost of about $22,000. This will increase the water reserves to such an extent that a satisfactory supply will be available during the major portion of the entire season. Work on the ditch will be commenced within a few weeks.

In the meantime the development of the valuable quartz properties will be vigorously conducted. Both the Mabel and Chase mines have good records and important ore bodies have been demonstrated to fair depth. Considerable of the ore carried high gold values. The new company is said to have ample financial backing, and within a short period the Scott Bar Hydraulic Company No. 2 promises to rank as one of the premier gold yielders of the entire State.

Testing Dredging Ground.

The placer holdings of Leland & Linscott, situated a few miles from Yreka, is being tested by R. R. Cottrell with Keystone drills. If results prove satisfactory a dredge will be installed in the spring. It is understood that Los Angeles capital is backing the enterprise. The holdings have yielded large quantities of rich gravel, and their location is particularly favorable for the employment of a dredge. The explorations under way are to determine the extent of the deposits beyond all doubt, the interested parties being satisfied with the quality of the proven gravel.

Activity at Landecker.

This celebrated old gravel property at Landecker has passed into the hands of the Hope Mining Company, in which several Southern Californians are interested, and development is being conducted along comprehensive lines. Two Burleigh drills are used in breaking down the gravel and in developments, while a third drill is being used in explorative work. The gravel being extracted averages around $5 per ton, and the manager estimates that sufficient is blocked out to keep the mill running for six months, with two shifts employed. Prospecting and blocking out will be kept well ahead of developments, and the outlook is for a most prosperous season.

The property embraces 412 acres, with three strongly-defined gravel channels traversing the group. About 2000 feet of tunnels and drifts have been extended, leaving a large acreage yet to be proven. The property is one of the best equipped gravel mines in California, being provided with an air compressor, three power drills, modern mill, etc. In addition to the gravel channels, the upper surface of the bedrock has proven to carry such excellent values that it is being mined to a depth of three feet and rock sent to the mill.

Renew Bond on Kate Hardy.

The Kate Hardy Consolidated Mining Company of Los Angeles has renewed its bond on the Kate Hardy quartz property at Forest. Developments during the past few months have proven eminently satisfactory, and a considerable quantity of excellent grade ore has been blocked out. As developments have progressed at increasing depth, a marked improvement in the vein has been observable.

So pleased are the Angelenos with the property, that they have decided to erect a forty-stamp mill in the coming summer. This will be of the most modern type, and the management states that sufficient ore is being opened to justify the installation. The recent heavy storms have somewhat interferred with operations, but work will soon be in full blast again. J. Dixon Baggs is manager.

South Eureka Mill in Action.

The famous South Eureka at Sutter Creek has resumed production with sixty stamps dropping steadily. Splendid ore is coming from below the 2000-foot point, and the big vein is showing up splendidly as developments progress. It is reported that the regular monthly dividends of three cents per month will be increased shortly. Everything about the mine has been placed in first-class shape, and indications are that the South Eureka will rank as one of the greatest producers on the mother lode before the close of the year.

New Yorkers Bond Kelsey.

The Kelsey quartz mine, four miles from Placerville, has been bonded by the Mother Lode Mines Company of New York, and instructions have been given to its local representative, William A. Hooten, to commence operations immediately. The mine has been developed to a limited extent, with promising ore bodies in evidence. The property extends for a mile on the famous mother lode ore zone, and will be comprehensively developed by shafts and crosscuts. Ample capital is said to be back of the venture.

Alaska.

MAKE REPORT ON ALASKAN ORES.

INFORMATION SENT OUT BY GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.

Highly Mineralized Conditions Exist in the Vicinity of Prince William Sound—Two Copper Mines and One Gold Mine Are Now Shipping Ore.

Copper and gold prospects in the vicinity of Prince William Sound, Alaska, may make that region an important producing center for those metals. Two copper mines and one gold mine are already in active operation there, and a number of other properties have been developed, some of which have made shipments of copper ore.

The mineral resources of the region have been examined by U. S. Grant and D. F. Higgins, geologists, who have reported the results of their work in the Geological Survey's bulletin 443, which may be obtained upon application to the Director of the Survey at Washington. These geologists visited all the mines and prospects and studied the underground workings. The report is illustrated by maps, diagrams and half-tone views. Among other things it says:

"Valdez and Cordova are the two most important settlements in this region. From Valdez three lines of railway have been projected to tap the copper country, but only a few miles of track have been laid. From Cordova the Copper River and Northwestern Railway has built about 130 miles of line eastward and northward across the Copper River delta, passing Alaganik, near which is McKinley Lake, where there are several gold prospects. Four smaller towns, a few Indian villages, and a number of mining camps complete the census of settlements about the sound.

"Copper is the most important metal found in the district. It was first discovered in 1897, and the prospect first located was developed into the Ellamar mine, now one of the two producing mines. The second mine, the Bonanza, was located in the same year, and both have been worked commercially since 1900. In 1908, the latest year for which production is given in the report, 1,324,963 pounds of copper, valued at $174,895, were exported from the Prince William Sound region. These figures, however, represent less than half the amount and value of the metal extracted in the previous year. Since this report was printed the annual copper production of Prince William Sound has much increased in value.

"Prospecting has been active since 1902, and numerous claims have been located. The copper usually occurs as chalcopyrite, mixed with pyrrhotite and pyrite. The investigations made by Messrs. Grant and Higgins indicate that the ore is of deep-seated origin. Most of it carries gold, ranging in amount from 25 cents to $4.80 a ton. The average is probably about a dollar a ton. Ores yielding 4 per cent. or more of copper can probably be mined profitably, and less valuable copper ores may be extracted commercially if the amount of gold present is sufficient to make up the deficiency in copper. The ore already shipped has carried from 5 to 7 per cent. of copper.

"At present the Cliff mine, near Valdez, is the only gold-producing mine, but work has been done on a score or more of gold prospects. The ore at the Cliff mine is rich, and there seems to be good reason to believe that some of the other prospects may prove to be of commercial importance."

No Need of Constitution.

"Politics," remarked Chief Moore of the Weather Bureau, "is a science as well as a circus. One of the funniest things I ever heard in that connection was about the cowboy delegate to the constitutional convention of Nevada when that Territory was about to become a State. In the constitution was the stereotyped paragraph about the new State's having two Senators to represent it in Washington.

650,000 PEOPLE COMING

There is every indication of Los Angeles attaining a population of one million in the next decade. Those who are fortunate enough to own a piece of suburban acreage today—and shrewd enough to HOLD IT—will ultimately enjoy the same rewards of the Los Angeles, Pasadena and Hollywood acreage buyers of 10 years ago.

It's a simple proposition. With 650,000 people coming, land values must increase tremendously. And even today, there's a very little fertile, close-in acreage left at anything like moderate prices. The opening of, the "coming market-basket of Los Angeles"—extends the last great land-buying opportunity close enough to Los Angeles to profit by the latter's phenomenal growth. But the founders and developers of Van Nuys and Lankershim lands are not going to wait for the natural spreading out of greater Los Angeles. No indeed! For the next five years, commercial, residential and agricultural development will be pushed to the limit. A $500,000 asphalt boulevard system is now being laid out, depots are being constructed, an electric car line via Hollywood is now being actively constructed, hundreds of homes are going up, townsites are being established, orchards planted—and this activity will be vigorously pushed. Great national and local advertising campaigns will attract thousands of the best people to these lands. Values will be boosted by the lever of continuous development.

Van Nuys and Lankershim Lands

Now is the logical time to get YOUR share—buy before the first electric car reaches Van Nuys. Ask any banker in the city about an investment here.

Well-informed orchardists, nurserymen, gardeners, poultry raisers, etc., are securing choice pieces. They realize the eager market that Los Angeles affords. Nowhere in Southern California can better soil and climatic conditions for raising fruits and vegetables be found than here. The finest deciduous fruits in Southern California grow right in this section—and without irrigation, too!

Arrange NOW for a personally conducted trip—don't put it off—you've been wanting to go—go TODAY.

"THE MARKET BASKET OF LOS ANGELES"

found and, if possible, how to test for same.

Thanking you for the general information I have received through your valuable paper, beg to remain.

Yours truly, J. W. L.

ANSWER: The questions propounded in your polite communication are properly within the purview of this department.

It is a very great pleasure to be "put upon our mettle," as it were, and to reply to such important questions as you propound, and our endeavor shall be, in the following lines, to give such up-to-date facts, localities, ores and tests, relating to vanadium, that will be of value to assayers, metallurgists, mineralogists and (last but not least) to the mining boys in the hills.

Vanadium is a metal; it does not occur native; it is silver-white in color and closely resembles the metal molybdenum. It is of brittle tenacity and "is not oxidized either by air or water, though by exposure to the atmosphere its luster grows weaker, and it acquires a reddish tint."

The term vanadinite, in its strict mineralogical sense, is: "The mineral vanadate of lead, occurring in yellowish and brownish hexagonal crystals." (Dana.)

Vanadic acid of commerce, or otherwise, is a compound made up of one equivalent of vanadium and three equivalents of oxygen.

Vanadinite, in formula, is approximately vanadic acid 23; oxide of lead 67, lead 7, with hydrochloric acid 3 percentages, respectively.

Before the blow-pipe or charcoal vanadinite decrepitates, throws off sparks of fire, fuses to a globule, with metallic lead present, and around the assay, (on the charcoal,) a circular yellowish, oxide film is formed. It is soluble in nitric acid, and nitrate of silver throws down from the solution a bulky precipitate of silver chloride.

By dropping nitric acid (one or two drops only) on vanadinite crystals the surface of the crystals turn to a dark-red color instantly, caused by the formation and separation of vanadic acid, but, following this, another reaction quickly takes place, and the color changes to a bright-canary yellow.

The native granular canary-yellow colored substance carnotite, is a double vanadate of uranium and potassium and possesses radioactive properties. Photographs are made with carnotite on gelatin plates, when exposed in a dark room.

Roscoelite is known among the mining boys in the hills as "vanadium mica."

The tests herein set forth are in addition to those of Dr. Frank L. Hess, geologist of the United States Geological Survey, fully quoted and referred to in our "In the Earth" department of February 12, 1911.

The valuable uses of vanadium in the manufacture of steel are so well and popularly known that further reference to such uses are, probably, not called for.

California and Arizona are coming to the front on vanadium-bearing ores, notably so in the Camp Francis mining district of California and in the Old Hat district of Arizona.

"The larger part of the vanadium used in this country is obtained from ore imported from Cerro de Pasco, Peru, by the American Vanadium Company of Pittsburgh, Pa. The ore is largely patronite, a sulphide of vanadium, with which are various oxides in the weathered part of the deposit."

In this country vanadium was produced in 1909 by the Vanadium Alloys Company, at Newmire, Colo., from the roscolite sandstone at that place. . . The Colorado Vanadium Company established a laboratory at Boulder and pursued experiments on the production of vanadium from the Newmire roscolite," [and also from the Boulder county, Colo., roscolite].—Ed. note.

The vanadium ores of the Paradox Valley sixty miles nothwesrt of Placerville, Colo., occur in a sandstone formation and the vanadium present is found in a black mineral formation in the mass.

When the writer was called upon—years ago—at his laboratory (then at Boulder, Colo.,) to first analyze Carnotite, it was observed—as a test—that upon powdering some of the mineral and adding to the powder (in a test tube) some nitric acid, that a brilliant display of changeable colors occurred, and in fact, all minerals carrying vanadium values show this reaction to a greater or less degree.

As an illustration showing the new-found uses of vanadium and some chemical facts (?) of the past, an author once wrote to the writer that: "Vanadite is lead oxide with chlorine and vanadium," and that "such wildcat ores are all good cabinet specimens, but will never be found abundant enough for commercial purposes, even if a commercial use of them were known." [Huh!]

Webster informs us that vanadite is a salt, formed by the union of vanadous acid and a base. It is good chemistry to let it go at such a practical and correct definition.

samples marked No. 1 and No. 2, found ten miles east of Bakersfield, Cal. I would like to know what they are?

ANSWER: Sample No. 1 is gypsum in asbestiform variety and form in a matrix of impure aluminum silicate with iron oxides. No. 2 is crystallized gypsum.

Chiefly Magnetite.

SANTA ANA, Jan. 9.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I am mailing you with this a small sample of stuff from near St. Francis Canyon. Looks like concentrates of some kind. The party who sent it wishes to know if it contains any gold or platinum. Will you kindly inform us through the "In the Earth?" You will by so doing greatly oblige.

Yours truly, W. W. H.

ANSWER: The concentrates are made up of 95 per cent. magnetic iron ore that is lifted, and separated, by the magnet.

One small grain of platinum and two minute gold "colors" were observable in the granular mixture with the aid of the microscope.

There is some 5 per cent. of iron oxides with guartz and porpyrite rock present.

We are responsible for the sample submitted only, and in no wise wish to be understood as recommending the locality indicated as a good prospecting point for platinum and gold.

Phosphates and Fertilizer.

EUREKA (Nev.) Jan. 7.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Sample with this comes from a lead of two-foot thickness at ten-foot depth and located eleven miles southeast of Eureka. It is said to carry native phosphorus. Is the assertion correct. If so, in what shape or form is the phosphorus?

In what geological formations does phosphorus appear?

Will you kindly name some of the minerals that carry phosphorus?

What is the difference between guano and phosphate rock?

Will you please state an example of fertilizer?

Thanking you in advance for such information as you may be pleased to give me, I am,

Yours very truly, "FERTILIZER."

ANSWER: Glad to hear from you. The sample is magnetite (magnetic-iron ore) with a brownish lot of apatite (phosphate of lime) grains throughout the mass.

Phosphorus, regarding native, is somewhat of a misnomer; it is true that chemists often refer to iron ores as "cold short" if such ores carry too great a percentage in "phosphorus," ter be referred to in its values as phosphoric acid, probably.

Primary phosphates occur in irregular deposits, in disc-like or lenticular shapes; "in pyroxene dikes or intrusions in the Laurentian gneisses and gabbros in Canada, and in some localities in New York and New England."

A great number of minerals contain phosphoric acid, and they occur in formations from the lower Primaries to the latest Quaternaries, and are, probably, of animal origin. "Apatite is the earliest shape in which phosphorus appears in the earth's crust, and is the definite mineral phosphate of lime."

The file streak of apatite is always white, regardless of the color of the mineral sample.

Magnesia-phosphate (Wagnerite;) iron manganese lime phosphate (Triplite;) alumina phosphate (Wavellite,) and lithia fluorine phosphate (Amblygonite,) are examples of primary phosphates

The amblyzonite deposits of Southern California will, some day, yield handsome returns, financially, for its high phosphate and lithia contents.

"Guano, like Carolina phosphates, is the result of animal matter mixed up with enough lime to compact and mineralize it."

In dry climates where rains are the exception, the soluble acids, ammonias, etc., do not "leach out." In wet climates the insoluble phosphate of lime covers the only form present.

Phosphate manufactured from phosphate rock requires that certain soluble acids and ammonia must be added to the native lime phosphates.

"Peruvian Guano is of analysis: Organic matter 52; lime phosphate 23; moisture 15; alkaline salts 6; free phosphoric acid 2; silica 2, percentages as stated. Caribbean guano contains 8 per cent. of organic matter, lime phosphate 77 per cent., moisture 7 per cent., lime sulphate 6 per cent., with silica 2 per cent."

One ton of Peruvian guano is worth in the open markets, two tons of Caribbean guano.

The chief ingredient in European fertilizers is potash, not so with many American substitutes. The minerals (feldspar,) and certain micas are the best sources for potash. Orthoclase (potash feldspar) carries from 10 to 17 per cent potash. "As these minerals decompose through old age or other causes, the potash is released from its silicated condition and forms combinations with chlorine and sulphuric acid, thus becoming a soluble salt. In this condition, and with the aid of water, it permeates all through the soil, and tinctures sea-water everywhere. Great beds of chloride and sulphate of potash in places where they seem to have been left by the drying up of seas."

The soluble potash minerals such as kainite, carnallite and sylvite, are in commerce known as "German Potash Salts." Sylvite is native potassium chloride (52 per cent. potash with 48 per cent. chlorine.) Carnallite carries 27 per cent. potassium chloride with magnesium chloride 34 per cent.

"Kainite is the mineral Polyhallite with such admixture of soda salts as naturally would be deposited with it during its precipitation out of evaporating sea water."

We have been requested to write some facts on feldspar, micas and certain granite, relative to their chemical treatment for use in the manufacture of fertilizers, which facts and results we hope to give in this department of The Times in the near future.

CEYLON'S PEARL FISHERIES.

Have Been Showing a Steady Decline, Which Has Increased the Price of Pearls During Later Years.

The outlook for the pearl-oyster fishing industry in Ceylon is decidedly dubious. An inspection of the banks is being made to ascertain whether spatfall (eggs) has been given forth since the April inspection, at which time no trace of them was found. Should the present inspection reveal spatfall, and should it develop, five years would be necessary for it to mature and become pearl bearing, so in any event the next fishery can not be held until 1915.

The last fishery, held in 1908, was a complete failure. In the previous year, the last successful fishery, 21,000,000 oysters were fished out of an estimated 31,000,000. These oysters many of which held pearls, were sold at public auction at a good profit.

The year 1907 marked the sixth consecutive year of successful fisheries, prior to the beginning of which, in 1902, there had been a lapse of 12 years in the industry. Ceylon fisheries have never been steady, there having been throughout lapses of many years. The longest was during the Dutch occupation, of the island and lasted about twenty-seven years. The present outlook, as viewed by an expert, is abcolutely hopless, because he believes that even if spatfall is found it will either be devoured by fishes or washed away. These unfortunate features could possibly be overcome, but it is believed that the company holding the lease of the banks lacks the required capital. The main reason for disappearance of the spatfall during the past three years is said to be due to overfishing, taking too many mature oysters and leaving few if any to give off spatfall. Oysters of the species found here require for maturity five to seven years, during which time eggs. After the seventh year no mor spatfall is forthcoming.

The Oil Industry in California and Abroad.

To Arms.

TITANIC FIGHT IN FAR EAST.

Battle of Oil Between Standard and Asiatic.

Some Believe the Big Trust Is Disintegrating.

Declaration of War Watched With Interest.

BY LEWIS R. FREEMAN.

It was during a visit which I made to Shanghai six years ago that I was asked by a young Britisher, whose long residence in the East had thrown him the least bit out of touch with affairs in other parts of the world, if John D. Rockefeller was President of the United States. I was at something of a loss to know just how to answer this simple query, but I am under the impression that I evaded a discussion by replying "Not officially." Ludicrous as such a query appears, it is a straw which showed the set of the wind of public opinion in the East regarding the omnipotence of Standard Oil influence in America.

Today the great American monopoly is selling probably twice as much oil in the East as it was in 1904, and the development of its system of distribution has been equally marked; yet the vigor of the rivalry that it has now to meet from a new company which has arisen may be judged by the fact that I was asked but a few weeks ago, by a man of not inconsiderable prominence in Shanghai whom I chanced to meet at the club, if I thought that "Standard Oil" had any chance in its fight with "Asiatic petroleum." I had given little attention to the details of the "oil war" at the time, and so could only answer bluntly that I thought it had. Even after a month's browsing about for information on the subject, I am still inclined to answer the same way, though the fact has become increasingly apparent that the great American company has at last found an adversary worthy of its steel. The spectacle of Standard Oil having anything approaching "a run for its money," under any conditions and in any part of the world, may prove so delightfully refreshing a surprise to American readers that some account of the wherefore of it may prove of interest.

What the Standard Oil Company is—or would it save time to outline what it is not?—is known in a general way to all Americans; how it has practically controlled the petroleum business of the world for years; how it pays an annual dividend of from 30 to 40 per cent. on its $100,000,000 capital, and how it controls over a hundred subsidiary companies at home and abroad, having an aggregate capitalization of $230,000,000; how it controls from 80 to 90 per cent. of the American production of 125,000,000 barrels of petroleum, and almost all of the illuminating oil.

During the last decade the Standard Oil Company, having established an almost absolute monopoly in America, has set out similarly to control the industry in other parts of the world. Gradually it has pushed its ramifications to all European countries, Central and South America, Africa, the Indies and Far East, and it is in its extension into the latter sections that it began feeling most strongly the competition of Asiatic and certain European interests. It is to its alarm at the growing strength of its rivals that Europe attributes the practical declaration of war by the Standard upon the other companies with which it is coming into competition.

ITS CHIEF OPPONENT.

The chief opponent of the Standard Oil Company is an affiliation of interests which, under the names of the Shell Transport and Trading Company and the Royal Dutch Company, work and distribute the petroleum products of the Dutch East Indies. These companies control the Baataafsche Petroleum Maatscappij, a Dutch company which produces and refines oil in Borneo and Sumatra, and the Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Company of London, which owns the fleet of tank steamers conveying the oil to Europe and America. The Shell company controls, among a number of other concerns, the Asiatic Petroleum Company, the one which I have alluded to as the chief opponent of the Standard upon the China coast. The Royal Dutch Company, apart from its interests in the East, is a big factor in the Roumanian oil fields, while one of its subsidiary companies has just concluded arrangements which give it an entry into the fields of the Russian Caucacus. The Rothschilds Societie Caspienne is also, a holder of one-third of the stock of Asiatic Petroleum and, with various of these concerns, is connected the European Petroleum Union, in which the Nobels, Rothschilds, the Deutsche Bank and several strong Russian houses are interested.

It will be seen that the Standard Oil in this fight finds itself opposed by the strongest financial genius and influence in Europe. At the same time I read that it is having a contest with the Pearson interests in Mexico, and that opposition at home is showing no signs of letting up. In the United States it has to face not only a certain amount of home and foreign competition, but also the anti-trust element of the public and of the Legislature in nearly every State in the Union. Untold millions have been spent by the trust in fighting government legislation, and the defeats have considerably out-balanced the victories. It seems to be the opinion in London that the open declaration of war against European and Asiatic interests is chiefly a matter of domestic policy, because the very fact that the company, as representing American interests, is, spectacularly, fighting an alliance of the oil interests of the whole world, may have the effect of qualifying the antagonistic sentiment of the American public toward their especial "bete noire."

British and European sentiment is naturally against the American company, and I have been much interested in catching the drift of opinion from various places upon the origin and outcome of the struggle. Only one London authority attributes to the Standard anything but ulterior motives in cutting prices. He points out that the move is but a natural result of the tremendous over-production in America, showing the necessity which exists for disposing of the enormous accumulated stocks of crude oil now on hand, upon which disposal the future of the American petroleum industry practically hangs. He also believes that the steps taken by that company in placing upon the markets of the world enormous quantities of cheap petroleum products will serve the very useful purpose of extending the uses of the various petroleum products to purposes to which they hitherto have not been applied. Once petroleum products are adopted [illegible] that they are very rarely abandoned. Therefore, the consumption of these multifarious products will be greatly increased and a demand created, the magnitude of which can only dimly be estimated.

AGAINST COMPETITION.

Most of the opinion in Europe, India and China is in accord with a British authority who discounts the avowed intention of the Standard "to increase the world's consumption of refined oil by making considerable reductions in prices in the East and Europe," and claims that "its directors are very anxious to crush out competition abroad as they have at home, and to prevent the formation of new competitors and stop the flow of British capital into the oil industry. Their latest tactics, however, are surely too obvious to meet with success, and the very fact that the trust has adopted what may be described as a bullying attitude in place of its usual insidious manner of working seems to indicate the weakness of its position."

A Dutch writer says: "The oil industry of the world has undergone a remarkable change in recent years. Time was when the Rockefellers, in America, and the Nobels, in Russia, held a practical monopoly of the world's oil business, taking care not to invade each other's markets. But those days are gone. The Nobels still hold sway in Russia, but in Europe and in the East the Royal Dutch-Shell combine has become a great power and a formidable rival to the Standard Oil Company; and it is mainly against the Anglo-Dutch combine that the American trust is now aiming."

But the most interesting of these foreign opinions which have come to my notice is that of the writer of an editorial in a London financial organ who claims that the Standard Oil Company is falling to pieces of its own weight; is already tottering to its fall in fact. "There is plenty of evidence," he writes, "that the Standard Oil Company has outgrown, or is outgrowing, its strength. The tentacles of the octopus have become so long, so widespread and so grasping that the central genius, or genii, no longer have complete control over them. J. D. Rockefeller, the founder and builder of the business, has practically retired to the golf links; H. H. Rogers is dead; William Rockefeller, Mr. Archbold, and the other magnates of the business are getting old, and are seeking well-earned retirement after years of strenuous work. Moreover, the sons of the oil millionaires are not assuming the mantles of their fathers; they do not show the necessary capacity for carrying on the work of the founders of the great fortunes which they are inheriting. Consequently, the unity of management which was the strength of the company ten, even five, years ago, no longer exists as it did. The Standard Oil Company has become more and more a decentralized organization, and is therefore becoming more and more vulnerable to the attacks of its rivals and opponents. As a matter of fact, the Standard Oil Company, though spectacularly declaring war in its ultimatum, is really acting on the defensive against the onslaughts of European capital. It has its back to the wall. It is fighting the biggest fight in its history, and the end, it is confidently believed in European oil circles, will be an agreement—an entente—in which the European interests will be able to dictate terms. How soon that will be it is impossible to say."

The fight between the Standard Oil Company and the Asiatic Petroleum Company is now at its height on the China Coast, and the former appears to be getting rather the worst of the opening rounds. This is due almost entirely to the fact that the Borneo and Sumatra oil which is sold by its vigorous rival is produced and refined by the lowest priced labor in the world at but a thousand miles from the point of consumption, while the cheapest product which the Standard can supply must traverse a continent and an ocean before arriving at its distributing centers. This makes it possible for the Asiatic to sell its products at a price which more than makes up their lack of quality. The lowest grade kerosene which the Standard has upon the China market is superior to the best grade marketed by the Asiatic, but the handicap of cost and transportation in favor of the latter is almost prohibitive. The average Chinese consumer will invariably buy a smoky, ill-smelling oil which is cheap in preference to a clear-burning one which is higher priced, a circumstance which plays squarely into the hands of the Asiatic Company.

DECIDING FACTOR.

Geography seems to be the deciding factor in the oil war as far as the East is concerned, and it would seem as though the Standard missed its chance of controlling the situation in not first gaining control of the Bornean and Sumatran fields. With the backing the Asiatic has it does not appear probable that the Standard's American tactics of throttling competition by selling for a time at a loss will prove successful here. Its principal hope would seem to lie in educating the Chinese consumer to the point of appreciating the greater economy of a better grade oil, even if he must pay a higher price for it.

Both companies are admirably equipped for the struggle in hand. The Asiatic, in sending out specially picked British university men to the important positions in all of its eastern branches, is making a most radical departure from English business practice. At various of the Yangtse ports I have met Oxford and Cambridge men in the employ of this company, among them being several from Australia, South Africa and Canada who had gone to those universities on Rhodes scholarships.

Taken right through, the Standard Oil men in the East are the best class I ever encountered. The modernity and permanence of that company's installations at all points, and the character of the men who represent it, were among the things which most strongly impressed the members of the Commercial Commission from the Pacific Coast in the course of its recent tour of China. They are the livest, likliest lot of young men in the East, and it is they who, if properly supported, still incline me to a belief that Standard Oil has a "chance" with Asiatic petroleum in the struggle for the control of the eastern market.

Seeks a Platinum Substitute.

Before Edison produced a practical carbon filament and thus made the incandescent lamp a commercial article, many experimental lamps had been built with the filament made of a single loop of platinum, sealed into the bulb so that its two ends projected and made the terminals of the lamp. As platinum is fully as costly as gold, its price alone would have made its use prohibitive, says Popular Electricity. With the coming of carbon as a practical filament material, the use of platinum was restricted to the short lengths needed for passing through the glass of the bulb.

Even his length has gradually been reduced, but so tremendous is the annual consumption of incandescent lamps that the cost of the platinum used for this purpose is estimated at $100,000.

STORAGE RATES ARE REDUCED.

Independent Oil Will Reap Large Benefit.

Voluntary Action of the Producers' Company.

Indications for Much Development This Year.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

BAKERSFIELD, Feb. 17.—News from Los Angeles that the Producers' Transportation Company has voluntarily decreased by half its charge for starting Independent Agency oil is received here with much rejoicing by producers. The former price was one cent per barrel per month for oil in steel tanks and a half cent for oil in concrete reservoirs. The disposal of the oil made the average cost three-quarters of a cent per barrel per month, and as the Agency now has 13,000,000 barrels of oil in storage the monthly bill of the Producers' Transportation Company was approximately $97,500.

The charge beginning February 1 will be half that amount. As the storage bill had to be paid monthly out of the proceeds of oil sold the month before the checks of the Agency members were very materially reduced, and the storage burden had become one of the Agency's most insistent problems. Various plans for supplying cheaper storage had been discussed, one of them being the erection of tanks and reservoirs by the individual companies on their own leases. As the result of the cut by the Producers' Transportation Company these other plans probably will be abandoned.

A report that the Agency and the Associated have agreed on new terms for the sale of 4,000,000 barrels of storage oil from the former to the latter are not confirmed, although it is understood that negotiations have been resumed since the Associated's first offer was turned down by the Agency at the directors' meeting held in this city on February 1. President St. Clair was authorized to close a contract with the Associated for the oil desired at a price considerably in excess of the 35 cents first offered, but no authentic news of the signing of the contract has yet been received.

The Honolulu Consolidated Oil Company's great gasser on section 6, 32-24, which had been burning since Monday of the previous week, was extinguished Wednesday morning with steam from a battery of six 80-horse-power boilers. For ten days the light from the great torch made the hills luminous for miles around, and even in Bakersfield the flare of the light against the sky was plainly visible throughout the nights. Some months ago one of the Standard Oil Company's big gas wells burned for several days, but even that great flame was eclipsed by the burning Honolulu well. The latter is the largest gas well brought in on the west side so far. Its flow of gas is estimated at 53,000,000 cubic feet per day. It is the intention to drill through the gas formation into oil as was done in three of the other gassers of the Honolulu Consolidated.

NEW YEAR WILL BE ACTIVE.

The present year is starting off much more conservatively so far as the oil industry of the San Joaquin Valley is concerned, than did 1910, but there are abundant signs that this year, also, is to be an active one in the valley fields. The month of January shows 600 strings of tools running in the five valley fields and 275 new rigs built within the month. From Coalinga comes the report that the K. T & O. Company is preparing to greatly increase its activity in the development of Southern Pacific Railroad lands; a more strenuous development campaign is to be launched on the North McKittrick front and only the muddy roads prevent the rapid extension of prospecting in the Lost Hills and north, south and west of that district all the way from McKitrick to Coalinga.

Two reasons are suggested for the new activity of the K. T. & O.: One that the railroad desires to be in a position to supply its own fuel oil needs, and the other that it desires to protect its disputed title to the oil in the land through mineral discoveries. The K. T & O. has leases on the greater part of the Southern Pacific's land which is considered oil bearing, and should it adopt the policy of drilling discovery holes on all this land it might mean a drilling campaign of much magnitude as to outclass even the Sunset-Midway development of last year.

On the North McKittrick front the favorable signs developed in the Union-Barnsdall wells have stimulated a company of Los Angeles people under the leadership of W. G. Van Slyck to undertake the development of a tract of land in the northern part of township 28-21. The company is now getting four rigs into the field.

The Union Oil Company has just started a well on section 9 in this township, which is far to the north of any present producing well on the McKittrick front. A large part of the drilling in this district is on patented land and is not affected by the withdrawal orders.

The southernmost strikes in the Lost Hills field are in township 28-22, which means that a scattering line of derricks now extends practically all the way from the eastern limits of the Sunset field to the Kettelman plains and Devil's Den.

Along the edge of the main range west of Lost Hills another line of derricks is being extended and it is reported that the Kern Petroleum, one of the pioneers in this territory, has struck oil sand.

With all its numerous and extensive oil land withdrawals, the Interior Department has left an occasional opening for the enterprising locator, and one of these on section 2, 28-18, the Lost Hills Petroleum Company is preparing to drill. The land is in the southern end of the Kettleman Hills.

REJECTS DESERT ENTRIES.

Orders have been received at the land office at Visalia to reject all desert and homestead entries on withdrawn oil land. This will eliminate a number of contests over Lost Hills lands which have found their way into court. In one such case, that of A. H. Ten Broeck against Martin & Dudey, the Superior Court of this county held that it had no jurisdiction and refused to grant an injunction to restrain the defendants from drilling on the land. Since the order was received at Visalia Ten Broeck's entry has been rejected by the register and receiver.

L. A. Cook, an oil man interested in the Lost Hills and Coalinga fields, is authority for the statement that the sand found in the Lakeshore wells (the Lost Hills discovery well) is the same as that in the celebrated Silver Tip gusher of the Coalinga field. Mr. Cook said that while he was in San Francisco some weeks ago he got into an argument with people who tried to convince him that the Lakeshore oil all came from shale. On his return to the valley he procured samples of the Lakeshore and Silver Tip sand and compared them, both in the natural state and after the oil had been washed out with gasoline. In both conditions, Mr. Cook says, the sands were identical. With the oil washed out of it, the Lakeshore sand resembles brown sugar, says Mr. Cook.

The heavy rains of the past few weeks have made the roads to the Lost Hills almost impassable for automobiles and heavy wagons, and comparatively little is doing there in the way of development just now. There are many rigs in the field, however, and with the drying of the roads and the settlement of the contests which have tied up work in many instances the field will take on a decided new activity.

Operators east of Old Sunset are encouraged by news of a strike of El Cerito Oil Company, on the northwest quarter of section 25, 11, 23. The drill went into oil sand at 2045 feet, and a good showing of oil came up with the baler through the water. The ten-inch casing was cemented Wednesday, and as soon as the cement is set the eight-inch casing will be put down into the oil. The sand was penetrated to a depth of forty-five feet, and it is believed that a good production will be obtained from the stratum. The Thirty-four Hill, which is a half mile from El Cerito, is down 1645 feet. The stockholders are nearly all Kern county people.

The Buick Oil Company, which has been drilling for months on a forty-acre lease in section 32-31-23, North Midway, has brought in a 1500-barrel well at 3350 feet. The land adjoins the California Midway property on the east and is in the gusher belt of the North Midway Valley.

INCREASING ITS FLOW.

NEWEST PALMER WELL.

The Palmer Oil Company's well No. 2, which came in a week ago with a production of 5000 barrels, is now producing 7000 barrels of fifteen and one-half gravity oil. The liquid comes up in regular pulsations, and heavy gas pressure sputters it out of the discharge pipe in great gobs. In all ways the well acts like No. 1, which is producing better than 1700 barrels, about 100 barrels more than it has been flowing for the past two years. Well No. 3, is still on the pump, but the sand is clearing and a big flow is expected at any time. No. 4 flowed for nine hours a few days ago at the rate of 5000 barrels and again sanded up. It may take a week or more to clear it. Its gas pressure is enormous and the general opinion is that it will be a larger producer than No. 2.

As was expected, Palmer Union well No. 1, proves without a doubt that the center of the great oil pool in the district is under its 1830 acres adjoining the original Palmer holding on the north. Beginning with Palmer No. 1, which has 150 feet of oil sands, the pay streak is found to thicken northward in No. 2, and again in No. 4, these three being in a straight line south of Palmer Union No. 1. The latter, which is about 1200 feet north of No. 4, has just been finished at a depth of 2994 feet, and has penetrated the oil sand for 200 feet without finding bottom. The gas pressure is so strong that it was not deemed advisable to go garther. According to the logs of all four wells, the oil sands thicken rapidly, northward from Palmer No. 1, and out in the center of the Palmer Union property the stratum must be of immense thickness; not less than 400 or 500 feet. The new well will not be turned loose until its storage reservoir is completed. Its flow will at least equal, and probably will exceed, that of the adjoining largest gusher.

Palmer Union well No. 2 is in brown shale at 1655 feet, and No. 3 is down 638 feet.

News Notes and Personals.

George J. Kirby, Ives F. Cobb, Capt. J. K. Hampton, A. A. Barlini and Maj. C. E. Stanton have formed the Calnava-Midway Oil Company and will operate on section 8, 31-23. They have spudded in well No. 1. George H. Robinson is field superintendent.

C. L. Merrill of this city, connected with the Security Oil Company, is making a visit of inspection of the Coalinga field. He will spend several days there.

It is reported that the American Oilfields Company will establish a topping plant at its camp near Fellows, since the plant of the Santa Fe has proved so successful.

The Kern Trading and Oil Company will undertake development in the Maricopa field on a large scale. It has given its field representative orders to immediately begin the erection of ninety derricks. Over twenty-five strings of tools will be on the job.

Roy Avery, one of the promoters of the July Oil Company, is authority for the statement that the company has not abandoned its plan of supplying water to the town of Taft. The company has a number of good water wells.

George K. Anderson, one of the well-known oil operators of the Coalinga field, is just out of Byron Hot Springs where he spent some weeks to recover his health.

W. G. Van Slyck of Los Angeles, formerly superintendent of the Globe Exploration Company, but now connected with a Los Angeles concern, is hauling four rigs out to the McKittrick front where an effort will be made to discover oil.

J. L. Tisdale of Bakersfield has brought suit against Martin & Dudley, known as the pioneers of the Lost Hills, to quiet title to certain lands and for $100,000 alleged damages. Failure to fulfill contract is charged.

Clarence B. Wisner, general manager of the British Consolidated Oil Company of Coalinga, and in charge of other English interests in the northern oilfields, is now in Coalinga. Wisner makes his headquarters in Los Angeles.

John W. Byrnes of the Polvadero Oil Company, which has a lease out from the Coalinga field, was in the latter camp the other day telling his friends how he was injured in attempting to swim fourteen feet of water surrounding his property at the time of the recent rains.

The famous Lakeview gusher was again in danger the other day when a well on the Monarch lease nearby caught fire. The blazing well was only about 2000 feet distant from the Lakeview. Fast work saved the king of wells.

An Object Lesson.

"Charles," said a sharp-voiced woman to her husband in a railway carriage, "do you know that you and I once had a romance in a railway carriage?"

"Never heard of it," replied Charles, in a subdued tone.

"I thought you hadn't; but don't you remember it was that pair of slippers I presented to you the Christmas before we were married that led to our union? Well, Charles, one day when we were going to a picnic, you had your feet up on a seat, and when you were not looking I took your measure. But for that pair of slippers I don't believe we'd have ever been married."

A young unmarried man, sitting by, immediately took down his feet from the seat.—[Ideas.

An Orange Crop Investment without the usual outlay, risk and expense

Live where you will and share with us in the largest Orange-planting and producing proposition ever offered for public investment. A proposition especially intended for the man of moderate means. A novel, safe plan of investment with GUARANTEED MONEY BACK WITH INTEREST.

The lands in question are situated at Corona and have been declared by experts as among the very best Citrus-growing lands in the State.

We Want You for a Partner:

Orange-growing and its profits have hitherto been confined to the capitalists and wealthy growers.

To here quote statistics as to the greatness of these orange-growing profits would be wasting space and your time.

EL SOBRANTE LAND CO. has devised this plan, whereby the man with a possible investment of $100 has exactly the same chance in proportion, to the richest man in the country.

We have set aside a large area, 166 acres to begin with, at Corona, have deeded same to the RIVERSIDE TITLE AND TRUST CO. as Trustee and Registrar, binding ourselves to prepare, plant, cultivate, irrigate and develop this land for the sole benefit of the holders of these

$100 Land Warrants

Under this Land-Warrant plan, the purchaser gets certain advantages which the direct buyer of land does not have. Some of these are:

The warrants bear 5 per cent. interest and are redeemable in Cash.
You know just exactly what it will cost you to produce and harvest your crop. You take no chances on this expense item.
You also know, that this cost will be far less on this big co-operative production than were you to plant individually.
Your investment in a warrant is convertible into a land investment any time you see fit.

Stop and Consider These Points:

These Land Warrants are guaranteed and redeemable. They participate in property and profits alike. They are strictly co-operative. They are proof against any kind of stock-jugglery. The holder is assured maximum return at minimum cost. The issuing Company's only interest is to make the profit as great as possible. The warrants are an ideal interest-gaining savings account, that can be turned into either cash withdrawals or land investment. Land Warrant holders will benefit by

The Most Expert Administration to Start With

Mr. W. E. Pedley, the creator of the famous Victoria Avenue groves, and well known as the most successful and largest planter of Citrus Fruits in California, will have entire charge of the planting and developing end of the work on the lands in question.

The water development is also assured, for EL SOBRANTE LAND CO. owns the Cajalco Water Co., which has abundant supply and construction for the generous irrigation of their entire tract.

We have erected on the ground a backboard 12x12 showing location by block and lot of the lots to be offered at public auction Feb. 22. Two representatives from the Title Insurance and Trust Co. will be at the auction to receive deposits. Owing to the great number of reservations already made, it has become necessary to put on the market an additional number of lots, that the parties attending the Auction may have an equal chance at some of our very best lots. "G" street will be extended at once, and the street improvements in the residence section will be carried out on "G" street first. It will be sidewalked and curbed its entire length, and oiled, and will be the first of the cross streets to be completed. Same will be planted to ornamental trees this season.

Will Be Held Rain or Shine

The public auction will be held Wednesday, Feb. 22, rain or shine. We have erected on the ground a large circus tent, in which the auction will be held in case of stormy weather. The R. H. Strouse Co. will officiate as auctioneers, assisted by I. W. England and J. S. Hull.

There is a strong feeling [illegible] all of those who have [illegible] thought to the subject, and [illegible] who have only considered [illegible] that it is of no use to work [illegible] on the Aldrich basis, be[illegible] feeling against it through[illegible]

[illegible] COMMISSION VIEWS.

[illegible] the White House [illegible], which was held [illegible] considering the Ald[illegible] January 7, last, members [illegible] Commission said that [illegible] delicate situation in [illegible] this being due to the [illegible] had not consult[illegible] of the commission [illegible] the plan. Later [illegible] out to the effect [illegible] had originally [illegible] to draft something [illegible] they could work [illegible], it is con[illegible] expect that the [illegible] and given out as the individual work of Mr. Aldrich before they had had an opportunity to consider it. The "delicate situation" has continued, therefore, although certain members of the commission state in perfectly suave and courteous tones that they had no objection whatever to the chairman's drafting a proposition in the way he has and that they think it was wise to do so. Of course, they add, they reserve the privilege of forming their own ideas on the subject in the future just as they see fit. It would appear that these ideas are for the most part very different indeed from those of the Aldrich plan. Should the commission ever be called in session for work, it would now seem that the Aldrich plan cannot get more than a perfunctory assent, if it gets any.

PUBLIC OPINION UNFAVORABLE.

While there have been various expressions of favorable public opinion with reference to the Aldrich plan, these have been quite limited geographically and also quite narrowly confined to financial and highly specialized business interests. The feeling of Congressmen is that the plan has not gained support from public opinion the country over. This failure to enlist support is by them ascribed to the fact that the control of the "Reserve Association of America" would be so complex and at the same time would be so highly centralized in the hands of a very small group of bankers as to put it out of the question. "There is an academic quality about this plan," said one man recently, "which convinces me that it was never prepared by Senator Aldrich himself, but was the work of some collaborator who blocked it out from books." This academic quality, it is claimed, precents the plan from appealing to the practical man, while it also prevents the scheme from receiving strong support from the large interests which might be able to control the proposed association. At all events there is a pretty general consensus of opinion that it would be impossible to explain such a measure to the public at large and that nobody who voted for it would be able to justify his vote afterward.

WORK OF INQUIRY.

Members of the Monetary Commission now say that enough has been done at any rate to warrant the holding of elaborate hearings throughout the country with the Aldrich plan as a basis. Such hearings will be held and bankers and others will be interrogated as to what they think of the scheme in order if possible to establish a foundation of support, correct the most objectionable feature and find out whether the country will really stand for it at all before an effort is made to go further in pressing it upon Congress. As soon as the session is over, it is now stated (unless an extra session should be called,) the commission will begin its hearings with members of the American Bankers' Association on the witness stand.

Searching for His Home.

A peaceable resident of West Sixty-fifth street was rudely awakened from sleep last week, at about 2:30 a.m., by a loud ring at his door-bell.

Throwing open the window, he stuck his head out and in no very pleasant manner demanded to know what was wanted.

"'Scuse me sir," answered a muddled voice. "Does Jones—hic—hic—live here?"

"Jones?" said the party addressed angrily. "Of course not. What the devil do you mean by ringing people's bells at this time of morning? Who are you, anyway?"

"Who'm I?" asked the disturber, apparently surprised at not being recognized. "Why, I'm Jones."—[Lippincott's Magazine.

FRUIT AND NUTS.

BY WALTER J. BALLARD.

In 1910, calendar year, according to the records of the Bureau of Statistics, O. P. Austin, chief, our commerce in fruits and nuts amounted to $62,424,754, and classified as:

Exports	$23,023,586
Imports	39,401,168
Total	$62,424,754

or over $5,000,000 a month the year round.

The exports consisted of:

	Quantity.	Value.
Dried apples, pounds	22,642,549	$1,347,858
Green or ripe apples, bbls.	1,670,295	5,456,450
Dried apricots, lbs.	15,366,055	1,965,676
Oranges (a California specialty,) boxes	862,229	2,445,520
Peaches, dried, lbs.	4,946,406	316,361
Pears, green or ripe	....	579,218
Prunes (a California specialty,) lbs.	64,470,270	3,776,251
Raisins (another California specialty,) lbs.	15,547,074	838,948
All other, green, ripe, or dried	....	2,237,332
Canned fruits (another California specialty)	....	2,403,091
All other, prepared or preserved	....	231,176
Total fruits		$22,460,210
Peanuts, lbs.	4,483,437	241,289
All other nuts		321,981

Total fruits and nuts exported 1910	$23,023,586
1909	18,707,670
1908	16,526,467
Increase in 1910 over 1909	4,315,916
Increase in 1910 over 1908	6,497,119

Our 1910 buyers were:

Country.	Value.
United Kingdom	$7,484,282
Canada	6,183,012
Germany	3,278,458
Netherlands	1,322,930
Other Europe	2,823,582
Other countries	1,931,322
Total fruits and nuts exported, 1910	$23,023,586

The principal export increases over 1909 were:

Fruit.	Increase.
Apples, green or ripe	$2,600,000
Apricots, dried	600,000
Oranges	200,000
Pears	270,000
Raisins	422,000
"All other"	510,000
And by countries:
United Kingdom	$2,600,000
Canada	1,200,000
"Other Europe"	1,200,000

IMPORTS.

The imports in 1910 were:

Fruits.	Quantity.	Value.
Bananas, bunches	40,192,958	$12,432,334
Currants, lbs.	33,730,243	1,354,236
Dates, lbs.	28,044,622	877,934
Figs, lbs.	22,436,858	1,619,001
Grapes, cubic feet	1,484,704	1,717,339
Lemons, lbs.	150,410,536	3,072,735
(From Italy, $3,037,427.)
Olives, gallons	5,364,029	2,115,370
Oranges, lbs.	9,742,839	153,604
Pineapples	....	1,306,452
Raisins and other dried grapes, lbs.	3,022,918	226,839
Preserved fruits	....	1,498,878
All other fruits	....	424,352
Total fruits imported, 1910		$25,808,125
Nuts—
Almonds, lbs.	14,935,223	2,730,710
Cocoanuts in the shell	....	1,511,107
Cocoanut meat, or copra, lbs.	26,333,690	1,062,983
Cream and Brazil, bu.	401,307	1,230,178
Filberts, lbs.	11,390,576	821,368
Peanuts, lbs.	30,654,770	1,396,538

Increase in 1910 over 1909	4,797,484
Increase in 1910 over 1908	9,093,999

It would seem as if eventually, and before many years, this enormous yearly import of fruits and nuts, should be very materially reduced by growth in the United States, or in the Philippines, Porto Rico, or Hawaii.

Our banana money in 1910 went to:

Central America	$6,765,369
British West Indie	4,332,288
Cuba	716,719
South America	667,047
Other countries	251,541
Total paid out for bananas in 1910	$12,432,334

or over a million dollars a month for bananas alone.

WEAK MILITARY FORCES.

way of economy and better administration.

NO RESERVE.

"One of the greatest defects in our present military system is the loss to the United States of the services of the men it has trained. The regular army graduates by expiring enlistments about 30,000 men annually who have had three years of excellent schooling. In the organized militia a similar condition exists.

"All control of these trained men is lost as soon as their term of service is ended; and no means exist to utilize them in time of war. No bill ever introduced into Congress to create them into a reserve has passed.

"A comprehensive law, intelligently carried out, could give the country in ten years an efficient reserve of about 300,000 men who have been trained in the regulars or National Guard. With this force added to such an army and organized militia as are needed, the United States might rest secure.

"Perhaps the worst feature of all is the absence of a law which would work automatically at the outbreak of war, and permit the government to call out, organize and equip what troops are deemed necessary, without recourse to further hasty legislation enacted at the last moment. Until some such law is passed, it will be impossible for the War Department to make the necessary preparations beforehand, or the general staff to formulate detailed plans for carrying them into effect.

"The act of January 21, 1903, commonly known as 'The Dick Bill,' when originally introduced contained a number of admirable provisions; but, as in the past, it ended in a compromise measure containing some glaring defects which substantially perpetuate some of the very faults it sought to remedy. The principal defects of the Dick bill are as follows:

"1. The militia must first be called into the service of the United States before volunteers can be organized. So hazy is the definition given of militia that incompetent officers of high rank and troops who are not wanted can be forced upon the Federal government.

"2. In the call to arms priority is given to the States, and Governors can prevent the raising of volunteers within their jurisdiction by summoning all the militia into active service of their States.

"3. The act of May 8, 1792, prescribed compulsory service in time of peace on the part of every able-bodied citizen between the ages of 18 and 45 years. This was repealed by the Dick bill.

"4. The United States must call the militia into its service through the Governors of the States. A Governor can refuse to obey—as the Governors of Massachusetts, Connecticut and Vermont did in 1812, 1813 and 1814—and no means exist to coerce him. The militia may refuse to answer a call not transmitted through their Governor. In that event it is subject to trial by court martial, but no court has been granted jurisdiction over such cases and no punishment prescribed.

"5. The States retain the right to impose such terms and conditions of enlistment as they see fit. Militia, when offered for the service of the United States, must be accepted, but it cannot be retained beyond the term of enlistment. The Federal government may consequently have forced upon it large numbers of short-term troops, instead of being able to depend upon men enlisted 'for the war.'

"6. The Dick law requires the organization, armament, and discipline of the militia to be the same as that of the regular army. On the other hand, the acceptance of the militia is in nowise dependent upon their complying with this obligation, and no penalty is imposed for failure to come up to the required standard.

"7. The law directs thrial, where any State has adopted the medical standard of the army, its military shall be mustered into the United States' service without further medical examination. The mere fact that a physical standard has been adopted does not insure its enforcement, nor is there anything in the law to compel such enforcement.

"These faults should be remedied without delay if an efficient military force is to be secured. It is therefore to be hoped that the bill introduced by Senator Warren on December 13, 1909, may become a law and thus cure these defects once for all.

EXPENDITURES DURING THE PAST TEN YEARS.

"In a speech in the House of Representatives on January 17, Mr. Tawney of Minnesota protested that Congress had certainly 'appropriated a sufficient amount of money to enable our war officials to place the country in a condition of reasonable preparedness for war. In ten years,' he declared, 'these expenditures on account of preparation for war aggregate $2,192,036,580.'

"Mr. Tawney then went on to give a classified statement of these appropriations, from which it appears that more than one half—or $1,105,586,807.09—was spent on the navy. In what he terms 'war expenditures' Mr. Tawney included the appropriations made for the State, War, and Navy Department Building, the Soldiers' Home at Washington, and the Government Hospital for Insane! 'War expenditures' may include bacon and potatoes, but usually have not included insane asylums, office buildings, and old soldiers' homes. Mr. Tawney has been the Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations for six years.

"President Taft himself has emphasized the fact that a large body of men aggregated together does not constitute an army, and that a volunteer enlisted today, or a militiaman enrolled tomorrow cannot in a week or a month be made an effective soldier. A good army is a force of infantry, supported by a proper proportion of artillery, cavalry, and other auxilary troops, so organized, disciplined, and equipped as to insure their efficiency when operating together in war. At the present time this cannot, unfortunately, be said of our regulars and militia.

"What the army, volunteers and militia have achieved in spite of the many short-sighted systems of the past deserves, the very highest credit. If the enormous expenditures of which Mr. Tawney complains have produced no better results, then the existing system must be defective. Every system is created by law, and, if the present conditions are any criterion, our military laws can be greatly improved by Congress.

"Adams declared that adequate 'national defense is one of the cardinal duties of statesmen,' and years after the Revolution, Gen. Richard Henry Lee, the commander of the famous Partisan Legion, wrote:

"'A government is the murderer of its citizens which sends them to the field uninformed and untaught, where they are to meet men of the same age and strength mechanized by education and discipline for battle.'"

Joseph Harrison, who is 90 years old, recently made proof before the County Clerk of Baker, Or., on his homestead at Durkee. Despite his age, Mr. Harrison says he is still young enough to do farm work.

GOOD FROM DESTRUCTION.

Improved Land Tenure That Has Resulted at St. Pierre Since the Awful Eruption.

[Dr. W. B. Hill, St. Louis, Mo.]

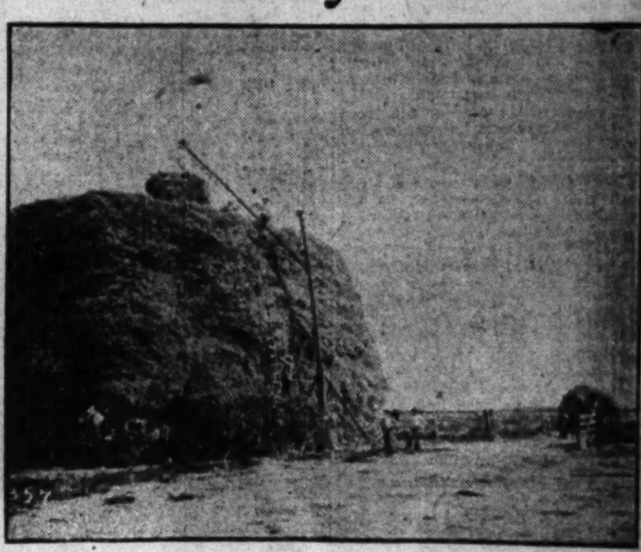
Some years ago we were startled by the news of the eruption of the valcano Mount Pelee, in the Island of Martinique, and the destruction of St. Pierre, its principal city. This was a great calamity, and on visiting the islands some years later I expected to find a scene of desolation and waste. But to my amazement I found that the island was more prosperous than it had been for generations. Wages had greatly increased, industry and commerce were active, and the whole community was on the crest of a wave of proseprity. I inquired the reason of this strange phenomenon from some resident friends and was told the following:

Nearly all the rich landowners of the island lived in St. Pierre, and most of them, including their relatives, had been annihilated by the eruption. Furthermore, the records of land titles and of mortgages and debts had also been completely destroyed. To be sure many of the common people had also been killed, but the balance of them went out upon the land to work free from the obligations which weighed down their predecessors. The destructive forces of nature which had wrought such havoc and confusion on the island had also destroyed the parasites who had been absorbing the greater part of the fruits of their labor. The volacinc forces which had exploded the mountain had also lifted the burden of special privilege from their backs and they stood forth free men once more to satisfy their wants by their own labor, as nature intended.

Of course, if the same system of land tenure was retained it would in time produce the same results and create other landlords and other tenants and the same accompanying extremes of riches and poverty.

But the point of this illustration is that the only real wealth that had been destroyed were the buildings and improvements and the personal property therein contained.

A Money Maker



Making Hay While the Sun Shines.

IT is a well known fact that big money can be made on $500 per acre land growing Alfalfa. We have that good old sediment soil at Caruthers, Fresno County, with abundance of permanent canal water, only $75 per acre including the water, on easy terms, where Alfalfa grows to perfection. It will pay for itself in three years. Excursions twice a week. For full information see

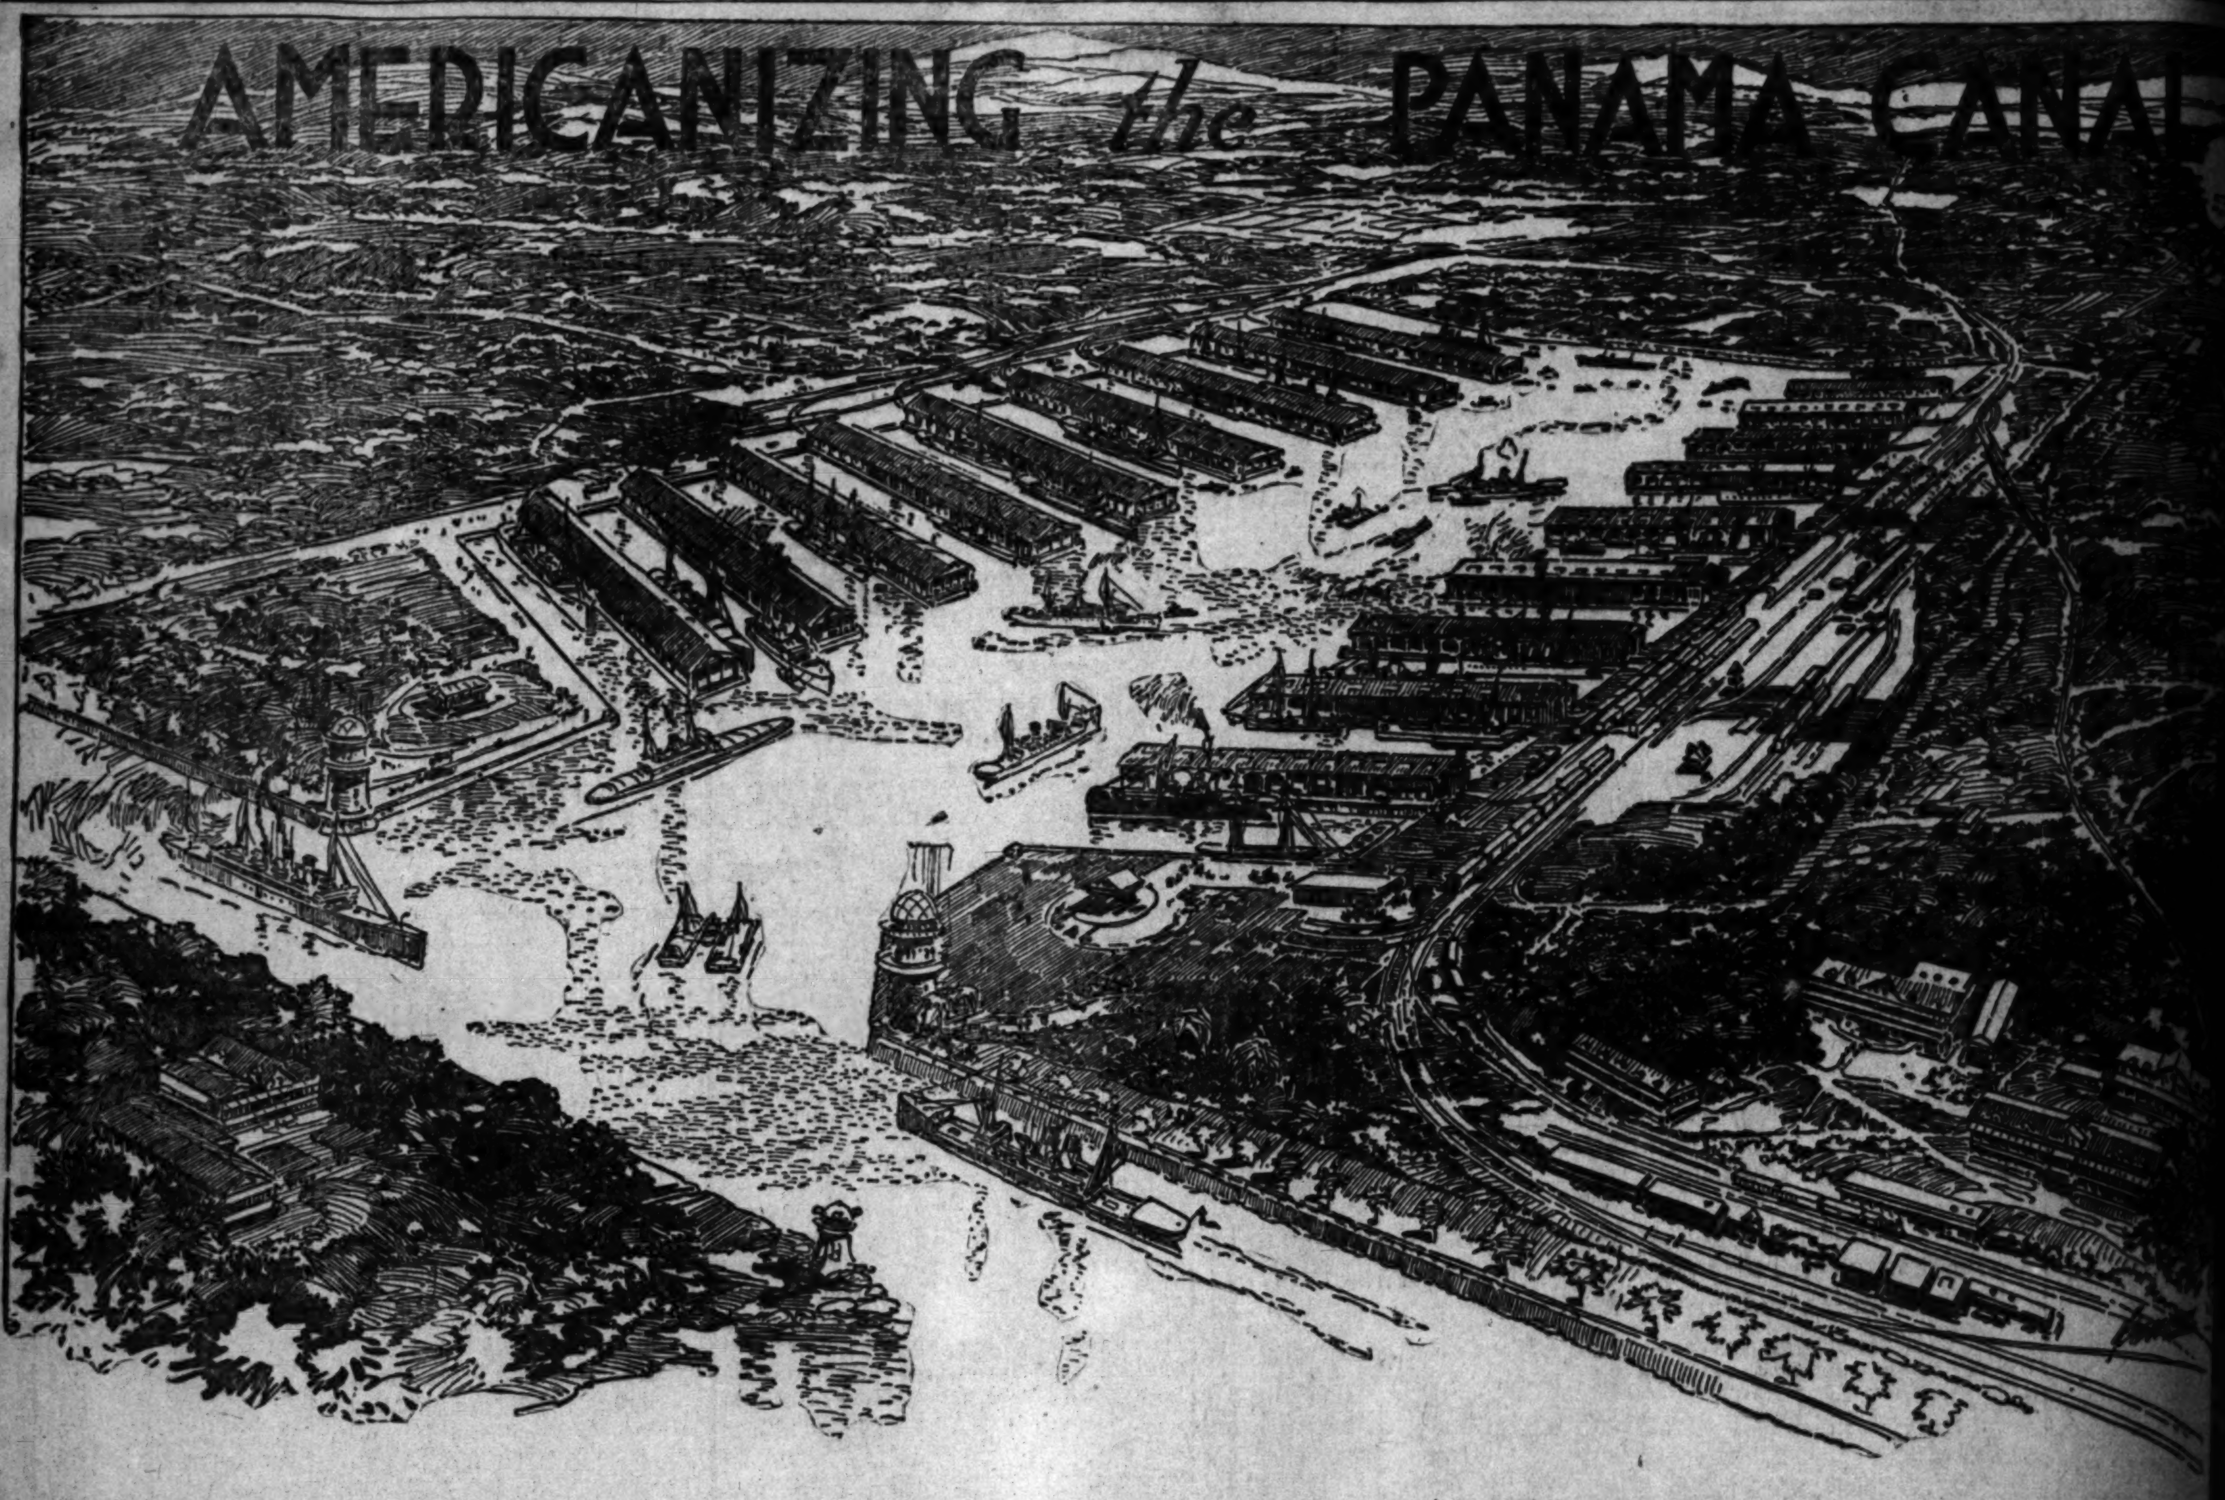
AMERICANIZING the PANAMA CANAL



BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF THE PROPOSED DOCKS AND TURNING BASIN AT BALBOA, TH
TERMINAL OF THE CANAL.—DRAWN BY LOUIS BIEDERMAN FROM ENGINEERS' SK

First Definite Move To Make The Big Ditch A Business Proposition and To Secure Its Commercial Benefits To The United States Disclosed In Plans For Greatest Docks And Harbors In The World.

BY FRANK L. NELSON

Washington, Feb. 18.—Is Uncle Sam spending $375,000,000 upon a canal which not only will benefit Europe alone but will rivet tighter the hold of Europe upon markets that should be ours?

Is our share to be empty glory of the triumph at Panama while the actual tribute flows into the coffers of foreign merchants and ship owners?

What good will it do us when we have neither ships nor the facilities for fostering foreign trade, when the probabilities are that an American, standing at the canal, and watching the procession of ships pass through would not in days see the stars and stripes at the masthead of a single vessel?

These questions, which we have been asking ourselves since the "dirt began to fly," in 1904, are now being answered officially and effectively. The administration has a plan to make of the canal a definite, tangible concrete business proposition for the United States; to make it a factor in the development of American commerce and shipping. The Panama canal is to be Americanized.

The first public intimation of this sweeping program came at the Trade Conference of the Pan-American Union in Washington last week when Mr. Bernard N. Baker, of Baltimore, who has been intimately connected with this phase of the canal work from its inception, outlined to the conference the government plans for the most complete system of docks and harbors in the world and told from a practical steamship man's standpoint, their importance as the first link in the new canal work.

Without harbor facilities at the canal it would serve foreign steamship lines perfectly well, but with such facilities it will bring the benefits of the work directly to the United States in reduced freight rates, a lowered cost of living, in expanded export trade, in breaking the monopoly of the transcontinental railroads, and in the up-building of American shipping.

Brings Coasts Closer.

To understand these possibilities the following points should be emphasized. With the exception of the slight deviation to the east necessary to clear the Windward passage between Cuba and Hayti, it is almost a straight north and south line from New York, through the canal, and then down the west coast of South America to Valparaiso. Freight may be shipped from New York by a 16 knot boat, through the canal, transhipped at Valparaiso to the Trans-Andean railroad and delivered at Buenos Aires six days ahead of freight shipped by present water routes down the east coast. Transhipped again at Buenos Aires and carried on to Rio de Janeiro the gain over the eastern route would still be two days.

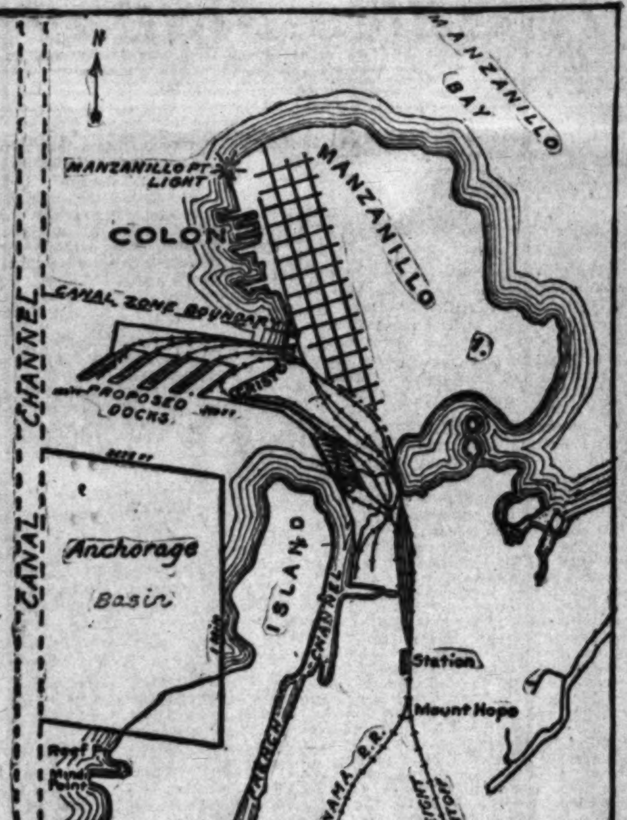
The canal will shorten the distance for freights between San Francisco and New York by fully a week. Citrus fruits, which form the greatest haul of the transcontinental lines, may be carried through the canal by a 16 knot boat in fourteen days. The average time for freights across the continent is twenty-one days. Thus California oranges could be laid down in New York, via the canal, in seven days less time, without the chaffing incident to rail travel and at one-third the cost of transportation. This explains in a measure the persistent efforts of the transcontinental roads to confine the use of the canal to foreign lines which are not permitted under the law to carry cargoes from one United States port to another.

Even without harbors at the canal these and many other advantages would still exist but to realize them would necessitate through American steamship lines uncontrolled by the railroads, which otherwise would so adjust the rates to confine the traffic within its present lines. In fact one Pacific steamship line, controlled by the railroads, found it profitable to pay the Panama Steamship Company prior to its purchase by the government, one million dollars a year for the privilege of naming the through rate via the Isthmus. Its boats then sailed with empty holds and the freight went by rail. Moreover, to gain any advantage to America from the trade of the western coast of South America a through line from New York to Valparaiso would be needed. There is at present in operation a fast line of Peruvian boats, capable of a sustained speed of 20 knots, from Callao to Panama which undoubtedly will be extended to Valparaiso. Without adequate transhipping facilities at the canal it would be impossible to take advantage of this line but freights for the western coast must be carried direct. And the markets of Central America and the northern and upper western coasts of South America, even with through lines in operation, would be as tightly closed to American trade as they are to-day.

Great Advantage to America.

Therefore the overwhelming advantage of the canal to the United States lies in the establishment of facilities there to tranship small units of freight between the eastern and western lines, to the Peruvian line down the west coast and to a local coastwise carrying trade. These were the possibilities that were foreseen by Mr. Baker, who was called into consultation by President Roosevelt early in 1908, as a practical steamship man and who has since been continued in this advisory capacity by President Taft. The first step has been taken in providing for proper docks at the canal. No definite move has yet been taken toward the establishment of the necessary steamship lines to take advantage of them, but it is inconceivable that this part of the program can long be delayed with the opening of the canal but three years away.

The transhipment of freight between the through lines and its local distribution along the coast can best be accomplished, in Mr. Baker's opinion, by a large fleet of oil burning twin screw, steel barges of about ?,000 tons burden. These barges would act as co-carriers, transhipping freight from the American steamers, and also from the European vessels, as they arrive. The interchange of this business would be that received from and going to the Central and South



PLAN OF ATLANTIC TERMINAL.

American countries served by the barge system and would be entirely apart from and independent of the interchange of through cargo between the American lines and between vessels arriving from European and Oriental countries. These barges would open up to American markets a trade that is now almost wholly monopolized by Europe.

The Panama end of the canal has been selected as this transfer point and therefore at Balboa the greatest improvement is to be made. This sleepy little Central American city is destined to become the greatest point for the transhipment of freight and one of the greatest maritime ports of the world.

But the traveller from New York will get his first view of the work now under way at Colon on the Atlantic side. As the 10,000 ton, 16 knot ship of some future American line nears the northern entrance of the canal he will first see upon the right, Toro Point Light and upon the left Manzanillo Point Light. These lights mark the entrance to Limon Bay into which the canal opens and through which it is dredged to deep water. Running out from Toro Point Light will be the great outer breakwater, a concrete pier extending two miles into the ocean and affording protection for the entrance of the canal from the gales of the [illegible]. Behind this breakwater in Limon Bay will be the United States naval anchorage, a safe harbor of sufficient size to shelter the fleets of the entire world.

Docks on Atlantic Side.

On the left, just inside Manzanillo Light and protected from the sea by Manzanillo Island, on which the city of Colon is located, the Panama railroad will come down to the water's edge and run out on a system of slips and docks. According to the present plans these are to be but four in number, merely allowing for the berthing of steamers, preparatory to entering the canal and for the handling of such supplies and material as are necessary at that end. They will, however, be of the standard size which has been fixed for the canal which is a thousand foot dock, 150 feet wide with 300 feet in the clear between piers. The Colon docks will be of concrete and will be equipped with modern cargo handling machinery. All docks at the canal are to be tidal docks and built on the slant system. A vessel coming from either direction can thus run her nose into the slip under her own power, dispensing in a large measure with the use of tugs.

Just beyond these docks and lying between the canal and the old French channel is to be dredged an anchorage basin one mile in length by three quarters of a mile in width. It will not be practicable to allow ships to pass through the canal under their own power. A very slight mistake in engine room signals probably would cause incalculable damage. Every ship, therefore, must come to a stop before entering the canal and again on leaving. This anchorage therefore will provide ample room on the Colon side for ships lying up and for the necessary tugs.

Great Harbor at Balboa.

The fifty mile journey through the canal from deep water on the Atlantic side to deep water on the Pacific side (forty miles from coast to coast) will require ten hours and the vessel will be floated to an elevation of 85 feet above mean tide by a flight of three locks located at Gatun on the Atlantic side and then lowered by one lock at Pedro Miguel and a flight of two locks at Miraflores on the Pacific side. Three miles beyond the last lock and just before reaching the old town of Balboa on the bay of Panama will be located the great transhipping harbor of the canal.

At present it is a marshy slough many miles in extent, but when the 600 foot vessel of the future American line, sailing from New York, has completed the trip through the canal she will find there the largest and most completely appointed system of docks in the world. The new Tilbury Docks of London have a water area of 70 acres. The docks at Panama will have an area in the turning basin alone of 271 acres. The extreme length of the land reserved for docks at this point is two miles, although only about two-thirds of this distance will be immediately improved. The width from pier end to pier end will be 3,000 feet and the length of the docks on either side 1,000 feet, making the total width nearly a mile. Some idea of this width may be obtained when it is remembered that the Hudson River at Hoboken is 2,800 feet wide. These piers will be 200 feet longer than the new Chelsea docks in New York and will thus be able to accommodate not only the present day giants, the Mauretania and the Lusitania, but also the great 860 feet Olympic and Titanic of the White Star Line, which are now building and which will be too long for the New York docks.

Of course, it is doubtful if vessels of this length will pass through the canal in a generation or two, but the advantage of this extreme length of pier lies in the possibility of two vessels of 400 feet length, or three of 300 feet, docking and discharging or loading at the same time. Moreover, the width of the slips, 300 feet, will permit of a vessel lying in the slip with steam barges on either side for the transhipment of freight.

The piers and the entire harbor improvement will be of solid concrete sunk to bed rock. The dredging of the basin and slips will be used to fill in the slough on all three sides of the harbor, thus making ground for the extensive transfer yards of the Panama Railroad now planned and approved in conjunction with the harbor. These yards will extend the full length of the docks on either side and a spur of the track will run out on each pier.

Rapid progress already has been made with this work despite the fact that the plans are only now made public.

The plans were drawn on the Isthmus in November last and already the borings for the concrete work have been completed and considerable of the dredging done. The intention of the Commission is to complete about one-half the improvement coincident with the opening of the canal and then to extend the work as rapidly as the needs of the traffic require.

The docks will be equipped with the most modern electric cargo handling machinery. Unlimited water power for the development of electricity to operate the machinery may be obtained from Miraflores dam within three miles of the improvement. Huge electrical overhead cranes, their radii accurately calculated to command the top hatches of vessels, will run along the piers on railroad tracks. A system of escalators, operated by electricity is to be installed for the handling of 'tween deck cargoes.

Glimpses Into the Future.

How this cargo handling machinery will operate can best be illustrated by imagining the 600 foot freighter from New York coming into the Panama docks at the end of her journey through the canal. She is laden with structural steel for the Pacific slope, with agricultural machinery, flour and miscellaneous American manufactures for the west coast of South America and for the Argentine, with cotton goods for China and with an assortment of small cargo units for the barge service to nearby Central and South American ports.

On the dock lies the return cargo of coffee, nuts, hides, cacao, tobacco, ivory, hard woods, silks from the Orient and dried fruits and dates from California. In the cold storage warehouses is dressed beef brought up by the Peruvian line. Six barges from the Central American countries are put alongside the steamer inside the slip. Escalators are immediately thrown from their decks, through the ten side ports, into the 'tween decks of the American steamer, and the process of interchanging their cargoes immediately begins.

Gangs of men are ready to load the cargo onto the escalators. A tallyman in charge of each gang knows exactly where each ton of the cargo goes. It has been loaded with this end in view and the wireless of the vessel has sent its manifest on ahead to be picked up by the wireless of each one of the barges. The signal is given and the cargo begins to move out upon the escalators to the barges, while by the same method the new cargo is coming in.

Meanwhile the ten top hatches of the vessel have been thrown open, the giant cranes swing out and down into the ships' vitals and the same transfer of through cargo from the docks on either side is going on while the barges and the escalators are busy with the local freight between decks. Every hour [illegible] of freight is moved. UNION FICKLENESS.

[Editorial.]

EMPLOYERS of labor who deal with trade unionists complain of their fickleness and unreliability. The employers say that they never know what move the laborites are going to make next. Today the employer grants their demands and they go away apparently satisfied, only to come back tomorrow and repudiate their agreement of the previous day and ask for concessions which the day before they would not even consider. The laborite never knows what he wants; he is swayed by every passing wind that blows; and because of this trait the employer who recognizes the labor unions never knows what to expect, and finds himself handicapped in his business, which he conducts under a disadvantage not shared by the employer who stands for industrial freedom and runs his own business.

This fickleness of the laborites is largely the result of their training in the trade-union movement. The rank and file of the trade unionists blindly follow their leaders, who are usually men of unstable character and who never know their own minds. They think they want this, that or the other thing; but when they get it they decide it is not what they want and they go seeking for something else which they imagine is necessary to their happiness. Naturally their followers acquire the habits of their leaders and thus it is that the laborites have come to be known as thoroughly unreliable. A striking example of the fickleness of the laborites was shown last week when the San Francisco Labor Council "changed its mind" about the merits of the convict labor bill, which it had indorsed two weeks previous, and decided to send a delegation to Sacramento to urge the Governor to veto the bill on the ground that it would bring convict labor into competition with free labor. The council had considered the bill some weeks ago, instructed its law and legislative committee to investigate its merits, accepted the report of the committee and advised its legislative agent at Sacramento to urge the passage of the bill. Then, when some labor leader denounced the bill, the Labor Council worked itself into a frenzy and decided that it was a blow aimed at the labor unions. The legislative agent refused to ask the Governor to veto the bill, as he had already told the Governor that the Labor Council was supporting the same, and so the Labor Council rushed a committee to Sacramento to tell the Governor that the Labor Council had "changed its mind."

It is not so very long ago that the city of San Francisco submitted to a vote of the people the proposition to purchase the Spring Valley Water Company's plant. The project met with the favor of all classes of people. For once all the newspapers in the city worked together in harmony and advocated the purchase of the water company's plant. Then came Mayor P. H. McCarthy, that greatest of all laborites, and denounced the project. He addressed mass meetings and issued circulars calling upon the laborites to defeat the purchase of Spring Valley. The laborites followed the advice of their leader and when the proposition was submitted to a vote of the people it was defeated by the laborite vote. Soon after the special election P. H. McCarthy "changed his mind" on the subject and decided that the city should purchase the Spring Valley plant, and now all the laborites are clamoring for the purchase.

These two incidents serve to show that it is not only in administering the affairs of the labor unions that the laborites are fickle, but that they are just as unreliable when it comes to dealing with the public. It is the laborites who are clamoring the loudest for the recall to include all public officials, and if it should be granted it is safe to presume, with the fickleness of the laborites so apparent, that the State of California would be treated to a recall of some public official several times a week, for some laborite would always believe that the wrong man had been elected to office and that it would be for the best interest of the people to put some other fellow on the job.

We are of the opinion that it would be well for the Legislature to consider this trait of the laborites before it takes any step that will give them power in the management of public affairs.

Child labor is allowed at 12 years of age in Great Britain in a factory or workshop, or above ground at a mine, says a bulletin of the United States Bureau of Labor. Some of the worst evils of child labor exist in North Ireland, especially in the linen mills of Belfast and vicinity. One child in six cannot read or write. Even the half-time children's work law (alternate weeks) is not satisfactory. Every alternate week in the year, rain or sunshine, the children must be awakened at 5, or a little after, so as to be at the factory by 6, or, in some instances, by half-past 6. It means that for six months of the year they must leave home and walk often a mile or more through the raw mist, the cold, and the darkness, so typical of a north of England town. It means that they will stay in the factory until 12 or half-past 12, with half an hour's interval for breakfast, a breakfast composed of bread and butter and tea without milk, taken at the loom side. It means that at 12 or half-past they run home to a mid-day meal, the more tidy and respectable to change their oil-sodden, ill-smelling factory clothes for neater and cleaner garments, to snatch a hurried meal and be in school by 2 o'clock (school after six hours' work.) After a long morning, begun when most of us are asleep, says the writer on the ground, at lugging bobbins, doffing bobbins, laying on bobbins in the spinning rooms, or tenting in the weaving sheds, can you wonder that the children (who ought to be asleep or at play) find it hard to fix their minds on the mysteries of arithmetic and grammar? The next week the child works in the afternoon and goes to school in the morning. This dallying with an evil is all wrong—child labor should be utterly abolished. Yet it is the product of this practically criminally-procured labor which will flood this country if American wage-earners do not persistently support the protective tariff of the Republican party. Why do not the labor unions of Great Britain spend their energy in stopping this destroyer—child labor—instead of letting so much of it go to waste on their many strikes? Their American brethren might well do likewise. It stunts the growth of children both in height and weight. British statistics before us as we write, prove that. In 1907, according to the annual report of the Chief Inspector of Factories and Workshops for England, 45,855 children were examined for certificates exempting from full school attendance, in order to work in factories—chiefly in Lancashire and Yorkshire. The whole system is wrong—dead wrong.

Women workers at Cradley Heath, Eng., average an earning of $1.46 (six shillings) a week when they work fourteen hours a day. Is it any wonder so many English woman factory workers "go wrong?" They must eat.

The best firms in Glasgow, Scotland, pay the following "starvation" prices to women for piece work, per dozen:

	Cents.
Shawl fringing	47
Cheap shirt finishing	7
Girls' underclothing	18
Finishing pajamas	37
Ladies' underclothing	85

Not per piece, but per dozen, mind you! Does any American voter, wage-earner or otherwise, want to let this "starvation-labor" stuff compete with the wages of American women? Basketmakers (women) get 18 cents a day, and sack makers, also women, 10 cents, and so on—many trades and some worse.

A well-known economic writer says: "The living wage (in England) in boot and shoe making, instead of being earned by the head of the family (as in America) is split up into four, five or six parts, and absorbs the energies (and life-blood) of wife and children." Low prices under a low tariff would mean just such a condition here.

Six cities in Lancashire, Eng., (cotton goods,) have a female population over 10 years of age of 815,862, of whom 220,734 work in the mills, including 81,982 married women and widows. How about home-life in these cities, compared with an equil city female population in this country. California, where very few women work in factories, excepted? In Birmingham, Eng., the children very often have nothing but "bread and tap" (dry bread and hydrant water) for their luncheon. Do we want that kind of fare for American children? The power to prevent it is in your hands, American wage-earning voter! Is it any wonder, with this fact before him in his own city, that the English statesman, Joseph Chamberlain, aided by his son, Austen, the child of an American mother, is pleading for a protective tariff (tariff reform it is called over there) in the United Kingdom?

In Italy nearly 50,000 girls under 15 years of age are working long hours in factories. Any wonder they are so glad to come to America? Wages there, for them, run from 9 cents to 14 cents a day.

Work and wages are in excellent shape at Schenectady, N. Y. The big electric works has many large orders, including one this past week for 1000 electric car equipments for Chicago, worth $2,000,000.

J. Ellis Barker, an English economic authority, says that if it were impossible to secure women and girl workers at from $1 to $2.50 per week (and board themselves) the great jam industry of England would go to the "bow-wows." That is what free-trade (low tariff with us would be the same thing) means. Do we really want it? Would it really pay?

The eastside bank clerks of New York City have decided to give only one day's notice before striking. The event is expected daily. They want a shorter day, higher wages, and recognition of the union—all at once.

New York journeymen tailors who make clothes to order for men want to work in factories instead of at home. They are holding meetings about it and organizing various unions into one for effective agitation.

Three men are now indicted in New York for manslaughter in the killing of a civil engineer in the recent express drivers' strike.

Prof. Lowell of Boston says that "one item of the repressive policy of the unions yearly costs the government (in its printing department) $788,000." Yet Samuel Gompers does not hesitate to ask favors at Washington

One thousand men have been added to the force of the Illinois Steel Company at Gary, Ind. A strike there would upset that profitable "apple cart."

At Guadalajara, Mex., on February 8, it was announced at the Southern Pacific offices that the places of all the striking American engineers and firemen on that road in Mexico have been filled and that trains are moving as usual over the entire system.

Cincinnati has a baseball stitchers' strike because a ruling was made against defective work.

In New York the housesmiths are organizing for a movement for the closed shop, when the season opens. The Building Trades Council (union) is supporting them. Waiting "till the season opens" means a deliberate intention to inconvenience the innocent public.

In New York strikes of carpenters have been ordered on several buildings against the use of non-union made wood trim. Perhaps after a while it will be "non-union grown timber," or "non-union water." The strikes are on the contracts of independent contractors. "Independence" is sometimes costly in this country, but it's worth having, even at the cost of a strike.

In New York, the employing Typothetae, the Printers' Board of Trade, the Master Printers' Association, and the Printers' League, book and job printers, have formed plans and are acting together through a central committee. It begins to look as if they need to.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17.—Since the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times Building by murderous conspirators on October 1, 1910, the weekly circulation of "Organized Labor," the official organ of the San Francisco and California Building Trades Councils, has decreased from 60,000 to 15,000.

For months previous to the perpetrating of the dastardly outrage the columns of Organized Labor were devoted to bitter attacks on the business men of Los Angeles and the publishers of the Los Angeles Times.

Immediately following the massacre and for weeks after, O. A. Tvietmoe, editor of Organized Labor, devoted columns of space in his journal in trying to convince the public that the laborites were not responsible for the crime and intimating that the wrecking of the Los Angeles Times Building was either the result of a gas explosion or the work of the enemies of the unionists, presumably the owners of The Times or members of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association.

Becoming thoroughly disgusted with such tactics, the better element in the unions refused to read Organized Labor and canceled their subscriptions, some union officials going so far as to refuse to permit the sheet to be brought into headquarters, until the circulation of the union weekly was reduced by 45,000.

This repudiation of Organized Labor by trade unionists is most significant in view of the fact that the sheet is owned by the State Building Trades Council, the majority of its affiliated unions owning considerable stock in the Organized Labor Publishing Company.

It is reported upon good authority that of the 15,000 copies of the paper that are now being turned out weekly, a goodly percentage are sent to the laborites gratis and that it is only a question of time when the company will be forced to suspend publication of the disreputable sheet.

For some time past it has been common knowledge that a retail liquor dealer in this city was loaning money to the laborites to enable them to bring on an industrial war in Los Angeles.

This man was of considerable assistance to the unionists at the time of the last car men's strike in this city, advancing them a considerable sum of money. He has always been considered a staunch friend of the unionists and his patrons are largely from the trade union ranks.

This liquor dealer, however, is now in ill repute with the union labor administration, the Chief of Police having ordered an investigation of the charge that he is the friend of criminals and is aiding and abetting crime and trying to defeat the ends of justice.

His former kindnesses to the laborites, however, may serve him in good stead and prevent the union labor Police Commissioners from revoking his license.

Some ninety members of the Milk Wagon Drivers' Union of Oakland this week seceded from the union because of the crookedness of the officials who ordered a strike against the Milk Dealers' Association to satisfy a personal grudge against the dealers. The men who repudiated the union are dealing directly with their employers and there is nothing left of the union save the business agent and the president, who were the cause of the trouble.

It is reported here that A. C. Beck of this city is in Los Angeles trying to organize the cooks and waiters. People here are wondering why he did not organize the culinary crafts in San Francisco before trying it elsewhere. Perhaps he is telling the people of Los Angeles that the cooks and waiters of San Francisco are thoroughly organized. If so, he is mistaken, for there is not a strictly union restaurant or cafe in the city of San Francisco, although the culinary unions have been organized here for the past ten years.

The officers of the California Metal Trades' Association at their monthly meeting advocated the organizing of an employers' association of the entire Pacific Coast as the first step in the proposed campaign for the inauguration of the non-union shop. Already the employers are talking of building the exposition with non-union labor and it is believed that the labor unions will be forced to take a back seat when active work on the exposition buildings is begun.

INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS.

The thorough search made during the past few years for new materials for paper making, has resulted in the discovery of a number of available fiber plants that can be used in place of the customary spruce and poplar woods. One of the latest of these is a desert plant known as bear grass which grows in great profusion in western Texas. From the vicinity of Midland, Tex., and Tucumcari, N. M., large shipments of bear grass are being made by ranchmen to St. Louis, where the plants are used in the manufacture of paper. The price has advanced from $6 to $12 a ton in the last few weeks and it is expected that it will go still higher. In some places the land yields more than a ton an acre. In view of the fact that it quickly reproduces itself, the permanency of the supply is assured.

The leaves of the grass contain a strong fiber which is well adapted for the manufacture of twine and bagging, and it is being utilized to some extent for these purposes.

Freighting facilities on the Great Lakes are to be increased by the addition of two bulk freighters to be larger than any now afloat, the contracts for which have already been awarded. The boats will be 617 feet over all, sixty-four feet beam and thirty-four feet deep, with a carrying capacity of 14,000 gross tons of ore.

Charles M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, has announced the construction of a $5,000,000 coke plant for the Bethlehem steel works.

Oregon harvested last season a crop of approximately 93,000 bales of the finest hops ever grown on the Pacific Coast. Oregon maintains its supremacy as the chief hop-producing State of the Union, as California in 1910 raised about 69,000 bales, Washington about 20,000 bales and New York about 40,000 bales. In 1909 the crop of Oregon was $2,500 bales; in 1908 it was 92,000 bales, in 1907, 136,000 bales; in 1906, 160,000 bales, and in 1905, 117,000 bales.

Over 5000 coke ovens have recently been put in operation in the Klondike and Connellsville coke region of Pennsylvania, giving employment to 5000 men.

New England capitalists propose to erect a million-dollar cotton manufacturing plant at Greenville, S. C., the people of that town having raised $100,000 to secure the enterprise. The mill is to have 5000 spindles and 1500 looms, and will produce a grade of cloth unknown in the South at the present time

Another big cotton mill enterprise is to be located at Lexington, Ky., where a mill is to be at once erected with an initial installation of 20,000 spindles and 400 looms, with opportunity for doubling the capacity. Massachusetts capital is interested in the enterprise.

W. B. Smith Whaley of Boston has arranged with the Shawnee Development Company to build a cotton mill at Shawnee, Okla., with an initial equipment of 10,000 spindles and 300 looms.

The people of Ardmore, Cal., are seeking to organize a company for the erection of a cotton mill in their town.

The production of blister copper in 1909 from ores mined in the United States was 1,092,951,624 pounds, the largest output in the history of the industry, a gain of 150,380,903 pounds over 1908. Of this amount Montana led, with 314,858,291 pounds, followed by Arizona, with 291,110,298 pounds; Michigan, with 227,005,923 pounds, and Utah, with 101,241,114 pounds, the remainder being distributed among eighteen other States and Territories.

The year 1909 was marked in the pulp industry, as in most other lines of industrial enterprise, by a resumption of the good business conditions which existed prior to 1908. The total consumption of pulp wood by the 253 mills reporting in 1909 was 4,001,607 cords, an increase of 654,654 cords, or 19.6 per cent. over the amount used by the 251 mills reporting in 1908, and of 38,947 cords, or 1 per cent., over the quantity reported in 1907, which year previously held the record. The expectations expressed in the bulletin on pulp wood consumption for 1908 have been fully realized, the industry now requiring more than double the amount of pulp wood consumed in 1900. The total cost of the pulp wood has likewise greatly increased, not only because of the greater quantity used, but also because of the higher average cost per cord of the wood delivered at the mill.

RADICAL LABOR LEGISLATION.

DRASTIC MEASURES SOUGHT BY UNIONITES.

For the Promotion of the Right to Boycott and Strike Whenever Desired They Would Make Felony of Natural Rights and Would Seriously Handicap Prosperity.

The closed-shop movement by legislative enactment is being pushed by the unionites wherever a legislator can be found to present a measure to that effect. The proposed acts are prepared under the direction of the unionites and in many instances are very cunningly drawn so that their real iniquitous purpose may not be apparent to the average legislator. The lawmakers for whom the unionites massed their votes have been expected to help expedite these measures calculated to favor the few and exclude the many from the exercise of their God-given right to sell their labor to any contractor they may desire.

One of the most drastic labor laws sought was promptly presented to the Colorado Legislature, and was intended to prevent the importation of strike breakers into Colorado from any other State. If enacted, it would put out of commission in that State all patrol and detective agencies engaged in the business of guarding persons and property. The measure had its origin in the strike and resulting events in the Northern Colorado coal fields. The bill as originally introduced was one of the products of the convention of the Colorado convention of the Federation of Labor last August. Every labor union in the State lined itself solidly behind the measure and an active lobby was instructed to centralize the efforts upon the enactment of the bill in the exact form in which it was introduced.

The radical nature of this proposed law illustrates the limits to which the union movement will go, if possible. No one else's rights than those of the unionites are recognized as any part of the moral trajectory of humane rights. Under its provisions, it is declared a felony for any person, firm or corporation to bring into Colorado from any other State, or to import from place to place in the State, laborers for the purpose of breaking a strike, or to take the places of those who may be locked out of employment, or to go to work in any establishment where there may be a difference between employer and employee over wages, hours, sanitation, or other questions, past or pending, unless the persons imported for these purposes have been fully advised as to the existence of a strike or lockout, and as to any past or pending difference between employer and employee.

The bill also makes it a felony for any person, firm or corporation in Colorado, or out of it, to bring strikebreakers into the State under armed guard and to use this guard for the protection of employees and property. A right of legal redress is given to any person who may have been induced to take employment as a strikebreaker under false pretenses.

It was thought that this bill would have fine sleighing ahead of it in the Democratic Legislature, but it was too radical for even those bidders for unionite support, and several amendments have been tacked upon it so that some of its most drastic provisions have been given an entirely different aspect and the bill may fail altogether of enactment.

Up in Oregon another radical legislative movement has been attempted by the unionites, which is well told in the following story from the Portland Spectator:

"Among the worst of the many pernicious measures introduced at Salem is one that ostensibly regulates trusts but which subtly favors the unions, and one that frankly declares Oregon in favor of the closed shop. They are indefensibly wicked. Senator Joseph is the father of the so-called 'anti-trust' bill, which says that all combinations are illegal except combinations of labor. Representative Clyde fathers the other, which says that no one who does not belong to a labor union shall be allowed to earn a living on any public works or improvements undertaken by the State of Oregon.

"Mr. Clyde would make Oregon a partner in the closed shop conspiracy which in more enlightened States and and by great and eminent judges has been declared illegal and criminal.

"If we consider Clyde's bill for a moment, we shall discover its iniquities. In the first place, it would make legal what has been declared criminal—the closed shop. It says to one class of citizens that while they shall be taxed for public buildings and improvements, they will not be allowed to work on the buildings and improvements. If If the State shall have the right to say that a certain class of citizens shall not be allowed to work on State buildings, would not the State have the right to say that the same class of citizens should not have the right to enter these buildings or do business in them?"

Let us imagine that this bill has become a law, and all the citizens in the State have been taxed to pay for the erection of a new capitol building. There is a notice on the first piece of scantling put up: "Closed Shop. None But Union Members May Enter." That notice remains, and no bit of wood, piece of metal, barrel of cement, nail, lock, bolt or hinges that has been cut, filed, fashioned or planned outside of a closed shop may be used in the construction of the building. The capitol is finished, and the notice remains. No piece of furniture, no sheet of paper, pen, pencil, nor eraser may be used there that has not been made in a closed shop. And the notice remains, and may we not expect that only legislators who are union members shall be allowed to take their seats there? If this State may say that only union members shall be allowed to earn a living in Oregon, why

HOME-TALK NO. 7

"To own a home makes a man a better citizen, gives him standing in the community, and establishes a credit."

This is a talk from the ad-writer aimed directly at you.

I do not care how you earn your salary or how much of a salary you earn. I will make a guess, without knowing you, that every now and then you sit down and try to figure out why you have not been able to save more.

I do, don't you?

And here is the reason. You and I have not started with the single, solitary end in view—to save. When you buy a Los Angeles Investment Company home on the rent-paying plan you make a definite start. And you can't help but save after you make the start.

Your payments coming monthly, include interest, taxes and insurance. You save definitely because you have to, and just as sure as you wind up your accounts at the end of the month, you find that you are ahead. Not a fortune, but ahead.

Darby Park Tract adjoins the famous College Tract, and is the most beautiful little home spot in Los Angeles. It is a model community, having lawns, trees, sewers, gas, electricity, cement walks, telephones, endowed parks, parked and endowed streets, model stores, playgrounds, post office, churches, assembly hall, convenient schools, good neighbors, three-minute car service, and there are no unsightly lots or unimproved streets. Its homes cost from $2960 up.

Home-making is seen at its best here. Take a Grand Avenue West Forty-eighth street car to Gramercy Place, or ask for one of our automobiles.

Hand the agent a ten-dollar bill and he will hang a "Sold" sign on yours.

IS OUR CANAL, SAYS GOETHALS.

And We Should Have Guns to Keep It Ours.

Master Builder Points Out Fortifications Need.

Says People Have Forgotten Lesson of "Oregon."

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—"The trouble is," said Lieut. Col. George W. Goethals, chief engineer of the Panama Canal, speaking to a Sun man of the opposition to the President's policy of canal fortification, "that some people have forgotten the anxiety and apprehension that held the government and the country at large when the Oregon was making her long trip around the Horn. That trip was the prime factor in bringing about the construction of an interoceanic canal at all. The canal was projected primarily as a military precaution and necessity."

The chairman of the Panama Canal Commission and chief engineer of the work is one of the mildest spoken of men, but he has a way of enunciating his words which carries the impression that once said they are said for good and repetition would be superfluous.

He already had said on his arrival in New York on Saturday from Panama that he was on his way to Washington on the orders of the Secretary of War to consult with the Committee on Appropriations. His orders read in effect that he was to be in Washington as soon after February 1 as was compatible with his duties on the canal work. "This was as near the 1st as I could make it," he explained yesterday. By a process of elimination, other matters having been fully provided for, Col. Goethals presumes that his presence at the capital is desired with reference to the fortifying of the canal.

He repeated what he had said on Saturday, that if the fortifications are to be built he wants to build them with the force of men already under his control at Panama. "It is necessary to decide upon this very shortly," he continued, "because it will not be long before we shall begin to reduce the force of concrete workers, unless we are to use them in building fortifications. The locks will be completed by the summer of 1913." Col. Goethals believes that he can do the work more cheaply with the organization already at Panama than it could be done if a separate organization has to be effected for the purpose.

The general plans for the fortifications of the canal have been worked out by the board of fortifications and there is no particular ground for dispute or question as to the position of the fortifications. The matter of whether the canal shall be fortified at all or not, is, in the opinion of Col. Goethals, a question of national policy and therefore out of his province unless his opinion is sought.

"If the policy of the country," he said, "is to neutralize the canal, making it possible in time of war, for the enemy's ships to have the same advantages of the canal as our own, then I have nothing to say—the canal can be protected by treaty and fortifications are unnecessary."

Then he spoke of the trip of the battleship Oregon at the time of the Spanish war.

"The canal was not projected as a necessity for our commerce—we haven't enough shipping to make the canal a necessity. The battleship Oregon was sent around the Horn, and the government and the country were in a state of tense anxiety as to her safety. But the trip around the Horn was the only way—and a long way—of concentrating our navel forces where they were needed. The apprehension which the necessity of the moment aroused awakened the country to its need for a better and quicker route from ocean to ocean, so that the transfer of ships—the concentration of scattered forces—could be performed more readily and with more safety. A commission was appointed to pass on the Nicaraguan and the Isthmian routes. Circumstances directed the choice of the latter. Appropriations were made and the work was begun.

"These circumstances may have been forgotten by some.

"If the canal is to be made neutral by treaty and left unprotected, then it means that in time of war an enemy who with a fleet in one ocean wants to attack out coast on the other ocean, has the opportunity of using the canal for the purpose of getting himself in a position from which to make this attack more quickly and easily. He has the same advantages that our navy would have for concentration where his forces will do him the most good—and do us the most harm. And Americans in charge of the canal would have to help the enemy through the canal—help him to get where he could strike us to better advantage. It would be pretty galling for Americans to do their damnedest to get an enemy's ships through the canal for the purpose of striking us with them. I know I'd hate to do it myself."

Another thing Col. Goethals has had time to observe with reference to matters of war is that treaties are all right until war comes and then are likely to be violated.

The idea that the canal could be protected by ships instead of by fortifications does not appeal much to the canal builder. "The navy, generally speaking," he said on this point, "is the arm of the service used for offensive measures—for carrying the war into the enemy's country of for harrying his commerce. It also is needed as a movable protection against his fleets, looking at it from a defensive point of view. If you take enough ships to accomplish anything in the way of protecting the canal away from the naval force you have weakened that arm of the service. The estimates indicate that the fortifications can be built for $15,000,000, a battleship costs $10,000,000, or so I understand—and the fortifications can be maintained, garrisoned and all for less than what it costs yearly to maintain a battleship of the first class. And these fortifications would protect the canal. One battleship, the approximate equivalent in cost, wouldn't protect them; it would require a fleet. Then, if dependence were placed entirely on ships to guard the canal and those ships were lost you would not only leave the canal unprotected, but also would have weakened the naval arm to no purpose."

It was getting toward time for his Washington train and Col. Goethals buttoned up his coat abruptly. "That's all," he said. "They're forgetting the lesson of the Oregon's trip around the Horn. Good-by."

THE RAILWAY WORLD.

The Harriman lines began some years ago to carry on the work of public education by giving wide publicity to the facts about their accidents. In the year 1903-04 the number of accidents on the Union Pacific was twenty for 1,000,000 locomotive miles, and in the last half of 1910 it was but four for 1,000,000 locomotive miles. In 1903-04 there were 29.5 accidents for 1,000,000 locomotive miles on the Pacific system of the Southern Pacific and in the last half of 1910 there were but 10.5. It is certain that this marked reduction in accidents was not brought about entirely by publicity, for meantime the plants and operating methods of the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific were greatly improved. But it seems quite probable that it was largely brought about by publicity.

The annual report of the insurance department of the Pennsylvania Railroad system shows that the company's losses by fire in 1910 were $280,097, as compared to $402,615 in 1909—a reduction of almost a third. In the past few years the road has redoubled its efforts to prevent fires. Many employees have been trained in fire fighting, and there are organizations of firemen in every State roundhouse and shop. Many yard locomotives have been equipped with pumps for fire fighting. In 1910 379 fires on company property were extinguished with the company's fire apparatus and by the company's own employees, with only loss of about $18,000. The Railroad Insurance Department is to issue a circular to employees calling attention to the number of fires ocurring from preventable causes. There were 1009 fires on thes ystem last year, and the loss from them was only $280,097, an exceedingly small loss, as the value of the property on which they occurred was more than $250,000,000. Thirty-six fires entailing a loss of $17,000 started on adjacent property. Sixteen fires, with a loss of $16,750, were of incendiary origin.

A. A. Hayes, freight auditor of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway Company in Topeka, has an interesting letter from a colored man at Chanute, to whom a refund of 35 cents was made on account of an overcharge on a shipment of household goods.

The custom of the Santa Fe is to refund overcharges without waiting for claims. The colored man did not known he had been overcharged, and nearly had apoplexy when he received a formidable looking draft for 35 cents. He wrote Mr. Hayes as follows, barring a few errors in spelling:

"I always heard a railroad would steal, but it looks like the Santa Fe is treating me white. I want a job with your company right away. I am a steady man, can clerk some or clean cars. I won't be satisfied till I get on your pay roll. A railroad company that will pay an old darkey 35 cents overcharge will sure go to heaven. Amen."

Ten billion passengers are carried in a year on the electric railways of this country. There are 35,000 miles of electric railway track (single,) 75,000 cars, and the capitalization of the companies is $4,000,000,000. Their annual income is $440,000,000. They have 250,000 salaried employees. The companies holding membership in the American Electric Railway Association—which is a professional and technical body of practical, operating railroad officials—own 26,425 miles of above-mentioned track, 66,400 cars, and have a capitalization of $2,693,000,000. They carry 7,000,000,000 passengers yearly, almost five times the population of the earth.

It is estimated that during the next ten years, this enormous traffic will be doubled. The steam roads, which, like the Pennsylvania, New York Central and New York, New Haven & Hartford railroads, have already electrified divisions of their main lines, as well as the steam roads entering Chicago, will, a decade hence, have carried electrification over a mileage which at the present time seems incredible.

Approximately 200 miles of extensions and branch lines are planned by the Oregon Electric Railway in the Willamette Valley and may be constructed this year. When to this is added the forty-eight miles of United Railways on the Tillamook route, which will probably be completed this year, Portland will assume a leading place in the West as a centering point for interurban railways.

The construction mentioned is definitely planned and the lines have been located, the time of beginning of work depending upon the financial situation.

For its extensions the Oregon Electric has already secured franchises in the cities of Albany, Eugene and McMinnville, and given bond guaranteeing the building of the roads.

RADICAL LABOR LEGISLATION.

may not the State say that only union members shall be allowed to hold office?

The Spectator desires to make a suggestion to Mr. Clyde and his fellow-legislators: Many people in Oregon who are neither forgers nor Jeremy-Diddlers are spending their money and time in spreading the story of the State's resources and advantages in the East with a view to inducing a decent, self-respecting citizenry to come here; commercial bodies of the State are spending thousands of dollars and the railroads are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars for the same purpose. In the literature that has set forth Oregon's opportunities for the workman, farmer, or business man, it has not yet been necessary to say that only those who carry union cards shall be allowed to come here. If the Clyde bill becomes a law, we shall have to explain to those who would come that only union members are wanted.

Will the Legislature make it necessary for those who are building up the State to warn one class of citizens to keep away from Oregon?

What is true of the injury such legislation would do the State of Oregon is equally true of any other State. No sane legislators can afford to knock their State's prosperity in the head at the behest of radical labor unionites who get their living by agitation, particularly when the union movement includes only a small proportion of the working people of any community.

Uneasy.

UNION METHODS CAUSE UNREST.

RENEWALS OF STRIKES RECENTLY SETTLED PLANNED.

New Jersey Express Drivers Allege Discrimination and in a Half Day Strike Quickly Engage in Violence—Chicago Garment Workers Form Plans for Demands.

The unionite disposition to use the strike as the most available weapon for securing demands made upon employers, has been well evidenced recently in both Jersey City and Chicago. In the former city last week nearly 300 drivers and wagon helpers of the Wells Fargo Company went on a strike because of alleged discrimination against union drivers. During the half day that the company's business was tied up the strikers found the time and opportunity to beat up two men who wanted to work. Jake Ulmer, 25 years old, was caught by a gang of strikers as he got off a car. His right eye was blackened and his lip was cut by fist blows, and William Moran, superintendent of wagon service, took him to St. Francis Hospital, accompanied by an escort of police. After his wounds were dressed he was sent home.

Later in the day another Wells-Fargo driver, who refused to give his name, was attacked by strikers near the United States Express Company's stable and was punched for insisting that he had a right to work if he wanted to.

It was only last November that the express drivers came to a settlement of their long strike, during which several assaults were made by the strikers and many other non-union workers were beat up and seriously injured. The men went back to work without having gained anything because of their idleness. Having now obtained a few weeks of work they are seeking an excuse for starting another strike, but it is not a popular movement among many of the men. In fact one of the men who refused to strike last week was the father of the walking delegate who called the walk-out. The men who have families to support have had enough idleness, and announce themselves satisfied with present conditions. If the younger unionites start the desired strike, however, as they are now threatening to do, loyalty to unionism will get a hard strain among the older men.

In Chicago where the garment makers recently returned to work defeated after a long strike, the proposition is now being discussed among them of again going out on strike in the midst of the Easter busy season unless their employers grant them concessions the demand for which has thus far been ignored. They admit that they only returned to work until they could save up enough money to strike again. With them such odium is considered legitimate, but had their employers allowed them to come back to work until they could finish up some rush orders and then out until another busy period should arrive the unionites would shout the air blue with anathemas of the duplicity practiced upon them.

What is good for one is not good for the other, according to unionite logic.

Unionite brutality was never better illustrated than by a recent event in Leadville, Colo. The victim was A. M. Brown, 45 years old, who recently arrived there from Deerlodge, Tenn. According to Brown, he left his boarding-house near the mine last Sunday morning and started for the postoffice in Louisbille, where he intended to send a money order to his wife and six children who are living in Deerlodge and get any mail addressed to himself. As he crossed the railroad track he passed three men to whom he addressed the remark, "Good morning, gentlemen," but received no reply. When he arrived at the postoffice he learned that the mail was late and, after getting his money order, joined the throng of people waiting. The three men who refused to speak to him at the railroad crossing appeared in the crowd again and stared at him. Suddenly one of them who had edged up fairly close to Brown struck him a heavy blow in the face. According to Brown, there was some sort of a metallic instrument in the fellow's hand, as the blow caused a big gash in his cheek, from which the blood flowed freely. As the fellow struck Brown, his two companions seized the latter's arms. The assailant threw his arm around Brown's neck and, with his free hand, rained blows into the non-union man's face. When they had ceased pummeling him, he addressed those who were watching the proceedings, saying: "I am a stranger here and do not know why these fellows beat me." At this, the one who did the punching approached him again, saying: "You are no good; I saw you coming out of the bull pen this morning."

Processional Way.

FINE SCHEMES ARE SPOILED BY COLD BRITISH PARSIMONY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Jan. 18.—One of those curious sidelights on the English custom of muddling through which crops up here every once in so often is afforded at present by the controversy over the completion of the new "processional way" from Buckingham Palace to the city which has airsen in connection with the preparations for King George's coronation.

This processional way is an extension of the famous "Mall" leading from the palace to Charing Cross. At the Charing Cross end a magnificent arch has been erected, affording a dignified portal through which the King may enter his capital city on state occasions, and the arch has been made a part of a splended scheme of government buildings in which the admiralty offices will be housed. So far so good, but the whole scheme is spoiled by the fact that after passing through the arch the entrance to Trafalgar Square is through a narrow passage confined on both sides by old business buildings. Ten years ago these buildings were offered to the government at a moderate price, but, although the plan for the processional way and arch were complete, the offer was turned down. Since then the value of real estate in this part of London has increased and now the lowest price at which these two buildings can be acquired is $750,000.

In any other country some one would have suffered for the original blunder and the government would not have allowed a fine improvement which has cost many millions of dollars already to be spoiled for the sake of saving the comparatively small sum needed for completion But they manage these things differently in England. It had been understood that the new road would be used for the first time at the coronation procession, but when the preliminary arrangements were being made it was found that the entrance to Trafalgar Square was altogether too narrow for a great pageant and the route was changed. This caused so much comment that the two municipal authorities concerned, the Westminster City Council—for Trafalgar Square is in the city of Westminster—and the London County Council, offered to contribute $250,000 each toward the completion of the work if the government would supply the other third of the money needed. The government's reply was that it had no funds available for this purpose and that nothing could be done.

There the matter stands at present. The municipal authorities don't feel that it is their job at all and think quite rightly that they have done raher well in offering to take two thirds of the expense of a job with which they had nothing to do, off the national government's hands. The Office of Works which is the government department affected just sits still and says nothing. But the public is saying a great deal and it would not be surprising if the government should be compelled to rush the work through in a hurry at the last moment and pay the whole of the cost itself.

Something similar is happening with regard to the proposed St. Paul's bridge over the Thames, which it is intended shall be a great memorial to the late King Edward. A new bridge is badly needed at the point indicated opposite St. Paul's Cathedral, and $10,000,000 have been set aside for the purpose, but according to the present plans the bridge will end abruptly in a maze of narrow little streets between the river and St. Paul's. If it were extended to St. Paul's Churchyard we would have in London one of the finest vistas in Europe—an uninterrupted view of the magnificent Cathedral—and in addition to that the utility of the bridge would be increased greatly for it would end in a broad open space with wide streets leading away from it in all directions.

The trouble is that neither the City of London Corporation nor the London City Council, the two local authorities involved, cares to provide the money for acquiring the property necessary for this extension. The County Council says that as it is all in the city the city should pay. The city says that as the other end of the bridge is in the County Council area and the bridge will benefit greater London as much as the city the County Council should provide the funds. In the meantime the city is going ahead with its plans for the bridge without any reference to the proposed extension and when it is built it will probably wake up to the fact that another golden opportunity for saving money on a necessary improvement has been lost.

"We know!" collapse me & Nogi together like chorus girls. "We have undertook Government jobs before."

So we depart away expressing sadness by our toes.

* * * * *

"Where should we go first?" require Nogi outside.

"Senator Aldrich should be familiar with banking, if nobody," I say so. Therefore we steer ourselves forward to Senate Office where he was.

We find the Great Commoner of Rhode Island setting by large wooden desk telling 2 young Insurgents how to remain pure without offending the Railroads.

"O Rev. Mr., one question, please to ask it!" is outburst from us.

"One minute of my time is freely yours,' he suggest with smiles peculiar to one who is accustomed to sacrifice almost anything for his Country.

"Is Banking business of America so rotten like they say it is?" is question for me.

"I am not a Business Man," say Senator Aldrich. "I am a Artist. Sordy questions of Money interest me less and less. Howeverly, I am acquainted with my Central Bank, and if I can do anything to prove my insanity, I shall behave with great pleasure," he renounce.

"Are the banking business so rotten like they say it is?" I compute with iced nerves.

"By no means it ain't!" he holla. "If banking was wicked, how could bankers be so pure? I have found bankers kind, agreeable, trusting individualities, always unwilling to turn a stranger from their gate when he applies for loans of $10,000,000 naming his mortgages as his security. Only pure hearts could be so easy. On how many occasions have I turned to bankers for a million dollars when I had insufficient credit to borrow 24 cents cash from a corrupt and suspicious policeman. When hunger threatened and want oppressed, where did I go for comfort? To my spiritual advisor, maybe? Never! I went to my banker. And if he wasn't touched by my story, I went to another. When my stories of fact and fancy was rejected by the magazines, I took them around to the banks and they were accepted. Some of them brought me several million dollars. No! Say not one single word of disdain about the banking profession. I have been a banker myself."

I absorb his thoughts with great esteem.

"Do you have intentions of becoming a banker?" he research.

"Ah no! I am too lacking in pennies to attempt such high profession." This from me.

"You are just the kind which should be," he derive. "Folks with money should not go into banking business. They might lose it. When I first started to finance I had not 1 cent. And look at me now." He hang his feet carelessly over the bar of his cage.

"Are banking a safe profession?" I ask it.

"The safest in the world—next to aviation. Banking and aviating are quite similarly alike. In both jobs you can make joyful rides before admiring public supported by nothing but air. This are quite amusing so long as you keep in rapid motion continuously. But with delicious suddenness Hon. Engine stop doing so and O JAR!! Loud scrash ensues and Hon. Newsgatherers collect your bursted remments."

Intermission enjoyed by all. I rose upward to go, taking Nogi with me.

[illegible] lots of folks say that it is not so rotten as they say it is.'

I make note of this phenomenal.

"Will this bank be completely secure for poverty folks to put wages into?" I negotiate.

"O surely yes!" he report. "That Central Bank will have for security all the predatory, malevolent and greedish Corporations. If this ain't good security, what is?"

"Will Sugar Trust, Standard Oil and Tobacco Trust be some securities for your Bank?" I ask to know.

"I am hopeful of this dishonor," he compute.

"Well so!" I holla. "How could Sugar, Oil and Tobacco Trusts be nice security for Central Bank when they are apt to be bursted by Supreme Court at any moments?"

"I have no time to listen to jokes," repose Hon. Aldrich. "If you are willing to learn about banking, please apply to somebody what has had experience with this branch of philanthropy. Perhapsly you had better see Joseph G."

He slam us out by door.

"We must see this Joseph G. with immediate quickness, I explode to Nogi. So we approach statesmanship door labelled distinctually

JOSEPH G. CANNON.

Insurgents Unwelcome.

We find this continual Speaker writing out his resignation, to take effect the day after his death.

"Are the Banking Business so rotten like they say it is?" I ask forth with firm teeth.

"Togo," devote Joe Uncle, "what know I of banking business? Answer is, Nothing!

True, I own a bank or two, but they are merely simple country establishments where finance is done over an apple barrel like the grocery business—"

"Is it so wicked as that?" I say for shock.

"Who told you to come to me with banking questions?" require Jo Uncle suspectfully.

"Hon. Aldrich done so," I deplore.

"What did he say when he said it?" is question for Uncle.

"He say, 'Go to Joseph G. He know more about banking business than any other man in captivity.'"

"So ha!" snagger Jo Uncle. "This Aldrich man got our names mingled. When he say Joseph G. he did not mean Joseph G. Cannon. He was aiming references at Joseph G. Robin, the New York holesale bank buster of latest date.

Me & Togi fall forwards in the middle of our surprise.

When next seen we was in New York.

"Where is the offices of Joseph G. Robin, please, we ask of Hon. Police who stood eating cigars.

"Third cell to the right, take the elevator," he dib short.

We do so and arrive to slightly financial compartment arranged with brussels carpets and pictures of Napoleon after he came back.

[illegible] midst of this scenery we beheld Hon. Robin making dislocated conversation with Hon. Dist-Atty., while Insane Expert examined his eyes. With his left hand he was taking cyanide of potassium from a spoon.

"Will you make some slightly wandering statements?" I require.

"Temptations of a great city are enormalous for poor boy who is deprived from home," he say. "There is a bank on nearly every corner so what chance has struggling childhood to remain in surroundings of poverty? First time I ever seen a banker I was a bootblack in Washington Square. An excitable truth came and hit me in the soul—I realized it was easier to make money than to earn it. So I ceased my muscular toil—"

"You ceased bootblacking?" I require.

"Yes," say Hon. Robin, "I moved to Wall street and learned wise wisdom. For a bootblack can only polish one person at a time, but a financier has larger ideas."

"Your thoughts are very thoughtful," I say so, making good-by.

"That is sure sign of mental dislocation," say insane expert holding his cold ears.

So we elope to telegram office for following wire reply to Hon. Wain Mac Veigh, Sec. of Treas.:

"Banking business simple but honest. All safe till the Robins roost again."

So we have been every since awaiting for pay day to arrive around.

Hoping you are the same, yours truly

HASHIMURA TOGO.

Public Use.

WATER RATES FIX ANNUALLY.

IS A LEGISLATIVE FUNCTION NOT SUBJECT TO REVIEW.

Supreme Court Holds Use of All Water Appropriated for Sale, Rental or Distribution Is a Public One, Subject to State Regulation, in Oakland Case.

In the California Supreme Court, in the case of Contra Costa Water Co. vs. City of Oakland, upon rehearing, the court has handed down a decision written by Angellotti, J. and concurred in by Shaw, Sloss and Allen (pro tem.) J.J., and dissented from by Chipman (pro tem.,) J., which says:

That under the State Constitution, the use of all water appropriated for sale, rental or distribution is a public use, subject to the regulation of the State; and the rates for its use must be fixed annually by the city or town council to which it is supplied.

That the fixing of such rates is a legislative function, judicial in its nature, and not subject to review by the courts, except where it is invalid on some constitutional ground.

That an ordinance whose effect is to deprive one of a fair return upon his property at the time, it is being used for the public, over and above the necessary operating expenses, including current repairs and taxes, and, in a case where the property is irrevocably devoted to a public use, an annual allowance to provide for making good the depreciation which must occur in much of the property used in such service, is unconstitutional.

That no allowance is to be made to cover any past depreciation.

That the incident to property called "good will," is not to be considered as an element in determining the value of the property.

That proof of cost of reproduction, without any allowance for depreciation from age and use, is not a proper method of ascertaining the present value of a water plant.

That the burden of showing that the action of the legislative body in fixing water rates deprives a party furnishing water of his property without fair compensation is upon the person who assails the law; and courts should never set aside such action, unless the fact of such deprivation clearly appears.

Held: That in the case at bar there was not sufficient evidence to show that the action of the legislative body, in fixing water rates, used mere arbitrary conjecture not based on investigation or the exercise of judgment and discretion; or that the same were fixed without an opportunity to the water company to be fully heard.

Allen and Chipman, Appellate Court judges, were on the Supreme Court bench in place of Melvin and Henshaw, disqualified.

The case of Broadnas vs. State of Missouri, decided by the Supreme Court of the United States, January 9, 1911, involves the constitutionality of a State act which prohibits the keeping of a place where corporate stocks, etc., as well as grains, provisions, etc., were bought and sold, but not paid for at the time, and also without a complete record of the transaction (including a minute of the time of delivery in a book kept for that purpose,) and also without the purchaser receiving a printed or written memorandum of the sale as required by the State law.

The court upheld the State statute, saying: "While it is the duty of the Federal Courts, if their jurisdiction be lawfully invoked, to see to it that the constitutional rights of the citizen are not infringed by the State . . . they should not strike down an enactment . . . by the State under its police power, unless it is clear that . . . the statute is plainly in violation of the Federal Constitution. Much may be done by a State under its police power, which many may regard as an unwise exertion of governmental authority. But the Federal Courts have no power to overthrow such local legislation, simply because they deem it unwise or inexpedient."

In the case of Broadnas vs. State of Missouri, before noted, the State act provided that a stamp of the value of 25 cents, to be purchased from the State Auditor, should be placed by the seller upon the memorandum of sale, and it was contended in the United States Supreme Court that this was in violation of the fourteenth amendment in that the "classification of subjects within the limits of the authorities levying the stamp tax is not a true classification. On this point the Federal court refers to the decision of the Supreme Court of Missouri, when the case was before it and the same point raised, which held that "the selection of the business calling, and the class pursuing such calling, were proper and appropriatly selected" by the Legislature of the State, and the Supreme Court of the United States thereupon says: "Of course, we take the statute as a local law; what the State court says it means, it means . . . The same methods are applied equally to all of the same class."

The court also held that the statute was not a regulation of interstate commerce.

Missouri has a statute making it a misdemeanor to sell grain and other commodities except on the basis of the actual weight thereof. The Board of Trade of Kansas City, Mo., has a rule that to the purchaser of carload lots an allowance shall be made of 100 pounds, to cover loss on account of dirt and other foreign matter. A conviction was had against one house, under the act, and on habeas corpus proceedings the Supreme Court of the State held that house was not deprived of his liberty in violation of the fourteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United States. On January 19, 1911, the Supreme Court of the United States, reviewing the action of the State court, held that the act in question was within the power of the State (referred to as its police power,) which exists independently of the Federal Constitution, and that it was not inconsistent therewith; and that the act is wisely aimed to prevent unjust and unfair practice, and to repeal and nullify a rule of the Board of Trade, which is unjust and unfair; and that the taking of the hundred pounds from the shipper was taking his property without due process of law, and without any compensation thereof. The case is House vs. Mayes et. al. not yet reported.

The Supreme Court of the United States, Mr. Justice Luron writing the opinion, has sustained the act of Congress known as the Carmack amendment to the act of 1887, which reads: "That any railway . . . receiving property for transportation from a point in one State to a point in another State, shall issue a receipt or bill of lading therefor, and shall be liable to the lawful holder thereof for any loss . . . caused by it, or by . . . any railway . . . to whom such property may be delivered by it. . . ." The case was Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company vs. Riverside Mills. The railroad received the goods, and gave a bill of lading to a point beyond their line, and delivered them to another railroad, on whose line they were lost. The court held that the initial carrier, which gave the bill of lading was liable under the act, which it sustained against all objections.

The Supreme Court of Oregon, in the case of Martin vs. Oregon Railroad, etc., recently decided that the State act compelling railroads to furnish on demand suitable cars for perishable freight was constitutional and not an unreasonable regulation of interstate commerce. The action was for damages; apples were shipped to eastern points and the railroad failed to furnish refrigerating cars. The court held that the law in question was a proper exercise of the police power of the State.

Action and Reaction.

LOCOMOTIVES' HEAVY WASTE.

SMALL PERCENTAGE OF HEAT UNITS UTILIZED.

Alcohol Can Be Extracted From Fruit Carob Tree, Extensively Cultivated in Spain and Elsewhere. Might Flourish in This Section. Study of Gases' Solubility in Metals.

According to the United States Geological Survey, 20 per cent. of the total fuel supplied to the average locomotive furnace performs no function in moving the train forward, and after deducting losses by radiation, in transmitting the steam power through the engine to the axles, adhesion to the rails, etc., it is estimated that only 5 per cent. of the latent heat value of the coal does useful work in moving the trains forward, the remaining 95 per cent being wasted. About 25 years ago thef uel waste in stationary plants was about 96 per cent., 4 per cent. only doing useful work. Today in such power plants as the Edison company in Chicago, 10 per cent. performs useful work, and the average in stationary plants in the country is about 6 per cent. The above figures are for coal consumption; by turning the coal into producer gas it is claimed to utilize from 10 to 16 per cent. of the latent energy of the fuel, the average being over 13 per cent. What efficiency oil burning will show, either burnt directly or first converted into gas remains to be seen.

The solubility of gases in metals has been studied by Sieverts (Ber. 43, 893.) Nitrogen dissolves in no metals, but reacts with several, forming nitrides. Carbon monoxide dissolves in both solid and fused nickel, and also in cobalt, but not in copper. Sulphur dioxide, is soluble in silver, but not in gold. Hydrogen is the most generally soluble of gases, but is not soluble in silver, gold, tin, and many other metals; its solubility in copper is increased by the addition of nickel and platinum in which it is soluble, and decreased by tin and aluminum in which it is insoluble. In the occlusion of gases by metals absorption plays very little part as the phenomenon is independent of surface area, pressure controls their true solubility. This solubility varies with the square root of the pressure.

A "wild cocoon" silk reeling mill has been established by the South Manchuria Railway, at Fushinidal, Japan. It is in an experimental stage, the difficulty being to get skilled working girls whom they have been obliged to pay while they train them. They now have 140 of these girls, whose wages are from 10 to 25 cents per day. The plant will be on a self-supporting basis with 200 girls and an output of 133 pounds of wild cocoon silk per day.

The discovery that alcohol can be extracted from the fruit of the carob tree has been an incentive to its cultivation in Spain, Italy and the Levant, where it grows as a leguminous evergreen. Its fruit, commonly called the "carob bean" is about one inch wide and from six to eight inches long. It would probably flourish in Southern California.

Bismuth ochers occur in San Diego county, California, and according to the Chemcial Laboratory at Washington, D. C., are either a bismuth hydroxide of bismuth vanadate (pucherite,) or mixtures of the two. The pucherite has been found non-crystalline, and determined for the first time in the United States.

The biologist Bailey, in "The Survival of the Unlike," p. 319, says American fruits constantly tend to diverge from the foreign types which were their parents, and they are as a rule better adapted to our environments than foreign varieties are. In less than a century we have departed widely from the imported varieties which gave us a start. At the expiration of another century we should stand upon a basis which is nearly, if not wholy, American.

A movement is being made in England toward buying and selling leather by measurement, instead of by weight.

Normal coke has 50 per cent. cell space, practically double the volume of anthracite coal.

Phosphate rock and manganese have been found on the island of Margarita and adjacent islands in Venezuela.

The sugar mills in the Province of Santa Fe, Argentine, have an annual output of $13,000,000, and the forty-three flour mills, $8,000,000.

The largest branch of chemical industry in the United States is in the manufacture of artificial fertilizers.

Dr. C. F. McKenna, president of the Chemists Society said the other day that the obtaining of nitrogen for fertilizers was a "necessity to the long continued life of our race."

"The Theorem of Le Chatelier," defined most broadly, is that in all nature any system tends to change so as to minimize an external disturbance. It is true in the survival of the fittest law, the law of supply and demand, and most other things.

In the reactions of a [illegible] furnace two-thirds of the fuel [illegible] supplying the necessary [illegible] third in the reduction of the iron ore. If an electric furnace be substituted, electrical energy may replace the two-thirds of the carbon fuel as a source of heat, but the remaining one-third will always be necessary. Electric smelting is in its infancy as yet, the cost of the electricity is a great stumbling block to it.

Pearl shells valued at $844,978 were exported from the northwest coast of Australia last year.

Bad the Bargain Sense.

The teacher was trying to impress upon her class the necessity of regulating the sinful human heart, and to drive her point home she produced her watch.

"Now, boys," she said, "you all see this watch"—an assertion so obviously true that there was no danger of contradiction. "Now," she continued, "just suppose for a moment that it did not keep correct time, that I found it was willing to go any way but the right way, what should I do with it?"

There was the usual pause, which pupils indulge because it flatters the teacher by making her suppose her problem is a very deep one, and that her wisdom is therefore profound. Then a bright little boy held up his hand.

"Please, miss," he said, "[illegible] sell it to a friend." [illegible]

Bell Flower Acres
30 minutes from Los Angeles on Pacific Electric
An Astonishing Opportunity for the Man Who Wants a Self-Supporting Home
Unlimited Free Water
Big Profits in Poultry Vegetables
Apples Net $300 to $400 Per Acre Yearly
Bell Flower Acres is an astonishing opportunity for several reasons. First, it has a water proposition that can scarcely be duplicated anywhere. The water comes from 1100-foot flowing artesian wells and is UNLIMITED and FREE.
Secondly, the productiveness of the soil is astonishing. It grows potatoes, onions, garlic and fruits to perfection. And this productiveness—with unlimited free water—enables people there to reap astonishing profits. People are today netting $300 to $400 per acre per year from apples. These are facts anybody can verify. But the most astonishing fact of all about Bell Flower is that these lands which yield such enormous returns, can be bought today for $350 to $700 per acre.
Are you looking for opportunity? It is at Bell Flower. It won't be here forever—at these prices. Consider what desirable acreage right at the city's gates must be worth when Los Angeles has one million people. Your opportunity is NOW.
It will be worth your while to come to our office and see samples of Bell Flower soil and actual photographs of what is being done there. Visit Bell Flower at our expense. Free excursions hourly. PHOENIX, THE BEAUTIFUL CAPITAL CITY OF ARIZONA.

Lying in the Heart of the Fertile Salt River Valley—Phenomenal Growth and Prosperity—New Enterprises.

IT IS a long stretch from Denver to Los Angeles, or from El Paso to Los Angeles, and in this vast domain comprising one-eighth of the United States, there is need of a city centrally located on transportation lines and as a distributing point. Such a city should have resources surrounding it to make it self-sustaining. The travelers familiar with the Southwest, and knowing its need, turn with one accord to Phoenix, the metropolis of Arizona. Nestling in the heart of the great Salt River Valley, and possessing the only possible low grade railroad outlet into Southern California, this semi-tropical city, is a continual surprise and revelation to all who visit it.

Surrounded by 350,000 acres of as rich farming land as can be found anywhere, plenty of water, the largest dam and most complete irrigating system in the world, and possessing a climate that matures all crops several weeks in advance of other sections, this enterprising municipality is one of the inland cities of the Southwest. As an evidence of its activity, in less than eighteen months over forty miles of cement walks were laid. The City Council, after investigating near-by California and Texas towns, has recommended an improved street paving at a cost of $150,000, and but a short time ago the taxpayers voted to install an up-to-date half-million dollar sewer system. A $300,000 concrete hotel is in course of construction. Plans are prepared for a $250,000 postoffice, and the farmers of the valley are now building a handsome $35,000 water temple to hold their meetings in. In the business section there has not been a vacant store in the past three years, and this scarcity is to be remedied by the erection of new building with office rooms for which there is quite a demand. Apartment-houses are to be built to take care of the tourists who yearly throng there to enjoy its health-giving ozone.

The tributary towns of Tempe, Mesa and Glendale are to be connected by rail with power furnished by the great Roosevelt Dam, the city of Phoenix being supplied by light and power from the same source. What impresses the visitor is the number, taste and solidity of the home construction. Almost all the houses are built of brick or cement with fine concrete foundations, the Swiss chalet and Spanish type predominating. The majority of the brick houses have a coating of plaster which gives them a picturesque and pleasing effect, no two homes being alike. In the year 1909, exclusive of business blocks, there were built for individual home owners 500 houses, in 1910 over 600, and the indications are that for the ensuing year it will run close to 1000.

PROGRESS.

Phoenix, besides being the capital of Arizona, is the county seat of Maricopa county, which is located in the south central part of Arizona. The population of Phoenix is estimated at 15,000.

The water for domestic use is healthful and palatable. It is obtained from drilled wells 208 feet deep and contains only 132 parts solids in 100,000 parts water. Phoenix has over forty miles of new cast iron water mains and 170 hydrants of the latest model. The pumping capacity of the city plant is 10,000,000 gallons and the fire pressure is held at eighty-five pounds per square inch. The city possesses good schools, churches of all denominations and the modern conveniences demanded today in up-to-date cities.

BANKING AND BUILDING.

Throughout the country banking and building are recognized as indicators of business and future prosperity. In both banking and building Phoenix is eminent. On November 10, 1910, the banks of Phoenix presented statements showing total deposits and resources as follows:

Phoenix National Bank......	$1,890,398.45
The Valley Bank	1,868,222.56
National Bank of Arizona...	1,191,284.97
Union Bank and Trust Co....	242,642.11
	$5,193,049.09

On January 1, 1911, another bank, the Phoenix Savings Bank and Trust Company, opened for business with paid up capital and surplus of $150,000. Already for 1911 plans have been made for over $1,000,000 worth of business buildings and before the year is well advanced we may reasonably expect the construction in Phoenix, in business property alone, to total over $1,500,000. Many of the buildings included in the total submitted are already under way. Among those planned is the Adams Hotel to cost $300,000. This hotel will have 170 rooms, and is expected to open in September. The Federal building will cost $172,000, and will contain the postoffice and other important offices. The Waters Users' building will be ready about August. This building will cost $32,000, and will house the local branch of the Reclamation Service as well as the officials of the Water Users' Association. The high school is to cost $150,000, and consisting of extensions to the present equipment will make this institution one of the most complete polytechnics in the Southwest. The Women's Club building to cost $25,000, will contain an auditorium to hold 500 people.

Now ready for dedication is the new Y.M.C.A. building; a structure representing an investment of $150,000, and without a peer in any city three times as large as Phoenix. The Y.M.C.A. building, the Water Users' Temple and the Federal building are grouped on one block centrally situated. That part of the block not covered by buildings will be parked. Other recently completed buildings are important and many under way at this time are worthy of mention. The Adams-street school to cost $75,000, is half completed and the Madison-street school costing $10,000, has just opened. The $25,000 addition to the St. Joseph's Hospital is about ready. The Board of Trade building, costing $15,000, opened in November last. The National Bank of Arizona is just completing its building representing an investment of $150,000. The Phoenix National Bank expended during the past few months over $25,000 in remodeling and beautifying its quarters, making a banking place that is not excelled in the West. The Union Bank and Trust Company plans to spend $12,000 in additions and alterations to its present quarters. The Adams Annex has opened within the past month and has eighty-five rooms and many baths. The Commercial Hotel has added a wing and now has eighty-one rooms. The Ford Hotel has with its annex, about 150 rooms.

In the work of home building, the city already has a record. The last average was a house and a half a day for 400 consecutive days and the coming season promises to exceed this record considerably. Among the large number of homes being erected are many beautiful structures which are planned on extensive lines. They have ornamental grounds and surroundings which are possessed of great charm. Outdoor roses twelve months in the year are a feature of Phoenix. The gardens, rich with blooms and vigorous vegetation, palms and trees, are show places. Industrial building has not been lacking in the recent past. The erection of an alfalfa mill has been accomplished. A mill for the manufacture of cement is fast assuming shape and will be placing its product on the market in a few months. Several new garages have been erected and cold storage plants and extensive warehouse accommodations have been built. Plans for power-houses for the generation of 10,000 horse power to be erected by farmers and land owners have been submitted to the government for approval. This power will be for sale at low rates, to mines and manufacturing concerns and individuals, and is part of the Salt River scheme which, when complete, will generate in all 27,000 horse power.

Plans for a complete sewer system are under way; $400,000 is to be spent on this work. The city has voted bonds for the purpose and purchased the present system at an additional cost of $60,000.

Street paving, to include the streets of the entire city, is receiving attention. Special committees have visited other cities and an expert has arrived to advise the officials. The $100,000 reinforced concrete bridge across the Salt River will open in February. This bridge will carry Central avenue across the Salt River and connect Phoenix with Tempe, Mesa and the section on the south side of the river. An electric line will cross the bridge making easy the communication between points mentioned. Additional electric lines are planned and now constructing which will bring Glendale in closer touch with Phoenix.

Extensions to the various suburbs of the city are in operation and others are building. Modern equipment is being installed and heavier rails laid throughout the system.

SCHOOLS.

As shown by figures for building, the expenditures for schools here have been continual and unstinting and many improvements are planned to the system to care for the growing number of students. The following figures taken from school census shows the good and steady progress.

	School Census.	Grades.	High.
1905	2168	1680	211
1906	2394	1655	208
1907	2387	1619	223
1908	2410	1868	278
1909	2716	1954	302
1910	3204	2261	335
1911 (estimated) ...	3800	2600	480

POSTOFFICE.

The postoffice receipts have been increasing rapidly. Statistics covering the last six months of 1910 show the remarkable gain over 1909 of 20.82 per cent.

For fire protection the city has requested approval of Congress to a $50,000 bond issue and the National Board of Fire Underwriters has sent its experts to advise the City Council on the best protection methods. A well-equipped fire department is conducted by the city at this time.

County and municipal health authorities have recently decided to establish an official laboratory for the testing of milk, water, foods of all sorts, and this will be under the direction of a competent official and bacteriologist who will have charge of the general sanitation work connected with the city and surroundings.

Phoenix is headquarters for the Territorial Fair, held each year in November. The event, which lasts one week, is one of great importance in the Southwest. Many thousands of visitors attend the fair each year. The fair grounds are public property, owned by the Territory. The running track is considered one of the best in the country, and conditions for developing the best in all varieties of stock are ideal. Noted visitors have stated that the stock does better work on the Phoenix track than in many of the other important meeting places in the country. Several world records have been made here. Exhibits of agricultural products, mineral specimens, live stock, etc., are of a high order and compare favorably with State fairs throughout.

MINING AND RAILWAYS.

As a mining center, Phoenix will compare with many famous mining towns in the world. As yet undeveloped are great areas of mineral-bearing lands and mountains, all conveniently adjacent to this capital city. Its situation also demands that it become a railroad distribution point for a great portion of the Territory. Reductions in freight rates give advantage to Phoenix shippers and ease of access to points of importance in the Territory will be continually improved until the city is central of all railroad activity in Arizona. Plans for construction of transcontinental lines through Phoenix have been referred to many times of late and are sure to materialize rapidly. The heavy shipments of agricultural products, the passenger traffic to and through the Salt River Valley points, which will give a ride of sixty miles through fertile fields and fat farms, will prove a strong attraction to the railroad builder. Convenient grades, adequate supply of water and a central point for repair shops and rebuilding works will appeal to the engineer laying out the new lines of steel. With the progress in railroad building the many mining properties so conveniently situated near Phoenix will be put on a shipping basis. The new custom smelters at Hayden and others to be erected within easy reach of Phoenix will place shipping properties in a way to do extensive work and operate at a large profit. Returning activity in mining throughout this section will add much to the wealth and prosperity of Phoenix.

Complete telephone equipment is a feature of Phoenix. Two systems are in full operation and enjoy large patronage; the automatic all-cable system, with cables underground, is capitalized locally, the cost of the plant installed reaching $125,000. Through wires to the coast are being connected by the Consolidated System, and direct touch with the seaboard will soon be secured.

Special committees are at work on plans for still further adding to the attractiveness of the city.

CITRUS FRUITS.

Oranges have been raised in the Salt River Valley for twenty years.

The first trees to be planted were the seedlings. Later the Valencia and early varieties were planted. Some of the budded fruit has been bearing five or six years, but the great bulk of the orchards came into bearing in 1907.

Four years ago an Orange Growers' Association was organized and this association packed and marketed the crop of 1907-8 for the first time. The price received for the Arizona crop ranges from two to three times as much as the California grower receives for his oranges.

The Arizona orange is the first to attain its maturity and is on the market in December.

The Arizona orange, being grown in an almost dry climate, the fruit can be bought and held for weeks and even months with little or no loss from decay, thus encouraging the dealer to purchase this brand and hold it for his special trade.

There are about 1500 acres of orchard in the valley in full or partial bearing, and probably 1500 acres more are being set out this year.

With the completion of the Roosevelt dam, every foot of the valley will have an ample supply of water.

THE GRAPE FRUIT.

One of the most profitable of the citrus fruits is the grape fruit, and the Salt River Valley is its natural home. No grape fruit raised in America can beat it, either in quality or texture. The demand exceeds the supply to such an extent as to warrant the prediction that there will always be a good market for all we can raise. The association here has hundreds of orders for the fruit at $3.00 per box f.o.b. Phoenix, and when one stops to think that one tree in full bearing will produce fifteen boxes and that you can get eighty trees on an acre, you can form some idea of the profitableness of a grape fruit orchard. The present supply of grape fruit raised in America is not 20 per cent. of the demand.

LEMONS.

For the first time in the history of the valley, a shipment of lemons was sent East from this valley in 1908 and they were sold at auction, bringing the largest price of any sale that day. The consignee immediately wired the Association stating that the lemons were exceedingly fine and asked for another car.

This valley is absolutely free of scale.

Land can be purchased at from $100 to $200 per acre. All of the territory north of the Maricopa ditch and the mesa district is believed to be ideal citrus land. There are at least 100,000 acres of first class citrus land in the valley.

SUGAR BEET CULTURE.

The cultivation of sugar beets in the Salt River Valley promises to be one of our greatest industries. There are many advantages that this crop offers the rancher over alfalfa or anything else that he can raise. He can produce as much or more money with one crop of sugar beets as he can with seven crops of alfalfa, and the work on his sugar beet crop can all be done in the pleasant months of the year. This condition is made possible by the fact that the people operating the sugar beet factory raise about 1500 acres of sugar beets themselves. They can therefore assign the early planting, that is, the October planting, to the ranchers of the valley. Beets planted in October can be all harvested and done with by May 10, and the rancher can take his family and go to the mountains or the seashore during the hot period. This is not possible with an alfalfa crop, nor with any other crop that needs attention the year round.

Few things that the rancher can plant will give as great returns for careful handling as will the sugar beet. With due attention given to the preparation of the seed bed, and proper cultivation and thinning given to the growing crop, it is possible to produce thirty-two tons of sugar beets to the acre, and twenty to twenty-five tons should be the minimum raised by anybody. These beets will sell for $4.75 a ton, and they can be sold before a seed is planted. The rancher does not have to hunt a market, neither does he have to depend upon some commission merchant to give him a square deal. He simply goes to the factory and sells his crop and then goes home and raises it.

With sugar beets you know that your expense for raising will be from $25 to $35 an acre, depending entirely on the amount of help you employ, and that your returns will run from $100 to $150 an acre, depnding entirely on how well you handle the crop. The sugar beet factory has a capacity of handling 700 tons of beets per day, and runs for four months each year. For the period that the factory is operated employment is given to 300 people, and during the growing of the crop, employment is given to 280 people in the field. The plant was erected at a cost of $900,000 and since the present company assumed control, about $200,000 worth of improvements have been added. The company is opening up a tract of 10,000 acres, lying between the Agua Fria and New rivers. Water for irrigation will be taken from the Agua Fria River and from pumping plants. All of the land is water-bearing and the water rises in many places to within twelve feet of the surface. This land will be leased for a beet crop, and will be ready for cultivation in time for the 1911 crop. The plant and the work of opening up the new lands, and the farming of the 1500 acres they now cultivate, is under the management of an expert beet sugar maker and sugar beet grower, who will be glad at any time to give the ranchers of the valley the advantage of his expert knowledge.

The growing of sugar beets is becoming more and more popular, as is evidenced by the fact that this year there were planted 6000 acres in addition to the 1500 acres that the company planted.

TO INTENDING SETTLERS.

Many events of great importance to Phoenix and the Salt River Valley have either just come to fruition or will, in the next few months. Amongst those are, first, the great reduction in freight rates to Phoenix. On January 2, 1911, the railroads published sweeping reductions from the old rates. Under the exhilarating touch of low freight rates now in force, Phoenix will step forward with giant strides for the trade of the rich valleys and mining and cattle country, tributary to her. Phoenix is now an ideal location for the establishment of wholesale and jobbing houses in all lines.

Second, this will be the first year in the history of the valley that the growers have been able to impound an ample water supply for irrigation purposes, as the government dam at Roosevelt was only 124 feet high at the end of the rainy season last year when the water flowed over the top. The dam has been increased in height 150 feet since that date and the finishing touches are now being put on. Dam now 274 feet high.

Third, the completion of the Arizona Eastern Railroad to the Buckeye Valley will open that rich valley to the merchants of Phoenix and add one more link to the through line railroad through Phoenix.

Fourth, the blowing in of the Ray Consolidated Copper Company's smelter, located on the Arizona Eastern Railroad only ninety-five miles east of Phoenix, about the middle of February, will make another good market for Salt River Valley products and Phoenix trade, as this smelter will start handling 1000 tons of ore per day from their mines a few miles away at Ray.

Under the Roosevelt Dam

IF IT'S ACREAGE YOU WANT

there are over 150,000 acres of improved irrigated farm land on the market here, not because it's poor land, and not because Salt River Valley landholders are "land poor"—but because the farm unit under the Roosevelt Dam and Irrigation System is 160 acres. It's Uncle Sam's decree. He wants more people to have homes, not more people to get rich on these irrigated acres. So these 150,000 acres are for sale. In other words, Opportunity is knocking on the door for YOU!

Greene & Griffin have in their hands the pick of Salt River Valley lands—tracts to grow each and all of our forty-five products in this valley. All lands entitled to water under the government dam and storage system.

OVER 3000 ACRES IN ONE LOT.

We have over 3000 acres around Glendale, the Sugar Beet City, all of the famous Glendale loose soil, the best cantaloupe, alfalfa and sugar beet soil in the world. On the Santa Fe R.R., and lying on the route of the new suburban railway from Phoenix to Glendale, in the same neighborhood as the $1,000,000 sugar factory. Over $400 per acre was made in this district from cantaloupes last year. One section of 640 acres on the car line we have divided into 10-acre tracts, which we offer at $200 an acre, $100 cash, $25 per month. A BIG OPPORTUNITY.

OUR ORANGE LAND—160 ACRES.

We have 160 acres of the best citrus land in the proven orange belt, next to the mountains, where local nurseries are propagating young trees for the planting season. Divided into 10 and 20 acre tracts, fenced. Citrus groves here cost less and mean more than in California. A 40-acre ranch with good house, buildings, trees, 30 acres of alfalfa—a home ready to move into, on this section.

Ask about our Alhambra Home Tract—a splendid suburban home proposition.

The man who "knows how," or the man who is willing to take hold and "learn how," can make more, save more, and be more independent on 10 acres of fruit or farm land in Salt River Valley than anywhere that the sun shines.

crude oil has developed in a remarkable degree of late years—especially in the United States, particularly California, apart from new company flotations. Within the past four years the world's production of crude oil has increased by output 40 per cent. The 1910 returns of the world's production are, of course, not yet available, but taking the latest figures issued the output of the United States and Europe, of Burma and Japan, is found to have amounted in 1907 to 274,376,000 barrels. In 1908 the total from the same sources had increased to 299,089,000 barrels, and in 1909 to 302,886,000 barrels. These figures are significant in themselves as it is also the fact that the increase was and still is from established sources (the United States Europe Burma and Mexico) quite apart from supplies from the new enterprises proposed last year.

DECLINE IN PRICES.

That being so, and the projected companies being so numerous (though the "boom" happily was short-lived,) it was in the nature of things that oil products should decline in price. In heavy oil suitable for fuel, in which the largest expansion is expected, and will doubtless take place in due time, an increased supply was accompanied by a very substantial decrease in price.

The decline, greater abroad than in this country, doubtless tended to increase consumption, but not to increase the profit to producers. The price of illuminating oil abroad was reduced last year by the action of the Standard Oil Company in throwing on the market its accumulated stock of 117,000,000 barrels and forcing it on Europe, in spite of Russian and Galician supplies. The practical effect was to lower the price of illuminating oil by 1 cent per gallon, with a sympathetic effect on lubricating or machinery oils of about $2.43 per ton. Nor was this all, for to meet the competition of Galicia in paraffin wax (to product in which Russia and Romania do not compete, though Scotland does,) the Standard company reduced their selling price in Europe nominally by one-half a cent per pound. This adversely affected the Scotch producers, who have a form of working arrangement with the Standard company for the sale of wax on the continent; on the other hand, the Scotch producers found relief in sulphate of ammonia, which neither the United States nor Russia produce and which rose by $4.86 per ton.

There is nothing in sight to indicate but what California's oil industry will be busy and profitable for a good many years to come. To date that industry has paid $38,295,678 in dividends, of which $10,588,694 was paid in 1910, to say nothing of the millions more paid to date by the oil companies not listed on either the Los Angeles or San Francisco stock exchanges. Geological exports do not set any limit on California's oil resources. Like the widow's cruse of oil, it seems that the more used, the more we have.

ADOPT NOVEL PLAN.

A co-operative principle that embodies many new ideas is represented in a plan adopted by the Corona Heights Citrus Association, which has just deeded in trust to the Riverside Title and Trust Company a tract of 166 acres at Corona. The association proposes to plant, develop and irrigate the property of a fine orange and lemon tract. Against it they are selling land warrants giving the holders thereof an undivided interest in the profits of the crop so derived. These warrants are to be interest bearing and redeemable in cash or convertible into individual land investments at the option of the holder. The tract is a portion of the 48,000 acres recently bought by the El Sobrante Land Company from an English syndicate for approximately $1,200,000. W. E. Pedley of Riverside, former planter for this syndicate's famous Victoria avenue groves, will have charge of the planting and development work of the Corona Heights Citrus Association under its novel plan.

GARDEN LANDS TRACT.

Ellis & Jones, selling agents of the North Moneta Garden Lands tract, owned by the Berlin Realty Company, report sales of acreage to the following: Eugene Rivet, Anton Benson, Carl Benson, M. E. Swanson, Edward Ueberhagen, M. A. Branch, H. A. Hardman, C. G. Rodner, J. H. Poyer, C. F. Ellis, Gertrude Jones, J. T. Ellis, Anna Jackson, J. T. Mann, W. W. Carberry, L. M. Pink, B. BUYS EAST FOURTH SITE.

F. J. Steele and Company announce the sale of property at No. 321 East Fourth street, lot 50x121 feet to an alley, improved with nominal improvements, for Allen D. Butt to Richard Arens, for a consideration of $25,000. Mr. Arens, who is already a heavy property holder in Los Angeles, contemplates the construction of a four-story building on the property just purchased within the early future.

PLANS MODERN STRUCTURE.

Four-Story Apartments to Be Erected on South Bonnie Brae, Between Seventh and Eighth Streets.

A four-story apartment house of stucco exterior and of pleasing lines will be erected at once by J. Burris Mitchell on South Bonnie Brae street, between Seventh and Eighth streets. Plans for the structure have been prepared by C. C. Rittenhouse. Through E. M. Whilton, the building has been leased to Otto Steinke, of Milwaukee, for a term of ten years, at an aggregate rental of about $55,000.

The house will contain seventy-five rooms divided into two and three-room apartments, each with a dressing room. The first floor will be used exclusively for the lobby, mezzanine story affording space for a music room.

The exterior of the structure will be in the mission style of architecture.

The interior will be finished in mahogany and Flemish oak. The place is to be known as the "Princess Apartments."

BUILDING PERMITS.

Following are the building permits representing $1500 or more issued in the past week: Brick addition, 41x53 feet, one-story rear, 612-14 South Hill; Central Broadway Building Company, owner, $4000.

Store building, 44x40 feet, one story, 5425 Denker avenue; W. B. McCracken, $2500.

Dwelling, seven rooms, 1422 West Forty-seventh; F. G. Redmond, $2200.

Residence, two stories, eight rooms, 2928 Budlong avenue; J. W. Smith, $3000.

Dwellings, six rooms each, 4614-4522-4522 Cimarron; Los Angeles Investment Company, $8250.

AMERICAN BUSINESS.

American business in 1910 as shown by our exports was gratifying, reaching a value of $1,864,491,644, showing an increase over those of 1909, and also over those of 1908 as follows:

Quoting Bureau of Statistics figures:

1910	$1,864,491,644
1909	1,728,198,654
Increase in 1910 over 1909	136,292,990
1908	1,752,835,447
Increase in 1910 over 1908	111,656,197

The 1910 exports were:

Grown materials for use in manufacturing	$646,414,659
Manufactures in finished condition for sale	543,148,488
Manufactures for remanufacturing	296,437,521
Foodstuffs partly or wholly manufactured	254,728,394
Crude foodstuffs and food animals	91,479,993
Miscellaneous	8,046,703
Total	$1,864,491,644

A very profitable feature of our business in exports is the constant growth in the value of the ready-for-use finished products of the American factory sent abroad. In the past three years those have been:

1908	$446,986,222
1909	467,928,397
1910	543,148,488
Increase in 1910 over 1908	96,157,266
Increase in 1910 over 1909	75,220,091

To a smaller extent the same is also true of the "manufactures for further use in manufacturing," which we also export, as witness the figures of value for the past three years:

1908	$234,368,146
1909	263,199,100
1910	296,437,521
Increase in 1910 over 1908	52,069,375
Increase in 1910 over 1909	33,238,421

These exported manufactures, $827,-581,009 in 1910, from the best kind of American business yielding work, wages, and profit to an extent far greater than is yielded by any other of our forms of export. How silly and short-sighted then is it for anyone, worker, employer, or law-maker—to do anything that retards the profitable operation of the American factory—strikes, tariff disturbances, or what not.

Another feature of much interest in American business is the growth in our import of raw materials for use in our factories—raw materials which we cannot or do not produce or if produced, then in quantities insufficient for the needs of our rapidly growing population and our increasing export trade.

Those imports in the past three years were:

1908	$360,124,730
1909	529,597,963
1910	542,075,136
Increase in 1910 over 1908	181,950,406
Increase in 1910 over 1909	12,477,173

Combining exports and imports, the American business in foreign commerce in 1910 was:

Exports of merchandise	$1,864,491,644
Imports of merchandise	1,562,924,251
Exports of gold	58,774,822
Imports of gold	59,222,518
Exports of silver	57,360,972
Imports of silver	45,878,185
Total foreign commerce in 1910	$3,648,652,376

There is American business abroad exceeding in value $300,000,000 a month for each month of the year—dull months as well as busy months. Could anything well be more satisfactory, considering that less than 10 per cent. of the business is done in American ships, or carried at rates best fitted to suit the needs of American business, preferentially?

Of our $1,562,924,251 worth of merchandise imports in 1910, no less than $769,426,798 worth entered free of duty—nearly one-half. Duties were paid on the other $793,497,453 worth, producing $327,064,495, or only $2,500,000 less than in 1909, but $58,300,00 more than in 1908. protective tariffs, even when reduced as now, so energize American business in every line that money flows into Washington freely, constituting the easiest kind of the taxation necessary to pay the running expenses of the government. That's another of the good kinds of American business.

The Pacific Coast share of our 1910 American business in foreign commerce was:

Imports	$96,205,934
Exports	79,949,037
Total	$176,154,971

Compared with 1909 the imports were $7,000,000 greater, and the exports $10,-000,000 greater, a total increase of $19,-000,000 in the year. Los Angeles is credited with $2,259,668 of the imports(a gain of $900,000 over 1909, and of $1,-000,000 over 1908.

Seventy-five million dollars is to be expended to double track the Harriman railways from the Missouri River to the Pacific Ocean. California, particularly Southern California, will get the benefit of the spending of a good part of that money.

The Studebaker Companies have been reorganized into the Studebaker Corporation, with $45,000,000 capital.

Railroad gross earnings are an excellent indication of the condition of American business. Here are some of them:

	Earnings 1910.	Increase over 1909.
New York Central	$99,308,678	$4,736,617
Lake Shore	48,430,210	4,300,213
Pittsburgh and Lake Erie	17,062,697	2,213,780
Michigan Central	29,094,816	2,279,348
Cleveland, Cincinnati	29,422,604	2,765,284

Another good indication is our money circulation:

February 1, 1911	$3,211,530,465
February 1, 1910	3,125,567,720
Increased circulation	$ 85,962,745

The increase includes $85,000,000 in gold certificates; $16,500,000 in national bank notes; less some decreases in the other forms of circulation. The February 1, 1911, circulation, equaled $34.48 per capita of 93,238,000 estimated population.

The total cash in treasury at the close of business on January 31, was $1,725,298,051, of which $1,121,648,253 was in gold coin, and bullion, and $516,147,-376 in silver coin and bullion, besides $880,763 in minor coin, making a total of $1,638,676,392 in metal money. It is doubtful if any other government has as much metal money in its immediate control. Not a single dollar was added to the interest-bearing debt of the country during the month of January.

Merchandise shipped between domestic lake ports in 1910, attained the record total of 86,732,216 short tons, against 80,974,605 tons shipped in 1909, an increase of nearly 6,000,000 tons. As Illinois coal was short owing to strike troubles, abnormally large shipments to the upper lake ports were made of Ohio, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia coal, accounting for a good part of the 6,000,000 tons gain, reports the Bureau of Statistics.

Some of the Great Lakes 1910 shipments were:

Article.	Quantity.
Iron ore, tons	41,517,641
Soft coal, tons	18,406,409
Lumber, feet	1,202,792,000
Grain and flaxseed, bushels	117,275,210
Wheat, bushels	37,179,264
Corn, bushels	29,521,929
Oats, bushels	22,659,792
Flour, barrels	11,712,270
"Soo" Canal vessel tonnage	62,363,218

Decidedly American business on the Great Lakes was good in 1910.

American business in coal was large in 1910. Anthracite shipments exceeded those of the two preceding years and totaled 64,905,726 long tons. Bituminous shipments reached 120,214,691 short tons, about 15 per cent. in excess of the 1909 shipments. Exports were 2,021,627 long tons of anthracite and 12,805,866 long tons of bituminous.

In 1884 the town of Huntington, W. Va., did not exist. Now it is a city of 35,000 inhabitants, with the C. and O. shops employing 2000 men, and a big plant of the American Car and Foundry Company. The late Collis P. Huntington of California laid out the town.

PHOENIX, THE BEAUTIFUL.

and property holders of Phoenix and vicinity. It maintains an exhibit housed in commodious quarters in Phoenix and also has an exhibit in Los Angeles located in the Chamber of Commerce building there.

The Phoenix exhibit is the best exhibit of agricultural products in any city in the southwest except Los Angeles.

During November each year when the Territorial Fair is held in the Capitol City, the Phoenix Board of Trade undertakes the listing of accommodations for visitors and in this way in 1910 placed hundreds of guests of the city in comfortable quarters. In 1910 the Board also arranged through the co-operation of the Southern Pacific Railroad to have moving pictures, showing the automobile, hore and harness races, taken during the meet at the fair; it also took moving pictures, showing the construction work on the Roosevelt Dam and the other works included in the Salt River project, such as the Granite Reef Dam and power house, etc. Moving pictures showing beet raising, the great ostrich farm on which there are over 6000 birds, alfalfa stacking and date culture, are shown at the Los Angeles bureau at this time.

Through the efforts of the board of Trade the Arizona Development board was brought into existence and this organization which is a co-operative body, including the development organizations from all over Arzona, is getting into the field with a series of monthly bulletins which tell of general Territorial progress. The Board of Trade issued a monthly report which is distributed extensively through the press and in other ways, which makes mention of activity in Phoenix and the Salt River Valley. Monthly reports to United States Consuls abroad and foreign consuls on the Pacific Coast are issued by the board and printed matter is distributed on behalf of the board through the Pacific Coast by means of racks in hotels, clubs, etc.

Plans for a "Good Fellowship" trip to the cities of Southern Arizona are now under way and will soon be put into effect. In all matters connected with the advertisement of Phoenix along civic lines the Board of Trade has been, and will continue to be, very active. Street paving and sewerage, health and sanitation, lighting andornmentation and allother citizen's committees have the interest of Board of Trade. The new Board of Trade building is headquarters for many of improvement bodies and free lectures which are given for the benefit of ranchers and tourists are well attended. The Board of Trade entertained the Board of Army Engineers recently when that important body visited the irrigation projects being undertaken by the Reclamation Service and has been very closely connected with Water Users' Association in the work of operating under the Salt River project. To the end that more complete railroad facilities be provided for the city the board has extended all courtesies to new lines directing their roads to and through the Salt River Valley and in the encouragement of local enterprises and in which capital to enter the true activities of the valley the help of the Board has always been in evidence. In colonization projects its work has been unceasing and great good has resulted. The board will take active part in the dedication of the Roosevelt dam in March when Col. Roosevelt will be present and lead the ceremonies.

CLOSE LARGEST DEAL OF YEAR.

Rosberg and South American Strike Big Trade.

Former Gets Altadena Acres; Latter Fine Grove.

Chicago Steel Monarch Joins Windy City Colony.

PASADENA, Feb. 18.—The largest realty deal of the year was closed last week when J. J. Vosberg of Los Angeles bought from Robert Baird eighty-two acres of land in Altadena, paying therefor $90,000. The land lies in two tracts, one located at the southeast corner of Hill and New York avenues and consisting of forty acres, the other at the southwest corner of New York and Allen avenues, and consisting of forty-two acres. The two tracts are separated by a wash. It is reported that the land will be subdivided and sold out.

This property is just outside of the corporate limits of Pasadena. New York avenue has been improved until it is one of the very best streets in Pasadena and Altadena. Many fine homes have been built in that district during the past year and plans are being made for many more large country homes. The new Country Club, with its 150-acre golf links, will be on the opposite side of New York avenue.

Baird in turn bought the Vosberg and Williams orange grove at Porterville, known as the "Winter-Haven" orange and lemon grove. It is said to be one of the largest and most productive groves in California and was sold for $170,000. It is said that the oranges from this grove are famous all over the world, and that the last year's product was sold in London, Paris and Australia for the Christmas holiday trade. Both deals were negotiated by the Citizens' Realty Company, who represented Baird and J. M. Davis, representing Vosberg and Williams. Williams, however, is not interested in the Altadena property.

Robert Baird came to Altadena five years ago from Valparaiso, South America, where for many years he operated a large wholesale merchandising business. He has a family of boys and states that he wants to get them out on a ranch. Baird is a Scotchman by birth.

Another big deal of the past week was the sale of the George B. Stimson property at the corner of South Orange Grove avenue, to Col. John Lambert of Chicago, for a consideration $75,000. This is one of the choice properties on "millionaires' row." It was started during the past summer and is just now being completed.

Col. and Mrs. Lambert will move into their new home within a few days. They have been coming to Southern California for several years to spend the winter months and have fallen in love with the climate. They will make their permanent home here.

Col. Lambert has been identified with the iron and steel industry for many years. He was formerly connected with the old Lambert & Bishop Wire Fence Company of Joliet, and was later vice-president of the Consolidated Steel & Wire Company. When that property was taken over by the American Steel & Wire Company, Lambert was made president, which position he held until his company was consolidated with the United States Steel Company. He has large holdings in the United States Steel Company, is a heavy owner of Chicago real estate and is one of the prominent financial men of the country.

The Lamberts will add another Chicago millionaire family to the Windy City colony of Pasadena, included among whom are Montgomery Ward, Samuel W. Allerton, John J. Mitchell, and many others.

Arrangements have just been made for opening up the old Brigden road from Santa Anita avenue to Allen avenue and extending it through to Hill avenue. A contract will be let in a few days to pave this new street for its entire length. It will be 100 feet wide and will conform to the other beautiful streets which have recently been improved in the Pasadena Heights district.

Brigden road will run through the old Hugus ranch property now owned by the Nazarene College and the part of the land lying south of Brigden road will be subdivided and placed on the market. The opening of this road will greatly benefit the property in that district and open up much new land to settlement.

Santa Anita avenue is a part of the county foothill boulevard and has now been completed north as far as New York avenue. The contract has been let for the boulevard clear through to Devil's Gate and the work will be completed before May 1. Brigden road will give an outlet from the North Hill and East Washington district through to the foothill boulevard.

Plans are being drawn for the new sanatorium to be built near Rubio Canyon by Dr. W. J. Geigerman, to cost when completed, $100,000. The sanatorium will be built on the small hill just west of the car line where it enters the canyon at Esperanza Station.

Building permits for the first half of February totalled $30,127.

CHOICE HOLDINGS SOLD.

WHITTIER, Feb. 18.—Real estate in Whittier and vicinity continues in demand as usual and a number of pieces of choice ranch and city property have changed hands during the past week.

Dr. George L. Wanburg, a capitalist who came to this city recently from Marshaltown, Iowa., has purchased two lots on the corner of Friends avenue and Philadelphia street and is erecting a $10,000 [illegible]. William [illegible] Los Angeles was the seller [illegible] the purchase price was [illegible] was made through the [illegible]in and Bell.

Baldwin and [illegible] also report the sale of twenty acres of three-year-old valencia oranges for E. A. Curtis, to W. H. Morehouse, of Portland, Ore. The price paid being $30,000. Mr. Morehouse will immediately begin the erection of a country home on the place.

A. H. Gregg, of the Home Realty Company, reports the sale of seven and a half acres of unimproved land in East Whittier for Arthur Dungey to Thomas Beverly, the price paid being $6000. The piece will be planted to lemons. A lot on North Washington avenue was sold by the same agency for D. H. White to A. Schmeller for $1000.

Seth Mills, here on a visit from Newberg, Oregon, has purchased ten acres of the Yorba Linda tract for $3000. The property will be planted to lemons.

Gregg and Cauldwell report the sale of sixteen acres in La Habra valley for Arthur and Lory King of this place to C. W. Reynolds, an investor from Canada. Ten acres of the tract is set to grafted soft-shell walnuts, the rest will be set to Eureka lemons. The consideration was $11,000.

SCHOOL TO MEET GROWING NEEDS.

FINE STRUCTURE UNDER WAY IN ADVANCING SECTION.

Long Beach Grade Building Will Contain Twenty-two Rooms—One Wing Now Completed—Architect Is the Designer of Magnificent Polytechnic High School.

LONG BEACH, Feb. 18.—A. Burnside Sturges, architect of the magnificent new Polytechnic High School of this city, is supervising the construction of the Eleventh-street school. The structure when completed will be one of the largest and finest devoted to intermediate grade work in Southern California and will cost about $32,000. It will meet a great and growing need in the rapidly-developing section around it.

The school will be 78x144 feet in size and will be two stories high, with basement. It will contain sixteen recitation rooms, principal's room, teachers' room, library and exhibit room, together with sloyd and domestic science departments. One wing of the school is now completed and this will be at once occupied.

The exterior walls of the building will be of brick plastered, the trimmings being of ornamental brick. The heating, ventilating and general sanitation facilities will be of the most modern type. The clock and signal system will be a feature.

Mr. Sturges came to Long Beach from the East about a year ago, since which time he has designed several notable structures in this section. In addition to the Polytechnic High School and the Eleventh-street school, may be mentioned the Seaside Hospital. He is a member of the American Institute of Architects. Recently he opened offices in room No. 617, W. P. Story building, Los Angeles, and his time is divided between that city and this.

PLANS STORE BUNGALOW.

Campo Cattle Man to Build Unique and Substantial Home—Coronado's Growth Is Steady.

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 18.—An attractive home has just been completed near the corner of Twenty-sixth and D streets, for L. W. Collis, station agent for the San Diego Southern Railway. It is two stories, with single exterior.

Ralph S. Benton, the cattle king of Campo, has begun the erection of a six-room country home, to be built entirely of native stone. The structure will be of the bungalow type and will cost about $3000.

Among recent sales negotiated by Charles F. O'Neall are the following: Fifty by 140 feet at the southwest corner of Lewis and Hawk streets, for Nathan Rigden to Dr. B. J. O'Neill, $3500; 50x100 feet at the corner of Thirtieth and Myrtle streets, to Miss L. M. Gibson, $700; four lots, 100x100 feet, in West End addition, to William Atkins, $2200; two lots, 50x140 feet in City Heights, L. S. McClure to A. E. Brown, $400; 50x140 feet, south side of K between Twenty-second and Twenty-third, to R. W. Paul, $2000; 50x127 feet, on Twenty-ninth, between Palm and Redwood streets, $960; 50x127 feet, in the same block, to Arthur Stewart, $950; fifteen acres of the O'Neall Eucalyptus Grove at El Cajon to L. T. Brockett, $5000.

Sales of individual lots in Lemon Grove Park, a new subdivision, within the last two weeks, number thirty-five and the individual buyers, twenty-four. Griffing Bancroft bought several high-class lots for $4500. He is the largest individual buyer. Others purchased from one to two lots each. The lots vary in size, running from one to three acres.

Coronado continues to grow at a steady pace. Permanent residences are being built by newcomers. Others are erecting homes in which to pass the winter. The Hakes Investment Company reports the sale of 100x140 feet on J avenue, facing San Diego Bay, to Albert C. Burdick, a wealthy business man of Oregon, who will build a fine home. He expects to bring his family here each winter.

Robert H. Hampton has bought 50 by 140 feet on H avenue, near the schoolhouse, and 37½x140 feet on K street, between Ninth and Tenth. Hampton will build houses on both tracts.

Mrs. Carrie Anderson has bought of C. W. Lyke of Los Angeles, 25x140 feet on Orange avenue, between Ninth and Tenth streets, where she will erect a building for a bakery. George H. Pierson of Los Angeles has bought through the Hakes Investment Company, 50x140 feet on Orange avenue, between First and Second streets, which later he intends to improve with a cottage.

GREAT BUILDING ACTIVITY.

New Structures of Every Kind in Lively Beach City—Many Stores and Apartments.

REDONDO BEACH, Feb. 18.—Building activity here at this time is interesting to note. It is exceptional in that in addition to a large number of dwellings going up throughout the city, there have been a large number of more important improvements in the way of business blocks and apartment houses.

The block on Pacific avenue being erected by L. J. Baumbach at a cost of $20,000, will be completed and ready for occupancy within a week. Work was begun Monday on the Hoansler Brothers block adjoining this. An addition, 25x155 feet, two stories, will be built to the present structure, reaching through from Pacific avenue to Comercial street. This is to cost $6000 and will be completed within sixty days.

A modern building of four flats, costing $5000, has just been completed by William Bohen on Catalina avenue between Diamond and Emerald streets.

On South Catalina a modern apartment house built by J. A. Vail of Fullerton is nearing completion. At the rear of the same lot Mr. Vail is erecting two cottages.

One of the most important improvements is that of the Redondo Planing Mill Company, which is nearing completion. The improvements, including buildings and new machinery, amount to about $20,000. The building has been doubled in size as has the capacity of the plant. An automatic sprinkler system for fire protection has been installed and a large dry kiln for drying lumber will be completed within the next two months.

Maj. Charles Whitehead of Los Angeles will let the contract within a few days for a three-story apartment house, 50x50 feet, on the lot adjoining his Pastime theater building at the end of the old plunge. The plans call for a $7000 building, modern in every respect.

A church building costing $2000 was completed by the Church of the Brethren on Camino Real this week. A five-room cottage has just been completed in the same section for W. W. Niece.

A two-story residence is being completed by R. Lemon at the corner of Pearl street and Elena avenue. A bungalow is being erected on Helberta avenue by Louis H. Heath.

Other residences in course of construction or just completed are: Bungalow on Juanita avenue by J. T. and L. L. Sturges; cottage by Thomas Firstbrook on Juanita avenue; bungalow by Fred S. Shinn on Gertruda avenue; cottage on Broadway, east of the Hotel Redondo, by M. L. James; cottage on Carnelian street by Charles Arney; cottage on Elena avenue by Andrew Johnsen; residence on Emerald and Irena streets by F. Henry Hartman; bungalow on Elena avenue by H. Krotzer.

RUSHING PIER WORK.

AMUSEMENT PROJECTS BOOM.

SANTA MONICA, Feb. 18.—Contractor Paul Howse arrived from Chicago yesterday and is rushing plans for the starting of work Monday morning on the construction of the scenic railway that is to be one of the attractions of the new concrete pier that is being pushed for a thousand feet into the sea, between Marine street and Pier avenue. Fifteen carloads of lumber have arrived and are being delivered onto the ground for use in the building of this device, which will be in many ways unlike any scenic railway that was ever constructed. Carpenters have been engaged to report for duty Monday morning.

Work is also expected to be started within a few days on the construction of the Mountain Roll, which is another of the modern thrills planned for this pier. Simultaneously construction will be in progress on the theater building and the revolving cafe and dance hall.

The pier scheme contemplating the building of a new dance hall means the conversion of the present auditorium into a theater. This will be accomplished at an expense of $25,000 and the change will be effected so that the Ferris Hartman company can open there June 1 for a fourteen weeks' engagement. The floor of the building will be raised to accommodate 2200 opera chairs and the stage will be supplied with every modern equipment. Thirty dressing-rooms will be provided and there will be balcony and loges.

William Holmes has let the contract and work will be started Monday on a brick store building at the corner of Marine street and Speedway. The structure will be a one-story building, 60x80 feet, and will cost $5500. It will accommodate three stores, with fronts on Marine street.

The contract has been let by Mrs. Virginia Milbank of Los Angeles, for the erection of a two-story residence of ten rooms in the Palisades. This handsome home is to cost $14,000 and is to be completed within ninety working days.

The Imperial Ice Company has started work on a $2000 addition to its plant on Main street. The improvement will consist of an office building, which is to form the front of the present ice factory.

DULL SPELL BROKEN.

GLENDALE REPORTS ACTIVITY.

GLENDALE, Feb. 18.—After a lull in the building line Glendale is again in the harness and many homes are going up on every side. The bungalow type is being generally selected, and the homes are attractive and substantial. Paul V. Tuttle has just completed plans for a bungalow of the Craftsman type for Mr. Hosford to be built at No. 219 Central avenue. Mr. Mitchell has started a bungalow on Vine street between Central and Columbus avenue. Ross Boyd has just completed a six-room bungalow at the corner of Columbus and Ivy streets. J. M. McGillis is starting a modern bungalow on his property on Lomita avenue.

The advisory board of the Baptist Church has decided to erect a Sunday-school room on their property which will cost about $5000, this building to be started at once. A small Methodists of Casa Verdugo have purchased the site for their new church. A small building will be erected at once.

Ed M. Lynch and Harry Lynch have purchased from J. P. Shropshire, a lot on Fourth street, next to the postoffice. Mrs. Anna Reed of West Glendale, has sold her three east-exposure lots on Brand boulevard, between Fifth and Sixth street to a local buyer for $3300. Mr. Starkey of Illinois, has purchased the home of Mrs. Virginia Hadrick, corner Belmont and Fourth streets, the sale price reported as $1400.

Fifth street extending from the Verdugo road to the Child's tract and running through to Sixth street, have been sold. The westerly five acres were bought by W. J. Broad, whose original home property joins it on the west. The next five acres were sold to an Eagle Rock purchaser and the easterly five acres were bought by J. A. C. Moore.

LA SIERRA HEIGHTS.

FINE TRACT FILLING UP.

RIVERSIDE, Feb. 18.—La Sierra Heights, the great ranching and fruit-growing tract adjoining Arlington, is in a fair way of becoming almost an exclusive proposition for newcomers from the East. According to the statement of the local representative of the Janss Investment Company of Los Angeles, all records are being broken in sales of acreage to recent arrivals from other States who intend to immediately make their residence on the land and place it under cultivation.

Before the coming summer has passed, from present indications, there will be a large and prosperous colony of residents on La Sierra Heights. W. J. Hole, one of the original owners of the rancho, has purchased forty acres at the head of the valley and is preparing to put his holdings under cultivation. The street that is laid out up the valley will be one of the most beautiful scenic drives of Riverside. It is 120 feet wide and commands a view which, for grandeur and native attractiveness, cannot be excelled in this city of beautiful drives. The plan is to grade and park the street and improve it in such a way that it will be a most desirable place of residence.

Greater Than See?

LEVI, OF LOS ANGELES, FULL OF REVELATIONS.

He Incorporates Aquarian Commonwealth of "Absolute Life" Seekers, Gathers the "Inner Circle" Brothers and Sisters About Him in White Robes, and Delves in Remote Ages—Queerest Religion Here.

CHICAGO PEOPLE were recently much excited about Arthur See, "the perfect man," who victimized at least two women and a little girl and demonstrated his imperfection in many ways. Last week a Los Angeles "prophet" completed the organization of a whole commonwealth of persons who are seeking the "Absolute Life," and he is starting out with a membership of more than 1000.

This city boasts everything in the way of mysticism and creeds from the Mazdazians to the Bahaites, but of all its multitude of strange religions and queer religionists, none has managed to advertise himself more widely or to get deeper into the public purse and consciousness than Levi Dowling, whose followers have organized the Aquarian Commonwealth, incorporated, a brotherhood (principally sisterhood) under the general direction of Levi, the "Aquarian Hierophant."

As a side issue they have the Aquarian college of teachers and healers, and they also have an inner circle.

A hierophant is one who is supposed to have been initiated into the mysteries of the higher knowledge, and who undertakes to impart this wisdom to the prepared. When members of the Aquarian Commonwealth are sufficiently well by reading typewritten lessons for which they pay 25 cents a copy they are inducted into the more subtle degrees of understanding and they don white robes.

IN THE WHITE ROBE.

These robes are not worn on the streets. A man is not expected to sell garlic or bolts of ribbon and ladies' hose in a white robe. He is expected to don this emblem of purity only when he attends meetings of revelation at the home of Levi, the hierophant, No. 503 South Figueroa street. This robe signifies that the wearer has on the wedding garment of purity and is prepared for the feast which the king has spread. There isn't any king, of course. There is only Levi, the hierophant, with his blazing eyes and his great, bushy head, but in the absence of a king Levi does very well for a central figure at the metaphorical banquet board. Everybody enters the silence which washes the brain clean and makes the heart very still to hear the things that follow. Two candles burn, one on either side of an altar, which is an empty box, and Levi pokes his head into this box and reads the devotees of truth occurrences from the Akashic records which possibly happened 30,000 years ago, and which probably did not.

The disciples are not too particular about time. They stick pretty close to the consciousness of time in so far as the present is concerned, but when one is dealing with time by the wholesale so that he is reeling it off in bolts of 10,000 or 20,000 years he is not deeply concerned if he gets tangled up by a mere century or two. The main thing is to keep very still inside of the white robe so that one may hear all that Levi is reading from the pages that have passed.

SAY IT AFTER LEVI.

To make dead sure that they are getting it right, they say it after him, and with the lights turned out except for the two dim candles, this strange responsive reading is immeasurably weird.

Levi reaches back into the remoteness of time, sees a message floating dimly on the outskirts of the ether, with a scholar's eye recognizes the ancient Sanskrit of it, and hastily translates it into modern Saxon. "The stars are white, but they are not blue," he announces in sepulchral tones. Awed and inspired by this revelation through the lips of the illumined hierophant, the thirty or forty white-robed initiates repeat in a weird chant, "Stars are white, but they are not blue."

The vibrance of the chorus dies away, and Levi proceeds to snatch another sentence from the eternal life book and shed a little more luster upon the chosen ones wearing the white robes of purity and light.

Of course the revelations of Levi are not restricted to blue and white stars. This sentence is employed here purely by way of illustration. Levi will tell no man anything concerning his order or his initiation into that order, nor does he claim that entering his inner circle will learn any man his initiation into a higher order. He does claim that his classes prepare the novitiate to enter the great way, to find the true key and to approach the inevitable door. So far as his initiation is concerned, he says that that was brought about by himself, and is not a subject to be discussed with mortal man, since it came through no man.

ASTROLOGICAL PHILOSOPHY.

His philosophy, his school and his commonwealth are based upon the cosmological theory of a universal astrology which treats with this period of the present grand cycle as the Aquarian age. The theory is briefly that the days of Adam were in the age of Taurus, that the days of Abraham were in the age of Aries, the ram; that Jesus belonged to the sign of Pisces, and that today the sun and his family are passing from the sign of the fishes into the sign of the water bearer which is called Aquarius and which is pre-eminently a sign of the spirit. They calim that this new age is peculiarly favored and that they are themselves peculiarly adapted to the pouring of spiritual waters upon the heads of the people.

Levi came to Los Angeles nine years ago with the idea of establishing his brotherhood in a colony. The plan did not prove to be practicable, and the land purchased for this enterprise was released. Levi then published a book which he called "The Aquarian Gospel of Jesus, the Christ." A preface by the publishers, of London and Los Angeles, claimed for this book such truth as may lie in what they described as "the imperishable records that are written of all men, and their words are deeds upon indestructible films of ether."

HIS "ETHER" BOOK.

There are those who claim that all of the strange, rich romance and imagery of this book may be found in two or three Sanscrit manuscripts extant in the old world. Levi admits a knowledge of the existence of manuscripts covering a part of his Aquarian gospel, but denies obtaining any portion of his work from such a source.

Concerning the real source of the book he will not speak. He had to work ten years under preparation and concerning it he says, "Let the book stand for itself. I did not write it as a person. My name does not appear in it. It is offered as a record transcribed by Levi. That is all I have ever said about it. It is being read all over the world and as a result I have pupils by the hundreds from all countries who write for our lessons."

Levi's "gospel" accounts for the natural birth of Jesus, describes the life which the book supposes him to have led as a student and teacher in all parts of India, Persia and Egypt, and gives a romantic description and perhaps betrayal of the seven tests to which he was submitted in the Egyptian temples before being admitted through self-initiation into that high order which the world is able to recognize as the Christ-consciousness.

Levi is now preparing what he says will be the life records of Melchizedec and Enoch, "discovered" by himself, and now published for the first time as a triscript from the "Akashic records."

Levi, the Hierophant, surrounded by members of the "inner circle" of the Aquarian Commonwealth, a strange incorporated religious organization of Los Ange'es. The "prophet's" name in private life is plain Levi Dowling. He describes to his white-robed subjects, in weird meetings, occurrences of thirty thousand years ago, more or less.

MUST BORROW TO DRESS.

Thieves Loot Room of Young Men Second Time, Taking Everything Wearable.

Thieves outfitted themselves in college-cut clothes for the second time in six weeks night before last in a South Grand-avenue apartment house.

The last burglary was one of the most daring of the season, as the crooks worked in a room where two young men were asleep, and two more were slumbering in an adjoining room, the door between being open. Their operations were so quiet that the occupants knew nothing of their losses until yesterday morning.

The apartments are occupied by students at the College of Law of the University of Southern California. They had just laid in a supply of "knobby" clothes before the first visit of the light-fingered gentry.

This call was in the afternoon, when no one was at home. The crooks displayed taste for that which was swagger in the garment line. They simply took two complete outfits. The latest visit was in the stillness of night when the students were in slumberland. The thieves took everything wearable in one room.

When Ned Powers and Louis Ostrander awoke, all they could find in the wearable line were some nether garments. They were unable to make themselves presentable on the street until they had borrowed some clothing from Ray Leonard and James Leovy, who occupy the adjoining room.

"You can't make us believe that lightning does not strike twice in the same place," was the chorusing comment of the victims. "We move." They are keeping their new location secret.

HOT DEBATE OVER JUDGES.

Bar Association Approves Bill for Increase by Vote of Thirty-five Members of a Total of Six Hundred.

At a meeting of the Los Angeles Bar Association, held yesterday in the courtroom of Judge Conrey, a resolution was adopted indorsing the bill of Senator Gates, increasing the number of Superior Court judges in Los Angeles county from twelve to fourteen.

The resolution cannot fairly be said to have been an expression of the views of the local Bar Association, for there were but thirty-five members present out of a total of more than 600.

With its formal passage a large minority doubted the wisdom of indorsing the measure, it being argued that if the present corps of judges would do something to accelerate the public business, have but one, instead of two, hours for lunch, and hear the law and motion calendar in the various departments on Saturday morning, when there is nothing done anyhow, there would be no occasion for any increase.

The debate became heated at times. Norman Sterry and Frank James thought the resolution should be referred to a committee before any action was taken, in order to ascertain whether the business of the courts is such that two additional judges are really needed.

This attempted reference brought Frank C. Prescott to his feet, who shouted: "If you are going to kill this resolution, kill it in the open, instead of smothering it by reference to a committee. From the remarks made the railroad influences are against the increase in the number of judges, and if that is the side the railroads are on, I am on the other side."

Lynn Helm, former president of the association, said he thought no more judges are needed. He declared there should be an investigation.

A number of those present expressed a preference for the appointment of two additional permanent judges, instead of calling in those from outside counties for temporary work to relieve the calendars of the various departments.

A motion was made that a special meeting of the local Bar Association be held to discuss the proposed recall of the judges, but the idea did not receive the approval of those present, and it was not seconded. There was no sentiment behind the proposition.

POSTMASTER'S EARLY CATCH.

Head of the Covina Office Lands His Man.

Rifling of Bank's Mail Box Believed Ended.

Bold Robberies Charged to Grocery Clerk.

Postmaster J. L. Matthews of Covina captured Herman Motzler, a young grocery clerk, in the act of rifling the mail box of the First National Bank of that city early yesterday morning. The prisoner was brought to the County Jail and will be arraigned in the Federal Court tomorrow.

He is charged with an unusually bold system of robbing the mail, and of forging names to checks which he extracted from the letters he took.

The postoffice inspectors to whom the case was turned over, believe that the arrest will put an end to the systematic looting of the mail box of the bank, which was thought to have been securely fastened with an intricate combination lock.

A desire of the clerk to lavish presents on a young woman with whom he is infatuated is given by the postal authorities as the motive which impelled him to steal. He earned only $50 a month and this was insufficient to supply his extravagances.

CHECKS TURN UP PAID.

The bank has been receiving complaints for several weeks from depositors who consigned checks to it to be credited to their accounts. Where the checks were on this institution they invariably turned up with a paid stamp on them. Other checks were traced to other banks, which received them after they had been cashed.

It was quickly learned that the thief was having the checks cashed in various towns. Several were paid in this city. As no bank was called on the second time to cash any of the stolen paper, it was seen that it would be impossible to trap the thief in the act of getting the money. It was an easy matter to get the cash on the paper, as in most cases it was indorsed before it was placed in the mail.

It was ascertained after a brief investigation that the mail of the Covina bank was tampered with before it left the postal service. As the letters containing the valuable paper were mailed from various points, it was decided that the leak was in the Covina postoffice.

Matthews, as well as being the postmaster and proprietor and editor of the Covina Argus, has the courage and ability necessary to make a good detective. Thefts in his office reflected on his management, and he decided to draw on his own resources for a solution of the trouble. Arming himself, he secreted himself in a stairway in the postoffice early yesterday morning in such a manner that he could see the boxes without being seen.

RIGHT TO THE BOX.

In a short time Metzler entered the office and went directly to the box of the bank. It was fastened with a combination lock, but the young man had no difficulty in opening it.

The postmaster drew his revolver, approached quietly, and placed him under arrest as he was extracting mail from the receptacle.

Metzler alleges that this was the first time that he ever opened the box, and declares he did so by mistake. He says he was seeking mail in his own box.

The inspectors do not believe his statements. The box to which he rightfully had access is several feet from that of the bank, and much lower down. They also say it would be almost impossible for a person not knowing the combination to open the bank's box.

LARGER RECEIPTS HERE.

Ruling of Internal Revenue Commissioner on Meaning of "Principal Place of Business."

The Sixth Internal Revenue District, which includes the territory in which this city is located, will, by a new ruling of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue as to "the definition of a 'principal place of business,'" gain materially in receipts.

The commissioner holds that the office where the company's books are kept and not the place where the operating plant is located is meant by this designation in the Federal laws.

This interpretation will greatly increase the corporaton taxes in this district this year. One firm alone, which has its plant in the northern part of the State, but whose office is in this city, will pay $30,000 in taxes to the collector of this district.

The officials of corporations are now making haste to make returns as to the net profits for the past year, as they will be subject to heavy penalties if such statements are not filed with the collector before March 1.

Shannon to Police Courts.

M. F. Shannon has been assigned by Capt. Fredericks to Police Court work in the District Attorney's branch office in the Tajo building. John L. Richardson has been transfered from the Police Court branch of the office to work in the main office.

Gets a Continuance.

The case of Mrs. R. M. Harper, proprietress of a rooming-house on North Hill street where an unidentified man was shot a few nights ago, was continued one week by Police Judge Frederickson. She is charged with conducting a rooming-house without a license.

A FEW CENTS

is often all that it costs to get splendid results in large business ventures, through the medium of Times "Liners." Partners can be obtained, money loaned and borrowed, and almost every conceivable thing bought and sold through The Times classified advertisements.

Everybody reads these busy little ads.

Month after month, year in and year out, The Times prints more advertising than any other paper in the world.

For the week ending February 12th, The Times printed 2117 more agate "Liners" than the aggregate of all other Los Angeles newspapers combined, and 6869 more than its nearest local competitor.

The total number of "Liners" published by The Times for the seven days from February 6th to February the 12th, inclusive, was 14,934. The prize of Five Dollars in Gold has been awarded to Mrs. C. A. Danielson, 843 West 37th Place, city, whose estimate of 14,933 was the first nearest correct estimate received in last week's contest. The winning of two "Liner" prizes renders Mrs. Danielson ineligible to participate in this week's contest, which will be the last of the present series.

One week ago today The Times printed 6521 agate "Liners." On the same day its nearest local competitor printed only 3028 agate "liners."

FIVE DOLLARS IN GOLD GIVEN AWAY

On Tuesday, February 21, a prize of Five Dollars in gold will be awarded to the person making the first nearest correct estimate of the total number of "Liner" advertisements published in The Times during the seven days from Monday, February 13, until Sunday, February 19, inclusive.

Estimates should not be made until after the publication of The Times on the last day of the week for which the contest is held, and they must be delivered before 10 a.m. the following Tuesday. The name of the prize winner will be published next Wednesday. This contest is not open to employees of The Times-Mirror Company, and this company's advertisements should not be counted.

All letters should be addressed to the Contest Editor, and each will be numbered in the order of its receipt in the office, 531-533 South Spring street.

NEW STATION MAY BE BUILT.

Lovett Expected To Decide on Arrival Here.

Has Plans Covering Proposed Union Structure.

Desirability of Joining With Salt Lake and Santa Fe.

A party of Southern Pacific officials, headed by E. E. Calvin of San Francisco, vice-president and general manager, left Los Angeles yesterday morning. They will inspect the line to El Paso, and that city will meet President Lovett, and accompany him to Los Angeles. It is expected that the party will arrive in this city the latter part of the week.

Accompanying Mr. Calvin were H. V. Blatt, general superintendent, and H. B. Titcomb, both of the southern district, and W. H. Whalen, the new superintendent of the Los Angeles division.

Early last year when Lovett was here the subject of a new passenger station was taken up with him by the Chamber of Commerce and others. Lovett promised to give it serious consideration. Following his visit here, orders were given for the preparation of plans for a station building to cost between $2,000,000 and $2,500,000 to be erected on the Arcade station site.

Extensive reports were made covering every phase of the situation, not only in connection with the Arcade station site, but also other suggested locations. The proposition was also taken up and considered as to the desirability of joining with the Santa Fe and the Salt Lake railroads in the building of a union station. Reports covering this feature of the situation were included with the other plans, and estimates which were sent to Lovett in New York three or four months ago.

It is quite generally regarded as likely that Lovett will make some announcement in connection with the proposition upon his arrival in Los Angeles. This was foreshadowed in an interview in The Times, Thursday, when Lovett was in New Orleans. In this interview, he said that if Los Angeles needed a station she would get it.

There are two new projects here for the inspection of Lovett, which became effective since his last visit. One was the taking over of the interurban lines adjacent to the city by the Southern Pacific, and the other is the creation of a new traffic district, making Los Angeles its headquarters, and placing two traffic officials of higher rank here. They are F. E. Batturs, general passenger agent, and J. G. Stubbs, general freight agent, who will succeed T. A. Graham, promoted to general freight agent and transferred to San Francisco.

BIG PAYROLL.

SANTA FE'S ARMY OF MEN.

Figures compiled from reports made to the Interstate Commerce Commission show approximately 30,000 persons on the pay roll of the Santa Fe Railroad with an aggregate amount paid to them each month in excess of $2,500,000.

These figures do not include the Concho & San Saba Railway and the Northwestern Pacific, both now under construction by the Santa Fe Railroad; also the recently acquired Gulf & Interstate Railway, so that the total must be much in excess of 70,000. The employees of the Harvey system of course, are not included, and neither are the employees of the Pullman company operating over Santa Fe lines, the hospital association, the oil fields in California and Texas, and coal mines, none of which are operated by the Santa Fe, but are leased to mining companies. Hence the number of men directly dependent upon the Santa Fe must be considerably more than 100,000, while additional thousands are engaged in the manufacture of material for these thousands of employees and the railway company.

Coming to the Banquet.

T. A. Graham, assistant general freight and passenger agent of the Southern Pacific at Los Angeles, has been advised that several out-of-town officials of the company will attend the Chamber of Commerce banquet next Wednesday. Charles S. Fee, passenger traffic manager, will stop off Tuesday on his way from Chicago to San Francisco. F. E. Batturs and J. G. Stubbs, who are to be stationed in Los Angeles after March 1, will come down from San Francisco.

Reduced Rates Named.

Dates have been announced for the sale of tickets for the American Library convention to be held in Los Angeles in May, and the National Educational Association meeting in San Francisco in June. Tickets at the reduced rate, will be sold from all parts of the country for the first named convention May 12, 13, and 14, with a final return limit of July 31. The sale for the educational association is from June 27 to July 5 with a final return limit, September 15, and a going limit to reach San Francisco July 14.

Railroad Men to Dance.

Extensive preparations are being made for the Railway Employees' ball to be held at the Shrine Auditorium the night of February 21. It will be given under the auspices of the Los Angeles Employees' Recreation Association.

Pennsy Man's Talk.

Charles Watts, superintendent of passenger transportation of the Pennsylvania Railroad, will be the speaker at the semi-monthly luncheon of the Los Angeles Traffic Association, at the Angelus Hotel, at noon, tomorrow.

PROTEST AGAINST BILLS.

The Normandie-avenue Parent-Teachers' Association Friday discussed Senate bill No. 733 and Assembly bill No. 964. A resolution was unanimously adopted protesting against the passage of these bills, which were denounced as un-American in their purpose to force medical measures upon the people, depriving them of the right to make their own selection. The resolution was ordered sent to the Senators and Assemblymen from this district, and also to the National League for Medical Freedom. A night telegram was sent to Senator Gates stating that the Parent-Teachers' Association of the Normandie-avenue school was not represented at the Parent-Teachers' Federation when that body approved Senate bill No. 733. The protest against it was also voiced.

PAIN IN HIS EAR.

In attempting to alleviate a pain in his ear, Edward Heard, 37 years old, a laborer living at No. 331 McGarry street, took an overdose of an opiate yesterday morning and died in the Receiving Hospital yesterday afternoon.

AUTO DRIVER INJURED.

Passengers on Trolley Cars Scream as Machine Running Fast Is Caught and Crushed Them.

While running rapidly on Beaudry avenue yesterday morning, the machine driven by A. J. Heller, a mechanician employed by the Durocar company, was caught between two street cars at Beaudry and Second street. The auto was crushed and Heller hurled out. At the Receiving Hospital, where he was taken, it was said that he had received a concussion of the brain and probably a fractured skull. He was removed to the California Hospital. The accident was spectacular, causing the passengers to rise screaming in their seats as the auto squeezed between the cars. As reported by the crews of the cars to the police, the Glendale car was approaching the Second and Beaudry intersection from the west and the Edendale car from the east. When they were within a few feet of each other, Heller was seen approaching on Beaudry avenue. The car he was driving was a large white Duro roadster and was coming fast. The motormen and Heller saw the situation simultaneously. Heller turned west on Second and when he saw he could not avoid the Glendale car, he turned his machine south to pass between them.

San Fernando Valley.

ACHIEVEMENT MAKES HAPPY.

ELECTRIC RAILROAD MATTER IS NOW DEFINITELY SETTLED.

Difficulties Were Many and Great But Loyal Citizens Were Unrelenting in Their Efforts and the Money and Deeds to Right of Way Are in the Vault.

BURBANK, Feb. 18.—Today the electric railway to Burbank is made certain, and those who have stood behind the project with dogged determination and straining nerves, who have known, in spite of the numerous assertions that the railroad was assured, that nothing was certain until the last cent of money was deposited in the bank, are breathing easily.

Unexpected difficulties have arisen recently that have caused the whole project to totter. As is usual in such cases, a number of the subscribers to the bonus failed to make good, either in the time of payment or the amount. In these cases, the committee has advanced the money themselves, and among them made up the deficiency. They were obliged to pay more for certain portions of the right-of-way than they had anticipated, and the unexpected inroads thus made on the deposited fund caused considerable delay and uneasiness.

Today, however, the matter is settled, the full amount, together with the deeds for the unbroken right-of-way lie safely in the Burbank State Bank, a delegation of the committee has gone into the city to complete the final negotiations, and the destiny of the San Fernando Valley lies along a shining pathway.

Monday, the franchise to Fourth street, along which the line is to be laid, will be sold and the Pacific Electric Company is under agreement to begin work immediately. As there will be few cuts and fills, and the grade is easy, it may reasonably be expected that cars will be running to Burbank in a short time.

NATURAL ATTRACTIONS.

Not enough is known about the natural attractions and the home-building inducements in this portion of the San Fernando Valley, but the settlers have a quiet confidence in its resources and a happy belief in its future that cannot be shaken.

Let it speak for itself! It does not need the inflamed laudations of billboards or colored posters. Nestled between its two ranges of park-laid and game-filled hills, its winning qualities can not fail to draw a generous share of the homeseekers and/home-lovers.

Anyone passing through the valley could hardly fail to notice the beauty of its scenery, the fertility of its soil, the excellence of its roads. The Los Angeles River, heavily timbered, runs along the southwest side. The main line of the Southern Pacific cuts the center and the great electric power line, carrying the power for all Los Angeles, passes through.

The San Fernando road has just been completed through Burbank and it offers to automobilist and teamster alike all the merits of a city boulevard with the added beauty of scenery.

Griffith Park, with its beautiful "River Drive," skirts the valley on the south. The climate is almost frostless, and the altitude is high enough to make it delightful for consumptives and invalids. The picturesque foothills hold out irresistible inducements for bungalow lodges and country homes.

The electric railway project has behind it no corporation or large private interests. No company is booming the land to be opened up or no individual is reaping a rich harvest. The project has cost the community over $50,000, and this has come from the ranchmen and business men the home-owners of the valley, who desire simply to bring another advantage to the community they call their own, and to open up its beauties and resources to the right sort of newcomer. The people of the country will not seek to attract the speculator, or any class of people that will not settle down into desirable citizens, as they have a roseate hope for the future of the San Fernando Valley.

Y.W.C.A. GIRLS' PLAY.

The Wistaria Club of the Young Women's Christian Association will dramatize "The Chaperon," a comedy in three acts, in the Y.W.C.A. auditorium, tomorrow evening. The proceeds of the entertainment will be used to send one of the club members to the Y.W.C.A. conference which is held each year at Capitola. The club was organized among the younger women in Bullock's store a year and a half ago and now has a membership of twenty. The play will be under direction of Mrs. Charles Stanton. The names of the girls who are to take part in the play are Misses Belle Jameson, Hazel Weaver, Dorothy Ryder, Bernice Jackson, Leona Higgins, Olive Barton, Ruby Mitten, Gertrude Hamer, Lucinda Stimson, Eleanor Best, Grace Hunt, Lottie Culp, Grace Stothers, Mary Doland and Emma Kay.

LOVETT MAY BE GUEST.

If R. S. Lovett, president of the Southern Pacific, reaches here in time he will be a guest at the annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce next Wednesday. But fifty seats for the dinner remain untaken, the seating capacity of the banquet room being limited to 500.

"ATHENS" HIS SUBJECT.

A lecture on Athens will be delivered by B. R. Baumgardt tomorrow evening at Scottish Rite Cathedral.

ROYAL PRINCE WHO'S STILL HALE AND HEARTY AT EIGHTY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Jan. 31.—One of the most unostentatious and retiring members of the English royal family is Prince Christian of Schleswig Holstein, who has just completed his eightieth year. He came to England over fifty years ago to be the husband of Princess Helena, the third daughter of the late Queen Victoria, and is one of those German princelets to whom she had a passion for marrying her daughters; indeed, it is like looking for the proverbial needle in a bundle of hay to hunt him up in the Almanac de Gotha. All the same, he is quite one of the most useful members of King George's relations.

Prince Who Works Hard at eighty. Christian of Schleswig Holstein, King George of England's uncle, who runs a big farm and is an authority on pigs. Still hunts and goes to the races.

Though Prince Christian has reached the age when many men spend most of their time in an armchair with a book and a pipe, this is not his idea of things at all. He still rises early, takes a long walk before breakfast and makes a tour of his farm, another walk of several miles after lunch, being accomplished before his day is done. As Ranger of Windsor Great Park, he has a certain amount of business to see to, and this year a deputation of crown officials and employees in the park called on him on his birthday and presented him with an illuminated address.

In the hunting field and at the racecourse, he is still a familiar figure, and it is said that he has hardly ever missed a Derby since he came to England. He was one of the finest shots in England, until December 1891, when he had the misfortune to lose an eye through an accident while shooting on the Osborne estate, but even now he is always included among some of the royal shooting parties.

But of all his interests the one that lies nearest his heart is his farm—not an ornamental affair, by any means, not even up-to-date and scientific, but one run on old-fashioned lines, which, nevertheless, brings him in an annual income of something like $32,000. Every day he visits it and every detail of its management is superintended by himself. His specialty is pigs, for which he is famous, and next to Lord Carnarvon he is regarded as the greatest authority on these unromantic beasts in England. An amusing story is told about these two men and a pig. Prince Christian had a very famous sow, which he sold to his Lordship for $30; twelve months after that Lord Carnarvon sold it to go abroad for $200. When the Prince heard of this, he said he would never allow himself to be judge of pigs at a show again.

Next to pigs he specializes on cows, of which he has a herd of thirty, fourteen Jersey and sixteen shorthorns, and regarding dairy farming, also, he has his own ideas. The Prince believes in plenty of room for his animals, so not an acre of his farm is cultivated. No new-fangled ideas find any room in his dairy. There is not even a separator, but plenty of air and absolute cleanliness are the strict rule, and the fact that the Prince has a standing order for sixty gallons of milk a day from local tradesmen speaks well for the system.

The Prince and his wife are the two members of the royal family most often called upon to preside at charitable functions, opening bazaars, laying foundation stones, and so on, and he must have gone through this monotonous performance many hundreds of times. The same old tune heralds his arrival, the same precocious child hands his wife a bouquet, the provincial Mayor utters the same platitudes, and yet he manages always to be gracious and look interested, facts which show his great charm and kindly geniality. The laborers on the great Windsor estate all regard him as their friend, and he has a special corner reserved in his heart for the children. Princess Christian has devoted herself specially to charitable enterprises for children, and she maintains a holiday home for children at Englefield Green, near Windsor. The Prince's birthday is a red-letter day at this establishment, for he always sends them his birthday cake. He is also president of the Edward VII hospital at Windsor, governor of Wellington College, the Royal College of Music and other institutions, and just now is devoting himself particularly to the Edward VII memorial fund at Windsor.

Prince Christian has three children living—his eldest son, Prince Christian Victor, fell a victim to enteric fever in the Boer War—Prince Albert, Princess Marie Louise and Princess Victoria. The youngest daughter married some years ago Prince Aribert of Anhalt, but the marriage was an unhappy one, and was annulled shortly after. Princess Victoria is unmarried and famous for her "cattery" at Windsor, where a number of prize felines live in the lap of luxury.

HOTEL MAN WEDS.

AZUSA, Feb. 17.—The Azusa Woman's Club held an open meeting this week in the rooms of the Young Men's Association. The large audience was charmed with the musical-Longfellow programme given by the Misses Edna Zyl Modie and Clara Iverson, accompanied by Mrs. Irving J. Mitchell. All the performers are Los Angeles people.

William Alvarado and Raymond Monzes were arrested yesterday on a charge of drunkenness and disturbing the peace. They pled guilty, and Judge Glover fined them $10 each.

H. F. Parkinson, former street superintendent, has sold his house and lot on Dalton avenue to Sam Downing. Mr. Parkinson and family will move to Long Beach.

[illegible] A NEW [illegible] FOR TALK.

[illegible] DIRECTORY [illegible] ISSUED.

[illegible]

from the Times-Mirror Printing and Binding House.

The appearance of this book marks a new era in telephone directory development. It is the most cosmopolitan in appearance and in the detail of its make-up of any of the telephone directories ever published on the Pacific Coast.

A telephone directory is the medium by which rapid and consistent telephone service is made possible, which requires for it completeness and absolute occuracy. The Pacific Telephone Company handles daily in Los Angeles City more than 300,000 calls. With but few exceptions the directory must first be consulted, and, should there be any error in even one subscriber's number ,the confusion resulting therefrom would be endless until corrected by the next issue. A large force of clerks is necessary in preparing and checking the manuscript, and every precaution is taken to eliminate possibility of error.

A larger book has been substituted for the size of former issues. The creasing so rapidly that to continue the same size as heretofore would make the book even more bulky and more unwieldly than ever. The size of the new directory is 9x11 inches and contains three columns to the page instead of two, as formerly. This decreases accordingly the thickness of the book. The print is bold and clear; and appearance of crowding has been avoided, so that reference to its pages is made as easy as possible. It contains a classified section even more complete than the last one published, which makes for it practically a down-to-date business directory.

The most important change in the subscribers listing is the addition of the new prefix "Wilshire." This is made necessary by the cutting into service of the new Wilshire office located on Rampart street just south of Seventh. Wilshire prefixes have been substituted for many of the former ones, according to the location of various subscribers in relation to their being in the district bounded by the new office. This substitution involves many former West Main, Broadway and fixes have been eliminated entirely. Wilshire and Broadway being substituted therefor. Also one hundred Main numbers have been changed so as to require the prefix East. Without exception the prefix Main has been removed from all Glendale numbers. In nearly every case a suffix has been added, this being occasioned by the putting into service of an entirely new plant in Glendale, from which much more rapid service can be given by the use of the suffix instead of the prefix.

In addition to the new size of this directory many other new and valuable features are added. The outside cover, in addition to giving the number of subscribers the Pacific Company has in "Greater Los Angeles," viz., 56,263, indicates the Police, Fire and Receiving Hospital numbers in bold relief, always for use in emergency cases.

The new directory contains the name and address of all Pacific Telephone subscribers in Los Angeles city and county and will be distributed generally, not only in Southern California, but over the entire Pacific Coast. Pas- than 6000, will find their list placed exclusively in the front portion of all books distributed to them, at the same time Los Angeles and other county exchanges follow in alphabetical order. A feature in the books delivered to points outside of Los Angeles and Pasadena is that each exchange is thumb indexed separately which facilitates reference to that particular exchange.

In case the collection of any old directory is not made when the new one is delivered it should without fail be destroyed by the subscriber. The use of any old directory will be certain to cause the calling of wrong numbers and retard service accordingly.

AMONG THE RED HEARTS.

The faculty and students of the Maryland School entertained friends with an enjoyable Valentine party on Friday evening at the school, No. 720 Beacon street. The rooms were decorated with red hearts interwoven with smilax, the center of attraction being a huge Valentine of welcome for all, drawn by one of the young ladies of the school. In an adjoining room were Valentines for all guests, most of them made by the students. Refreshments were served in the dining-room under a skillfully arranged canopy of dangling hearts. Games and music were enjoyed until a late hour.

We notice that Congressman Mann de some remarks in Congress the other . This serves only to remind us pain- y that the two remaining members of a at trio, Congressmen Mudd and Moon, e not so much as even opened their uths to yawn for many, many weeks past.

HE ENDLESS THRONG.

Not to speak of the thousands and usands of tourists who are now in Los geles or on the way, it may be remarked t if no one else were coming except egates to the numerous and various con- tions which are slated to meet in this n, we would still be able to hold our ition as the greatest visiting center on th.

OTS OF THEM.

The forces of the Insurrectionists in xico appear to consist largely of hobos n the United States who are willing to almost anything that doesn't involve expenditure of physical energy. It is and warm down in Mexico and it is h pleasanter to demand free victuals at point of a gun than to hang around the k door begging a hand-out.

EWING IT SERIOUSLY.

Putting Congressman Bennett's joke le, and at the same time ignoring the ged facetious remark of Champ Clark, question arises, is the annexation of ada to the United States a possibility, ote, or otherwise? The strategists who always talking war point to the 1,000,- Americans who live in Canada as a leus in case of a fight. But they forget 55 per cent. of the Americans who e gone to live in Canada have fore- rn their allegiance to the United States are now British subjects.

HARD PROPOSITION.

Senator Borah has declared on the r of the United States Senate that "The ro's sole hope of development is in ning the truth." If this be the case, we truly sorry for the predicament in which brother in black must find himself.

rom whom is the negro to learn the h? Did not King David say in his haste t all men are liars? If there were such office as Truthteller to be created in country, we haven't got a man between two oceans who could hold the job for ger than three days at a time without ing the recall worked on him.

O ANNEXATION.

If the reciprocity treaty shall be rati- by the United States it is likely to come grief in Canada. Its injudicious friends this side of the line, under the leadership he New York press, have been urging its ption on the ground that it would act as entering wedge to the annexation of Can- . That suggestion has aroused the ap- hension of the Canucks who are loyal jects of King George, and would not sur- der their status as British subjects for reason.

MUCK-RAKER JAILED.

Literary muck-raking has its disadvan- es—in New York. An energetic contribu- to the Cosmopolitan Magazine, who ote articles exposing the doings and mis- ngs of the American Sugar Refining Com- y, was allowed the run of the office of the ited States Attorney in New York, and mitted to copy documents relating to the ar trust, but was especially cautioned to disclose anything concerning the ngs of the Interstate Commerce Com- sion.

n the course of his examination of the ers, Riley—that was the muck-raker's ne—came across a letter written by At- Gen. Wickersham to one of the mbers of the Interstate Commerce Com- sion. This letter Riley surreptitiously ied, and sold the copy to the Cosmopoli- Magazine.

ARE WE WORSE OR BETTER?

It has been the fashion of late to lament the alleged moral decadence of the American people. We read in the muck-raking periodicals about "the era of commercialism," and how, in the conduct of business, in standards of morality, and especially in legislation and in the conduct of public affairs, we have wandered far from those paths of rectitude along which the feet of former generations traveled. Most of these diatribes are unsustained by the facts, and the truth is rather that the civilized world is better now than it has been in any former period of human history.

The prater prates on the hustings about the wrongs and rights of those whom he calls "the common people," although there is in this republic no class of "common people." The yellow journals are filled with cartoons in which a fat man with checkered vest and a diamond pin which glows like the headlight of a locomotive is pictured as dominating over an ill-dressed shrimp who, with an agonized expression on his anxious face, is groveling before him. Lurid editorials beseech a return of the good old days—

"When none were for a party, and all were for the state,
When the rich man helped the poor, and the poor man loved the great."

A reference to the history of the past will prove that this outcry of the goody-goodies is not sustained by the facts, and that the same "barbaric yawp" has been heard in the market places of all nations for twenty centuries. Aeschines went after Demosthenes even more vigorously than Johnson and Works attacked Herrin during the recent campaign. Hegel avers that after the Peloponesian War, 2341 years ago, Athens and Sparta were hotbeds of public corruption; that offices and votes were sold and—sad to say—the "common people," the virtuous and deluded "common people," sold their suffrages as willingly as the citizens of Tar Flat or the Barbary Coast now part with their votes whenever they can find a purchaser for cash or approved credit. It is a classical joke that the Greeks were conquered by Persian archers—meaning thereby not those who twanged bowstrings, but gold pieces, which were denominated "archers."

Rome decayed, according to the historians, because the beloved "common people" sold out to the predatory rich. Two thousand and seventy years ago even the small landholders sold their holdings and accepted remunerative employment as soldiers in the Roman legions. The vineyards, olive groves and cattle farms passed into the grasp of the money kings, who lived in luxury, while the poor could hardly earn enough to support their walking delegates.

Coming down to more recent times and reading the history of England, we learn from Macaulay, and Hallam, and other British historians that, during the reign of the Stuarts, and later yet of William of Orange, laws and subsidies and tax levies were bought by the Crown from the Parliaments as regularly and as openly as beef was sold in the market places. Even in Elizabeth's reign Lord Bacon sold decisions. Shakespeare said:

"In the corrupted currents of the world
Offense's gilded hand may shove by justice
And oft the wicked prize itself buys out the law."

And again:

"Plate sin with gold and the strong lance of justice hurtless breaks.
Clothe it in rags a pigmy's straw will pierce
it."

Coming down into the reign of the Georges, a poet wrote:

"Hence wretched nation, all thy woes arise:
Avowed corruption, licensed perjuries,
Eternal taxes, treaties for a day,
Servants that rule, and senates that obey."

Goldsmith, just before our revolution, wrote:

"Ill fares the land to hastening ills a prey
Where wealth accumulates and men decay."

At the close of our revolution Cowper wrote:

"The plagues that waste our vitals are peculation
Sale of honor, perjury, corruption, frauds—
By forgery, by subterfuge of law,
By tricks and lies as numerous and as keen
As the necessities their authors feel."

In England, during the reign of George III, Bute carried his measures through Parliament by deliberate bribery, using on one occasion £25,000 from the national treasury for that purpose. The King wrote to Lord North: "If the Duke of Northumberland needs some gold pills for the election, it would be wrong not to give him some assistance." One case of wholesale bribery cost the country £285,000, and another case £900,000, half of which went to members of the House of Commons. Representation in Parliament in certain boroughs was openly sold through brokers to the highest bidder. Ireland, taking advantage of our revolution, forced home rule and a separate Parliament from England, and after the surrender of Cornwallis the members of the Irish Parliament sold their independence for ready cash to England, Lord Castlereagh acting as the intermediary.

Crossing the Atlantic to our own beloved land, the Massachusetts and New Hampshire assemblages of the people declared that courts awarded judgments in favor of the rich and against the poor. Resolutions were adopted in public meetings to abolish lawyers and cancel all debts. In Vermont mobs surrounded the Courthouses and broke up the sittings of the courts on the ground that they were corrupt. In 1786 in Boston the people denounced rich merchants as vampires of state, because they would drink imported wines and wear costly stuffs. The wives and daughters of the Governor were denounced for living without work instead of toiling like common people.

In 1801 the Federal judges were so unpopular that to get rid of them sixteen of the circuit judgeships were abolished. Under President Jefferson, the August term of the Supreme Court was abolished to prevent the court from making decisions in certain cases. John Randolph proposed to amend the Constitution so as to give the States the power to recall their Senators at any time they might see proper.

It is said by a recent writer: "The patriotic men who so earnestly sought to frame a Federal government that would best withstand the test of time, appreciated the danger from direct popular legislation, and, as the debates show, agreed with practical unanimity that a democracy was much less stable and much more amenable to decay through corruption than a representative form of government. Among the names of those who pointed out the distinction and advocated the representative form are Hamilton, Madison, Ames, Gerry, Randolph, Wilson, Marshall, Rutledge, Bowdoin, Pendleton islation were that experience of the past proved that turbulence, passion, partiality, lack of debate, despotism of majorities, insecurity of personal and property rights, intrigue of the designing, debauching of public morals, venality, and destruction of popular government would result if the plan of our government should follow the pattern of the ancient democracies; and the representative plan, with its checks and safeguards, was considered the greatest invention and most important achievement of the convention."

Hamilton said in the Federalist: "The difference most relied upon between the American and other republics consists in the principle of representation; which is the pivot on which the former moves, and which is supposed to be unknown to the latter, or at least to the ancient part of them."

Jefferson said: "Modern times have discovered the only device by which the equal rights of man can be secured, to wit: government by the people, acting not in person, but by representatives chosen by themselves."

The debates upon the Federal Constitution show that legislative corruption was an evil then well known and that it was deemed common in republics. "In Massachusetts," said Gerry, "the worst men get into the Legislature."

Forty even years ago corruption in public affairs was rife. The Erie Railroad scandal in New York, the depredations of the Tweed ring, the Credit Mobilier, Black Friday, the paving of Washington city, the whisky ring graft and other national, State and municipal scandals are fresh in the memories of men still living.

It does not appear that from Julius Caesar to Abe Ruef there has been a single era when men were not for sale or when they could not find purchasers. It is well to denounce corruption in any age and in any form, but it does not appear that the present generation is any better or any wiser than the generations which have gone before.

WOMAN'S SOCIAL HAPPINESS.

Just at the present moment the little lady who is the wife of the King of Great Britain and Ireland and the Emperor of India, is doubtless unable to think of anything in the world, day or night, except the coming of a day in June next when she will stand beside her husband to be crowned a Queen with all the available supply of limelight in the warehouses turned full upon her.

There must be as many as a couple of hundred dressmakers and modistes, not to speak of milliners, lace workers and other manufacturers of female attire at work, right now, on the wardrobe and fixings which are to grace the slim little body of Mary of England at the forthcoming coronation and the receptions which are immediately to succeed that notable event.

Being a woman, and a good woman at that, Queen Mary is doubtless very happy. She stands at the top of the social ladder. The American heiresses who have married British lords and other foreign noblemen will attend the coronation ceremonies merely as the "and others." With all their money they will not be "one, two, three" with Mary.

More than that, the wives of belted earls who are themselves the daughters of other earls, the duchesses and all the miladys in the bunch will also be among the "and others." A smile of recognition from the Queen will raise one of these not only to the seventh heaven, but will also work as a social asset of incalculable value in the future.

Now, you may think that, in view of all this all the other women in the world will be miserable and feel themselves infinitesimal and of no account. But that is where you would be egregiously mistaken.

You see, it is this way. There are worlds within worlds. Her Grace, the Duchess of So-and-So, has her world and she will go to the coronation and depart therefrom as the big smoke in the world which is hers. She is the top-notcher in her duchy and it is a territory filled with other ladies who rank beneath the Duchess socially. From the the lord, the wife of the 'squire, the wife of the rector and at last to the wife of Bill Jones the head gardener, each woman has a little, separate world around her in which she shines as the chief star. By a wonderful and perhaps merciful dispensation of Providence every woman of all these is able to hypnotize herself into a state of mind that makes her perfectly satisfied—all her vanities attended to in a proper manner.

In America, where we have no nobility except the aristocracy of the dollar, the same rule applies. The scale is the same and it works the same.

In every city of America woman's social happiness is provided for. The wife of the billionaire has her world. Then come the wives of the multi-millionaires and the mere millionaires. From that point we can descend the social ladder clear down the salary list to the wife of the janitor in the biggest building in town; and every lady finds herself satisfactorily bestowed.

There may take place on an evening next week, for instance, an installation of the officers of some kind of a woman's lodge. The lady who is to be installed as Madam President or Grand Matron, or whatever it is, has been undergoing for weeks the same fever of dressmaking arrangements—although on a smaller scale—that Queen Mary is undergoing now. And the emotions which surge in the breast of this good lady in an American town are exactly the same as those that surge in the breast of the Queen.

Once in awhile we hear of a woman like Catharine Drexel who gives up wealth, social position and many suitors to don the black robes of a nun. But the instances are extremely rare. A woman's social happiness is the breath of her nostrils—the thing that keeps her going and in a state of health despite corsets, high-heeled shoes, hobble skirts and all.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher.

My magazine informs me, in language fierce and wild, that all the grub that warms me is poisoned and defiled. The bread is doped and deadly; a slice would kill a horse; the cake is but a medley of drugs we can't indorse. The poisoners are busy preparing human food; their game is weird and dizzy, unladylike and rude. The tea that we are steeping is beet and turnip-tops; our kraut is but the sweeping of cheap tobacco shops; the dainty jams and jellies are made of mud and lime; they will corrode our bellies, and knock us out in time. We see the grocer fetch up the poisoned prunes we use; his jugs of mouldy ketchup, that's made of tar and booze. We eat his rotten peaches and chew his shredded wheat, and then our frenzied screeches re-echo through the street. My magazine is frantic, and says we're all at fault; with many a fit and antic, we ought to call a halt. We all should get excited, and chew the rag and yell, till all our wrongs are righted, and everything is well. But I am tired of snorting and fussing all the day, of pawing and cavorting, the magaziney way. With grocer's grub I fill me each day, the whole year long; it doesn't seem to kill me, and I am well and strong.

Tillman's Temperance Tale.

Senator Tillman tells of an old man he used to know who drank too much. He said:

"He was a fine old fellow in other respects, and it was pitiful to see him disgracing himself. One day I read him a long lecture on the sin of drunkenness. 'Water,' I said, 'is the thing. Stick to water, James.'

"'Well,' the old man answered, 'there's only one place in the Bible where a man asked for water, and I guess you know where he was.'"—[Washington Post.

"Well, thank heaven," said the clerk in a downtown office the other day, "our engagement is broken, but I'm not out much."

"How much?" inquired the bookkeeper.

"Well, I spent $1.60 for candy and paid four installments on the ring."—[Philadel-

A Pair of Wings—
Not made to swoop and vaunt,
But plain, unboastful things,
Such as may haunt
Cool airs of dawn and twilight—there, with

But has these skyward things
To soar withal:

Crave these—to rise above my worldliness.

ILL HEALTH vs. PROPER VENTILATION

A prominent physician says "I contribute more than one-half of the present day ills to the lack of fresh air and to the foul atmosphere of the house which contains the poisonous gases and fumes from stoves and ranges and the accumulated exhalations from many lungs."

JOHNSON'S ODORLESS KITCHEN VENTILATORS (PATENTED)

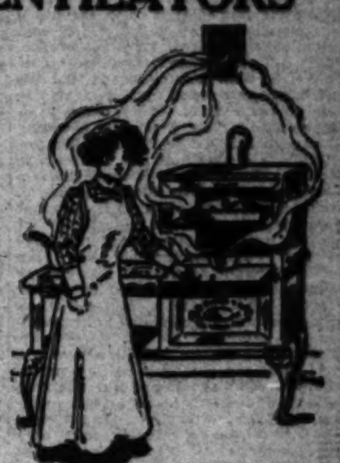
THE OLD WAY

Insure a constant supply of pure, fresh air,—they immediately draw off all the foul air, the fumes from the stove or range, and constantly renew with ozone the fetid, sickly atmosphere. PHYSICIANS EVERYWHERE ARE ENDORSING, AND ARCHITECTS AND BUILDERS ARE SPECIFYING THEM. Their Installation means not only a pure, healthful atmosphere but they render impossible the deposit of unsightly greasy Smudge or soot on wall or ceilings.

JOHNSON'S ODORLESS VENTILATORS MAY BE EMPLOYED THROUGHOUT THE ENTIRE HOUSE



THE NEW WAY

Thus giving complete house ventilation. They can be installed in any home, be it bungalow apartment house or mansion—They operate automatically, cost little, and are guaranteed to give satisfaction. Write or phone today for our booklet, "Johnson's Odorless Ventilators."

THE PUBLIC SERVICE.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

Attorney Goudge yesterday charged certain city officials with granting immunity and entering into an agreement with Vernon hog feeders to violate the garbage ordinance. He also resigned as Alexander's attorney.

The Mayor yesterday sent a message to the City Council suggesting that steps be taken to secure a State hospital in Los Angeles as a branch of the University of California, the matter being now before the Legislature.

The close of the rebuttal testimony of Mrs. Lillian A. Turnbull completed the evidence in the Baldwin contest case, yesterday. The arguments will begin the 28th inst.

At a sparsely attended meeting of the Los Angeles Bar Association held yesterday, the bill of Senator Gates, increasing the number of Superior Court judges in this county from twelve to fourteen, was indorsed by resolution.

A new term trial jury was drawn in Judge Woods' court yesterday, the venire being ordered to report the 23d inst. Fifty names were taken from the wheel.

Police Judge Chambers yesterday upheld the ordinance forbidding the erection of roof signs to a height of more than twenty feet above the fire walls.

Though technically released on a fictitious check charge, G. R. Jones was yesterday placed in the County Jail to await action by the District Attorney.

GOUDGE SAYS IMMUNITY GIVEN.

CHARGES CITY OFFICIALS WITH MAKING A DEAL.

Sensation Sprung at Public Works Board Meeting When Attorney for Garbage Contractor States That Illegal Agreement Has Been Made to Violate Ordinance.

Attorney Goudge attempted yesterday morning to make a statement before the Board of Public Works charging that city officials had entered into an illegal agreement in regard to the garbage contract of his client, Charles Alexander, by which certain persons were to violate a city ordinance under promise of immunity. He asked to be placed upon the public records as denying any part in such a conspiracy.

Goudge would have gone further in his charges, but Gen. Chaffee, chairman of the Board, stopped him. "I don't think the Board cares to hear anything more about the matter," he said.

Goudge protested that it was a matter of personal privilege, as it concerned his reputation as an attorney. He then announced that he resigned as attorney for Alexander and would not again appear in his behalf. His action, he said, should not be construed as a reflection upon Alexander or as indicating any doubts as to the merits of his case.

Charges that Alexander had failed to collect garbage according to his contract were set for a hearing at ten o'clock yesterday morning. The Board of Public Works room was well filled when the hour arrived. Instead of proceeding immediately with the hearing Commissioners Chaffee, Ward and Humphreys withdrew for a conference. They had no sooner resumed their seats than Gen. Chaffee moved that the hearing be postponed until next Thursday at ten o'clock. This came as a surprise to those present. Attorney Goudge asked to be heard. His request was denied and the motion was carried. Goudge then resumed his attempt to speak. He said: "I want to make a personal statement. I want to take this earliest opportunity of making a public statement that I have learned an arrangement has been made by public officials of this city by which immunity is granted to certain persons who violate a city ordinance. It has been arranged that the hog dealers be allowed to carry garbage through the streets without arrest."

At this point Goudge was interrupted and told that the Board did not care to hear him further. After the meeting was over it was disclosed that some one has made an offer to take over the Alexander contract and carry it out according to its present terms and conditions. In fact this individual whose name is kept a secret for the present is in reality in charge of the Alexander collections at present. The postponement of the Alexander hearing until Thursday was granted to give this man an opportunity to show whether he could carry out the contract.

Inspector Humphreys admits the facts which Goudge construes an illegal agreement. "We have allowed the Vernon hog dealers to come in and take away garbage," he said, "because we are confronted by conditions that are a menace to health. Under such circumstances we are justified in taking special measures. All that we want is to have the city garbage taken care of and if Alexander cannot do it we are justified in doing it with as little expense to the city as possible."

LISSNER WANTS MONEY. CURT REQUEST ON COUNCIL.

President Lissner of the Board of Public Utilities has served notice upon the City Council that he must have $10,000 more for the board this year. The board, he says, must have better quarters immediately, and be granted a more liberal allowance from the city funds.

His message to the Council contains the following statement:

"We find that it is impossible to give proper and intelligent consideration to the work of the Board of Public Utilities in the space and with the funds at our disposal. The members of this board are serving without compensation and giving much of their time to the business of the city. They feel that they are at least entitled to adequate quarters and a sufficient fund to meet the necessary expenses of this department.

"We request that your honorable body immediately appropriate an additional $10,000 for the use of the Board of Public Utilities for the current fiscal year and that you arrange for immediate provision of suitable and adequate quarters for this board."

FOR STATE HOSPITAL. MAYOR URGES PETITION.

Mayor Alexander yesterday sent a part of the State University. He calls attention to the bills introduced by Senator Gates and Assemblyman Butler asking for such an institution.

The Mayor in his message says:

"Many people seek our favored climate for the purpose of regaining health. In many instances, these people soon spend the little money they were able to bring with them and become dependent upon the community for proper treatment and care. The Selwyn Emmett Graves Memorial Dispensary and the Los Angeles Department of the College of Medicine of the State University are doing much to help along this line, but their facilities are limited. We need a first-class modern hospital of this kind here, and I would respectfully suggest that your honorable body petition the Legislature to establish such a hospital here."

CROSS-TOWN CHANGE. NEW ROUTE IS PROPOSED.

Members of the Legislative Committee of the City Council practically decided yesterday that the Vermont-avenue part of the proposed cross-town car line would have to be abandoned. There is so much objection on the part of property owners because of the plan to make this avenue a boulevard from the mountains to the sea that it will probably not be considered seriously.

Western avenue is suggested as the street upon which the line might turn north from Jefferson in order to intersect the various lines running west from the center of the city. The entire matter will probably be threshed out at a general hearing in which the Board of Public Utilities, the Council and interested citizens may participate.

MRS. TURNBULL GIVES LAST TESTIMONY IN SUIT.

Further Consideration of the Celebrated Case Is Postponed Till Next Week When the Argument Will Begin — Fair Young Contestant Appears in Court.

The last word, so far as the testimony is concerned, was spoken in the "Lucky" Baldwin contest suit, in Judge Rives' court, yesterday. The rebuttal evidence of Mrs. Lillian Ashley Turnbull was completed, and by agreement further consideration was postponed until the 28th inst., when the argument will begin. It is expected that three days or more will be devoted in appeals to the jury, with the charge of the court to follow the latter part of that week.

For the first time in weeks, Miss Beatrice Anita Baldwin Turnbull, the contestant in the fight for two-ninths of the great estate left by "Lucky" Baldwin, appeared in court, accompanied by her mother, about whose head the storms of bitter questioning in chief and cross-examinations have broken at intervals during the entire hearing that began December 12.

The session of yesterday was devoted to the completion of the rebuttal evidence of Mrs. Turnbull, and there was nothing especially interesting in her testimony. The witness denied that she had ever submitted to the embraces of J. F. Falvey, a foreman employed on the Arcadia ranch, as was intimated in some of the testimony offered in behalf of the defense last week. But Mrs. Turnbull did admit that she received through William A. Redding, on behalf of Col. W. A. Pope, $1600, and acknowledged the eight receipts given therefor. Previously Mrs. Turnbull had denied knowing anything about the receipts or the money—she said she could not recollect. A number of letters passing between Redding and herself were also recognized by the witness.

When the case is resumed on the 28th inst., and without the presence of the jury, a motion will be made in behalf of the defendants (the Baldwin heirs), for a directed verdict at the hands of the jury—in a word, that the court instruct the jury to return a verdict in favor of the defendants, before the opening of the arguments. If this is denied, the speaking will begin.

TERM TRIAL JURY. DRAWN NAMES ANNOUNCED.

The following jurors were drawn yesterday for service in Department One, presided over by Judge Wood, the venire to report Tuesday:

Paul Edwards, S. K. Lindley, C. M. Ward, E. E. Johnson, Niles Pease, O. E. Farish, Robert F. Jones, Horace M. Wheeler, James Watson, Arthur Van Sicke, William A. Baly, William T. Elliott, Myron J. Carr, D. J. Brownstein, F. A. Williams, Michael McMahon, C. D. Cheeseborough, John E. Gray, A. C. Way, M. W. Atwood, William Porter, J. G. Wadsworth, Charles McClure, Fred Hoppe, M. Stauffner, J. VALENZUELA SMILED. PUT AWAY FOR TWO YEARS.

Frank Velenzuela, convicted of attempting to burglarize the barn of Honoria Fanetti in Santa Monica, November 27, was sentenced yesterday to San Quentin for two years by Judge McCormick. Valenzuela said, when asked if he had any reason why the judgment of the court should not be passed upon him, that he was not guilty, but the record flashed upon him by Chief of Police Barretto of Santa Monica, demonstrated that if the accused was not guilty of the crime charged, he had been so adjudged in enough other cases to send him to the penitentiary on general principles.

The record showed that since 1903 Valenzuela has been convicted fourteen times in the Santa Monica court, and that he has spent the greater part of his time since then behind the bars. The records of the County Jail showed that he had been incarcerated there on many occasions, his weakness being disturbing the peace, although his arrest on two occasions was for robbery and attempted rape. But with all that he succeeded in keeping out of the penitentiary. Valenzuela smiled quiet-as official reporter for prisoners who spoke Spanish.

When the court had sentenced Valenzuela, he turned upon his heel, after saluting Judge McCormick in true military fashion, and audibly thanked him, with a smile that covered his face.

ROBBED HER BROTHER. RELEASED ON PROBATION.

Earl Stevenson, aged 22, who pleaded guilty to forging the name of his brother, Walter R. Stevenson, to a $250 check drawn on the California Savings Bank, December 12 last, was given three years' probation by Judge McCormick, yesterday.

It was shown by the statement of Stevenson that he used a part of the money for the purpose of financially assisting a young lady of this city, whose name was not disclosed, and of whom he was enamored. She needed some money; he did not have it, so he signed the name of his brother to the check and secured $250. Of this amount he gave the woman $90, and spent the most of the balance on himself, drifting up to Bakersfield, where he entered the Metropole Club room, and soon lost very dollar he had.

In suspending judgment Judge McCormick gave the young man some good advice, and told him that if the girl is a good woman he ought to marry and support her. G. W. Stevenson, father of the boy, who is a carpenter, testified that he is the parent of eight children. The mother, a little, martyr-looking woman, had a good word for the boy as mothers generally have in such circumstances. Stevenson is a baker and he has been promised employment.

OBJECTION TO NOISE. The First Brethren Church, whose place of worship is No. 412 Miles street, filed a petition in the Superior Court yesterday, praying that Walter Savage, who owns the adjoining lot, may be restrained from renting his premises on Sunday for the playing of baseball. It is alleged the noise and confusion interferes with worship.

FRAUD ALLEGED. The Domestic Utilities Company was made defendant in an action begun in the Superior Court yesterday by C. S. and Ida Brown, to set aside a deed for lots Nos. 166 and 167, Hollywood Park Place, which, it is alleged, were procured by fraud on the part of the defendants.

WRIT DENIED. Judge Cabanniss yesterday denied the writ of habeas corpus in behalf of Fred Lasher, who is wanted in Phoenix on a charge of forgery, and ordered Lasher remanded to the custody of the Sheriff. He will be returned to Phoenix at once for trial.

ISSUES RULING ON HIGH SIGN.

THEATER PROPRIETOR MUST SUBMIT TO TRIAL.

Police Judge Upholds Ordinance Restricting Electric and Mechanical Publicity Devices to a Height of Twenty Feet Above the Fire Wall of a Building.

In overruling the demurrer filed by W. H. Clune, who contended that the police were exceeding their authority in requiring the electric sign on his South Broadway Theater to extend not higher than twenty feet above the fire walls of the building, Police Judge Chambers yesterday morning upheld the ordinance under which the complaint was filed against Clune by the police.

It was contended in the demurrer that the ordinance infringed upon the constitutional rights of a property owner in limiting the height of a sign on the roof of the building.

The police say that there are several cile. I dreamed sweetly all that night of poached eggs on toast and toothsome omelets and custard pies.

But after a week I discovered that the hens were all suffragettes and averse to producing. They began to get thin and their wings drooped. A neighbor told me they were not getting enough to eat.

I had been laboring under the idea that they could be fed from the scraps left over from the table. But I found that this was merely another hennish delusion. Take it from me, a dozen hens cannot be reared on the family garbage. So I bought a supply of bran, wheat, middlings, cornmeal and beef-scraps. I found that by buying in large quantities the expense was less, so I filled my woodshed with hen delicacies.

I fed them lavishly and waited. But the ladies absolutely refused to come through.

Then at the end of the third week, lo and behold! I discovered an egg. We ate it for dinner. It was a fine egg.

Ere the second albuminous speroid blessed our home, two of the hens died. We buried them tenderly. Our grief was somewhat assuaged by the simultaneous appearance of three more eggs. Then another hen dropped her wings, staggered for eight hours, heaved, and passed away.

For the next four weeks the nine remaining ladies dropped fourteen eggs. Then the moulting season began and they gave up altogether.

Disgusted, we fricasseer one old dame and sold the rest at 40 cents each. A philanthropic neighbor offered me $10 for the hennery. Need I say I accepted with alacrity and much dispatch?

I computed the cost of eggs. My eighteen eggs had cost me $52.55 or $2.92 each.

The Vanderbilts, who are reputed paying $1 each for hothouse strawberries out of season, have nothing on me.

The Hobo Ranch.

Chief of Police Sebastian, E. N. Davidson and Mrs. J. B. Lippincott, have formed themselves into a rustic trio of sylvan virtue for the purpose of training wicked men into b'gosh angels.

The sweet influences of nature on the criminal farm near Burbank are to turn the blackest villains into virtuous gentlemen of the soil.

As the sinful ones chase the festive potato-bug, by some transcendental process of logic known only to lady reformers, the wickedness will ooze from them to be borne away upon the murmuring zephyrs.

As they wield the dung-fork and sprinkle guano along the sandy ravines, the wayward ways of the world will no longer attract them. The uplifting influence of gophers and string beans will instill them with sweet and noble thoughts.

The hardened housebreaker will gaze upon the rosy radish, and on his cheeks will bloom a corresponding blush. As he fondly fingers the peaceful onion, briny tears will bedim his eye.

And in the dim religious light and the peaceful solemnity of the evening, as he reverently thumbs his book of common payer, his bucolic soul will expand in gladsome paeans, and he will lean over to his sylvanized pal and murmur gently:

"Aw, t'ell wid dis bunc, Pete! Dere ain't no locks; let's beat it back to de gang."

Pleasanter Deaths.

The bill proposing to make hotel proprietors put knotted ropes in all rooms is a humanitarian one—the idea evidently being that it is easier to die by having your brains dashed out on the pavement than by being incinerated. For only a professional trapeze actor in a union suit could possibly perform the gymnastics on a knotted rope necessary to save himself from a burning building.

If the father of this circus bill really wanted to alleviate the unpleasantness of being burned alive, he might have proposed a measure requiring hotel managers to keep phials of chloroform or loaded revolvers in all the rooms. Either of these methods of self-extermination would be better than skinning your palms and then scattering your brains all over the precinct.

If, however, the bill is passed, it is up to some obscure Senatorial hero to amend it by requiring all guests of hotels to go into training.

This could be done by making every hotel fit up a gymnasium in the basement in charge of an experienced physical director who would train the guests, say three hours every forenoon, in the gentle art of trapeze gymnastics.

Further safety could be assured by another amendment requiring all guests to undress and don tights in the lobby before ascending to their rooms.

In the meantime, until these amendments are made, the City Council should pass an ordinance forbidding all hotel-keepers to rent rooms above the second floor to any but professional contortionists.

On With the Dance.

I think it real mean of Uncle Sam to interfere with the Mexican revolution.

There hasn't been so much mirth in Mexico since Senor Robles gave up his steer tussles at Tia Juana.

And what are the war correspondents going to do when the police arrest these comic opera brigands? The outlook is indeed gloomy. Even the newspaper humorists will have to go back to mothers-in-law and beefsteaks for jesting material.

If the revolution is stopped it will cause untold suffering among the funny men. The show ought to be allowed to go on if only to preserve home industries.

And what if the jolly rebels did steal a cow or two from American ranchers? Even revolutionists have to eat occasionally.

ALASKA'S WONDERFUL WEALTH.

Gold Output Has Exceeded the Purchase Price of the Territory Twenty-one Times.

In the light of our present knowledge it is safe to say that the minerals of Alaska form now and will form for many years to come the greatest source of natural wealth, writes Governor Walter E. Clark in Leslie's. The Russians first thought of the furs, and the Americans first of the furs and then of the fisheries. It was nearly thirty years after the acquisition of Alaska by the United States that the mineral resources began to attract serious general attention. In the last fifteen years the gold output alone has exceeded the purchase price of the territory twenty-one times. The fur products are scarcely ever thought of by nine-tenths of the white population, and Alaska, to the great majority of residents, signifies mines above everything else, and then fisheries and agriculture. The last named is a territorial asset of which even the old-timers in Alaska have taken little account until very recently, and to the popular mind abroad it is not even now reckoned as a possibility in a part of the world which has generally been regarded as an arctic prov-other roof signs in the downtown district which violate the ordinance and as soon as this case is settled proceedings will be started against the other owners.

Police Judge Chambers held that the police were not exceeding their authority and the case was continued until Tuesday, when Clune will appear for trial.

BANK'S ERROR.
HAD EXTENDED CREDIT.

Though technically released when the case against him was dismissed in Police Court yesterday morning, G. R. Jones was remanded to the County Jail yesterday to be held until the District Attorney determines whether Jones will be prosecuted on another charge.

Jones cashed a check for $100 at the Equitable Savings Bank about a month ago, but Judge Rose held yesterday morning that, though the bank teller knew Jones had no actual cash in the bank, the check was cashed and credit was consequently extended to Jones.

Jones is about 28 years old. Early in January he gave the bank his personal check for about $400 on a bank in Ohio. He asked that the check be sent to Ohio for collection and the bank agreed to do so. He then wrote a check for $100 on the Equitable Bank and the teller, taking it for granted that the check on the Ohio bank would be paid, cashed the $100 check. The first check was later returned marked "no funds," and a warrant was secured for Jones's arrest.

Though he "released" Jones, Police Judge Rose said he was convinced that an offense had been committed and, though he could not be held on the charge filed in Police Court, he could be held on the charge which could be made by the Ohio bank.

CASH ARRAIGNED.
ASKS COURT FOR ATTORNEY.

Though it was believed by the police that John P. Cash was insane when he shot and killed Frank Harris at Second and Los Angeles streets last Tuesday night, he has shown no evidence of being mentally deranged since the shooting and he was arraigned in Police Court yesterday morning on a charge of murder.

Cash listened listlessly while the complaint was read to him and then stated that he had no money and would ask the court to appoint an attorney to defend him.

Police Judge Frederickson set the preliminary examination for next Saturday. Cash seems to care little about the outcome.

Auto Too Slow.

So accustomed to flitting through the air that the ordinary speed of a motor car seemed too slow, George Duesler, an aviator, exceeded the speed limit yesterday morning and landed in the University Police Court. He paid a $25 fine. Other speeders who paid fines were: Charles Nelson, David Coleman, G. A. Mansfield, C. A. McNeil, E. W. Robbins, S. H. Miller, O. A. Waling and Lester Anderson.

Gets Another Chance.

Accepting her promise to return to her home and not loiter on the streets, Police Judge Frederickson yesterday morning suspended a sixty-day jail sentence to give Sylvia Vail, a 20-year-old girl, another chance. The girl's mother accompanied her to court and was appointed the probation officer.

CORPORATIONS ARE NECESSARY.

They Enable the Country to Maintain Its Position as a Competitor With Other Nations.

In the case of these large corporations the need is not for their extirpation. By their mere largeness the country does not suffer, John G. Johnson is quoted in Leslie's as saying before the Supreme Court of the United States. Without these corporations prices would be higher, hundreds of millions of men would be deprived of employment and our foreign trade (more and more dependent upon our manufacturers, because of the alarming increase of growth of our population, which consumes our agricultural products) would be destroyed. We should have no chance in the competition of the world for trade with a rival like Germany, the most intelligent of them all, which by settled legislation fosters the combination which you are asked to condemn as criminal. Let the channels of commerce be open for all who may desire to enter, whether with ocean steamer or dugout, with Rockefeller wealth or with naught but their brains and their hands, unfettered by their own improper restraints and uninterfered with by the abuse of others, and all will have been done that is wise. Beyond that lies the antagonism of irrepressible economic necessity and danger of disaster, the length and breadth of which no man can tell.

Use TIZ--
Smaller Feet

Sore Feet, Tender Feet and Swollen Feet Cured Every Time. TIZ Makes Sore Feet Well No Matter What Ails Them.

Everyone who is troubled with sore, sweaty, or tender feet—swollen feet—smelly feet, corns, callouses or bunions can quickly make their feet well now. Here is instant relief and a lasting permanent remedy—it's called TIZ. TIZ makes sore feet well and swollen feet are quickly reduced to their natural size. Thousands of ladies have been able to wear shoes a full size smaller with perfect comfort.

It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. Tiz cleanses them out and keeps them clean. It works right off. You will feel better the very first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. Tiz is for sale at all druggists 25 and 50 cents per box or direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill. Keeping House.

BED-MAKING, SWEEPING, TOO.

First Cottage School Is Established Here.

Pupils to Be Trained in Running a Home.

Girls Will Cook and Also Serve Lunches.

What is believed to be the first cottage school in the United States has been established at the Utah-street school by Superintendent Francis, in accordance with a model viewed by him in the course of his European trip.

Learning how to make a bed "according to Hoyle," to construct a pie with under crust really cooked, or to do nothing one should not do in regard to a properly constituted salad, and to sweep so as not to leave any cunning little germs scampering around looking for a nice warm lung, are among the objects of this model cottage school.

This unique school—this miniature home—which is a neat, three-room bungalow, was built by the Board of Education, but has been furnished by the ladies of the Ebell. It will be formally opened Monday; meantime you can't keep them out—the diminutive housewives of the Russian quarter. They swarmed about the screen porch, they thrust their toes into the pattern of the pretty carpet, they lifted, timidly and wistfully, the dainty curtains which adorn the windows and which they are to be permitted to stencil and embroider, and curiously and reverently they touched the snowy counterpane in the model bedroom and peeped into the drawers of the dainty dresser; all such a contrast, no doubt, to the tenement homes which many of them occupy.

DRESS DOLLS AT SCHOOL.

"Yes," said Miss Emma Ritner, their teacher, as visitors viewed the sewing machine, "they will learn to make dresses and hats," and she showed all the paraphernalia, the drawing boards and the wire bird-cage things you fit the dresses on, and the charts by which you navigate the troublous sea of dressmaking. Fancy a love of a hat reduced to its mathematical terms, and a dream of a gown built on a cold, scientific principle!

They may bring their dolls to the school and dress them if they like, these tiny housewives, but dolls are not much the fashion at Utah-street school—there are generally plenty of real live babies at home, and these they tote to school and leave in the nursery, while they go and patiently learn the scientific way of caring for them. Eager little faces group themselves about their teacher, enthusiastic little hands reach out for the housewifely task.

Late as it was, one little mother of Israel—a Little Dorrit sort of person—sat sewing. She bent over her task—the sewing of a broom-bag, which she wants ready for Monday. She raised soft, timid brown eyes:

"I learn to keep the house for father," she said, "and the seven others that mother has left."

Another whisked about the kitchen. Bright of eye, firm of step, she hastened to put the dainty silver and glass away, touching it lovingly.

"It is only here I see things like this," she said.

Nay, nay, down here, at least, one reflected, the home-making instinct is not dead.

"I learn to dress my doll here," a golden-headed girl said, clasping to her flat little bosom an unyielding child which looked to the unsympathetic beholder like an old nine-pin.

In the bathroom was found another little Russian girl, scrubbing away at the bathtub for dear life, that it might shine like new-fallen snow on Monday.

BATHROOM SACRED.

"The Russians are really a very cleanly people," said Miss Cushing, the principal. "The bathroom, be it said to their credit, is the sacred room, the fetich, of the house. If you call, they offer you a bath as the most gracious hospitality in their power to bestow." The number of baths you have to your credit is a mark of your social standing, and your social prominence is marked by the fact that you have a private bath, in which case you are quite haughty.

In a room over at the main building, was a small boy bent over an old-fashioned loom, and from under his hands was growing a brown couch-cover, to go on the cottage lounge.

The girls, so it is told, are to cook and serve the teachers' lunches, on the pretty round dining table. This is for the purpose of learning how to perform this gracious domestic task. And they will receive and entertain on certain days, that they may learn just how to do these things gracefully.

Out on the porch, a small girl played a jews-harp. She played it prettily, and with real expression. But—it was only a jews-harp, after all. She looked up brightly, and took the instrument from her lips.

"I heard a piano oncet!" she announced.

An ice-chest is a boon on a hot day, and an instantaneous heater is a rest to the weary house-wife. But—a piano's a piano, for a' that. Don't you wish they may have one? Don't you hope they may get it?

GLIMPSES OF SAN FRANCISCO.

[Special Correspondence to The Times.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17.—The decks are cleared for action and all is ready for the world's fair celebration. Two most important things must be settled in the next few weeks. A site for the fair must be selected and a director-general chosen. The people of the city and indeed of the State favor Golden Gate Park as the site, but the fair directors are said to like the Lake Merced region. One of them said to me: "We have not even discussed the site, but we can always have Golden Gate Park to fall back on in case the owners of likely sites prove unreasonable."

Choosing a director-general is just as hard as selecting a site. Three names are being mentioned for this important post. They are: M. H. de Young, James Rolph, Jr., and R. B. Hale. Theodore Bell was mentioned once, but only once. There is considerable favorable talk about De Young, because of his successful management of the Midwinter Fair. One thing is certain, however, that when it comes to architectural matters, D. H. Burnham will have full swing.

Nearly all the heroes have returned from Washington and have borne their floral wreaths in triumph up Market street. Now all we need to complete our happiness is the gold pen with which President Taft signed the exposition bill. When everybody is here, there will be a three days' celebration next weee with a big reception and an equally big banquet.

The race track is closed and a goodly portion of our gilded youth suffers from ennui. The Western Union says that it will lose a million dollars in business. That is a bagatelle compared with what the good things have lost in the past. As a fitting climax to the racing funeral, a long shot at 40 to 1 won the Adios handicap and the bookmakers had the better of it to the bitter end.

The Santa Fe did the magnanimous thing toward the city and made a concession in the matter of rates to the N.E.A. The educational convention will be held here successfully and by attendance at its sessions some of us perhaps will learn a little more than we know now.

Everything is lovely in police circles once more. The horrors of the gambling scandals are fading away and the high-priced guardians of the peace from the chief town to the humblest patrolmen are getting together for the annual police ball on Washington's birthday. The grand jury is making a bluff at investigating police participation in gambling profits, but it is not causing a ripple at the Central Station.

An enterprising manager of a sight-seeing automobile took advantage of the fame attached to the Decies-Gould wedding to exhibit a large sign on Market street, which invited passers-by to accompany him on a trip to Chinatown where they would have the pleasure of meeting Mr. and Mrs. Wong, the latter being the sister of Mrs. Gould. If by chance, Lady Decies should come this way she would have the privilege of seeing that her aunt is one of our attractions.

From little old New York comes a tip that Clay Greene, playwright and clubman, formerly of this city, is to wed a widow there. Furthermore she is handsome and wealthy, with two daughters and a son. Greene has been a widower but a short time so this ready-made family will help to console him for his loss. The lady in the case is Mrs. Laura Robinson.

The Shriners got away all right on their trip to Honolulu with Imperial Potentate Fred Hines of Los Angeles in command. The Matson liner Wilhelmina was given over entirely to the men of the Fez and her ice box was loaded with frogs legs from Hilo, alligator pears from Tahiti and Zem Zem water from everywhere. A ceremonial session will be held on the floor of the crater at Hilo and the water will come in handy then, if any of it is left.

PLUTO.

HEREABOUTS.

Americans will have their luxuries, no matter what they cost, according to George Robinet, pardner of J. R. Mumm, manufacturer of the champagne of the same name, who has been touring Southern California several days. "The duties imposed on wines and other luxuries have in no way affected the purchase of them in this country, he declared. One of the Chicago trade papers, in a story about champagne importations, stated that they are falling off a great amount owing to the fact that the increased duties have caused smaller purchases. Further, the paper stated that American people are being educated to the fact that too much champagne is a bad thing and even a little of it may cause bad results to the stomach. This is all wrong. The importations this year have fallen off about 30 per cent., owing to the fact that all of the champagne producers overimported the year previously in order to avoid the increased duties that came with the new tariff. Our company imported about 50 per cent. more champagne last year than any year previously, but our average for a number of years has not been changed. During ten years past, we have shipped into the United States about 200,000 gallons of the liquor a year." Robinet pointed to the fact that it is becoming cheaper in this country instead of higher. "That California might become a competitor of France in the champagne business interested Robinet slightly. "They can't produce the same quality of grape in this country any more than they can grow as good a prune in France as they do in California. That is the whole secret of why there is little American competition in the champagne business. You can't get the grapes."

Weatherbeaten by long outdoor life, with a voice that might do justice to a basso profundo and smile that covers the lower portion of a rather massive face, A. B. Stickney, former president of the Chicago, Great Western Railway, attracted more than ordinary attention in his peregrinations about the lobby of the Alexandria during the past week. Stickney started out early in life to be an attorney, but being cooped up indoors didn't agree with him and he went into the railroad business, finally organizing his own road. That he was successful goes without saying. He has visited Los Angeles many times in the past, coming here for the first time when it was merely a little place of ten thousand inhabitants. "I'll continue coming through the winters as long as I can make the journey, but I've lived in St. Paul about fifty years and I want to die in the same place. Outside of St. Paul, California is the fine place to come to." By the way of a joke on the rapid growth in this section, Stickney related a little incident attending his voyage several years back to Bermuda. "It was not the voyage itself, but something that was said of the place before I started there. I mentioned to a friend that I was going to the place for the winter. My friend had been there and said, 'Stickney, it's a fine place, but I must say the people are peculiar. They are all of the class which went to Bermuda at one time or another and have been unable to get back on account of the roughness of the journey.' That explains one reason why people stay here. The great sand deserts and the length of the ride keep many of them from ever attempting to get back." Stickney will remain here several months with his son and other near relatives. Of the son, he boastfully remarks that he is much larger than his dad, and Stickney passes the six-foot mark with a little to spare.

American enterprise can win almost anything if properly directed, according to O. F. Kendall, many years at the head of the L. C. Chase Company of New Jersey, who has been staying at the Alexandria with his wife, some time. Kendall has retired from the active directorship of the destinies of the company, which he helped to make the largest of its kind in the world. When the last Boer outbreak in South Africa was in its infancy, the British government called for bids on blankets. Every firm of any size in the United Kingdom and a number of American firms put in its proposals. When they were opened the L. C. Chase Company not only had made the lowest bid, but had also agreed to put the blankets on English soil in less time than any British competitor could finish them." The American company was given an order for 40,000 blankets and in less than six weeks the first 10,000 of the blankets were delivered in Liverpool. This time was so short that a number of the British companies ordered an investigation of the goods, declaring them not up to specifications on account of the brief few weeks to manufacture them. Investigation only showed that the American blankets were of the best possible quality at the price and exceeded specifications. Kendall looked after all the details of this transaction. "In addition to blankets we manufacture the greatest part of the plush, which is used in the upholstering of Pullman cars and velour employed in the manufacture of furniture."

DOESN'T SHE WANT IT?

Disposition of a large estate in Lawrence, Kansas, is deferred by reason of a missing young woman, who is supposed to be in Los Angeles. Miss Ettie Davis left Kansas a number of years ago and went to Colorado, where she was last heard from in 1904. She is supposed to have married Carl Hiatt in Salt Lake the following year, and to have moved here. The police have been asked to find her.

RAILWAY MEN'S BALL.

A ball under the auspices of the Los Angeles Railway Employees Recreation Association will be held Tuesday evening at Shrine Auditorium, No. 658 West Jefferson street.

When her child is in danger a woman will risk her life to protect it. No great act of heroism or risk of life is necessary to protect a child from croup. Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and all danger is avoided. For sale by all dealers.—[Adv.

Develop Your Bust

50c Package FREE to Any Woman Who Wants a Beautiful Figure

Women need no longer be humiliated and embarrassed because they are thin, flat-chested and not developed, for science has found a simple way to give the beautiful curves of a perfect figure. To prove this, let us send you free of charge a 50c package that will show you how easily the bust can be developed from two to seven inches, and become full, plump and firm. This discovery, that is of such vital interest to all thin women, is the result of long study and investigation by one of the leading women physicians in New York State, who, in seeking to overcome the defects of her own figure without the use of "pads" or forms, discovered a happy combination of tissue-building elements that increased her bust some four inches, made her arms round and shapely and her neck and shoulders plump and symmetrical.

This prescription of Dr. Catherine Kelly's is a real discovery on far different lines from the ordinary figure-developing treatment, and this explains its almost uniform success.

Dr. Kelly not only gained a beautiful form by her own prescription, but used it successfully with many of her patients. Women, this is a personal message from a physician of your own sex, and all we ask is the opportunity to show you without any expense on your part, that Dr. Kelly's Form Developer will give you a perfect figure, beautiful complexion and improve the general health. Send the little coupon above and 10c for expenses, and a 50c treatment will be mailed at once in plain package. Write us today. DR. KELLY MEDICAL CO., Dept. 225BA, Buffalo, N. Y.

SPECIAL PURCHASES
that have been made in New York by Mr. J. J. Hag the proprietor of this store, within the past fortnight.

His letter, which called forth this announcement, you may see reproduced below.

The merchandise to be advertised is of tremendously great value and every department has its one has been overlooked. And on every hand you will see the results of what Mr. Haggarty justly
"most remarkable purchases which he has ever made." Merely as an example of what one man, splendid purchasing power and a keen insight into values, can accomplish in a short week's visit
Eastern garment market, these remarkable buys, rushed westward by special shipments, will attendance at this store Monday morning.

First, Then,
The New Suits
Orders are, to price them at ——$15.00——

And at that figure they go on sale, though we should like to mark them at nearer $20, and even then we should be offering far and away the greatest suit values in the entire city. It is a wonderful assortment that includes every shade that you will like, from staple dark blues to creamy whites.

Here Are All Sizes in Blue Serge Suits at $15.

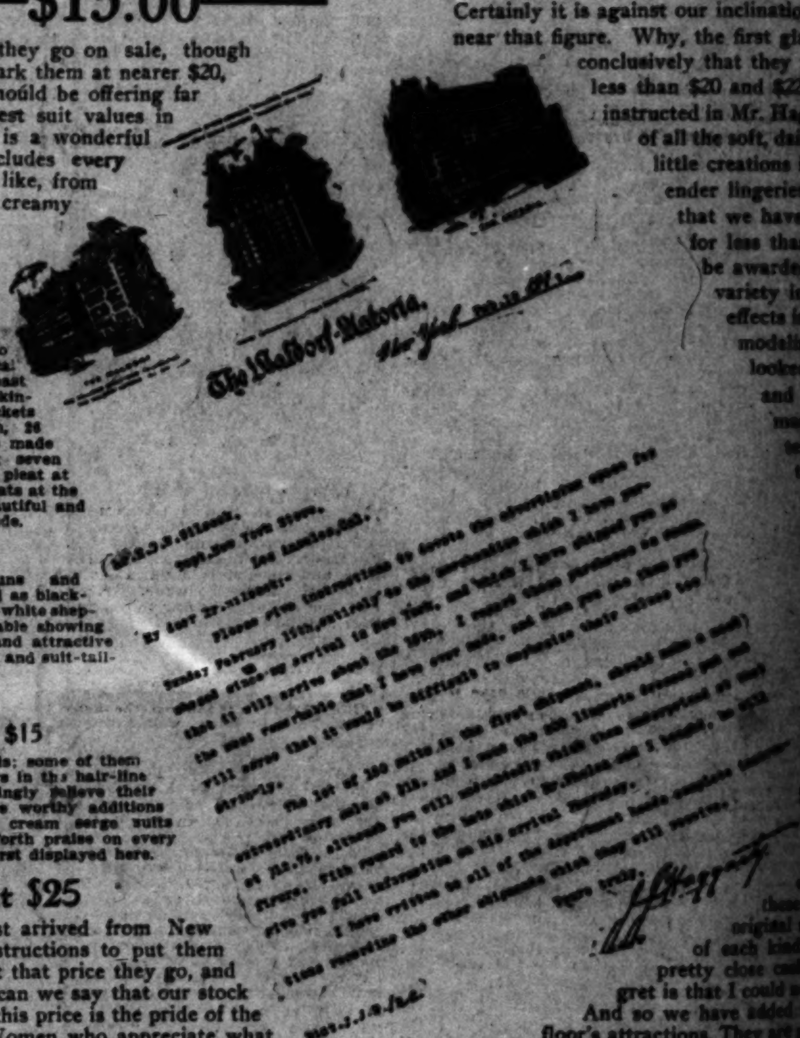
Tailored in a manner to which the most critical could not take the least exception; lined with Skinner's satin. Their jackets are the correct length, 26 inches, and their skirts made after a newer pattern; seven gored, with an inverted pleat at the back and cluster pleats at the sides. A style both beautiful and practical, you will concede.

Also at $15

Are tweeds, homespuns and novelty mixtures, as well as black-and-white and blue-and-white shepherd's plaids; a remarkable showing of what is most novel and attractive in suit-fabric, suit-design and suit-tailoring.

Then there are Cream Serge Suits at $15

The smartest little models; some of them in plain cream and others in the hair-line stripes which so charmingly relieve their light coloring. They are worthy additions to a line of white and cream serge suits which has been calling forth praise on every hand ever since it was first displayed here.



The Waldorf-Astoria.

More Suits at $25

Another shipment just arrived from New York and bearing instructions to put them in the $25 cases. So at that price they go, and now, more than ever, can we say that our stock of crisp suit styles at this price is the pride of the entire second floor. Women who appreciate what is new and smart and distinctive and original in suits have for so long made this $25 line of ours their first objective point when they were seeking garments, that it is an additional pleasure to us to be able to offer them now the best that this display has ever contained.

A Half-Carload of New Waists

That represent careful comparison of the best values offered by all of the best known waist designers and manufacturers, and that are the product of two whole days put in by Mr. Haggarty in a thorough canvass of New York's waist market. That he has wrought well, that his labors have been worth while, was evident to us the moment these were unpacked. And the more we examine them, the more we compare them, mentally, with any waists we have shown here this year, the more certain we become that your opinion of their merit will coincide with ours.

Waists Worth $2.50 for $1.75

In pure linen, and linen of a grade that you would never expect to find in waists retailing for less than $2.50 to $3. And they're hand-embroidered in patterns of very decided artistic merit. Strictly tailored designs.

Waists at $2.25

These are in lingerie of the sheerest, daintiest materials, hand embroidered and made in tailored effects whose like you will seldom find. They are made with the clusters of fine tucks so greatly in demand. $3.25 would not be too high a price for them.

Waists at $1.95

And here are most charming effects in rather severely tailored lingerie waists, made with short sleeves and with a wealth of the loveliest hand embroidery employed in their design. To sell them for as little as $1.95 is to offer greater values than even this department can claim to have set forth heretofore this season.

Learn to Sew!

One of the big stores in our city has instituted a fine plan for its customers. It is a free sewing and dressmaking school. Every woman who buys her goods in this establishment is welcome to come and receive the assistance of an expert in the cutting and making of garments. There are sewing machines, free for their use, commodious cutting tables, and they can come when they wish—either every day until the garment is finished or once a week, or once a month, according to their convenience. They may leave their work there with safety and without charge may have the benefit of the electric flat irons for pressing. The woman in charge of all this, knows her business and has the art of imparting her knowledge for the benefit of those present.

Fashion's Suggestions.

The black or dark blue silk waist which is too apt to look common-place, may be given a touch of something different by stitching it with white. This may be more or less elaborate, as desired. If heavy white silk thread is used, it lends an effect of fine bead trimming and may be made really handsome.

Most of the contrast given to separate waists is through bead embroidery. White is embellished with bright blue beads, or with black, or possibly with a refined pattern in barbaric splendor of coloring.

Heavy cords are also used as trimming.

Gold dust is often sprinkled in the hair.

French knots are very fashionable.

Fringe is prominent on silk street costumes.

Ribbon bows will be trimming for large flat hats.

"JUST SO" STORIES.

By Mlle. Manhattan, in the New York Telegraph.

Sir Charles Wyndham and Miss Mary Moore have established a record for cloistered seclusion while in this country that other stars will have difficulty in eclipsing. I don't pretend to be in the social confidences of either of our distinguished visitors except so far as to have been told by each of them that they were denying themselves to all callers and declining all invitations. Of course there must be one exception to prove every rule, and so Sir Charles and Miss Moore dropped in very informally to have a bowl of tea with Mrs. Sothern on Tuesday, when two or three of the hostess's friends, including Grace Elliston and Mrs. Ben Ali Haggin had a few minutes of super delightful chat with the charming English artists.

Miss Moore was very lovely and young looking, as why should she not be, since Time and she haven't spoken for years?—and Sir Charles had a lot of nice things to say to everybody. He always looks you straight in the eye and tells you how he loves to read your stories, and how he admires the skill with which you are impertinent. Personally I always leave his presence quite bursting with pride, and if you notice a loftiness about this morning's conversation you must excuse it on the ground that your own Mam'selle Manhattan has not yet come down from the clouds and starry skies to which Sir Charles's compliments transported her last Tuesday.

Grace Elliston, by the way, has been receiving felicitations all over the place for her strength of mind and lofty fortitude of character in declining a role offered her by Winthrop Ames to play the part of the mother in "Nobody's Daughter" at the New Theater.

After experimenting with a whole box of wrinkles and the sallowest obtainable grease paints Miss Elliston decided that she loved her art too much to begin playing old women just yet, and yielding to the advice of her friends, concluded to wait a few seasons before playing mother roles to actresses of her own age.

From all I can hear "Maggie Pepper," with Rose Stahl as the heroine, seems to have scored a knockout. I was quite sure of the success of the piece the first time I saw Charles Klein after the production.

Mr. Klein looked exactly like Macaulay's Consul in "Horatius at the Bridge," for his brow was dark, his eye was sad and all that sort of thing. When you meet Klein enveloped in hazy auras of golden joy you may know that his latest piece is one of those triumphs to which you delicately allude as an artistic success—meaning that it is so good, it is coming off the stage after a triumphal run of one consecutive week. On the other hand, when he writes plays that mean a barrel of money heb reathes about him an atmosphere of gloom, and his whole being seems surcharged with woe, because he knows he has pleased the public and demonstrated himself no true highbrow. Since "Maggie Pepper" registered a hit like a Johnson punch Klein is so blue that indigo would make a white mark on him. So I suppose Miss Stahl has another vehicle that will last six years.

Speaking of indigo, azure and things, Marie Tempest is wearing the frown that won't come off these days, and so is Fritzie Scheff.

Madame Scheff came up from Great Stone Gap, or wherever she and husband John Fox exist when they aren't living on Broadway, the other day, and made no bones of her chagrin at losing "The Spring Maid," which was originally purchased by C. B. Dillingham as her starring vehicle for the present season. When Dillingham relinquished the management of Madame Scheff's professional destinies, "The Spring Maid" was offered to her present managers. One play expert reported that it was a predestined failure for America and a preposterously impossible thing. It was, therefore, left on Dillingham's hands and offered to Louis Werba and Mark Luescher for Christie MacDonald. It has

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Kidneys, Free

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, etc.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say good-by forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K552 Luck Bldg., Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

been the most sensational success, with possibly the exception of "Madame Sherry," since "The Merry Widow" and has firmly established Miss MacDonald in the place once occupied by Fritzie Scheff as a foremost attraction on the lyric stage.

Exactly the same history seems likely to be repeated in the case of the stellar vehicle which Messrs. Werba & Luescher have secured for Nora Bayes. "Little Miss Matchmaker," as the piece in which Miss Bayes is to appear, was originally submitted to Marie Tempest as providing a role fitting her abilities like a glove. It was turned down on the ground that the heroine was discovered perched on the bough of a tree in an apple orchard. Miss Tempest doesn't care for apples, and so again the youngest of managerial firms got a winner of a play. Mr. Werba, with conviction like starlight glowing in his young eyes, assures me that it's a "pippin" and sure to prove a twin sister to "The Spring Maid."

I don't know what we shall say when we see Wilton Lackaye in his next role. He is to portray a young Southerner of less than thirty summers, and unless my girlish credulity has been basely imposed upon, the late star of "The Battle" is going to do himself up in a blond wig by way of preserving the illusion of adolescence. This, of course, will prove a wonderful versatility, if Mr. Lackaye can get away with it, but somehow the blond wig conjures up to my bewildered vision a sort of Harry Woodruff effect that I cannot reconcile with the stern fathers Mr. Lackaye has been playing lately.

And by the way, a handsome actor—I can't think whether it was Bruce McRea or Hamilton Revelle—told me the other night a very new Lackayegram. It seems that Mr. Lackaye was putting up what students of the drama call a big road to his manager, who, in discussing the terms of a new contract, had told him that he must accept half pay for the week preceding Easter. Mr. Lackaye definitely listed and scheduled in various vivid phrases the things he would everlastingly and eternally be before he would consent to the cut, but with complete imperturbability the manager, whenever his roaring star stopped for breath, calmly reiterated, "Yod play on half salary for Holy Week. See?"

"Holy Week!" thundered the actor. "Holy Week!" Strike that confusing term from the bright lexicon of hope. It isn't Holy Week, it is half-ly week!"

The manager refused to waive his point, but you can't get a Lamb in all Shepherd Grismer's flock to call the ante-Easter week anything but "half-ly" these days.

Trust Truly Shattuck to be up-to-date and a little wee mite ahead. As I was cavorting through Central Park for a morning constitutional the other morning I saw two agitated park policemen vainly attempting to "shoo" a beautiful vision of black satin tailor costume off the frozen grass. To make the plot a little more Theodore Kremer, there was a wicked scurry of snow flying over the wintry landscape, and the whole effect was of the poor, ruined daughter crouching miserably in the cold wind, with nothing to warm her but the flashing fire of twenty thousand dollars' worth of diamond rings and sunbursts and things. As the vision approached I recognized "Alma, sweet Alma, where do you live?" in the person of Truly Shattuck!

After Miss Shattuck had quite finished telling the park policemen her opinion of them, I ventured to ask why she happened to be creeping about on the face of the wintry world. Waving a very business-like basket in air, and pointing to the sward with a kitchen knife that inspired much respect, Miss Shattuck pouted that she was only tryng to dig up a few dandelions for a salad. The Maryland Club was coming up from Baltimore to have dinner at the flat, and of course every bon vivant of them all adores the first succulent dandelion sprouts of springtime. "That explains my May party," pouted Miss Shattuck, and then she went to hunt for a taxicab to convey her to the nearest market wher grows the crisp and tasty endive.

Beautiful Hair Comes With Dry Shampooing

(From Woman's National Journal)

Dry shampooing always has been and always will be popular with the woman who takes pride in long, abundant and glossy hair. The dry shampoo does away with so much of the inconvenience and bother accompanying washing the hair—eliminates the long drying hours and abolishes the danger of catching cold—indeed, is so all-around satisfactory, that one wonders why soap and water, eggs, etc., can find any followers whatever.

Dry shampoos certainly stimulate the growth of hair. There can be no doubt as to that. Just mix four ounces of powdered orris root with 4 ounces of therox, sprinkle a tablespoonful of this mixture upon the head, brush the powder well through the hair; do this two or three times a week for a while and see the results for yourself. This will keep your hair light and fluffy, and beautifully lustrous. It corrects the conditions of the scalp that cause hair to become streaked, dull, colorless, coarse and brittle.

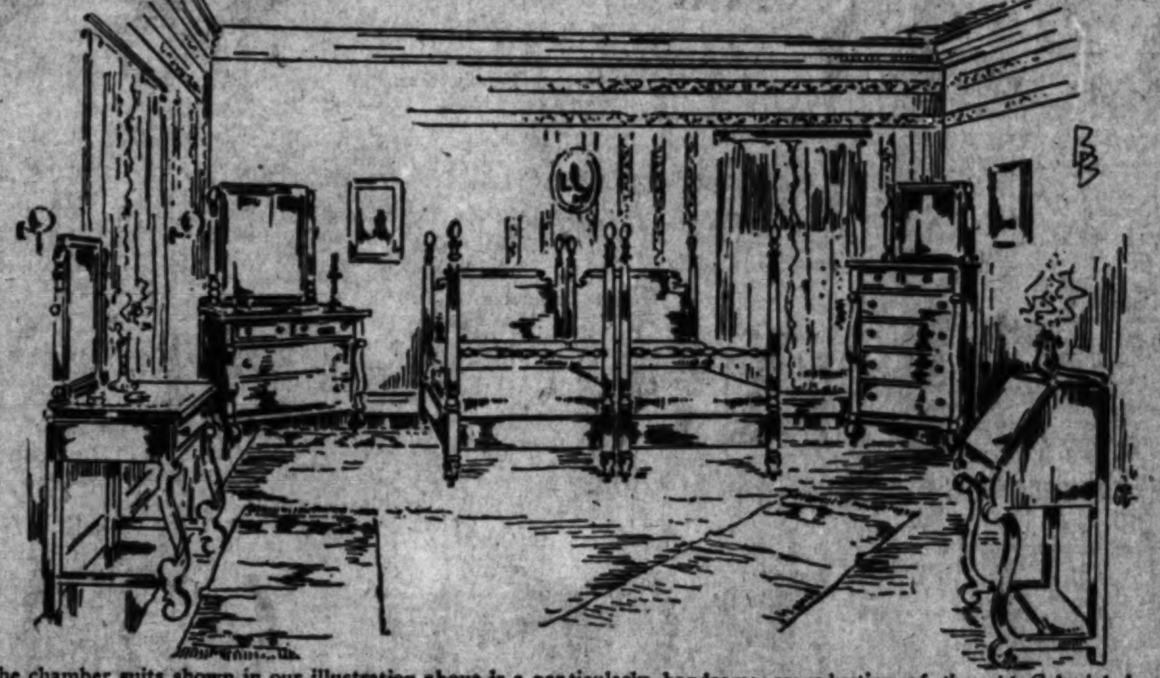
—the Washington Anniversary to Be An Occasion of Special Colonial Offerings and Extra Values In Many Lines.

—It is our intention to make the coming week a memorable one in the display and sale of Colonial furniture. No store in the United States can offer a more representative or complete selection of beautiful Colonial reproductions in all the various lines of furniture than the stock we carry. During the coming week we shall afford an opportunity to choose from a large variety of pieces at prices which must prove a strong inducement to those who are interested in beautiful furniture. . . . .

A home today without its representation of Colonial furniture is indeed unusual. A home might be furnished entirely in Colonial style, and in richness and good taste would be hard to excel. In part, combining with the sturdy mission style furniture, it becomes peculiarly appropriate for the furnishing of a home in California.



—The chamber suits shown in our illustration above is a particularly handsome reproduction of the old Colonial four-post style in the rich, dull mahogany finish. We shall offer this suite, which may be purchased complete, or any of the pieces separately, at prices which, we believe, have never been duplicated upon articles of such popular character.

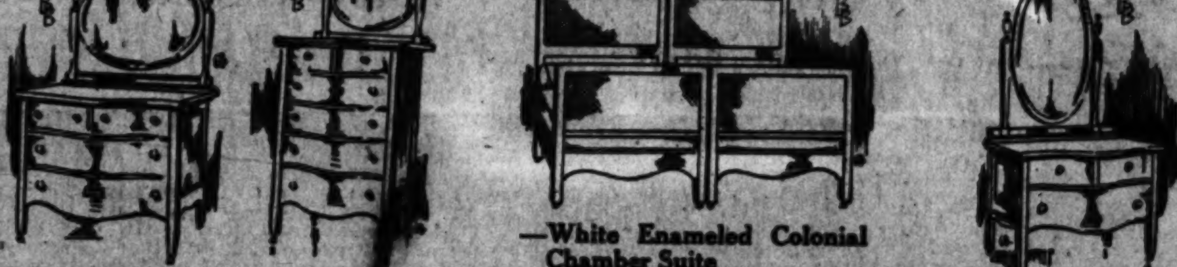
—Desk, shown above; Colonial Week, special at... $15.75



—White Enameled Colonial Chamber Suite

—Seldom have we been able to offer at such unusual prices, such handsome Colonial reproductions as the suite shown above. Each piece in the suite is built of hard maple throughout; the enamel finish is of the very best quality, and the turned knobs and cane panel design is one which is very effective and dainty. This suite, in combination with dainty Colonial rugs of blue, pink, green or yellow tone and enameled woodwork, would be ideal.

—The Dresser shown above—"Colonial Week" special at $23.50

—The Chiffonier shown above—"Colonial Week" special at $20.00

—The Twin or Full Size Beds—shown above; "Colonial Week" special, each at $28.00

—In combination with Colonial furniture, nothing is more appropriate than artistic rag rugs, domestic Scotch rugs and the imported Scotch art rugs. The imported rugs come in very handsome old English tapestry effects in soft rich colors and designs, and may be had from 6x9-foot size to 10.6 feet by 13.6 feet. The domestic Scotch rugs for less expensive furnishing, of wool, are in soft plain effects; these may be had in sizes from 30x60 inches to 10.6 feet by 13.6 feet. The rag rugs in good "hit or miss" effects, and very handsome plain or mixed centers, with end borders, in the beautiful imported cretonne and chintz colorings, are particularly appropriate for bed chambers; these may be had in 27x54-inch sizes to 9x12-foot size.

—Prices as low as $1.50 for the small sizes, and as low as $10.50 for 9x12-foot size.

nent in athletics while at the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., from which he graduated in 1900. As manager of the famous Sewanee team of '98, champion of the South, Lea was anxious to defeat as many of the southern colleges as he could get to play. Texas, Texas Agricultural and Mechanical, Tulane, Louisiana State University and Mississippi, five of the strongest teams in Dixie, were willing to play. But the Sewanee faculty would not allow Lea to make so many trips from the mountain.

"All right," said Lea, "we'll play them all on one trip."

And play them Sewanee did. With only five substitutes, the team with Luke Lea manager, journeyed to Texas, played five games in six days, traveling each night between the contests, and came back to the mountain with a total of more than 220 points to its opponents' nothing.

On his retirement from that office on March 4, Joseph G. Cannon will have served longer in the speakership than any other man, except Henry Clay. He was chosen in 1903 and has been in office ever since, or through four terms. Clay was chosen six times, but not consecutively. His service was broken, but in the aggregate he held the speakership ten years. It may safely be presumed that this is the last time that Mr. Cannon will hold his present office. Born in 1836, he is nearly seventy-five years of age, and as he has beaten all the records in the speakership except that of Clay, Mr. Cannon is probably satisfied with his honors and if he should be in the House when his party resumes control, he will probably be glad to let a younger man assume the anxieties and responsibilities of the speakership.

The members of the Kansas Editorial Association have started a boom for Mayor C. L. Davidson of Wichita for the Republican nomination for Governor. For several years there has been gossip about Davidson being a candidate, but thus far he has kept out of the game.

Fifty-four members of the National Democratic Committee in 1908 are made parties in a suit brought in Chicago for $66 auto hire, contracted in giving joy rides to John M. Kattor, a speaker at the last Presidential election, who is also named as a defendant in this suit.

The Democratic State Treasurer of Ohio has created an amount of perturbation by holding up a warrant on the ground that the Legislature is not legally convened. If the Treasurer's contention is upheld by the Supreme Court, the recent election of Pomerene to be United States Senator will be declared illegal, and he cannot begin drawing $625 a month salary after March 4. While a decision adverse to the present legislative session will invalidate legislation thus far passed, it will cause more concern and apprehension among the Democratic politicians, who brought about the election of Pomerene to the Senate.

Clarence Watson, the new millionaire Senator from West Virginia, has been almost staggered by his assignment to seven committees—Indian affairs, railroads, conservation, Cuban relations, Mississippi River and tributaries, Pacific Islands and Porto Rico, transportation and sale of meat products. Most of his committee assignments were held by Senator Purcell of South Dakota, who recently went out after a short ad interim term.

York County, Pa., has two brothers who are aspirants for the same office, that of sheriff. They are Edward Helb, Democrat, of Railroad borough, and Julius Helb, Republican, of York. Edward says he hopes if he wins the nomination his brother does also, for he would enjoy a political battle with him. Edward is a prominent church and Sunday-school worker, and Julius is one of York's beer bottlers and wholesale liquor dealers.

When Mayor Gaynor of New York registered last fall prior to the election he did not declare himself a Democrat, but left blank the space indicative of his politics. Those who consider they can speak for him, say that, although a Democrat, the Mayor has always held that he is an independent in politics, and did not wish to declare himself as being formally bound to any party.

Senator ad interim Lafe Young of Iowa is finding it impossible to control enough votes in the Legislature for his election. In his anxiety to remain in the Senate Mr. Young has announced his intention of being a candidate for the Senate at the primary to be held in June, 1912, and that he will begin almost immediately to canvass the State in the interest of his election, and will keep up the canvass until the primary is held.

Mayor Gill of Seattle, Wash., who has been recalled by aid of the women voters who had just previously been granted the franchise, has issued a signed statement in which he says: "I immediately ascertained upon the assumption of my office that the price of my official tenure was the surrender of my official independence or a constant warfare with those whom I had defeated at that primary. I chose to be independent, and as a result have been recalled." He was clearly re-elected by the votes of the men who elected him last spring, but the advent of the women caused his defeat at the recall election.

PUTS LOVERS ON EVEN PLANE.

WEETHEARTS' MAIL GOOD AS OTHER LETTERS.

At Least That Is the Position Taken by the Postmaster With Reference to Sunday Delivery of Matter Passing Through the Postoffice. Straw Vote Invited From Patrons.

Sweethearts who are at a distance rom each other and desire to com- unicate by means of the facilities hich are provided by the govern- ent, have found a friend in Post aster Harrison.

He does not consider their letters as ghtly as does the Chicago postmas- r, who declared that all of the mail elivered on Sunday is of a spoony ature and that the addressees have right to demand it until Monday.

Love missives are as worthy of deliv- y on Sunday as the most important usiness letters, as long as they bear e required prepaid postage, accord- g to the local official.

In this expression of his views, Har- son does not go on record as either voring or opposing the suspension the Sunday mail service. He has t taken a stand in this respect.

However, if the postal facilities are osed on Sunday, it will not be be- use the lines which wait for their ail that day are composed of lovers ho are anxious to receive their llet-doux.

"One class of mail, referring to love tters and business communications, as worthy of free access on Sun- ys as the other," said the postmas- r yesterday. "If any of it should delivered, it should all be given to e public, if the necessary postage s been paid."

However, the statements of the Chi- go postmaster may not have been ade without some justification, as e conditions in the Windy City are uch different than in Los Angeles.

The class of persons who make use the general delivery for their com- unications cannot be classed as the ite of the Illinois city.

This is not true here. Annually ousands of tourists, who come to re- ain only a short time, request their iends to address mail to them in re of the general delivery, as they e not certain where they will locate. areful watch has been kept here over e persons using the general deliv- y and it has been found that the atrons are composed only in a very all proportion of people of low aracter.

No official action has as yet been ken as to the agitation to have the cess to mail on Sunday shut off to eryone with the exception of those ho maintain lock boxes.

Business concerns which desire their ail on holidays, newspapers and owntown hotels and apartment uses now annually rent boxes. The oppage of the service will only af- ct inhabitants of the residence dis- icts.

Since the filing of a petition con- ining more than 25,000 names of per- ns favoring Sunday closing, Post- aster Harrison has been making a reful investigation of conditions ere.

"If the public desires the closing, e department is not inclined to com- l its employees to work more on nday than is necessary to prevent ngestion of the mail," he said, in eaking of the matter yesterday.

In order that he may ascertain how e public pulse runs, Harrison has epared a large number of blanks hich have been furnished to all of e branch offices.

To each person who calls for his ail today will be handed one of these ips. It will request him to state his ews as to whether the Sunday serv- e shall be continued or not.

As soon as the postmaster is thor- ghly familiar with the situation, and ith the feeling of the public, he will ake his recommendations to the ostmaster-General.

ERRY FUNERALS IN BRAZIL.

Associations Organized for the Purpose of Attending the Last Services of All the Members.

One of the questions asked by the razilian housekeeper in engaging a w servant is whether she belongs a funeral association, says the New rk Sun. These associations are or- nised chiefly among poor people. Any e may join; membership is secured the payment of a small annual fee. ere are no constitutions or by-laws, d there is only one obligation: Every ember must attend every funeral of fellow member. As the associations ve thousands of members deaths oc- r often, and so Brazilian housekeep- s are often left without servants.

It might seem burdensome to have go to so many funerals, but this is t the case. A funeral in Brazil is happy occasion for nearly all its rticipants. They get a day off, and holiday is always welcomed by the asilians; then they meet their ends and can gossip and flirt, and ll better, whisky and a free dinner e served to the mourners.

They constitute one of the strange ghts of Rio de Janeiro, these funeral ocessions. Rain or shine, long pro- ssions of laughing and chatting peo- e go through the streets. Large um- ellas shield them from the tropical n, and their gay colored dresses ine out brightly underneath.

Neither the appearance of the mourn- s nor the tinny music of the band ading the procession suggests a neral. The musicians play every- ing, waltzes, marches, light opera, t never a dirge. Not infrequently e mourners stop at a fruit stand or bar for refreshment. Only the pres- ce of a hearse distinguishes these neral processions from a joyful pa- de.

On the night before the burial a few embers enjoy the privilege of repre- nting the association at the wake. e windows of the house are always de open. The passer-by can see into a orly lit room. In one corner stands e coffin. Two flickering candles, anding at either end of the casket, row shadows on the floor. A bunch artificial flowers adorns it. It is a rious fact that in Brazil, where beau- ful flowers grow in abundance, hide- usly colored make-believe flowers are eferred.

In another corner of the room there a table and six men are sitting ound it. A smelly lamp stands in the nter, with an equally smelly bottle whisky. It is no unusual sight to e these men busily engaged in a me of baccarat.

In another corner or on the steps the house sit the women with their ick black hair hanging down freely er neck and shoulders, this being the ay to express grief. They spend the ght singing or rather wailing a woful ne. The melody is mostly in the inor key and consists of not more an three bars. The women are pro- ded with dolces or sweets to compen- te them for their faithful waking.

Thus they sit the night through. rly the next morning the associa- n's members gather before the death amber and fall in line. The stranger ho sees the large procession is filled with surprise. His surprise increases when he learns that the dead man is only a poor negro coachman.

"But surely," he says, "he must have been a wonderful man, to have so many friends come mourn him."

"Ah, no," he is informed, "but he spent all his money and savings to join this, the best funeral association. And I'm sure his soul at this minute smiles down at seeing so large and brilliant a procession in his memory."

PERSONAL.

Miss Alice K. Parsons of the Girls' Collegiate school will leave tomorrow for New York, where her sister, Miss E. H. Parsons, is sojourning at the Hotel Seville, awaiting her. Both ladies will go to the Mediterranean and the continent for some months.

Henry Dickinson, only son of the Secretary of War, arrived at the Alexandria yesterday in company with his wife. He came here from Seattle, where he is president of the Dickinson Lumber Company, and it is his express intention to make this a permanent headquarters. "I am absolutely infatuated with Los Angeles and Southern California and want to make it a permanent home place," he declared to a friend. Dickinson is still a young man, just a little on the other side of 30.

L. C. Hamilton, at the head of the Blue Valley Creamery Company, which controls six of the largest creameries in Missouri and Kansas, is registered at the Alexandria from St. Joseph. His company is also in the ice and cold storage business. "It is impossible to keep eggs for a year or two as is frequently asserted, and furthermore it is never done, at least I have still the first case to come under observation," said he. "Storage means merely conservation until the time when certain products are very scarce, when the storage stock helps to keep the prices where they are within range of all. The storage question is nothing more than a mental bugaboo."

"ADIOS."

(To a memory of San Pedro.)

Senorita—when the twilight
Whispers soft of lovers' vows,
And the sluggish bark at anchor,
To the sweep of ocean bows;
When thy wondrous stars are breaking
From their shroud, at close of day—
Think you e'er of him who whispered
"Adios"—and went his way?

Senorita—hast forgotten
Him who claimed thy promise sweet;
World-forgetting, world-forgotten,
Kneeling, pleading, at thy feet;
Hast forgotten? Ah, I answer
With a faith that drowns regret—
"Senorita—thou wilt never Never, never—Sweet, forget."

Senorita—starlight lingers
In thy dark eyes' splended glow;
Roar the breakers on the headland
Where the gulls are swooping low;
Sinks an ensign far to seaward,
Hark! It is the evening gun—
As we wander o'er the sand dunes
Golden in the setting sun.

Dreams—what magic in the gloaming
Carries me across the land
From Atlantic's drear horizon
To Pacific's shimmering strand?
Can a continent between us—
And the years—no hope abate,
Thou who wait beside the western,
I, beside the eastern, gate?

"Adios"—of old was spoken,
'Tis the burden of my song;
"Adios"—thou softly answered,
Didst thou dream—how long, how long—
Could we know—we two—who parted
Where the moon looms through the spray—
We should yearn, in vain, to idle,
By San Pedro's dreaming bay?

Come, my Queen of California,
Lean to me across the years,
Sing, with me, of La Paloma,
Smile, with me, against the tears;
Waft, across the void between us,
Love, a kiss—and bring to me
Visions of that sunny Southland
And the moaning twilight sea.

Senorita—I am kneeling
Sadly—to a memory;
Life denies me all returning,
Granting all, all, all—but thee;
We shall meet, ah, Senorita,
We shall meet, when day is done—
And upon life's deepening twilight
Booms, at last, our sunset gun.

Are You Fat?

You know you can not stay fat, don't you? That is, you can not be fat and be in style. The day when a fat woman was tolerated is passed. Nowadays all women must be in proportion or be ridiculous. This does not mean you should become skinny, however. You should not get below the hard flesh line. All you ought to lose is the bulky fat. That done you will find yourself to be a well formed and therefore handsome woman.

Now, how can this be done? By exercising and dieting? Yes, and no. These two means will bring some results, but not easily nor soon. One is very hard work; the other is torture. Besides, neither can be depended on to cause a uniform reduction. They may take off a fleshy shoulder, for example, and leave the double chin untouched. What you need, you see, is something pleasant to take that without injury to your health will take the fat off uniformly and quickly, say at the rate of a pound a day or so, until it is all gone where you want it to go.

For this purpose nothing is less expensive, safer or simpler than Marmola Prescription Tablets. Inexpensive because one large case, costing 75 cents only, will produce results; safe because they cause no wrinkles or stomach trouble, but rather improve the health and complexion, if anything; and simple, because they do all the work without asking thought or effort on the part of the taker. In short, they are the ANSWER if you are fat and wish to be thinner. If your druggist is of the better kind he will have them. If not write the licensees, The Marmola Company, 235 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

PERFECT HEALTH WITHOUT MEDICINE

Oxygen, the Greatest and Most Perfect Curative Agent in Nature, Made to Perform Miracles in Bringing Health to the Afflicted, with Little Regard to What the Disease may be, by Means of

"The Oxygenator"

Do You Know that Oxygen is the Essence of Life and Health? It is Oxygen that Imparts Life and Energy to the Blood. What the System Needs is Oxygen to Vitalize the Blood and Clear Out the Germs.

The OXYGENATOR can overcome nearly every disease with Oxygen. A thousand people here in Southern California will indorse FROM THEIR OWN EXPERIENCE these testimonials:

Asthma, Catarrh and Constipation

Redlands, Calif., Jan. 20, 1910.

The Oxygenator Co.,

Gentlemen: I wish to tell you of the great amount of benefit that I have received from the OXYGENATOR that I purchased from you a few months ago. I have been using it for Catarrh, Insomnia and Constipation. I now get a good night's sleep and feel fully rested in the morning and my Catarrh of several years' standing is almost entirely cured. For the past fifteen years it has been necessary for me to depend upon laxatives for my bowels, but since using the OXYGENATOR I have dispensed with drugs entirely. The OXYGENATOR that I purchased for my daughter-in-law for a Christmas present, in Iowa, is giving splendid results for Asthma. I am now eighty-two years old and my only regret is that I did not own an OXYGENATOR years ago.

Sincerely yours, (Signed) A. D. COOPER.

Nervous Headache

Redlands, Cal., Aug. 13, 1910.

The Oxygenator Co.,

Gentlemen: Through the influence of friends, who have been benefited by the oxygenator, I decided to obtain one for my wife, who had been afflicted with nervous headaches for several years. We have every reason to be grateful for buying it, as it not only permanently cured the headaches but has improved her health in a great many ways.

In my case, having suffered two weeks with bilious fever, I was compelled to give up work and go to bed. I had a fever of 103 degrees. Learning that the Oxygenator was recommended for fever, I applied it to my case, with the result that I was back in the office the next day feeling as well as ever. We have used it on children for acute ailments and it always gives immediate results. I consider buying the Oxygenator the best investment I have ever made and would not be without one under any consideration.

Very truly yours, (Signed) H. S. GAINES,
23 Sonora St. Mgr. Russ Lumber Co.

Neuritis and Insomnia

Cor. Orange and Citrus, Redlands, Cal., May 15, 1910.

The Oxygenator Co.,

Gentlemen: On the 12th of September, 1908, I purchased an Oxygenator at your office for my wife, who has been afflicted for several months with a severe attack of neuritis and insomnia. Previous to purchasing an Oxygenator we had exhausted all other means to get relief, and as a last resort we decided to try Oxypathy. From the first treatment she began to notice beneficial results, and the pain which could not before be relieved by continuous use of morphine, now began to diminish rapidly and after two weeks she was absolutely free from pain. She continued the treatment as per directions and in less than two months she was in perfect health, with the whole nervous system built up to its normal state.

Personally, the Oxygenator has cured me of a very annoying case of muscular rheumatism in less than one month's time. The Oxygenator has already saved me many times its cost, and money could not induce me to dispose of it unless I could procure another one.

You have my permission to use this communication in any way you wish, as I consider it an honor to be able to indorse a curative agent that possesses so much merit and represents such a noble cause. C. L. JEWELL.

A Family Doctor

Los Angeles, Cal., May 26, 1910.

The Oxygenator Co.,

My Dear Friends: We have tried the Oxygenator for two months and can say it is a wonderful life saver as well as life preserver.

It has kept the sick from dying and the well from getting sick. It has been tested in a severe cold for my sister who is here from Indiana, who has never before known what it is to have it broken up, but was always laid up from a month to six weeks. In this case it commenced with a severe cough and sore lungs, at other such times she could not sleep at nights for coughing, but after applying the Oxygenator, slept all night without coughing and in three nights the trouble was entirely broken up. We also tried the Oxygenator in case of vaccination of this sister's little boy, who was in a terrible fever, running high, and sick at the stomach. In 20 minutes after applying the Oxygenator, the fever lessened, the stomach ceased its heaving, and before morning the fever was entirely gone and by nine next morning the little boy was out of bed and his arm was soon well.

We also used the Oxygenator for any one of the family who might be too tired to sleep at nights. Its restful influence in the morning was felt not alone in the morning, but fully realized throughout the day.

It is certainly a wonderful invention, and we can recommend it to any one sick or well, young or old.

Sincerely yours for the advancement of the Oxygenator.

Nervous Breakdown

Panzer-Hamilton Cornice Works,
137 Rose Street,
Los Angeles, Sept. 23, 1910.

The Oxygenator Co.,

Gentlemen: Having completely collapsed with nervous prostration and finding absolutely no relief in any way from doctors, I decided to try an Oxygenator as a last resort. After using it for ten days I was able to resume my business. After a few days' rest I again applied the Oxygenator with the result that in one month's time I am in perfect health, have complete control of all nerves, and the brain is clear for business. I can fully recommend the Oxygenator for all business strain and nerve pressure.

Yours truly, JOHN C. PANZER.

Sciatic Rheumatism

So. Cal. Oxygenator Co.,

Gentlemen: The Oxygenator I purchased from you on June 17, 1910, is doing fine work. I am feeling better and improving every day. Have more energy. I have been troubled for many years with pains in my back and tried oils and plasters without any relief, but now have much pleasure in telling you that the Oxygenator is a wonderful machine.

On the 28th of last month I lent the Oxygenator to a friend of mine who was taken with a severe attack of lumbago; in three days he was well.

On the 3rd of this month I also lent it to a lady who was taken suddenly ill with a violent fever. Skin hard and dry; in fifty minutes she was perspiring freely and next day was doing her work.

A Pacific Hospital Graduate Nurse, Whose Patient Bought an Oxygenator for Paralysis, Wrote to us After Six Months'

Speaking from a Graduate Nurse's point of view, having had eight years experience in therapeutics both in Institutional and private nursing, I feel able and desire to express my opinion of the OXYGENATOR.

Have tried for various ills, acute as well as chronic; can truthfully say it accomplishes RESULTS where doctors and medicine fail.

I have given my undivided attention to Oxypathy the past six months, and find it never failing; results WONDERFUL in acute conditions, for instance, Tonsilitis, Indigestion, Headache, Billiousness, Insomnia, etc., a treatment ALWAYS giving prompt relief, whilst results in chronic and long-standing conditions are equally marvelous. THESE ARE MY OWN OBSERVATIONS.

I am becoming more enthusiastic over Oxypathy and wish to give it my time and attention in the future, regardless of my own medical profession.

ANOTHER ONE WRITES

My Dear Mr. Clarbour: "I want simply to say to you, the Oxygenator purchased from you six months ago is doing its work gloriously. I find after fifteen minutes' application the most excruciating Locomotor Ataxia pains disappear, and my friend sleeps peacefully."

A Physician's Experience with an Oxygenator

Although it is natural that a physician should oppose the introduction of OXYPATHY, the following are only two out of hundreds of similar letters:—

Statement from a Physician

COLUMBUS, O., U. S. A., Oct. 4, 1910.

THE OXYGENATOR CO.

Gentlemen:—You ask my opinion relative to the treatment of disease. I am strongly of the opinion that we are fast approaching the time when the introduction of poisonous drugs into the system will become obsolete. Drugless systems of treatment are fast superseding the old line methods. It is well known that Oxygen is a great germ destroyer, and when introduced into the system in sufficient quantities assists in disintegrating waste material that has accumulated in the system through diseased conditions, strengthens and sustains the nervous system, purifies and increases the circulation of the blood.

I was called to see a child, 4 years of age, suffering from Membranous Croup. The child was rapidly approaching a very critical condition. Medicines as usual were destined to make a failure in this case. I applied an Oxygenating instrument, placing one of the treating plates at the pit of the throat at 3 P.M. I did not think the child would live from hour to hour. The case was given up at 10 P.M. The treatment, however, was faithfully persevered in. The following morning, to my great surprise, I found the child coughing up membranous casts, large quantities of disintegrated matter, and had slept two hours and desired something to eat. I believe that Oxypathy saved the child's life.

I have also used this instrument with excellent success in the treatment of Nervous conditions.

Sincerely yours,
C. H. SHIMER, M.D.

The Doctor's Opinion

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 17, 1910.

THE OXYGENATOR CO.

Gentlemen:—This is to briefly state in reference to the remarkable recovery of Mrs. John Williams, at Norwood, from a case of "Neurasthenia and Embolism" by the use of the Oxygenator in regular course of treatment.

Mrs. Williams's condition was well known to me for the last thirty-five years, during which time a number of physicians attended her, but with little improvement.

When I called to treat her last July she was a nervous wreck with no sleep or appetite, her mind weakened, temperature 104, pulse 96, respiration 60, and suffering tense pains in every limb, head and Atrophy nerves; in fact, she begged me to give her something that would put an end to all her miserable sufferings forever.

At that time her son Fred, a Government Surveyor, told me how the Oxygenator had cured him, and wanted to use the Oxygenator on his mother, to which I consented for a trial. To my surprise, after a short course of treatment, she recovered.

Mrs. Williams is past 70 years of age, but since her recovery has gained wonderfully. Her nervousness and pains disappeared, gained 20 pounds in weight, from 6 to 8 hours sound sleep every night, and a very good appetite, which I consider very remarkable. I do not hesitate to recommend your Oxygenator, and you are at liberty to publish my statement, for if it could help Mrs. Williams, I believe it would help in almost any case of disease. Respectfully yours,

The New Science Which Kills Disease By Oxygen

Oxypathy is the science of removing disease from the human system by the use of nothing but oxygen.

Oxygen is what gives the blood vitality. It is the heat producer.

It is the deadly enemy of all that is wrong with which the blood comes in contact.

It fights congestion, and scientists tell us all disease is congestion. That is, the blood in picking all the waste matter, the germs or what not in the system, frequently piles up at some point where the body is weak. The joints get weak and become unable to throw off "the ashes of life," the waste or poisons, and the blood deposits there more of them in passing. That is what is known as rheumatism. In a similar way all the other diseases of the body might be described. It is congestion causes liver, lung, heart, bowel, joint and muscle diseases.

Congestion means that there is a lack of oxygen in the body. With plenty of oxygen there could be no congestion.

The first thing to do in any disease, then, is to increase the oxygen in the blood.

This can only be done by putting the body in condition to draw the oxygen out of the air into the body.

This is the work of the Oxygenator. It is not a so-called "cure." It is something higher, greater, nobler.

"Charges the Blood With Oxygen"

Blood, red blood, means joyous health when it goes rushing, rippling, from the ends of the fingers to the tips of the toes and everywhere, actively attacking the little decayed, dead waste, poisonous odds and ends that the body is always accumulating, and washing them away as a spring rain washes away the refuse of winter.

But to be thus red and alive, the blood must be charged with that life-giving element—Oxygen.

Without Oxygen the blood is blue, sluggish and weak. Without oxygen it is unable to clean up and wash out the hundreds of little tissue crevices of the body. Without oxygen the poisonous refuse will keep on collecting and clogging these tissues until pretty soon some poison will begin to ooze out of one of these festering spots. Then back goes all the filth to flow a black, muddy current of disease through the whole body.

To be well, then, give your blood oxygen. Oxygen cannot be given as a drug or by means of drugs.

The only successful method ever discovered for oxygenating the blood is the Oxygenator.

By means of this new, natural, drugless home treatment, the body is "polarized," and becomes at once a strong attractor for the free oxygen which abounds in the air about us. This oxygen is drawn to the body, and absorbed through every one of its 3,000,000 pores in the skin, oxygenates the blood, burns up its impurities, opens up the clogged tissues and gives every part of the body alike a thorough house cleaning until complete vigor and health are restored.

Never Wears Out and is Always Ready For Instant Use.

The Oxygenator saves pain, time, trouble, travel, danger, anxiety and money.

In severe cases, it frequently saves its entire cost in a single siege of sickness.

It is without question one of the greatest economies that can be installed, because:

After it is once bought there is no more expense connected with it.

It is always ready for instant use.

There is nothing about it that can possibly wear out, except the cords, which can be replaced for about what an ordinary prescription would cost. These cords are good for many years of service.

It saves you sitting by with a feeling of helplessness when your dearest ones are slipping rapidly from you into the yawning "bourne whence no traveler returns."

You can apply the Oxygenator yourself with the absolute assurance that it will not, cannot, do the slightest injury or harm, and that it will do all that possibly can be done by any person or device to save your loved ones.

It saves the constant worry and dread always present when we know that those nearest and dearest to us have been exposed to contagion, overwork or strain, for the remedy is always at hand, easy to apply, and is quick and safe in its results.

If you have bidden goodbye to all medicines and are using ONLY the Oxygenator, you are helping nature ALL THAT SHE CAN BE HELPED OLD-TIME WARRIORS.

There are living today in grass-thatched, dirt-floored huts in the section around Zapata a number of Mexicans who were commissioned officers in the revolutionary army of Catarino Garza, the leader of an unsuccessful revolt against Mexico twenty years ago. Patiently tending his little flock of goats in the rough hills just above Zapata is Maj.-Gen. Jose Maria Longorio, who was commander-in-chief of Garza's army during the several months of its existence.

Gen. Longorio still wears his military title proudly. Notwithstanding the fact that he was arrested for violating the neutrality law in the closing days of the Garza uprising and served two years in the Federal prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., upon conviction for the offense against the government, he looks back upon his experience of twenty years ago as something to be proud of. He was a goat herder at the time Garza issued him his commission as major general of the revolutionary army and when he got back from prison he resumed his old vocation.

Scattered all through the lower border section are Mexicans who were with the Garza forces. These men knew little of what they were fighting for when they attempted an invasion of Mexico twenty years ago, and those who are joining in the movement against the government of that country at this time are no better informed as to what are the principals or issues of government that are involved in the present contest.

PATROL HELPS MUCH.

The presence of the large force of United States troops upon the border is having a salutory effect upon the revolutionary agitators who were insidiously circulating their revolutionary propaganda among the people of the ranches and little towns. The military patrol now covers every mile of the river front. While it is possible that straggling bunches of armed men may get through the line of mounted guards there can be no invading movement of consequence from this side of the river, so thorough is the patrol being maintained.

In the localities where railroad outlets have been obtained the Mexican population along the Rio Grande are made content by constant employment at good wages. Practically all of the labor of the scope of territory, 1200 miles long and 200 miles wide, is performed by Mexicans. In the valley below here around San Benito, Harlingen, Mission and Mercedes, where the construction of a railroad a few years ago enabled the reclamation of many thousands of acres of land, hundreds of Mexicans are employed upon the farms at good wages. Many of these men have participated in revolutions against Mexico in the past, but with the awakening of industrial life in that region they are showing no disposition to again try their hand at the war game.

With the vigorous enforcement of the neutrality law all through the border territory there is little prospect of the ranks of the revolutionists being augmented to any great degree by recruits from this side of the river. In the back country, fifty to seventy-five miles from a railroad, the simple-minded Mexican goat raiser is continuing his pastoral pursuit without any indications that the troubles on the other side of the Rio Grande is interesting to him.

Quarrel Between Carpenter and a Laborer Leads to Latter Having His Leg Broken.

In a heated argument Friday night as to which was the finer gentleman, I. B. Copeland of No. 847 East Twenty-third street, an elderly man, struck A. H. Mathews of No. 116 East Twenty-fourth street with a shovel, knocking him under the wheels of a passing wagon, which broke Mathews's leg at the knee.

Mathews, a laborer, and Copeland, a foreman carpenter, were on their way home on a San Pedro-street car. Copeland carried a couple of shovels and an old broom. As they moved to the front of the car, approaching their corners, Copeland's shovel accidentally rubbed against the skirt of a woman passenger, which gave offense to the chivalrous spirit of Mathews.

"I'm as much of a gentleman as you are," retorted Copeland to the other's remonstrance, and the quarrel was on.

As the two men stepped from the car Copeland let swing his shovel, and Mathews went down just as a wagon came along.

Deputy Sheriff J. B. Cambell, who was on the car, checked the shovel swinger by announcing himself as an officer, and the two fighters were placed in an automobile and sent to police headquarters. Mathews was taken into the Receiving Hospital, while Copeland was sent to the County Jail on a charge of battery.

YOUR HEALTH DEMANDS IT.

Plenty of Pure Drinking Water as Necessary as Plenty of Pure, Wholesome Food.

Puritas Distilled Water the Only Reliably Pure Water Obtainable Hereabouts.

We pay great attention to matters of health nowadays. We make it a point to see that our homes are sanitary and healthful. And we search far and wide to secure wholesome, palatable foods.

Some people are careful about the water they drink, but the majority are careless in this respect. They have not yet realized that PURE DRINKING WATER IS AS ESSENTIAL TO HEALTH AS PURE FOOD.

Impure water brings illness—we all recognize that. Yet, if the drinking water most convenient to us LOOKS clear, we drink it without question, though it may contain both vetetable and mineral impurities that we cannot see.

Practically all natural drinking waters in Southern California are thus impure. And especially is it true that they contain minerals. These waters flow through an alkaline soil, and the minerals become entirely dissolved in them. Thus the mineral water is not visible to the eye, but we often note it in the "brackish" taste of the water.

These minerals cannot be taken from the water by any mechanical process. The nature of the water must be changed in order to free it from impurities held in solution. When taken into the system, they are a fertile cause of rheumatic and kidney troubles. The best medical opinion today agrees with this.

In Puritas Distilled Water, you have a drinking water that is asbolutely "soft" and pure. It contains no mineral or vegetable impurities. It is just pure, wholesome, sparkling drinking water.

We distill Puritas twice, because double distillation is essential to water purity. We aerate it with pure ozone, secured by passing a current of electricity through filtered air. We bottle Puritas in clean glass demijohns, so that it may reach you pure and clean.

Puritas is so inexpensive that every family can well afford to have it. Five gallons cost but 40c delivered within the old city boundary lines. At outside points the cost is a trifle more, owing to the long haul. Regular Puritas customers purchase Coupon Books, thus securing the pure water at a discount.

When you telephone, ask us about these—Home 10053; Sunset, Main 8191.

Puritas is obtainable through dealers in most towns in Southern California. If you are unable to secure it easily, do not accept any substitute for Puritas. Just communicate with us, and we will see that you are supplied.

Redondo Hotel to Be Run by Judge Wells During the Stay of the Red Sox—School Excursion.

REDONDO BEACH, Feb. 18.—Arrangements were made today by Manager T. B. Bassett of Hotel Redondo to sub-lease the hotel to Judge L. F. Wells for forty days, commencing Monday. Pending the negotiations for the sale of the hotel to eastern parties this change is made to arrange for the entertainment of the Red Sox party to arrive next Thursday.

Judge Wells, who has had charge of all local arrangements for the visit of the famous ball team, will now take charge of the hotel during their stay. W. A. Whitten will manage the dining-room.

Mr. Bassett leased the hotel last June for a period extending until next September. It is understood the change is made to facilitate the financial arrangements.

There was no session of the high school today that the students might enjoy a trip to the summit of Mt. Wilson. The boys of the school accompanied by Principal C. A. Longworthy, Prof. J. Wesley Combs and Prof. B. Eagan, left at midnight to make the ascent and see the sunrise.

IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

SUPT. FRANCIS and Asst. Supt. Karr left on Saturday for Mobile, Ala., to attend the National Convention of State, County and City Superintendents.

While in the East, Supt. Francis will visit Washington, Philadelphia, New York, Rochester and Chicago for the purpose of investigating school methods in these cities and particularly to look into social settlement work in connection with educational centers. Ungraded and special schools will also receive considerable attention from Supt. Francis, during his stay in the East.

The model bungalow furnished by the Ebell Club in connection with Utah street school, was completed and ready for occupancy on Thursday. It is the intention that two of the school teachers shall reside there and make of this social center a practical example of what a home should be. In assisting with the household arrangements, the girls of the school will learn modern methods and it is hoped that a center of this kind in this locality will instill a spirit of true home-keeping on the highest lines.

Much interest is shown in the series of meetings for the discussion of civic affairs, the first of which will be held on Tuesday next at 4 o'clock, at Blanchard Hall. Members of the Political Equality League will address the audience of teachers. "Immigration and Housing" will be the next theme taken up; to be followed by "How to Build a City." Speakers well versed in each subject will present interesting facts and problems.

The exhibit at Gardena High School attracted a number of visitors from among the educators and proved most interesting. Supt. Francis, Deputy Superintendent Moulux, Asst.-Supt. Grant Karr and Messrs. Bettinger and Dozier of the Board of Education, examined the products of the Agricultural High School. Principal Clayton of San Pedro High School also paid Gardena a visit. The gardens and fields, propagating houses and lath houses were prime objects of interest. Some of the students come from the city each day for the purpose of learning about farming, horticulture, landscape gardening and the propagation of plants and trees. Mr. Palmer, who is in charge of this branch, has a fountain of knowledge and enthusiasm regarding the subjects over which he presides and holds the interest of pupils who are in other lines rather averse to hard work. There are well-tended gardens filled with all kinds of vegetables, fields devoted to the experimental culture of different kinds of grains, young orchards under way, and a laboratory for testing soils. One of the principal features about it all is the fact that almost without exception the improvements have been made by the boys themselves. They built the lath house, the cloth house, the soil laboratory, the mushroom house and cemented the tennis courts. A glass house is hoped for in the near future. The study of agriculture is about evenly divided between the boys and the girls, although the domestic science department under Miss Magee is a magnet for the latter. A noticeable feature of this department is that both in the preparation of menus and in the making of garments the exact cost of all articles is given, thus instilling practical economy as well as theoretical. Indoors, there is evidence of the love of the agricultural work in the neatly boxed government bulletins which form a library in themselves, the boxes having been made by the students, and also in the well-arranged seed, plant and flower catalogues which form an equally interesting and helpful library. A beginning class in entomology has produced some creditable charts showing enlarged the parts of insects and have here as elsewhere applied the manual arts, making the mounts for the display of specimens. The boys are at present employing their inventive genius in the manufacture of kites preparatory to kite day, a feature in all the public schools.

The members of the class in mathematics, under Mr. Rowell, have devised a series of games in algebra. A deck of cards containing problems and their answers forms the basis of each game; but much originality is shown in the combinations and methods created by different members. So unique is the Gardena Agricultural High School and so obviously useful in the community, that one is impressed with the idea that there should be more such institutions, or that the scope and facilities of this one should be enlarged. Principal Lillard is truly the man for the place—full of genuine love and respect for the work, ready to make sacrifices for the advancement of it and able to imbue those about him with enthusiasm, he cannot fail to make the school a success. "It is our intention," said Mr. Lillard, "to apply as we go along, all the principles that we teach. We want to make real farmers, nurserymen, seedsmen, florists, landscape gardeners. We mean to fit our students to actually engage in these occupations. We have already convinced our neighbors of our practical ability to the extent that we have arranged with several owners of orchards to allow our students to do their spring pruning of fruit trees. It is our ambition to ultimately have enough trees of our own, of all kinds, so that students may learn trees from the seed to the fruit, by actual contact rather than by theory. We shall also take up the study of bees, poultry and animal industries in the same practical manner as we become equipped for it."

To move an entire school library in the space of fifty minutes was what Polytechnic undertook on Wednesday last. The feat was accomplished as planned and as soon as the books were ensconced in their new home they were ready for use in their places. A unique method was employed in doing this. It was a plan devised by Miss Fagge, the Polytechnic librarian, and it worked to perfection. A line of students was formed and each carried his quota of books up the stairs to the roof story, laid the books in their proper places and passed on, to return with another armful. About 600 students moved the library of over 3000 volumes in less than an hour.

As the shelving had also been transferred, it had been necessary to remove the books from their original places, and it was an example of system planned to a nicety to restore them to their proper order without a break. Miss Fagge deserves great credit for the achievement, for it was all done under her supervision. The new library forms a pleasant change from the former one, being in a more quiet part of the building and having ample light and air. There is also adequate storage for magazines and pamphlets.

The debate between Hollywood and Polytechnic last week was in a class by itself. It was a double debate, and a strange fact was presented in that Polytechnic won both the negative and the affirmative in the debate. The question was: "Resolved, that upon the opening of the Panama Canal the United States should own and operate a line of steamships between the Atlantic and Pacific ports." Three debaters were chosen at each school on each side and the debate was given simultaneously at Polytechnic and at Hollywood. Polytechnic won the negative at Hollywood and the affirmative at Polytechnic. It had been agreed by both schools that only novices should enter the debate and also that there should be no coaching by teachers; so it was all the unaided work of the students and was most interesting on this account. Clifford Trousdell won first place in the Polytechnic debate in the negative; Miss Marion Green of Hollywood won first place at Hollywood. A new method employed in the try outs is that of having all who wish to enter gain all possible information upon the subject to be discussed, and two students are selected from ten, three teachers acting as judges. Those adjudged best informed are selected as debaters.

Hollywood and Poly debate in the Southern California League on March 24, these two schools being at the head of the league. The question is: "Resolved, that further centralization of power in the Federal government should be resisted." Poly has the negative. Mr. Brewer, who has charge of oral English, has the debating in hand. Mr. Brewer has some excellent and original ideas as to oral composition. "I am anxious to teach my pupils to interchange written with oral composition," said Mr. Brewer. "Many times I find that a pupil will be able to talk excellently of a certain event or question, but when it comes to writing it he is utterly at a loss, while with another it is the reverse. I want them to learn to readily interchange and to write as freely as they talk and to talk as freely as they write. In reality these are one and the same, if the pupil can come to regard it so."

The talk upon the subject of the Greek drama, by Dr. Ward of Occidental was most timely in view of the Greek play "Antigone," presented on Thursday. Dr. Ward illuminated the subject and made it as living as an issue of today. His talk was deeply appreciated by his hearers.

"Antigone," as given by the Mask and Sandal Club, a dramatic organization of Polytechnic, was a triumph. The dramatis personae have been elsewhere given in these columns. "It is our plan," said Miss Dickson of the dramatic department, "to study the drama from its inception to the present time and to give from time to time examples of it in its highest educational form, rather than to foster a love for the sensational or the less educational plays. It was with this in view that we selected the "Antigone" for presentation."

As a part of the Lincoln Day celebration, Rev. Hodgin of the Unitarian Church gave an address in which he compared the characters of Lincoln and Darwin.

Tallman Trask organized an Oratorical Society at Polytechnic, on Thursday, the object of which is the revival of interest in inter-scholastic oratorical contests. Officers elected were: Frank Elden, president; Arthur De Mott, vice-president; Leora Powell, secretary; sergeant-at-arms, Mr. Magee. William Cuzner, president of A. S.B.O., presided, and a committee for revision of the constitution was appointed, consisting of the officers, and Tallman Trask and Mr. Brewer. Much interest is manifested in the revival of the oratorical art, and great enthusiasm is anticipated. Principal Dunn and many members of the faculty have expressed themselves as in warmest accord with the movement.

At Assembly call on Tuesday, Principal Housh gave a talk to the students of L.A. High School upon the importance of self-government, dwelling particularly upon the necessity of learning the true meaning of the term and the usefulness throughout life of the ability to govern one's self. Mrs. Dorsey also gave a talk upon the necessity of learning promptness and habits of punctuality. "It is the duty of every pupil to be in his proper place every hour of every day; and this means more than a mere lack of tardiness in school matters; it means the formation of a habit which will make for success in life. The successful business man is he who can be found in his place when wanted. The lawyer, the physician, the man of affairs must have a place of business and he must be in that place awaiting the success which will find him only in his proper place." Another point made was regarding punishments by the student body officers. It was urged that the extremes be avoided—that of punishments too severe and of laxity regarding punishments. Mrs. Dorsey's words made a deep impression upon the student body.

Officers of the student body elected at the meeting on Thursday were: Edgar Goyette, president; Muriel Rowell, vice-president; Dorothy Betts, secretary; Homer Miller, treasurer and faculty representative. Asked as to his plans of administration, the new president said: "One of the first things that we hope to take up is that of an official school pin. In athletics, we want to reinstate baseball and try to enthuse the school over the national sport. We mean to thoroughly cover with committees all school activities and to have regular reports from them, and it is our intention to secure for the Assembly calls, the very best speakers to give addresses upon educational themes."

On Friday, Mrs. MacDowell, wife of the composer, gave at L.A. High School a lecture recital, representing the Musical Pageant given in a New England forest, last season, the pageant accompanied by compositions by the well-beloved musician. Examples of the music both in song and accompaniment were given by members of the school.

A talk both interesting and instructive was that given by Mr. Hughes, who has been commissioned by the Board of Education to address students as to proper methods of getting on and off cars.

On Tuesday the senior officers A Summer '11 were installed. They are as follows: President, Albert Condron; vice-president, Edith Ross; secretary, Mildred Bailey; treasurer, Clark Morrison. Miss Rogers, acting president, had charge of the installation ceremonies.

The political pot is boiling hard at Manual Arts High. The successor of Olive High has not changed its "spots" and the enthusiasm always accompanying a campaign for student body elections there has not been lost in the larger institution. Cards, blotters, hand-bills, posters and the personal canvas, all are employed in the campaign now being waged for the election of officers of the student body. Presidential candidates are Harold Kiggens, Irene Wixon and Harold Waggoner. Candidates for vice-president are Edward Gettins, Katherine Kellarman, Ida Marks and John H. Russell. For secretary, Mira Daniels and Harold Morton. Tuesday, February 21, is election day and there will be warm work among the candidates and their friends up to the last hour. These campaigns have always been most interesting and show a rousing enthusiasm in the school work.

Lincoln Day exercises at Manual Arts High were featured in a talk by Benjamin Chapin on Lincoln as the man, the master of men, and as the hero and the martyr. On the 10th the students held their Lincoln exercises, which consisted of a recitation of Lowell's "Lincoln," by Harold Kiggens; the Gettysburg address, by Harry Reincke, and "Old Folks at Home," by the Girls' Glee Club Quartette.

The annual declamatory contest at Hollywood took place on Friday night. This is always an event of interest, the winners, one boy and one girl, having their names engraved upon the cup given by the Hollywood Board of Trade. The selections are patriotic and the occasion is, in a sense, patriotic. Those who took part were Ray Freeman, Mildred Bireley, Ramona Ewing, Beatrice Bennett, John Bogardus, Willis La Mott and Henry Enders.

The "Girls' Jinks" held on Friday evening was participated in by the girls' mothers as guests, and the gymnasium was made into a place of beauty for the affair. Novel and original fancy costumes were donned by the girls and a programme of gymnasium demonstrations formed a part of the evening's entertainment. Miss Marion Green had charge of the stunts, Miss Louise Haskel of the refreshments and Flora Lieman of the music. Miss Sarah McLean, instructor of girls' athletics, deserves praise for the success of the programme.

URGE STATE COMMISSION.

City Club Wrestles With Public Utilities Question and Resolution Calls for Board of Six Members.

The City Club yesterday afternoon wrestled strenuously with the question of State or municipal control of public utilities. Resolutions were formulated by a committee of nine calling on the Legislature to defeat the Sutherland bill, which provides for a State commission.

Beyond this the resolutions urge that a bill be passed creating a State public utilities commission of six members, three to have charge of public utility regulations north of the Tehachepi and three south, this commission to have the power of regulating public utility matters outside of incorporated cities.

Several members of the club fought for a resolution that would state more positively the conviction of its members that the control of public utility corporations and the fixing of rates should remain in the municipalities and not in a State commission. This resolution was lost.

William J. Hunsaker and James A. Anderson, who signed the committee report, took the position that the utility corporations should remain under municipal control, while the seven other members were inclined to believe that a State commission might be wise under proper restrictions.

TWO ILLINOIS PICNICS.

The McHenry County (Ill.,) Association will hold a basket picnic in Sycamore Grove, on Wednesday, and on the same day the Fulton County Association will hold its annual gathering at Alhambra. W. T. Davidson of Lewiston, Ill., will be the orator at the latter, and special cars will leave the city at 10 o'clock, a.m. This will be a cafeteria dinner.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA GRAPES.

"About 80 per cent. of the grapes grown in Southern California are located in the Cucamonga district in San Bernardino county, although Los Angeles, Ventura, Riverside and San Diego counties also cultivate the grape extensively.

FROM DESERT TO VINEYARD.

"About an hour's ride from Los Angeles," says the Commissioner, "brings you to Guasti, where you may see the largest vineyard south of the Tehachepis. Nine years ago when Secondo Guasti suggested planting a vineyard in what was then a waste of shifting sand known as the Cucamonga Desert, his friends laughed at the idea. Today the great wine ranch of 3500 acres, with its stone buildings, private railroad and modern wine-making machinery, represents an investment of more than a million dollars.

"The company's miniature railroad radiates through the vineyard and carries thousands of tons of grapes from the pickers to the great troughs, from which the chain conveyors whisk them up and into the stemming machines. It is hard for a stranger to realize that a field of apparently dry stumps (after pruning) can produce a crop of grapes in so short a space of time as they do in California. Near by is the vineyard where 'about seventy-five or eighty years ago the first vines of the county were placed. They have thrived for three generations and are still bearing crops. Some of the trunks are as thick as a boy's body, and show little signs of decay.

"During the past ten years the manufacture of California wines has almost doubled. In 1900 the output was about 25,000,000 gallons, of which 15,000,000 was dry wines and 10,000,000 sweet wines. The yield of 1910 was nearly 45,000,000 gallons, made up of 18,000,000 gallons of sweet wines and 27,000,000 gallons of dry wines.

"About 60,000 vineyardists and assistants are dependent upon the viticultural industry of California, in which $100,000,000 is invested, producing a value of $25,000,000 a year."

CHINESE LACQUER WARE.

Has Been Made Several Hundred Years—Much Gold and Silver Leaf Used in the Finer Productions.

The earliest record of lacquer is from the Sung dynasty, although it probably existed long before that date, but in a more crude form. It was introduced into Japan in the third century from Korea, at the time of the conquest of that country by the Empress Jingo. The seventeenth century marked great progress in the industry in Japan, and the gold lacquer became very popular, but from that time its popularity decreased and the demand did not revive until the last few years. Last year the export from Japan was 219,525 yen. The export of No. 1 Foochow lacquer, though a far superior article, is so small as to be classified in the customs returns under the head of furniture.

The lac, as is well known, is not a manufactured product, but the sap of the Rhus vernicifera, or Ch'i shu of the Chinese. The tree is tapped at night during the summer season and the lac sold to the consumer as a dried cake or in a semifluid state. It is first placed in a rectangular pan, where it is continually stirred with a spatula for about two days, then pressed by twisting the lac through a sack made of fine grass cloth and lined with a thick layer of cotton. The refined lac is put into the pan again for a day and the same process is repeated. So prepared, the lac will answer for the first coats given the articles, but for the final or color coat the lac used undergoes this process four times.

The invention of the No. 1 lacquer is said to belong to the Shen Shao An family, in whose hands the manufacture still is. To this same family is also accredited the invention of silk lacquer.

The ordinary lacquer is applicable to almost every kind of furniture and to ornamental articles for the houses, but is commonly applied to woodwork. Only very old wood, usually cedar which will neither warp nor crack, is used for this purpose. Articles and ornaments of the most delicate carving are treated in this fashion. To prepare the woodwork, such as furniture, for lacquer, a lacquerer scrapes the wood one or two inches wide along any crack or joint or opening that may exist; it is then filled up with lac and two or three coats of linen cloth, which will not only cover the depth but also serve to keep the parts together. After a fortnight or longer, when the lac on the linen is perfectly dry, the woodwork is covered with a thin coat of black lac mixed with a little chingshu, a kind of clay.

Ten days later a process of general polishing is applied to the article with fine pumice stone of various shapes and sizes. About every ten days a new thin coat of the lac mixture is put on. The article is always polished before receiving a new coat. After the ninth or tenth coat of this black lac mixture, the article is thoroughly polished so as to receive the color coat.

For the preparation of the final coat, a small portion of lacquer that has undergone the refining process four times is mixed by a pallet knife on a stone surface with the gold or gold and silver leaf. When thoroughly mixed, it is placed in the center of a thin sheet of cotton paper. The paper is then rolled together with the lacquer inside, the ends being twisted in opposite directions, until the lac oozes through. This is repeated three times. There is great waste by this process which may also account for the price charged for some of these articles.

The term gold lacquer is easily misinterpreted to mean lacquer ware sprinkled with gold dust or fragments of gold foil or inlaid with gold thread, etc. In gold lacquer the gold or silver has been pulverized so fine that it appears no more as sprinkled dust, but its richness is blended with the other coloring matter and the refined lac giving a lustrous and lovely tint of a uniform shade.

HOW GERMANY UNDERSELLS.

Every Second Adult Woman Is Earning Her Own Living Though Working at Low Wages.

[Brooklyn Union:] Why it is that German manufacturers are able to undersell those of other countries in competition for much of the world's trade? To a very large extent the secret lies in the fact that women are playing a more important part every year in developing the industries of the Fatherland. It will probably surprise many people to learn that, according to recent statistics, there are 9,500,000 wage-earning women in Germany, which means that every second adult woman is earning her own living and directly contributing to the wealth of the country. Indeed, the number of women wage-earners in Germany is larger than in any other European country, and the employment of women has increased 57 per cent. in the last twelve years.

We have heard much of the domestic virtues of the German girl, who, it has often been said, makes a better housewife than women of any other nation. It seems, however, that the German girl, like her American sister, is no longer content with domestic service, preferring the shorter hours of the factory and the excitement of town life, although, in the end, she is much worse off in pocket. Formerly domestic service was the principal occupation, other than agriculture, for the German working girl, but German manufacturers discovered her value, and now they eagerly compete for her services; for she is a good worker and, judging by the wages paid, easily satisfied.

In the grand duchy of Baden, for instance, which is looked upon as the "Model State," there are scores of industries of varying size and importance scattered over the country, and the women take a large share in all of them. There are about 80,000 hands regularly employed in the textile factories, of which four-fifths are women, and the artificial flower industry is in their hands. Winter is the busy time, and even then they only earn on an average of $2.65 for fourteen days hard work, while in summer they often do not receive more than 10 cents a day.

The average wage of women in country districts is about 25 cents a day, while Mrs. Sedgwick, in her interesting book on "Home Life in Germany," tells us "the average wage of the unskilled worker is only ten marks (a mark is worth about 25 cents) a week, and it sinks as low as four marks for the makers of petticoats, aprons and woolen goods. A corset maker who has learned her trade can only make eight to ten marks a week in a factory, while a woman who sits at home and covers umbrellas gets about 32 cents a dozen when the coverings are of stuff, and slightly more when they are of silk."

Student's Sharp Retort.

A real joke was sprung by a student at the Western Reserve University last week, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. This student suffers from the stigma of obesity; it appears that even professors do not love a fat man. After a particularly unsuccessful recitation in English III, the professor said:

"Alas, Mr. Blank! You are better fed than taught."

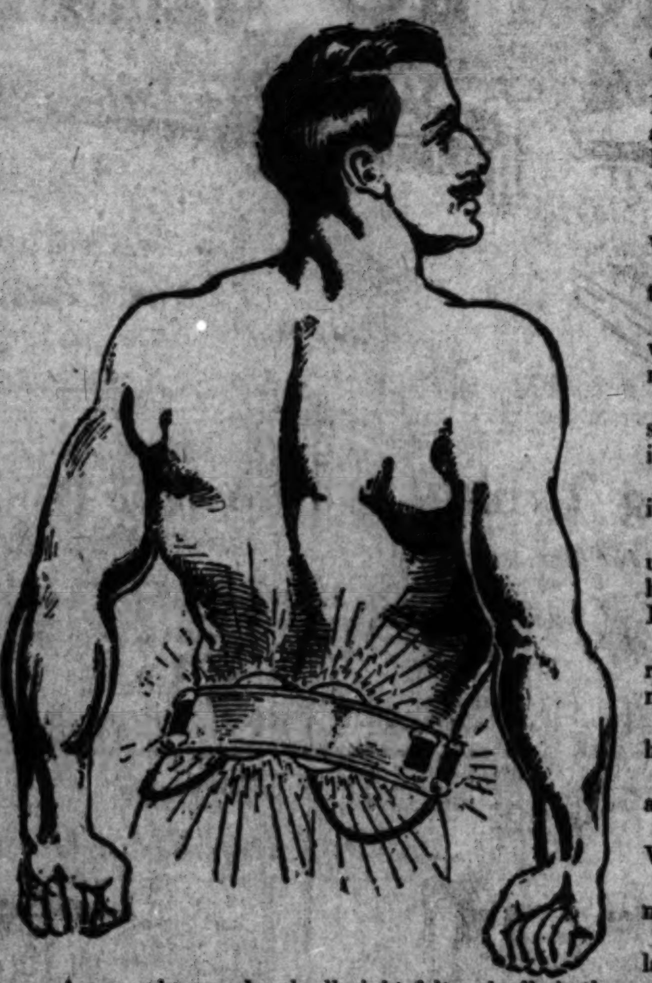
"That's right, professor," sighed the youth, subsiding heavily, "you teach me—I feed myself."

Lord Mayor's Ancient Mace.

The crystal mace with which the Lord Mayor of London has just claimed the right to be present at the coronation will be by far the most ancient piece of regalia in evidence at that historic ceremony, says the Pall Mall Gazette. It dates from Saxon times, as the workmanship of its crystal and gold shaft with jeweled head declares. From the time before the Normans this mace, which is barely eighteen inches long, has symbolized sovereignty over the city, when the Lord Mayor was still known as the Portreeve, and London was an independent State. It is the oldest piece of civic regalia in the world, and it is seen only at the induction of the Lord Mayor on November 8 and at the coronation of the sovereign.

COOKING schools are being conducted by the government for the benefit of soldiers. The Times Magazine the coming Sunday will tell about them.

To the Man Who Is All In



A man who was not yet 40, but who probably felt like he was 70, dropped into a chair in our office.

"I'm all in; my back aches; I'm trembling all over; I'm afraid of my shadow. I've got no energy for my work. I'd run away from an old friend because I feel as if it would be a task to greet him pleasantly. I can't brace up; and I don't care if I never wake up."

We see such men daily. We hear from them by every mail.

"Drugs—I've taken enough to float a ship. I had to quit because my stomach wouldn't stand any more dosing."

We never met a man who had not tried drugs first. Since they were old enough to swallow they had taken drugs.

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes told the Massachusetts Medical Society: "If the whole materia medica were dumped into the bottom of the sea it would be good for mankind, but bad for the fishes."

Drugs won't restore energy. Food makes energy if you digest it. A weak stomach can't digest food. That's what had happened to this man, and he was "all in."

Dr. Jacques Loeb, renowned for his discoveries, says: "The basis of animal vitality is electricity."

An old man of 70 who was "all in" thought electricity might do him some good, used Electra Vita for a few months, and wrote to us: "Although I am over 70, I have returned to my trade as a blacksmith, and I can hold my own with men of 35. I am an old man made young."

The nice thing about Electra Vita is its simplicity. You put it on when you retire and turn on the current. While you sleep it pumps energy into all your nerves and vitals. Electra Vita requires no charging in vinegar or other acids.

For the man who is exhausted it is worth its weight in gold. It rejuvenates him.

If you have a pain or an ache, it removes the cause by finding the weak nerve and invigorating it.

You know there is no pain that does not come from some weakness. Electra-Vita invigorates, and that finds the pain and cures it.

A drug will "kill the pain" by destroying the nerve feeling; but that doesn't remove the cause. Electra-Vita cures the cause by giving back the lost strength.

Moral: Don't drug; don't get into the habit. A small dose today calls for a large one tomorrow.

A man who was drunk all night felt so badly in the morning that he got drunk again. His nerves were so upset from overstimulation that he needed more booze to taper off on. Drugs act like that, only worse.

Mr. Dooley says: "A drug is a little pizen that a little more of it would kill ye."

Are you "all in?" Do you feel that your youthful energy is exhausted? Are you full of pains and aches? Are you easily tired, nervous, discouraged, worried, despondent? Is the old cheerful spirit gone?

Be joyous, be happy and lighthearted; feel the exhilaration that comes from nerves full of electric energy, youth and vigor. You can, and will, if you apply Electra-Vita.

Cut out this Coupon, mail it to us. We will give you a 90-page book which tells all about our treatment. This book is illustrated with pictures showing how Electra-Vita is applied, and explains many things you should know regarding the cure of disease. We'll send the book, closely sealed and prepaid, free, if you'll mail us this coupon.

ONE DAY'S WORK FOR ONE WOMAN.

BY ROSE L. ELLERBE.

Mrs. Leland Norton, superintendent of the Legal Aid and legal department of the Associated Charities, is a little woman with a sunny face and frivolous hair. But when she faces a wife-beater, a recreant lover, or a greedy employer, there is nothing frivolous about her. Clear eyed and level headed, she sets forth facts with a force and a justice that produces results. Her heart is big and tender for all sufferers; but she is quite free from hysterical sympathy or sentimental pity. She has a gift for getting at that naked truth of the matter in hand.

I sat beside her the other day while she ran over her "cases" for the day. First on the calendar was that of a child in a home where it was not receiving proper attention. She had reported the matter to the parties responsible for the baby and an interview was arranged. Then came a conference with another woman, the head of an institution, regarding an unfortunate girl—a marriage was to be arranged for, thus legitimizing a child and establishing a home, instead of leaving the mother to poverty and disgrace and the child to become a public charge, brought up in an institution. This is a common incident in the work of the Legal Aid. Girls come here with their stories, sure of advice and help. Whenever it is practicable and advisable, the man responsible is reached and urged to rectify, as far as possible, the wrong. Often through this means the way is cleared and a happy, self-respecting family results instead of the scandal and ruin that threatened.

Next on the list was the case of an old man who complained that he had been defrauded out of a little horde of money left with supposed friends for safe-keeping. Some keen questioning had satisfied the little official that not only had a wrong been done the complainant but that here was a case for the Federal courts—"a blind pig" to be located, with evidence at hand. This was followed by a wage case. An employer had held out a week's wages on the plea that work had been spoiled. An investigation and a demand for the spoiled garments for official appraisement, developed the fact that the clothes in question had been delivered to the customer a month previous and could not be produced. The result was a check which was delivered to a happy boy.

The afternoon was to be spent in the County Jail, where half a dozen cases had been referred to the Legal Aid for investigation. Each of these would be visited and interviewed. One was that of a boy accused of robbery because he had picked up a dollar from the floor when a drunken man had spilled his pocketbook; another was that of young McNab, held for highway robbery. His old mother sat by the stove in the office, waiting for her friend to come with her and help her boy. Mrs. Norton is called upon to hold heart to heart talks with prisoners and often she secures a statement which can be relied upon, where detectives and officials have failed. She goes over the records, looks up families, writes letters and saves many an unfortunate or innocent man or woman from prosecution, or brings home guilt where it belongs.

One of her most important and delicate duties is that of adjusting domestic difficulties. Deserting or delinquent husbands are persuaded, or if need be, compelled to fulfill their responsibilities to wives and children. Wives who are illtreated, who seek divorces or support, are counseled and helped.

Often a frank talk the exercise of a little common sense and tact, and the knowledge that the law, represented by a kind-hearted, yet inexorable woman, stands ready to protect the home, leads to a satisfactory settlement of family troubles and husband and wife take a new start together. It is always the aim to save the home and prevent the breaking up of a family whenever possible, and it is no uncommon thing to see a couple who have exhausted the vocabulary of vituperation upon one another, go out from Mrs. Norton's ministration arm in arm and cooing like turtle doves—for the time being, at least.

This is one day's work and each day at this office brings its full quota of wrongs to be righted; of sorrows, real and imaginary, to be soothed; of cranks and frauds to be sized up; of helpless and seemingly hopeless inefficients to be carried over rough places. But to the happy-natured superintendent of the Legal Aid, there are smiles in the darkest day—the unconscious humor of many a tale of woe; the joy of reconciliations; the gratitude of relieved hearts; the recompense of feeling that a faltering soul has been given a new chance in life—these things make the day's work worth the doing.

SINGING CLUB CHARMS.

Enthusiastic Audience Greets Orpheus Artists at Auditorium in Fine Concert—Solo Stars Win Applause.

Seldom has the Auditorium held a larger or more enthusiastic audience than that assembled Friday evening for the concert of the Orpheus' Club and assisting artists.

This singing society, now in its sixth year, is energetic. With each succeeding season its fame and artistic worth assumes greater prominence in the minds of discriminating admirers of ensemble vocal art.

The concerted work of the club members is given with a precision of attack, shading and smoothness due in large part to the directoral ability of J. P. Dupuy.

Miss Margaret Jarman, a young contralto of promising worth and who will be remembered as one of the leading artists with the Bevani Grand Opera Company, was one of the assisting soloists. She was heard in several operatic arias.

Assisting also were two co-stars in the persons of Miss Margel Gluck, violinist, and Miss Ella Ivimey, pianist. Miss Gluck can safely be numbered among the few great woman violin virtuosi. Her tone, which is pure, brilliant, true and of a high order of artistic finish, reminds one of the playing of Maud Powell.

Miss Gluck's accompanist, Miss Ivimey, clearly demonstrated that she is an accompanist of the first rank. These two artists will be heard in concert again in Simpson Auditorium next Friday evening, where, with the assistance of others, an evening of American music will be given. Will Garroway was the accompanist for Miss Jarman and the club.

VAUDEVILLE ENTERTAINMENT.

A vaudeville entertainment will be presented in the school hall, South Main street and Forty-seventh place, on Tuesday evening, by the Holy Cross Society of the Holy Cross Church. An elaborate programme has been prepared, which includes well-known local talent, and insures an evening of fun. Refreshments and a dance will follow the programme.

DO YOU KNOW HOW TO BE POOR?

[illegible] a hard lesson to learn. Hard for any people [illegible] harder for Americans than any others. Is the lesson worth learning? Would the world be better [illegible] if more of us had acquired the art of living [illegible] circumstances?

[illegible] given the first man on the land was [illegible]. The purpose was to cause the soil to yield [illegible] for the sustentation of life. Savages [illegible] carry out their commission and remained [illegible] long as they remained savages. With each [illegible] work done in the subjugation of nature [illegible] and men learned to have greater [illegible] the struggle to satisfy our wants became [illegible].

[illegible] years ago, the first colonists speaking our [illegible] landed in Virginia, and soon afterward an[illegible] came to Massachusetts, they found [illegible] stretching westward so far that [illegible] its extent. It was a rich land which by [illegible] would make wealth untold for those who [illegible] to work. During all these three centuries [illegible] have come to our shores, mostly poor [illegible] their old homes had acquired the art of [illegible]. These immigrants and their [illegible] spread ever westward until now the [illegible] is in a way subdued and the wealth dug [illegible] exceeds any record of a similar [illegible] the history of the world. The two small [illegible] increased so that by the census of last [illegible] people of 91,000,000 souls. The public [illegible] with impressive emphasis on this [illegible] expressed the pride of our people in being the richest nation of our time. Had our ancestors not been seized with an ambition to secure part of the rich treasures of the land, the growth of population would have been less rapid and the subjugation of the earth would not have been so far accomplished and we would not be able today to boast that we are the richest people in the world.

It is not that America has the richest men on earth, it is not that the country contains more millionaires and semi-millionaires than any other, that we boast. It is that the average man here enjoys greater comforts of life than in other countries that makes it worth while for Americans to boast. For, however, some may contend that the wealth of our times is not fairly distributed, however much need there may appear that some improvement shall be made in the subdivision of the results of labor, yet to the really intelligent there is no room for dispute in the statement that Americans live better and have a larger share of the wealth of the day's creation than their fellow-toilers in almost any other land. This may find exception among the newly-arrived immigrants unable to speak the language and unskilled in the ways of earning a living here. But these are not yet Americans and can not fairly be incorporated among us in any analysis we make.

So it is better for us in one sense that we should not learn the art of living poor. Let no man on moral or philosophic grounds decry ambition or frown on aspiration. Let each man go on striving with all his might to secure for himself and for his children as large a share of the teeming wealth of our rich land as he can get by earnest effort directed to honest ends. We would not hesitate to say: Let us have more millionaires, not fewer, many more semi-millionaires, vastly more Americans who own their own homes, their own farms, who have shares in industrial enterprises and money in bank. It may be (we think it is) better to have a larger proportion of our people possessed of a handsome competency compared to the number of the very wealthy. But we would be slow to set a limit to the wealth a man may honestly accumulate. Rich men are often honest, often sympathetic, often conscientious in the use of their wealth, and the more such men there are in a country the better for all of us, particularly for those of us who are not possessed of abundant riches. The beggar does not ask alms of the indigent, nor does the tailor seek to get a day's work from the man of his own class.

But a one-sided view of a subject never leads to correct conclusions. Do as we may, the saying of old will be true as long as the world lasts—"The poor ye have with you always." No system of government, of religion, of political economy, will ever be wrought out into practice which will do away with poverty. Dreamers may fancy such a system and see in their minds a time when an even division of the wealth of the world will be a fact, and when the wealth-creation of the day will be portioned out in exact measures to each one in the world. Such a dream will never be realized. It would not be right that it should be. Ability and thrift are not found in all alike, and it has been by recognizing the greater man and by securing to the thrifty the gains of talent and the savings of economy that the earth has been subdued and its wealth made available at all. As it has been in the past so it must be in the future, because these laws are as unchangeable as the law of gravitation, which holds the vast universe in place.

Men will continue to be born of small capacity. They will go on growing less with spendthrift habits. Sickness will come to many households, and misfortune will fall on many heads. We hope the milk of human kindness will never dry up in the hearts of men, nor the needy seek succor in vain; but it is a diaphanous dream that pictures the time when each household of men will prepare breakfast and then instead of sitting down to table all go forth to see that all the neighborhood is as fully provided. For were all to follow this philosophy the result would be that all the breakfasts would go cold and be eaten by rats while the altruistic people ran from house to house until they died of hunger.

The philosophy founded on experience, the one that accepts facts, is the safest. So we shall assume the truth of the declaration that the poor will always constitute part of the human family. And while there are to be people whose affairs in the household are not affluent the philosophy that teaches us how to be poor will not become a book "out of print" or "rare." It may be easier for a person whose larder is never empty nor his wardrobe scantily supplied to write about the cost of living than for the poor to practise the doctrine. But there are people in the world who have acquired the art and who live up to the doctrine with an admirable perfectness. Nor is it the poor of today, those actually in need, who would do well to learn the lesson. In our country, above all, the vicissitudes of fortune are many, sudden and sharp. The poor man of one day is the millionaire of another, while the man of millions is often reduced to penury in a day.

Our people go to foreign lands for various purposes. In one word, most of them go to learn something. The scholar finds there subjects for study; the artist finds the technique of his art in examples by great masters. The more of the world one sees the broader his self-culture. In the old lands 2000, 4000, 10,000 years ago the Cavaliers and Puritans of other days sailed away from home, rode away, or walked away, and came to new lands where the earth had to be subdued. The subjugation has been complete for centuries, and there is no more raw wealth for the ambitious to possess himself of. All there is of wealth and opportunity has become long ago a vested right of someone In those lands where common toil is the common lot of the common man and where the man is three, four or five to the job, the rewards of toil are small.

Children go to work at less than 10 years of age at as low as 5 cents of our money a day. Their mothers toil in the factories or fields at 10 to 20 cents a day, and their fathers are fortunate beyond the average if they may find a place at 75 cents a day. Many a family of six or seven all working when work can be found earn a total of $1.25 a day. But of this, rent for a house of one room where all herd must be paid, some kind of rags to cover the nakedness of all by day and others for use at night, must be provided. Fuel and food will both be very insufficient out of what is left. Millions of human beings in families of six live on a dollar a day when times are good and work steady. This often falls to half the sum when work is scarce, when one or more members of the family fall sick, or when a funeral calls all away from toil and gain for a day or two.

It may be difficult for us to conceive how it is done. But in millions all over the earth men, women and children have learned to be poor and not repine; to dwell in poverty and not be unhappy. We are not taking any extreme case. The example set out above is over the average, not under it. There are millions of beings on this earth whose average income per person is less than 10 cents a day, others less than 5 cents. Yet you would make a grievous error if you were to tabulate the incomes of men and women, of individuals and families, and then with these data before you attempt to classify men and women as to their contentment and happiness. These poor people live in their affections. They have learned to do with little to eat, less to wear, and still less for lodging. They find their amusements in the society of their children and friends, and far from being unhappy they are examples of almost uninterrupted enjoyment. They know little of tears and less of disappointment. They are artists in their profound knowledge of how to be poor, and many of them are in their way to be envied.

The Paths of Long Ago.

BY WILBUR D. NESBIT.

(Renew our days of old.—[Lamentations v. 21.

The wind-swept paths of long ago—
  They coax us, coax us all the while,
With olden blossoms all aglow
  And roses blazing mile on mile.
Out of today they have their start
  From bare, bleak places where we stand,
Into the reaches of the heart,
  Into the golden yesterland.

Ho, nodding grasses bent above
  The din, worn pathways up the hill—
And all of laughter and of love
  Is whispering about them still;
They wound their way beside the stream,
  They hid themselves within the wood,
And as the pathway of a dream
  Each faded softly where we stood.

Through thickets where the berries grew,
  Through orchards drowsing in perfume,
Through quiet pasture lands, and through
  The wilder ways of tangled bloom
The olden pathways wound and went,
  And we look back, away, away,
To where our yesterdays are blent
  In the soft haze of work and play.

And but in dreams we foot them all—
  The paths we knew of old so well;
The paths of quail and robin call,
  The paths whose charms no words can tell.
We see them dropping down the hill,
  We see them loafing by the brook,
We see them where the trees are still
  In every-shadowed forest nook.

The windswept paths of long ago—
  They coax us, coax us, all the while;
And we would fain arise and go
  Through all the old days, mile on mile.
Out of today they have their start,
  From barren spaces where we stand,
Into the cloisters of the heart,
  Into the golden yesterland.

SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST.

"The unfit die; the fit both live and thrive."
Alas, who say so? They who do survive.

So, when her bonfires lighted hill and plain,
Did Bloody Mary think of Lady Jane.

So Russia thinks of Finland, while her heel
Falls heavier on the prostrate Commonweal.

So Booth of Lincoln thought; and so the High Priests let Barabbas live, and Jesus die.

BAALBEK.—I am in the Valley of Lebanon, the high, narrow plain which lies between the two ranges of the Lebanon Mountains. The word Lebanon means "white," and the Lebanon Mountains are the White Mountains of Syria, the higher peaks of which are now covered with snow. These mountains extend north and south parallel with the coast of the Mediterranean Sea. They begin a little below the border of Asia Minor and lose themselves in the Holy Land. In reading of them I have always considered them hills. They are higher than any mountains of our country east of the Mississippi, and the average height of the range nearest the coast is a thousand feet greater than that of Mount Washington. Mount Hermon is over 9000 feet high and Jebel Makmel measures 10,200 feet. The Valley of Lebanon itself is twice as high as the topmost peaks of the Blue Ridge of Virginia, and it slopes from here to the north as far as Aleppo and to the south beyond Dan, where rises the Jordan.

The Ruins of Baalbek.

It is in this little valley, which is less than 100 miles long and from five to eight miles in width, walled by these mighty mountains, that lie the ruins of Baalbek, the most wonderful temples known through the ages. I have spent hours in wandering through them, and their immensity and beauty steadily grow. I despair of being able to describe them and can only hope to give you bits of the details. I have seen most of the world's mighty ruins. In the past year I have wandered through the tombs of the Mings outside Mukden, Manchuria, have stood upon the Temple of Heaven in Peking and have climbed the great Chinese wall. I have gone through the Temples of Karnak at the hundred-gated city of Thebes, far up the Nile; have taken photographs of the Colossi of Memnon and have measured the stones of the pyramids with a two-foot rule. Not long ago I visited the Temple of Boro Boedor in the heart of Java, to describe its three miles of wonderful carvings, and last year I spent some time in the forts of the Moguls at Delhi and wrote of the Taj Mahal and its wonders. I have also seen Timgad, the excavated city on the edge of the Sahara, and have lately gone through the Colosseum at Rome and inspected the equally wonderful amphitheater which lies at El Djem, in the heart of the Tunisian Desert. All these are wonderful, but Baalbek is their superior.

The New Excavations.

The ruins here have been described, but only by the writers of the past, who might as well have tried to picture Pompeii before the ashes and washings of Vesuvius were dug away. These ruins have never been so wonderful as they are now. For centuries the most of them have been as much buried as is Herculaneum, and it was only when the Emperor of Germany made his tour through this part of the world that they began to be brought to the light of day. Kaiser Wilhelm is a great archeologist, and when he travels he leaves as many tracks as does Theodore Roosevelt.

I have marched in his footsteps through Palestine and have seen there the churches and other monuments which he has erected. Before he came to Syria he stopped at Constantinople with the Sultan Abdul Hamid, who gave him a permit to do about as he pleased. As the Kaiser traveled he flattered the Mohammedans, the Christians and Jews. He was alive to every possibility, and he stamped "Made in Germany" upon every city he visited. In Damascus he laid a golden crown and a bouquet of artificial flowers on the tomb of Saladin, the famous soldier who fought the Crusaders; and about Jerusalem he built hospitals and schools and started a great san

They wiped out all the traces of the Christian religion and used a part of the church for a bath. After them came an earthquake, so that much of the ruins were covered up, until the Germans began their great excavations and left them as they now are.

I am stopping here in the little town of Baalbek, which stands right on the edge of the ruins. It has an excellent hotel, and its people are hospitable. It has about five or six thousand inhabitants, made up of Mohammedans and Christians. There is a small garrison of soldiers, two Greek Catholic monasteries, and several girls' schools. The children followed us as we walked about through the ruins, selling purses made of Syrian silk, into which they had woven the six great columns of the temple. They also asked for baksheesh and the begging palm was everywhere to be seen.

I am surprised at the scanty vegetation of these mountains of Lebanon. I had expected to find them covered with forests, whereas they are almost treeless. Their lower slopes are well cultivated and some of them are terraced almost to the top. Thousands of acres, made up of little patches, rise step-like one above another, covering the hills for miles and miles. The patches contain mulberry orchards and vineyards. There are also peaches and apples, and in the valleys are rich fields of wheat, barley and clover. The chief formation is limestone, and there are rocks everywhere, although the soil seems wonderfully rich.

The cedars of Lebanon may have been great in the past, but they have now disappeared. The only ones left are situated about nine or ten hours from Baalbek. The trees grow in the thin soil, which covers the white limestone, the ground being coated with spines, cones and leaves. The oldest trees are seven in number, and the tallest is not more than eighty feet high. The largest of all is about fifteen feet thick, so you see they are mere sprouts in comparison with the big trees of California and quite small as compared with the giants of Washington and Oregon. The cedars which were taken for the temple probably came from the region where the old cedars stand, although other parts of the Lebanon Mountains may have then been covered with woods. The logs must have been cut in the forests, and carried over the mountains, a distance of forty or fifty miles, to the seacoast. The rafting was done under the direction of King Hiram of Tyre, and the logs were probably towed down to Jaffa, and thence carried up the mountains of Judea to Jerusalem, a distance of about forty miles. The cedars bear cones which are about as large as a goose egg, the leaves or spines of the cones being solid rather than detached, as those of our cedars at home. The wood is whitish in color; it is soft and for building is far inferior to cypress or pine.

Unktomi.

AN ENTERTAINING FAIRY TALE OF THE SIOUX INDIANS.

By Myra L. Shriver.

ONCE upon a time there was a famine among the spiders, and they were all very, very hungry. So Unktomi, the chief of the spiders, went out to walk in the field by himself, to see if he could not find a bite of something that he could eat, and presently he met a buffalo.

"How! cousin," said Unktomi. "You look as if you had plenty to eat. I wish I could do something to turn myself into a buffalo."

"Why do you wish to do that, cousin?" asked the buffalo.

"Because a buffalo can eat this good grass, but we spiders can find nothing that we can eat, and our stomachs are quite empty."

"Well," said the buffalo slowly, "I could help you turn into a buffalo as you wish, but you would have ta follow my directions very carefully, and I am afraid that you would be frightened and would not be able to do exactly as I tell you."

"Oh, try me!" cried the spider eagerly. "I will not fail to do whatever you tell me. Let us begin at once, for I am so hungry that I think I shall soon die unless something happens to relieve me."

So the buffalo took Unktomi and put him upon a rock, and said to him: "Now you must sit here while I go over yonder and run at you. Do not be frightened and do not move. This is most important, for if you move, all our trouble will be for nothing. But if you can sit absolutely still until I have passed by, then you will become a buffalo."

Unktomi promised faithfully not to stir hand or foot, but to sit like a stone.

The buffalo walked away some distance, turned about, lowered his head and charged at the rock upon which sat Unktomi. He was so very large, and his eyes gleamed so ferociously that Unktomi forgot in an instant all his promises, and thinking that the buffalo meant to kill him, he jumped nimbly to one side and tried to hide himself.

"You see, cousin," said the buffalo then, "it is just as I thought. I cannot do anything for you."

Then Unktomi began to be brave once more and to remember how hungry he was, and he said: "It is true I forgot about keeping quiet that time, but if you will try it again I will hold on with both hands to the rock, and no matter how dreadful you look, I will not budge."

"Very well," said the buffalo, "but you must be more careful."

Again they both took their places. Again the buffalo lowered his head and charged fiercely at the rock. Unktomi held on with both hands as tightly as he could, but his fear grew stronger and stronger within him, and when it seemed that in another instant the buffalo could not help but crush him to death whether he wanted to or not, then Unktomi let go and jumped.

"You see it is no use," said the buffalo.

Unktomi was very much ashamed. But he was also very hungry. So he begged of the buffalo to try it just once more.

"I will shut my eyes this time," said he, "and if I do not allow myself to see you I will not be so frightened."

"I will try it once more," said the buffalo, "but you will do well to help yourself to keep still by every means you can think of, for by our rules this will be your last chance. If we do not succeed this time I will not be able to do anything more to nelp you."

Unktomi went back to his place on the rock. With both hands he took a good firm hold, and before the buffalo turned toward him he shut his eyes and huddled down, determined to hold on without moving even if he should be killed.

He could hear the buffalo start toward him, and as he came nearer and nearer the rushing noise of his feet grew more and more terrifying, but the more frightened he grew the more tightly he clung to his rock.

At last he seemed to feel the buffalo's very breath—then the rushing noise passed by and stopped behind him, and he ventured to open his eyes.

Behold, there were two buffaloes, and there was no spider!

Unktomi was very proud and happy when he found that the last trial had been successful. His friend then took him to the herd to make the acquaintance of the other buffaloes. Then they led him away to a place where there was some very fine grass, and told him to stay there and eat until they came back again. His friend cautioned him not to leave that place and not to talk to any one while they were gone. "And especially," he said, "if any one should ask a favor of you, you must be sure to refuse it. Otherwise it will be the worse for you."

Unktomi promised to remember, and was then left alone.

He was enjoying himself very much indeed, eating that nice grass, when all at once there appeared before him a spider, an old friend and relative of his, who began immediately to talk to him. He had no sooner answered than the spider recognized him as Unktomi and was very curious to learn how he had managed to change from a spider to a buffalo.

Without a thought of the buffalo's advice Unktomi told the spider the whole story.

"Since you have had such good fortune," said the spider, "you must now help me, for I, too, am about to die of hunger."

"Certainly," said Unktomi. "I know just how the trick is done, and I can do it as well as any one, I am sure. But you must do exactly as I tell you." The spider promised.

Unktomi put him upon a rock and told him to keep absolutely still. He went away and rushed at the rock just as the other buffalo had done. But the spider became frightened and jumped aside.

Three times they tried it, and three times the spider was unable to keep perfectly still as he had been told to do, but jumped aside.

Then Unktomi said: "That is all I can do, for we are not allowed to try that trick more than three times."

"Oh," said the spider, "just once more. I am sure, I am POSITIVE that I can keep still the next time."

"No," said Unktomi; "the rule is 'only three times.'"

"But think how hungry I am," groaned the spider. "And think what a friend I have always been to you. We are related, too—have you forgotten that? You surely cannot refuse me this favor when I am about to die of starvation."

"I know it will not do any good," said Unktomi, "but since you insist I will try it once more. Shut your eyes and get a good grip on the rock."

The spider did as Unktomi told him, and Unktomi rushed up to the rock and passed by. The spider had not moved, but when they turned and looked at each other—alas! they were two spiders, and there was no buffalo!

SAYING THE RIGHT THING.

"I don't seem to be able to say the right thing to women," a bashful young man confided to us the other day, "and that's why I don't shine in society. I'll tell you an instance of it. Not long ago I met a woman I hadn't seen for years and I could see that she was trying to keep young. So I thought I'd say a graceful thing to her.

"'You carry your age remarkably well,' says I.

"Well, the moment I said it I could see that I was in wrong. She was looking chilly and getting red, so I said:

"'Don't mind my little jokes—I never mean what I say. As a matter of fact you don't carry your age a bit well.'

"And then she killed me with a haughty look and sailed away without saying good-by. Say, how should I have put it?"—[Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A MARRIAGE BLACK LIST.

The habit of making inquiries at private detective offices as to the means and mode of life of any young man who is under consideration as a suitable husband by the relatives of a girl whom he wishes to marry leads to some curious complications in Austria and in Hungary. Young men deep in debt are inscribed on the so-called "black list" at the inquiry office.

Good partis are, on the other hand, put down on the "white list." Five young Hungarian aristocrats who were involved in debt to such an extent that the only possibility of retrieving their fortunes lay in making rich marriages formed a kind of company for the purpose of finding wives. Each was to be provided with a rich bride, preferably an American heiress, as his turn came.—[Vienna correspondence London Daily Mail.

New Impressions of An Old Land. By George W. Burton.

FIRST VIEW OF SPAIN.

THE VOYAGE FROM CUBA TO THE PORT OF SANTANDER.

By a Staff Writer.

TUESDAY morning, November 1, at about 6 o'clock, we got our first view of the north coast of Spain. As the ship tossed her way through the Bay of Biscay the night before we saw the light on the headland about Ferrol. As the sun rose over the sea in the morning the mountains that parallel the shore were in full view. The range lies well back from the sea. It rises to an impressive height, and the peaks were all white with snow. Each half hour the ship's course lay nearer the land, and as the sun climbed the eastern sky we entered the bay on which stands the little city of Santander. The accent is on the second syllable and the last is pronounced as if the "e" was "ey" in "they." The bay is not large nor deep, and there is no mole to which a large vessel can come. On the next headland the King is having built a fine palace for his summer residence, and the people here expect great things from the presence of the court.

We were glad to get sight of land again. It had been sixteen days since we boarded our ship at Vera Cruz, and while the voyage had been very pleasant, two weeks at sea is quite sufficient. The Kronprinzessin Cecilie of the Hamburg-American line was once on the line between Europe and New York, but competition has compelled the substitution of more modern ships on the great international ferry. But she is a fine vessel and quite fast enough, making regular time fifteen knots an hour, or 360 knots a day. A knot in sea language is what the Germans call a sea mile, and the scientific people a geographical mile. From Vera Cruz to Havana is 810 of these sea miles, and from Havana to Santander we steamed 4102 knots. The sailors have a story of a fair young thing going from New York to Liverpool. She was walking the deck with an officer, who told her the ship steamed 360 knots a day. Lifting her eyebrows she replied, "I suppose you steam them so that the poor sailors can untie them more easily." The name comes from the rope cast out to measure the progress of the ship in old times. Each section was marked with a knot to which a bit of red flannel was attached, and the sailor called to the officer how many knots he had paid out in a given time. Modern steamers have a measure like that on a taxicab to show the progress made. The story recalls "Mark Twain," the pen name of the late Samuel Clemens. When a boatman on the Mississippi he used to hear the man "casting the lead" to take the "soundings" or depth of the water call out "mark twain" or other numeral to indicate the number of marks on the line he had let down.

Following the Gulf Stream.

From Havana, one of the most perfect harbors in the world, if it had a mole built out to deep water, our course followed the Gulf Stream as far as possible. So we passed sharply by the south of Florida and followed the American coast to the latitude of Baltimore, being only about 100 miles from land. In twenty-three hours, the first day out of Havana, we made 367 knots, and the next day, with all the impulsion of the Gulf Stream, the ship reeled off 383 knots. This looked like a quick voyage, but we were told that the passage would take the full time. This route is taken to save coal, as it costs a ship like this about $700 a day for motive power. We were very much favored by the weather, as is usual on this southerly course in the winter time We passed, however, right between two violent storms that swept the Gulf of Mexico. Soon after leaving Vera Cruz we were apprised of a hurricane off the Florida coast, and one followed as we passed out of Havana up the American coast. When we found the ship's course lay along near Cape Hatteras and then swung easterly by the Bermudas, we expected rough seas. The Carolina cape is noted for the dangers of navigation there, and Shakespeare, soon after the discovery of America, had already learned of the Bermudas, which he refers to as the "vexed Bermootes." That was the phonetic way of spelling, before Dr. Johnson gave our language a fixed standard of orthography. But these seas and also the Bay of Biscay, another of bad repute, were kindly to us. We met no storms, no high head winds nor rough seas. It was a disappointment to run so far north, as we had expected to pass close to the Bermudas and the Azores, but the course lay several degrees north of both groups of islands. On the way west from Hamburg to Vera Cruz, when the sailor's philosophy teaches him to avoid the Gulf Stream, whose currents could then be contrary to him, the ship goes through these groups of islands.

Then after a journey of 6500 miles by rail through the United States and Mexico and of 6000 common miles by sea, or half way round the world, we reached the continent of Europe on the north coast of Spain. We had come by the earliest lands in the New World discovered by Columbus to Spain, the country of the Old World which had sent him on his famous voyage to find the continent we are so proud to claim as our home. We were moreover in northern Spain not far from Castile, the land of the King and Queen, Ferdinand and Isabella, who had furnished the Genoese with his ships. As we rode the waves of the bay in our great steamer of 8500 tons measure, we thought of the open boats of less than half as many hundred tons in which the then trackless sea had been crossed in almost the same course we had followed during the two weeks. The daring navigator with his ignorant crew had been more months at sea than we were weeks, and it is little wonder that the crew almost mutinied over and over again.

When Spain Was Great.

Spain was then easily the leading nation of the world. The monarchs who sent Columbus to find an unknown half of the world drove the Moors out of Europe and for years after the discovery of America led all Europe in colonizing new lands. During the century following this discovery Spain gained all but absolute control of the globe. She dominated America from Florida to Cape Horn, drove Portugal out of the East Indies, and held sway over all southern Asia and Africa, was absolute in all the Iberian Peninsula, held the Sicilies and the Sardinias in her power, did the same for the Netherlands, controlling Brussels, Ghent, Antwerp, and all Holland, dictated to Austria and Italy, and Charles V was not only King of Spain, but also Emperor of Germany, Duke Palatine, and added to his name a score of titles, having more of such honors than any other man who ever sat on a throne. France alone on continental Europe dared dispute the claims of Spain, or disobey a command from the King of this powerful country. Courtesy as an Asset.

COL. SNEED MAKES SOME REMARKS ON THE SUBJECT.

By Casper S. Yost.

"THERE'S no use in talkin', that's a great boy," remarked Col. Sneed as he pulled up his chair to the fire.

"We've known that all along," admitted his son-in-law, "but is there any present reason for this display of enthusiasm?"

"There just is," answered the old gentleman, biting off the end of his cigar. "As I was comin' over I saw little Bill run full tilt into a big fat man who was just turnin' the corner. A good many boys would have cut and run with a laugh, but little Bill ain't that kind of a youngster. Before you could say Jack Robinson, he whipped off his hat and said: 'Excuse me, sir, I was goin' so fast I couldn't stop.' "

"Was the man angry?" asked Mrs. Rollins with some concern.

"Mad!" snorted the Colonel, "of course he wasn't. 'That's all right, my boy,' he says; 'no harm done.' Then he paddled along with a smile on his face. But he would a been mad, he certainly would, if little Bill had hollered 'get out o' the way, you old stiff,' as an up-to-date youngster with patent leather shoes on did to me the other day. Makes all the difference in the world. Reminds me o' Jimmy Sloan, a chap I used to go to school with away back before the war. He was just an ordinary, everyday boy, wasn't particularly bright, always stood near the foot of the class, but he could lick any body of his size in the school, and no matter what happened he was always polite. He's been the head of a great railroad system for a long time, and I'm mighty sure that his politeness had more to do with putting him there than his fists, though, to be sure, the fists may have helped some.

"For, just as sure as the Lord made little apples, it pays to be polite. You can cash in courtesy at par any day in the week and anywhere under the sun. It's an asset that's always available, ain't subject to taxation nor affected by panics, and any man, whether he's a fool or a genius, rich or poor, can have it. Yet it's astonishin' how few people know anything about it. Seems like it's gettin' to be one o' the lost arts, but the rarer it gets, like everything else, the more valuable it becomes, and there never was a time when politeness was more profitable than now. There never was a time when the courteous boy had so long a lead over his fellows. This is a hustlin' age, as everybody says, and it takes push and speed and grit and all the active qualities to get to the front, but the boy who oils his way with courtesy goes ahead faster and with less wear and tear on himself than the one who rushes on without any regard for the feelin's of others.

"For, after all, that's what politeness is, a just and fair regard for the feelin's of other people. You'll find the same idea right at the front end of the Declaration of Independence. You wouldn't expect to find a definition of common politeness in a great state paper like that, would you? But it's there. It says 'a decent respect for the opinions of others' was the basis for the whole business, as much as to say if Jefferson and Washington and the others hadn't been polite, there wouldn't have been any declaration. And if there hadn't been any declaration who knows but what we might still be—but that's beatin' the devil around the stump. The point I'm tryin' to get at is that politeness isn't a mere matter o' ceremony, a doffin' of hats and a bendin' of backbones. These and their like are just the outward forms of expression of a decent respect for the feelin's and opinions of others. And that's a fact that every boy ought to learn early in life. If he gets to thinkin' that these acts of courtesy are just conventions, so you might say, artificial devices of society that have no particular meanin' or importance, he's pretty likely to drop 'em just when he needs 'em most. A lot o' hogs'll rush up to the trough and the first one there, or maybe the biggest one, 'll gobble all the swill he can, and try to keep the others from gettin' any. Away back yonder our delightful ancestors that we brag so much about did things in pretty much the same way. The first one to the pot got the pick o' the stew and the hindmost picked the bones. You can see people o' that sort even now—people who put their feet in the trough and try to hog everything in sight. But this thing we call courtesy has grown up in the world just on purpose to give the slower ones and the lesser ones a chance. It's the principle of politeness, the idea that every man's got some rights and feelin's that everybody else must respect, that has made this country what it is today, and that is puttin' a new coat o' paint on some other countries, mentionin' no names. It looks like a long ways from takin' off your hat to a lady to settin' up a democratic government, but it's all on the same road.

"However, I didn't start out to talk politics. I just wanted to point out the foundation of civilized life so as to show the importance of carryin' a few of its rocks around with us in our daily comin's and goin's—but at the same time I don't believe in too much bowin' and scrapin' and after-you-in'. Courtesy, like any other virtue, can be carried too far, and while I'd rather be the man who is so polite he won't move for fear of steppin' on somebody's toes than the man who gets his feet in the trough, I don't see any use in bein' either. For the man who pays too much attention to the forms of politeness not only loses its substance, but he's mighty apt to lose his place in the procession. While he's genuflectin' the other fellow's gone by and passed out o' sight. As between man and man I believe in showin' respect for the other fellow's rights and feelin's, but, by doggies, he's got to show an equal respect for mine. As between man and woman, that's another proposition, and, as between boys and grown folks, it's still another. A man should be courteous to a woman under all circumstances, and a boy should pay a certain deference to age because it is age.

"And that brings me back to where I started. I advertised for an office boy not long ago. I got eleven applicants, and only three of them took off their hats when they entered my room. I picked one o' the three. There's no man on earth who isn't influenced by courtesy. Maybe he doesn't realize it, but all the same he appreciates it. And all through business life it counts, counts in dollars and cents. The boy who is polite in a manly way has at all times the best chance for advancement, other things being equal, and why so few of 'em take advantage of this asset that don't cost 'em a penny is a puzzle to me. I'm mighty thankful little Bill's got started right."

TRICKS OF THE JACKRABBIT.

ALSO THE BLUNDERS THAT ENABLE HOUNDS AND FOXES TO CATCH HIM.

[New York Sun:] "The fox is no match for the jackrabbit in speed," said a hunter who has taken note of that sprightly creature's ways. "I don't mean the big, stilt legged rabbit of the far western plains, but the northern or Canada hare, which was introduced to the thickets and brush lots of Southern New York a few years ago.

"Fleet as the red fox is on his velvet feet, this same jackrabbit could give him half a mile start in a two-mile race and win in a canter. Yet if the dogs could be started after a fox and a jackrabbit at the same time over the same course the rabbit would be caught while the fox would still be in a good lead of the pack.

"That's because the fox has the longest head of the two. He knows a thing or two that the rabbit hasn't been able to get into that rattle brain of his yet and never will be able to.

"The trouble with the jackrabbit is that he is long on timidity and short on tact. In a race of that kind he would start away at the top of his speed and at the sound of the dogs and keep up the gait as long as he heard the dogs behind him. The fox is crafty and would make no such a blunder as that.

"He would take things easy until the hounds pressed him too close. Then he would put on more steam, and decrease or increase the pressure as circumstances required. A chase that would exhaust the jackrabbit would find the canny red fox well in the lead and comparatively fresh.

"But the jackrabbit drops into many cute and cunning tricks when you are on his trail with the dogs. He will make for rising ground if he can and will avoid soft ground. If you will take notice, you will see that the rabbit can run up hill faster than he can go down. The reason for that is easy to see. If he put the force in his long hind legs going down hill that he needs for full speed, the leverage would jack him up behind so far that he would be tumbled heels over head, like a clown tumbling somersaults in a circus, and the dogs would be on to him before he reached the bottom. Therefore, knowing that the dogs can go down hill at full speed, the jackrabbit has cunning enough to shy off a downhill course and keep to the uphill route if he can. And the steeper the run up hill is the better he likes it.

"His reason for avoiding soft or wet ground shows him to be quite capable in some respects if he is a little incompetent in others. His feet are covered with thick stockings of fur, and these stick to the yielding soil or moist surface, and of course delay his flight, while he has observed that the pursuing dogs have no difficulty in getting swiftly over that sort of ground; so he gives it as wide range as he can.

"The space a jackrabbit can cover in his leaps is astounding. His nest is in some clump of the tall wild grass always found in his bailiwick, or among sheltering bunches of flexible weeds, or beneath some protecting bush. When pressed by pursuers, and he concludes to play one trick of his to increase the chances of his escaping from them, he puts on steam, and heads in the direction of his nest, stopping opposite it at a distance from it the greatest he can cover at a leap, and I have known such a leap to measure fifteen feet and more.

"The jackrabbit has other strategic tricks that serve him well on occasion. He will run in pastures among sheep, jump on the top of stone walls and follow them long distances, matching in this the cunning of the coon, and will even force a fresh rabbit to go on with the race, following the new starter a few rods and then leaping aside to the shelter of some bush or brush pile while the dogs keep on after the fresh rabbit. But as a rule the shallow patedness of the jackrabbit will predominate and he will persist in doubling again and again over the same course, which is sure to end in his undoing.

"The jackrabbit cannot only hear sound a great way off, but can hear in one direction with one ear while the other is listening for indications of danger in another direction. It is not uncommon to see one of these long-eared chaps standing erect on his hind legs, with one ear turned well back over his shoulder and the other pushed forward toward his nose. He is listening in both directions, and if presently he goes scooting off across country with those amazing leaps of his you can make up your mind that he has heard danger approaching from one quarter or the other, or perhaps from both, and is taking the way that to him seems best to get away from it. If the jackrabbit was as wise as he is swift and alert he would need fear neither fox nor hound.'

Saw Washington's Face.

THE EXPERIENCE OF A MAN STILL LIVING AT NATION'S CAPITAL.

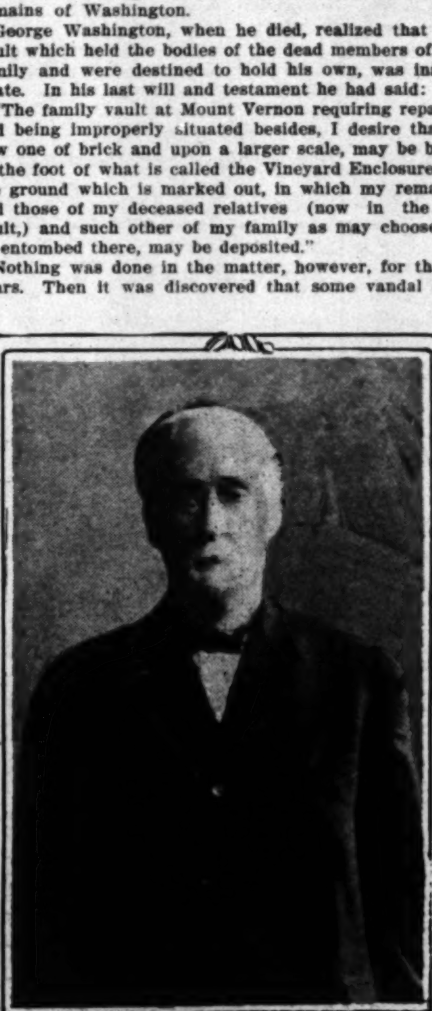
By William Atherton DuPuy.

AS the anniversary of the birth of Washington approaches it is interesting to know that there is a man still living in this, the twentieth century, who gazed on the face of the father of his country, who died in the eighteenth century—112 years ago, to be correct. This man who actually saw the countenance of George Washington is still in possession of his faculties and remembers well how that great man looked. He is not merely the only man alive today who ever saw the first President's face, but he is the only man of the present generation who ever had that privilege. He is this generation's nearest tie to the actual physical Washington.

For even this man, John Lane of the city of Washington, was not born until a quarter of a century after Washington died. Yet, as stated before, he viewed that patriarch's face and is the only man of the present generation who ever had that privilege.

The occurrence which makes this apparently impossible thing a fact was the opening of the tomb of Washington seventy-four years ago. At that time the body of the great man was moved from one tomb to another. A committee of Congress officiated at the transfer. The coffin was opened for one brief moment and the committee's members took a last look at the face of the man who had done most toward establishing the nation which was already growing great. The remains had been competently embalmed and the face remained as in life. After this one look the coffin was placed in its new sarcophagus, hermetically sealed and placed in its new abode, where it has rested undisturbed ever since.

But when this Congressional committee on that October day three-quarters of a century ago, wound its way to Mount Vernon there went with it a bit of a boy. And while its members gazed awestruck on what they saw one of them raised the boy aloft, and he, too, looked.



John Lane, who saw Washington's face.

Home of Washington.

Tomb of Washington

Johnnie Lane—the Boy.

This boy still lives, having attained the ripe old age of 86. All the other members of that party, being at the time men of maturity, have long since died. The boy of 1837 is the venerable patriarch of today, John Lane of Washington. Now and again he becomes reminiscent and tells the stories of the men he knew in the early thirties. For then Washington was but a small town and the residents knew personally the men who were making the nation's history.

He tells of the small book store that his uncle kept on Pennsylvania avenue. There came Davy Crockett in 1834 and talked loudly of having antagonized his constituents and their consequent refusal to return him to Congress.

"My constituents," he heard Crockett say, "may go to h——l and I will go to Texas."

It is not recorded whether or not the constituents did as they were bid, but Crockett went to Texas and died gloriously in the Alamo two years later.

Next door lived Widow Gorman, who kept a boarding-house and to whom a certain coxcomb who worked in the War Department owed a board bill of a hundred dollars. He refused to pay it, and, on the advice of friends, she went to Andy Jackson, then President, about the matter. Jackson told her to ask the debtor for a sixty-day note. The debtor gave the note and forgot it, never intending to make good. Widow Gorman brought it to the President, who indorsed it and the widow discounted it at her bank. When the bank presented it to the debtor, saying it had been discounted, he asked who was big enough fool to indorse his note. He was told, and immediately hustled out and got the money to redeem it.

Tales of the garrulousness of Daniel Webster, of the fastidiousness of Henry Clay, of the great stature of Sam Houston, of the young lieutenant, Jefferson Davis, who one day brought in from Fort Dearborn, where Chicago now stands, the three Indian chieftains, Black Hawk, Prophet and Sun, as prisoners. Finally, he comes to his best story, that of his trip to Mount Vernon with the Congressional committee that viewed the remains of Washington.

George Washington, when he died, realized that the vault which held the bodies of the dead members of his family and were destined to hold his own, was inadequate. In his last will and testament he had said:

"The family vault at Mount Vernon requiring repairs, and being improperly situated besides, I desire that a new one of brick and upon a larger scale, may be built at the foot of what is called the Vineyard Enclosure, on the ground which is marked out, in which my remains and those of my deceased relatives (now in the old vault,) and such other of my family as may choose to be entombed there, may be deposited."

Nothing was done in the matter, however, for thirty years. Then it was discovered that some vandal had broken into the old tomb, and, in an evident attempt to steal the bones of Washington, had borne off those of some other member of the family. These were, however, gotten back, and the criminal punished.

This turned attention to the request of Washington for the building of the new tomb, and in 1837 it was complete and ready for transfer. Mr. John Struthers and Mr. William Strickland of Philadelphia, under the guidance of Maj. Lewis, the sole remaining executor of Washington, prepared for the removal of the body. The formal part of the transfer was to be made under the eye of the Congressional committee.

On the morning that the transfer was to be made the members of the committee had met at the book store of John Lane's uncle, and were there awaiting the coming of the coaches that were to take them to Mount Vernon. These ancient conveyances were, of course, the most perfect means of rapid transportation of the day and time. When they arrived the committeemen were merrily stowing themselves away on the inside. Young Johnnie Lane was one of a score of small boys who were looking on with youthful curiosity, and especially coveting the high seat beside the driver.

By Coach to Mount Vernon.

Now Johnnie Lane was a great favorite of Henry Clay, and that courtly gentleman was a sort of master of ceremonies on this occasion. When all was in readiness and there seemed no room left, Clay, much to the surprise of the boy and much to his immediate glorification, seized Johnnie, swung him to that very enviable seat beside the driver, himself clambered aloft and the party was on its way.

The stage coaches wound their way through the outskirts of the village of Washington, across the Long bridge, and down through the much more ambitious town of Alexandria, on the Virginia side. town, which claimed Washington for coaches took the old King's Highway Mount Vernon. There is no seam to either except that where the lids are attached. These lids are of fine Italian marble, [illegible] ornamented with the crest of arms of the United States. They were cemented on, thus converting the caskets into one unbroken whole—a block of marble with a hollow inside. In these hollows are [illegible] this great man and his consort.

The vault itself is built on a hillside some 200 yards from the old Mount Vernon mansion. This is the most [illegible] shrine in all America today. Here come thousands of people from all parts of the nation, and even from abroad. He who visits the nation's capital always goes to the shrine of Washington.

[illegible]'s Greatest Shrine.

The mansion is seen best from the Potomac River. There was never anything in America that surpassed Mount Vernon as an example of the old colonial architecture. There was never a handsomer site for a country home than that chosen by Washington. The hill upon which it stands slopes gradually from the dock at the water front. Its slopes are covered with grasses, broken by flower beds and bisected here and there by [illegible] hedges. Above all rise great trees, some of which are remnants of the forest primeval out of which Washington hewed his homestead. Some were planted under his direction and some have since been put out to take the place of patriarchs claimed by time.

A little down stream from the path from the landing to the house is to be found the shrine. It is no imposing structure. Artists even say Larsh things about it. But to the American visitor it is a thing to be reverenced. The back end of the vault burrows into the hillside, while the front of it comes to the level of the ground. Its portal is guarded by a high iron gate. The visitor approaches this gate, treading softly. He looks through its bars and into the sepulcher. He is surprised to know that the very caskets that hold George and Martha Washington are there in the mouth of the tomb and may be seen from the outside. Yet such is the case. The mouth of the tomb stands open, guarded only by the iron gate. Here the remains of the first lady and gentleman of the land have laid since that October morning of 1837 when they were so placed by a committee of Congress, who were accompanied by a [illegible] boy who is today the world's nearest tie to this great American who is still without a rival in the world's history. Here they have rested as the generations that have passed have come to do them reverence. Here they will continue to rest through all the generations that are to come, for this shrine is a hallowed spot that may be defiled by no human hand.

Old John Lane goes occasionally to Mount Vernon to visit the shrine, for he is hale and strong, and a friend of the open country. But the journeys of a man of 86 are mostly in fancy, and his memory peoples the old [illegible] with a gathering that would be hard to match in these times. Then his mind wanders to his view of [illegible], and he repeats to himself that strongest impression of his youthful experience, an impression to the correctness of which time has set its approval, [illegible]:

"Washington must have been a monstrous big man."

HOW TO HOLD CUSTOMERS.

"Most of us," said Mr. Shovelton, "are looking out for [illegible]; I think we'll all admit that. The trouble with most of us is that we don't do this intelligently; we are always thinking of ourselves and our own interests only; and that's where we slip a cog. Let me [illegible].

"I buy fruit to carry home; I've done that for—well, for many years, and for a long time I bought around at various places. Then one day some years ago I stopped at a store where I liked the looks of the fruit and there, as I noticed a moment later, the paper bags were a little heavier than those I had been accustomed to. The bags here cost the dealer more, maybe a quarter or a half-cent more apiece; but I liked the looks of them. They were good, stout bags that wouldn't break on the way home.

"And when this dealer had put the fruit in one of those bags he didn't simply twist the neck of it and hand it over to me so in a form inconvenient to carry. He folded the top of the bag over and rolled it down to make a handle—a grip piece; and then he tied this all around securely with twine, thus making it up altogether into a bundle that was secure and handy to [illegible].

"Of course I liked all that, and I found that he always made his packages so or putting on sometimes a wood [illegible] handle; but always he made the package secure and handy for me. He had some thought for me, and I've been buying of him ever since; and if he should move I'd follow him. I would go out of my way to trade with him.

"The moral is this: Any small storekeeper, if his goods are right, can build up a trade and hold it and increase it if he has the intelligence and the human quality that prompts him faithfully to consider not himself only but as well the wants and interests of his customers."—New York Sun.

AUCTION SELLING IN JAPAN.

Sealed bids are used in auctioning property in Japan. [illegible] is so shocking. The auctioneer announces to the public that he has such and such a piece of property for sale and invites bids. Those who wish to bid write their bids and names on slips of paper. The papers are folded and placed in a box. When the auctioneer sees no more bids coming he opens the box and reads the bids. The highest bid takes the property. As it is a blind sale, no one knows what his neighbor bids. If a bidder is anxious to get the property he will not put in a small offer.

[illegible] he will very likely bid all the property is worth. For this reason an owner never puts up property for auction unless he wants to sell it.—[illegible]

On His Birthday.

THE FATHER OF HIS COUNTRY DISCUSSES ITS FUTURE.

By Irvin S. Cobb.

"YOU have a birthday during the coming week?" I ventured.

"Well," said the Father of His Country, "I've had a good many of them before, and I think I'll probably be able to pull through this one if nobody is inspired by the coming of the anniversary to start a movement for the erection of another statue to my memory.

"I don't mind being on the 2-cent postage stamps. It shows that nobody ever licked me, living or dead, except when my back was turned. But I do object to the monuments. One of the worst things about being a public man in this country is that the populace hurls bricks at you living, and marble at you, dead. I've been done in stone sitting in a stone bath cabinet with nothing on except a stone sheet in front of the Capitol, and I've been done in bronze on an impossible prancing horse, waving a bronze sword in an attitude which would excite the contempt of anybody that ever rode a horse or carried a sword. I've been done on a pedestal, heroic size, with Percheron ankles, and the people of my race have come and contemplated it and then gone away in a dazed state wondering how anybody with legs like that ever whipped the British and helped to found a new nation. Father of his country? No. Father of a Norman colt? Perhaps. Yes, that has been their attitude of mind. My memory has also been perpetuated in the Washington Monument and in the Washington pie, something almost as durable and indestructible; and a group of commissioners of the District of Columbia were with difficulty restrained lately from further adding to the traditions that cluster around my last resting place at Mt. Vernon by putting up a penitentiary in its immediate vicinity. I've had enough glory of that sort. Every amateur moulder in brass, every graduate of a correspondence school of sculpture, and nearly every professional has taken his whack at me; and I, so far as I personally am concerned, I am perfectly willing that the approaching February 22 should be celebrated merely in the customary way by the closing of the banks, the public offices, Wall street and the New York Stock Exchange, even for a limited period."

"What," I asked, "do you think of the present conditions of our country and how do you regard its prospects for future existence?"

"Excellent," he answered, "first rate—never better."

"But many students of economic conditions predict that we are rapidly approaching a frightful crash," I said.

"I know it," he said, "that is one of the things which inspires me to think our country will endure a while longer anyhow. Ever since we founded it our nation has always been on the point of being utterly destroyed and yet managing to hang on till another spring. I remember when the government was started there were a large number of gentlemen who gave us six months and not an hour longer. They couldn't see a ray of hope anywhere. There wasn't a chance. I think they must have been the ancestors of the metropolitan dramatic critics of the present day. Anyhow, they had the true spirit of profound pessimism developed to the highest possible degree. They felt that the system was all wrong and, until they were put in charge, that the administration of affairs would be in improper hands. But we managed to drag the infant republic through its first summer and then through its second, and somebody or other has dragged it through every summer since with strength enough left in it to last out the following winter. It lived then, and, by some miracle or other, it is still alive. Something has always been on the point of destroying us. If it wasn't a foreign war, it was war at home among ourselves; if it wasn't the slavery issue, it was the tariff issue or the expansion issue or the divorce issue. There have been large political parties in this country founded on the belief that the country was doomed if people were allowed to join secret orders or to worship in their own kind of churches. I believe there are some now at large who feel morally certain we will slide over the brink of destruction if we do not fortify the Panama Canal, and plenty of others who imagine an even worse fate will be awaiting right around the corner for us if we do. There are some who imagine us to be in the condition of the Virginia gentleman who had so many fatal diseases that he lived to a great age because he couldn't make up his mind which one of them he ought to die of, and was finally killed by lightning.

"Over here on This Side, a number of us took the pains once of having an analysis made of the head of one of those sacred Americans who couldn't see a gleam of hope for his native land. We wanted to see what he did his thinking with. As nearly as I can recall, the analysis ran like this," and with his own hand, the father of his country wrote down the following formula:

Solid bone tissue	60 per cent.
Animal fats	37 per cent.
Glue	29-10 per cent.
Brains	A trace.

"But many fear that unchecked immigration, bringing to us the pauper hordes of Europe, will muddy the streams of the national life," I pointed out.

"I have always been more or less under the impression," he said, "that in a way of speaking you might go so far as to say that this country was practically settled by immigrants from Europe. Of course, there were some original settlers, on the ground before the European immigration started, but they didn't count much except for decorative and hunting purposes, and haven't since. All the nations have contributed to our strength, and yet we've manged to remain reasonably fair-skinned. The colored brother in instances has paled from pure licorice to chocolate and, even in some instances, to the complexion of a new meerschaum pipe, but the savants say he is now tending back again in the direction of what you might call the fast shades. Meanwhile we continue to be the melting pot of the white races. There's room for millions and millions more in Texas alone, if they're only willing to learn to vote the Democratic ticket, and the great stretches of the Northwest will welcome all who can see their way clear to having a McSomebody for a political guide and an Olson for a Governor. It doesn't take long for the aliens to catch the spirit of our institutions. One generation on the soil makes them the Yankiest of the Yanks or the Southernest of the Southerns.

"I don't think our Anglo-Saxon strain is in danger of being corrupted. You see, we have all the known varieties of the Anglo-Saxon strain in our common blood. So why should the German Anglo-Saxons of the Corn Belt, and the Irish Anglo-Saxons of our eastern seaboard, and the indomitable Scotch Anglo-Saxons down South, and the stalwart, fair-haired Scandinavian Anglo-Saxons of the Minnesota wheat fields, or even our English Anglo-Saxon—I think he settled somewhere near Boston—why, I repeat, should they, or any of them, knowing as they do that the Anglo-Saxon strain is so firmly intermingled in our breed, object to the coming of a few more millions of Russian and Polish and Hungarian and Italian and Greek Anglo-Saxons, or over on the Pacific side, even a few Japanese and Chinese and Hindu Anglo-Saxons. The public-school system, the plan of beneficent politics that is practiced in our larger cities and the fact that people never yet drew a geographical line when it came to falling in love and getting married, will work out all the little racial differences between the numerous varieties of our Anglo-Saxons in due time. It doesn't take the Irish stew long to become a New England boiled dinner or a Maryland hash on our shores. And what is a pretzel but a doughnut that never had a chance?"

"But the critics point out that the standards of our statesmanship have been lowered since the time of the Fathers of the republic," I interjected.

"That, too, is open to some argument," said our first President. "Considering the temptations, I think I am prepared to venture the assertion that statesmen grade up about as high and grade down about as low in one country as in another. I think we produced about as many greedy ones per acre in the first ten years of the nation as you can show in the last ten. Taking them by and large, my young fellow-countryman, you'll find that statesmen average up the same as the run of the raw oysters you get with a 60-cent table d'hote dinner—about so many good ones and so many bad ones in every half-dozen."

"I had always supposed that the early patriots were as honest as the day was long," I said.

"So they may have been," was the answer, "but we used to have some very short days, especially in the winter when the Legislatures and Congress were in session. And even the long days were often followed by very dark nights.

"History is a kindly recorder. She forgets the things that the newspapers printed on a statesman during his life and keeps track only of what the preacher said in the oration over him at his funeral. History learned her calling from the study of epitaphs on the tombstones in the cemetery, not from the grand jury minutes or the transcript of the evidence taken by the investigating committee. History will tell you that such and such a gathering was a fine body of men, without telling you they were, possibly, the finest body of men that money could buy. History forgets what the neighbors said about the way the Sage and the Patriot treated his family and how his breath was so frequently feverish and pink, and only preserves to posterity the facts that he had a mezzanine forehead and a Daniel Webster gift of oratory. His soiled shirt is forgotten, his frock coat and his stock collar are fondly remembered.

"You have some human boll weevils in public life today, and from time to time a gipsy-moth politician is caught, as my countrymen now express it, with the goods on. But there were a few seventeen-year locusts and some cutworms in politics back in the early days, and after them came the Kansas grasshoppers and those moths that were found in the company of carpet bags and shoddy policies. Politics may be still full of insect life, but it never was free from pests. Our country has most excellent chances of lasting, I think, as long as parents keep on bringing babies into the world about so often."

"How so?" I asked.

"Because," he said, "our future is bound to be safe in the hands of the smartest, brightest generation that ever gladdened the earth. And if you don't think each generation of babies is all of that, just ask their fathers and mothers."

THE SEVEN BIBLES.

Mohammed in his capacity as legislator for the Arabs made a distinction in treating of the non-Islamic world between those peoples who had a scripture and those who had not. Among the former he included the Jews, the Christians, and strangely enough, the Sabaeans, whose holy writings have since disappeared.

It should be a curious problem for modern Mohammedan authorities to decide as to which peoples may be said to have what corresponds to a Bible. Would they include the Chinese, with their books of Kings, Shi-King, Li-King, and the rest? Would the Brahmins, with their Vedas, be included? Or the Buddhists, with their Tripitaka?

A still further problem would be raised by a case like the Eddas, which had the force of a Bible among the early Norsemen, but have since lost their force. Here would be the case of a Bible without a people rather than of a people without a Bible. On any method of enumeration, however, Jews would receive the benefit of the Mohammedan law with their Bible, which is acknowledged as authoritative even by the Koran.—[American Hebrew.

Unique Cooking Schools.

THREE BEING CONDUCTED BY UNCLE SAM FOR BENEFIT OF SOLDIERS.

By William L. Altdorfer.

IN the words of a celebrated author, "cooking is an art second to none. He who masters the art and practices his profession, confers a lasting benefit upon mankind. He is the most potent factor in the upbuilding of future generations, and while in rare cases the art has been used to pander to the abnormal appetites of a few so-called epicures, it is yet the backbone of life, and one upon which we must build and build intelligently to secure that longevity that each and every one of us desire."

Field bakeries, inside and outside views.

So accepting this as true, how would you like to be a chef? To be taught the art of cooking and of baking, and at the same time to receive a salary of $15 a month, all the clothing you need to wear, the most up-to-date quarters in which to live, all your doctor bills paid in advance, and when you graduate, to receive an increase in pay of $15 a month, making a total $30 clear for each of the twelve months in the year?

All this might sound like a dream, the result perhaps of the concoction known as a Welsh rarebit, which is said to be an evolution of the art of cooking. But on the contrary, it is not a dream, and is really what Uncle Sam is doing today in order to provide cooks and bakers for his family of eighty-odd thousand soldiers. He is not only teaching them how to become cooks so that his men will be well fed, but he is also teaching them the subtle art of baking. Ordinarily cooking and baking in the household are combined under the one head, that of cooking, but in Uncle Sam's cooking schools they are taught as two different professions.

All students who enter these cooking schools must be men not less than 21 years old and of good, sound physique. These are the only requirements demanded on the part of prospective applicants. Any young man who answers these requirements may apply at any one of Uncle Sam's offices and he will probably be accepted.

The schools are probably unique because they are of the few places where women will not be found. Of course, this is not because Uncle Sam does not believe in women cooks, but with a family of eighty-odd thousand to care for, he believes the work of cooking for so large a family would be greater than the average woman would care to tackle, so he confines his attention to making cooks and bakers of men, who are stronger and better able to look after his large family.

One at San Francisco.

Uncle Sam is now conducting three cooking schools. One at Washington Barracks, Washington, D. C.; one at Fort Riley, Kan., and the other at the Presidio, San Francisco. At each of these schools the success of the graduates has been remarkable. Last year there were 141 bakers and 328 cook graduates, while during the previous year there was a total of 421 bakers and 891 cook graduates.

The graduates of the schools are now spread over the entire world. In the Philippines, at Guam, Porto Rico, and all parts of the United States. During last year the students of the various schools attended many maneuver camps, where the instructors taught the men of the various militia how to cook. The schools had full charge of running the bakeries at these camps. It was estimated that six men at one camp during the period of three months baked on an average 3930 pounds of bread a day, or a total of 434,779 loaves of bread for the entire three months.

As an indication of the excellence of the course taught at the schools, it is understood that many of the graduates, after leaving the army, have entered civil life, and are now receiving from $100 to $150 per month as chefs in some of our largest hotels and restaurants, and that many of them have bakeries of their own.

Uncle Sam is not only teaching his men in the regular army, but he is also looking after the cadet corps at the military academy at West Point.

He believes that when the time comes for his boys at the academy to assume the duties of officers in his army, they should know what is best for his large family in the way of food, and also how it should be cooked. During the short time the schools have been in operation more than seventy-eight officers have graduated and are now full-fledged commissary officers with a good knowledge of cooking and baking.

School for Bakers and Cooks, Washington Barracks.

Gen. Henry G. Sharp, at present chief commissary officer for the army, and Gen. Fred D. Grant are the originators of the cooking schools for the army. Several years ago it was suggested that it would be a good thing to have such an organization in the army and the idea was promptly taken up by both these officers and pushed to success. Starting with a small beginning at Washington Barracks, the schools became of such general interest throughout the army that one was shortly afterward organized at Fort Riley, Kan., and this in turn was followed by the organization of another at the Presidio, San Francisco. It is claimed the schools have now developed into one of the most important adjuncts of the army.

When the school was first started at Washington, there was but one instructor now there are six. It was the same at Fort Riley and the Presidio. The schools seemed to attract the attention of the men from the start, and while the policy throughout has been to depend upon volunteers, the requests for permission to take the course became so numerous that very stringent rules had to be adopted to keep the number of students within a reasonable limit. In order to receive permission to enter the schools each volunteer must be of excellent character for the time he has been in the army, and have a year or more to serve or promise to re-enlist for another three years, before his Uncle Samuel will undertake to teach him how to cook and bake.

Four Months to Complete Course.

The usual course of instruction at the schools requires four months to complete. During this time the student is taught first to familiarize himself with cooking utensils and how to handle the month he is made assistant to the range, and the third month he takes fourth month is given to instruction tion, mess sergeant's duty, such accounts and the like. During the students also receive instruction in arithmetic, so that at the end course a graduate is pretty well among his fellow soldiers and help with the generous rations provid uncle.

Miss Ruth's Romance.

AT THE END OF THE WALK THROUGH RUBIO CANYON.

By Jessie Porter Whitaker.

SHE was a dear little woman and my mother's old friend. I had promised that when I visited California I would certainly seek out Miss Ruth Paxton, and on this November morning the trolley brought me swiftly past thrifty groves of orange and lemon, through village streets shaded by live oaks and arched with the vivid green of the graceful peppers, across desert stretches where, in the wash of some mountain stream, the stony, parched earth was covered but sparsely with masses of cacti and chaparral, till we reached the little town lying close against the mountains that thrust their huge bulk so abruptly out of the level plain.

Chrysanthemums leaned their great globes of white and gold over the picket fence that inclosed Miss Ruth's little dooryard, a snowy border of narcissus outlined the path to the door where Mareschal Niel roses hung their golden censers of fragrance—happy union of autumn, spring and summer.

I had written Miss Ruth that I was coming to have her take me up a mountain canyon where I could find something of nature in its simplicity, for when I had visited Mount Lowe and that wonderful incline track and the railroad twisting along the face of perpendicular rock walls, the sight of that great crack in the heart of the mountain, Rubio Canyon, awoke in me a longing to visit a mountain canyon still in the wild.

Miss Paxton is a typical New England old maid, a woman of few words.

"You cannot go where there is no trail," she wrote, "but I will take you where there are no tables, no benches, no bridges. Wear stout shoes, for we shall walk in the bed of the stream. You must come before the rains."

I found Miss Paxton sitting on her doorstep in the sunshine, talking with a woman of middle age, dressed in plain black, whom she introduced to me with gentle dignity as "my housekeeper, Mrs. Bland." It was the housekeeper who brought in the lunch boxes, neatly tied, and wrapped a light cape about Miss Paxton.

"You are always taking care of folks, Gretchen; good-by, and look after the chickens," was Miss Paxton's parting injunction.

"Such a treasure," I commented. "I hope you can keep her with you."

"I can. She has no one else to need her," was the brief reply.

Near the entrance of the canyon we passed a large sanatorium for tuberculosis patients. The neat little tent-houses surrounded by trees and flowers, each had its balcony commanding a view of the distant mountains across the broad level plain, or of the nearer heights that guarded the entrance to the canyon.

"If people must be ill, where could they find a more charming place to stay than this!" was my admiring exclamation as I watched a white-robed nurse, bearing a covered tray, enter one of the tents. My companion was silent, and there came to my memory a story my mother had told me of Miss Ruth's handsome lover, a Green Mountain lad who courted her in the far-away Vermont farmhouse. But a hereditary tendency to consumption began to develop in him, and her parents refused consent to the marriage. He went West, and years after she heard that he had married a nurse who took care of him in some hospital. The brilliant sunlight of the November morning suddenly seemed dimmed to me, but when I glanced at the little woman walking beside me, there was no shadow on her peaceful face.

"How good it is to be close to them," she was saying. Her gaze was fixed on the mountain tops that towered far above us.

Our trail was taking us between steep walls, on one side rock, where only here and there a venturesome shrub clung with precarious roothold; on the other, masses of green, oak, bay, holly, with an occasional red gleam from the smooth manzanita stems—rose to where the strip of sky far above belted their tops with blue. Now the passage narrowed and we were descending into the bed of the stream; no water, but everywhere piled and scattered boulders told of the roaring, rushing torrent that, in the rainy season, tears through this chasm. Carefully we picked our way till the trail again led up the side of the bank, and paused to admire the young ferns showing green tips among the scattered brown leaves of the sycamores. A wren tit scudded, mouselike, across the trail, his long tail carried at an acute angle above his back, and hid in the shrubbery with a sharp rattle of scolding notes. My companion pointed on ahead to where the sunlight touched the foliage of the mountain maples to gold, while beneath, where a dense mass of shrubbery hid the stream bed, the poison ivy was turning scarlet under autumn's opening touch. The canyon widened now; between us and the brook was a tangled mat of raspberry, and wild grapevines festooned the young alders that arched its course. To my surprise, the bank beside the path was carpeted with the dark, glossy leaves of the periwinkle.

"A cultivated vine!" I exclaimed. Miss Ruth pointed beyond to where a large oleander tree, a few stunted oranges and a fig tree, still covered with its thick, dark green foliage, bordered a wide, open space. In its center a huge live oak spread its wide tent of green.

"Surely some one must have lived here!"

"Yes, a bee man had a ranch here once," Miss Ruth replied in her quiet tones. "You know, in this country they keep bees in wild places that they may get their food from the natural growth."

"It must have been a delightful place to live, plenty of pure air, and right in the heart of nature."

Again my companion was silent, and we presently pursued our way up to the head of the canyon. We had been hearing the sound of the rush of water through the great pipe, of which we now and then had a glimpse through the shrubbery, but now another sound, the roar of falling water, reached our ears. Down the precipice in a glistening sheet leaped the mountain stream, to lose itself in a clear, green pool beneath. The rock walls on either side were clothed with delicate green drapery of maidenhair fern that quivered under the touch of the spray. It almost seemed a profanation to eat luncheon in such a temple of beauty, but Miss Ruth was careful to conceal beneath some rocks all traces of our repast "That nothing may be seen here but nature's handiwork."

By the time we had again reached the deserted site of the bee man's ranch we were tired enough to rest, reclining in the sunshine against the slanting side of one of the rocks scattered all about the open space. A mocking-bird thrust his head from a tangle of shrubbery and looked us over with curious eyes. No doubt this frequenter of dooryards was as much surprised to see us as we were to find him in this wild place. I could scarcely believe it really was a mocker, and rising, approached the bushes quietly to obtain a nearer view. The bird dodged back and dropped out of sight. I followed around to the other side of the thicket and came upon a narrow trail leading up to a spur of the mountain that divided this place from the lower canyon.

"Come, let us explore this trail," I called to Miss Ruth. With some reluctance, it seemed, she followed. It was up rather a steep pitch that the path finally brought us to the top of the spur, and here, in a little cleared space, I stood still in sheer amazement. Before me, side by side, stood three white stones.

"Gravestones! In this place!"

I dropped on my knees to read the inscriptions, which were quite clear, for the place was well cared for.

"'Hans, aged 6 years. Fritz, aged 9 years. Ruth Peace, aged 12 years,'" I read. "She should have been called Gretchen, to match her brothers, don't you think?"

There was no answer, and, glancing up, I surprised a startled look on Miss Ruth's usually placid face.

"After living so long in this healthful spot," I continued, "she should have been well and living still."

"Too late." Miss Ruth's voice had a hushed tone. "Notice they all come from B——," naming a town in Wisconsin. "They brought them here too late."

"Did you know them?" I bent again and read the line graven beneath the three stones, for they were on one base. "'Beloved children of Henry and Gretchen Bland.' Bland? The name of your housekeeper, Miss Ruth!"

"Yes. She is their mother."

A tear fell on the little white stone bearing the name of Ruth Peace. I looked up. Miss Ruth's eyes were wet, but her mouth still wore the peaceful look.

"And their father?"

"He died in my house."

Then I knew the end of Miss Ruth's romance.

LACE REPRODUCED IN STONE.

Throughout his reign King Edward was most assiduous in carrying out any wishes of his mother that she did not live to fulfill. This was especially the case where her own personal belongings were concerned. Among these in the earlier part of his reign the King discovered some valuable lace done up with special care, and directions concerning it in Queen Victoria's own handwriting. He at once saw that the gift was despatched, with a few words of his own added to those of his mother.

It is of interest, with Lord Beaconsfield's name so much to the fore, to know that the priceless lace was a present to Hughenden Church. So great is its value that it led to a unique proceeding on the part of the rector. By his orders a stone copy was made of it, the lace itself only being used as an altar frontal when special precautions could be taken against thieves.

It is in the parish of Hughenden that there lingers many pleasant memories of those little courtesies for which the then Lord and Lady of the Manor were noted. It is related, for instance, how Lord Beaconsfield on one occasion met his own bootmaker strolling in the park attached to his property. The Earl stopped in his genial way for a chat and noted the while that his humble friend was without his usual walking stick. He immediately presented his own, which to this day is treasured by the family and adorned with a silver band. On it the donor's name is engraved, with the date of the incident.

That Lady Beaconsfield was not behind her husband in these courteous acts was proved many times. Quite pretty is the story that the village church being very full one Sunday, she opened her pew door to admit the young milliner who fashioned her simple collars and caps. Only a few days previously she had asked to see the girl, who she considered worked with such skill behind the scenes at the little draper's shop.

Quite often after this Lady Beaconsfield's little pony carriage used to call at the shop and take the delighted girl to Hughenden Manor. There she would be entrusted to look over rare family lace, and select just what was suitable for the next batch of fichus and caps.—[Queen.

FILM DRAMA FOR 108,000,000 RUSSIANS.

Cinematograph theaters are tremendously popular in Russia. Almost every village has one. Moscow and St. Petersburg have about eighty each. For the empire the number is estimated at 1200, with an aggregate attendance last year of 108,000,000. At the average admission of 20 cents $21,600,000 was taken in. Admission charges range from 8 to 67 cents. Many houses entertain 100 a night. On Sundays and holidays the crowds are enormous. The pictures shown are largely educational and do much good, especially as so large a proportion of Russia's population is illiterate.—[New York Sun.

Making a Study of Giants.

FREAK OF NATURE THAT IS JUST BEGINNING TO BE UNDERSTOOD.

By Rene Bache.

THE largest man ever born in this country, with one exception, died recently in a hospital near Washington. His name was John Turner; his height was seven inches over seven feet, and the breath was hardly out of his body when scientific institutions in verious places began to bid against each other for the possession thereof.

A giant is worth a good deal of money dead. The Army Medical Museum would have been delighted to obtain the skeleton of Turner, but could not afford to enter the competition. What will become of it eventually nobody seems to know, but one may safely predict that it will not enjoy the privilege of Christian burial. It is too valuable.

The reason why it is so valuable is that it serves to illustrate one of the most remarkable of the phenomena of physiology—namely, that of "giantism," which is now recognized as a pathologic condition. Furthermore, the extraordinary overgrowth of the individual thus afflicted is due to a disease of a small gland, about the size of a pea and somewhat oval in shape, which is situated at the base of the brain. It is called by anatomists the "pituitary body."

In 1783 there died in London a very remarkable giant named Charles O'Brien, who was so anxious to escape postmortem exhibition as an anatomical specimen that he left instructions to the effect that his body was to be buried at sea. The cupidity of his heirs, however, overcame their respect for his wishes, and, by the payment of $2500, the College of Surgeons was able to secure possession of the skelton, which, prepared and mounted by William Hunter, the famous anatomist, may be seen to this day in the museum of that institution.

It is said that, in life, no giant ever created so great a sensation as did O'Brien, who was by actual measurement four inches above eight feet in height. He possessed enormous strength, and is described as having been clever and shrewd—a very exceptional thing in giants, who, as a rule, are lacking in intelligence. Nevertheless, he squandered a fortune, which he made by exhibiting himself, in gluttony and intemperance, and died before reaching 24 years of age.

Perhaps the strangest fact in regard to giantism is that one may become a victim to it at almost any time of life. Thus you or I, without any seeming cause, may start in tomorrow or next year to become a giant. This, in fact, was what actually happened not long ago to a middle-aged clergyman of the Church of England. Nothing appeared to be the matter with him, but, to his great surprise, he found that he was obliged to buy gloves of a larger size every time he purchased a new pair. With his hats it was the same way. Then his coats became too small for him, and he outgrew all of his shoes. Finally, he consulted a physician, and was informed that he was suffering from giantism.

If a human skull be examined, there will be found, not far from the middle of the bottom of the brain box, a small cavity, into which the end of a finger may be thrust. This cavity, during the lifetime of the individual, is occupied by the "pituitary body," a bit of structure half gland and half nerve stuff, about which science knows practically nothing, except that it has importantly to do with growth. Apparently it forms a secretion which controls certain functional activities. At all events, in cases of giantism it is always either much shrunken or else greatly enlarged, usually the latter.

Fortunately giantism is an extremely rare disease. What causes the trouble with the "pituitary body" is unknown. Recovery is impossible. The malady progresses very slowly, and the victim may live twenty years or even longer. His bodily strength gradually leaves him, however, and more or less mental weakness supervenes. Severe headaches are a characteristic symptom.

The fingers and toes are first to enlarge. Later on they hands become huge and spade-shaped, and the feet likewise exhibit a tendency to grow. At the same time, the bones of the face spread and thicken; the forehead projects, the cheek bones broaden, and the lower jaw becomes square and massive. So symmetrical is this enlargement of the jaw that the teeth are widely separated without loosening. The head and the extremities exhibit the most striking overdevelopment, but the trunk and limbs join in the general structural change, the shoulders greatly broadening. Usually the lips thicken, the lower lip tending to protrude and turn down.

Giantism ordinarily attacks people in later adolescence, before they have attained the full measure of their normal growth. Thus it seems as if it were a mere continuation of such growth. When Dr. Hunter hung up the skeleton of the Irish giant, O'Brien, in the museum of the College of Surgeons, he was not at all aware that it was a pathological specimen. Only within very recent years has it come to be known that giants are victims of a disease. But, such being the case, it is not surprising that they do not live long. Dr. Woods Hutchinson recently got together some mortality figures which showed that the average longevity of these overgrown members of the human race is only twenty-eight years.

There is no record of any giant in modern times who has lived longer than forty-five years. This relatively great age was attained by Patrick Cotter, another Irish giant, who made his appearance not long after the death of O'Brien. He was of about the same height as the latter, but so thin and emaciated as to look much taller. On one occasion, while staying at Bath, he greatly frightened a night watchman by walking past and taking off the top of a street lamp, to light his pipe at the flame. This is only one of many stories told of his pranks. Another time, at a banquet, he took out of his pocket the celebrated dwarf, Count Borulauski, and set him on the table, to the astonishment of the assembled company. But in later years he became extremely feeble, and could walk only by supporting himself on the shoulders of two tall men walking in front of him.

Naturally the stature of giants is usually more or less exaggerated. P. T. Barnum, in his memoirs, says that he never could find a human being that would come up to the eight-foot mark, though he searched the world for curiosities during the half-century of his experience as a showman. Seven feet is a good height for an ordinary show giant. Doubtless, the tallest man ever exhibited in this country was Chang, the Chinese giant, who was advertised as eight feet high. As a matter of fact, he was only about six inches over seven feet. He was slenderly built, and a flowing robe and thick-soled shoes helped out the effect. An advantage he had over most other giants was that he showed no striking deformity or great overdevelopment of hands and feet.

Undoubtedly much bigger people than Chang have lived within recent times. One of these was a woman, Pauline Marie Elizabeth Wedde, otherwise known as the Queen of the Amazons, who was born in Thuringia in 1866. She first appeared in public at the Alhambra, in London. Good-looking, well-proportioned, and at that time young, she measured four inches above eight feet. This was definitely ascertained by scientific tape. But the top notch of human stature seems to have been set by a Bavarian giant named Winkelmeyr, who died not anthropologist, to measure exactly eight feet and a half. very long ago, and who was found by Dr. Doubes, the Diligent search of the records leads to the conclusion that there have been within modern times—that is to say, within the last three centuries—about 100 giants known to fame. Of these about twenty have been advertised as eight feet or more in height, but there is no question that the claims in their behalf were in most cases exaggerated. The two tallest men ever subjected to scientific measurement were Winkelmeyr (already mentioned,) and an Austrian, measured by Dr. Topinard, whose height was eight feet, four and a half inches.

The late Dr. Thomas Wilson of the [illegible] tution told a story of an experience he [illegible] in the '50s, which showed the common [illegible] exaggeration where giants are concerned. The Opium Habit.

ITS EFFECTS DESCRIBED BY ONE WHO HAS EXPERIENCED THEM.

By a Special Contributor.

IN California one hears a good deal more about opium than one does on the east coast, because in this part than one does on the east coast, because in this to smuggle it into the States, owing to the vicinity of Mexico. Looking at the quiet Chinamen one meets almost daily in this Golden State, the thought often arises, how many of these men are in the clutches of the deadly drug? Sometimes there is wonder whether any of the Chinese women indulge in opium as some American women do, not heavily, but just enough, at long intervals, to tide them over a period of sleeplessness or some great pain, worry or calamity? If it is not taken for any of these causes, then why is it used at all? What is its wonderful fascination, when one has to accept its ever-present danger as well?

The habit generally fastens imperceptibly after one has accustomed himself to taking the drug for quick relief from pain. Yet Chinamen usually invite its allurements from deliberate choice. The writer has never heard a statement about opium made in reference to any experience but the superlative, when its victim's reason is all but dethroned by many years of constant indulgence in immense doses if swallowed or inordinate smoking if the pipe is used, as in De Quincey's account of how it affected him. Of the occasional or moderate consumption of the drug we hear little, yet it is in this way that numbers of women are addicted to it, as comparatively few feminine users take large quantities until they become old and no longer want to be careful. As the writer had an aunt who was a moderate laudanum taker for half a lifetime before she became hopelessly committed to the use of it, and has at three different periods of his life been under its influence himself, naturally he has been somewhat interested in the subject, and the following account of some experiences with opium may be accepted as authentic.

In Europe, opium is taken almost always in the form of morphia, the drug's very heart; but in America a number of liquid and powder forms are used, so well as crude opium. Paregoric and laudanum are the favorites with women. When it is remembered that the pharmacopoeia recognizes as safe for an adult only 5-30 drops, it may be imagined what the state of a person's system is like when he or she can drink a teacupful a day. It requires years to reach this craving and necessity, but once it is attained there is no retreat.

My aunt began to take laudanum for pain while she was in her twenties, and I can distinctly recall seeing her carefully measure ten or fifteen drops on a spoonful of sugar, and how she kept shuddering five minutes after she had swallowed the bitterness. There were at first intervals of many months between two doses, as she took them only for severe pain, but as she was not a physically strong woman she gradually went more often to the laudanum bottle, until, ten years after she first used it, she was taking a teaspoonful once every day. During the next decade she seldom exceeded that quantity, but after she reached 40 years, she showed a tendency to increase the daily doses steadily. When remonstrated with, she seemed regretful, but, nevertheless kept on taking larger and larger doses of the drug. At that time there was no trouble whatever in obtaining laudanum, and so she had everything her own way for years. She had married and had three healthy children, and at the age of 50 her own health seemed none the worse for all her opium taking, which was two tablespoonfuls three times a day. While she was at this period I one summer day was standing close to her as she sat under a tree with her sleeves rolled up. Presently along came a large horsefly and alighted on one of her bare arms. She was speaking to me, and did not notice him until suddenly she cried out at the sting he had given her, and tried to flip him away. To the surprise of both of us the insect appeared to cling to the flesh. I was about to pick him off, when, with a few feeble struggles he dropped over dead, and then only my aunt realized what had occurred; the fly had been overcome by the tiny bit of blood he had drawn from her laudanum-soaked body. I, too, saw at once the cause of the sudden death, and expected that she would feel dismayed or sad, but by the time she had reached that stage of her opium career her mind was so accustomed to the idea of it and all pertaining to it, that even this hint of tragedy did not affect her uncomfortably. She coolly examined the fly to see whether it was really dead.

Years later this poor lady's memory was so impaired that nothing of any account could be entrusted to it, and as she neglected her appearance to such an extent that her family became ashamed of her, after a serious consultation it was agreed to make a last attempt, with her co-operation if possible, to break up the habit. It had been tried twice before, but not in a systematic way nor with the continuous aid of a physician. This time a young doctor interested in one of the daughters offered to "cure" her mother free of charge if the whole family would use their influence and assist him to the best of their ability. So the experiment began. Truth to tell, none of us believed in the enthusiastic young man's theory; that if the reduction was made long enough, i. e., the doses per day decreased imperceptibly, the sufferer would be weaned from the drug without her feeling any great difference.

Some one of us was on the watch to see that aunt kept within the laudanum allowance and did take the prescribed big black pills regularly. All went well for two weeks, but by the third we noticed the look that is always present with a confirmed opium taker developing on the victim's face, and that she was getting more and more restless. At our request the doctor reduced the daily doses no further for a week. Aunt did not know this, but her condition remained exactly the same from day to day. Then the reduction was resumed, and she at once showed increased signs of uneasiness. So the treatment was moderated to a lessening of the quantity of the drug only every second day instead of every day as before, but the only difference it made was, a slower approach of the inevitable day all of us were dreading, when the patient would throw hope and self-control and co-operation to the winds, and beseech us in the most heartrending manner to let her have the laudanum to take as she pleased. As I said, we had been over the ground twice before, and knew just about what to expect. She could have her opium rations reduced down to a certain quantity, but beyond that she could not be deprived, even with her own full consent and help. On this occasion we had another consultation and, with the doctor as spokesman, begged her to try it only two weeks longer without any further lessening. After much arguing on her part she at length consented, and the test went on.

One day, however, the climax of the ghastly experiment was reached at a bound. Only four days subsequent to the second agreement of abstinence, as my cousin Lucy, at that time a young woman of 23, was quietly working at her office some miles away, she suddenly felt that she should go home. She could not rid herself of the strange "drawing," as she described it later, and much against her common sense she decided to obey her uncommon intuition and leave the office. Obtaining permission from her employer, she lost no time in taking a car, nervously imagining that the house must be on fire and that she had a premonition of the calamity. When she came in sight of her home, she saw that the front door was ajar. On trying to open it farther, she found it would not yield, so slipped her arm through the crack to remove the obstruction. She touched a hand—with a bottle tightly clutched in it. Her mother was lying against the door, which then had to be pushed sufficiently to allow the poor girl to see just how matters stood, as her low call brought no one to her aid, and none of the neighbors were ever told a word about this family skeleton. There lay her miserable mother, unable to speak, feebly pointing one hand toward her open, gasping mouth and stretching the other, with the laudanum bottle, toward her terrified daughter. Lucy at once grasped the whole situation: the rest of the family were out, at the critical moment of her mother's collapse, and the drug was now an absolute necessity. Assuring her mother that all would be well if she could keep up her courage a few moments longer, cousin took the bottle and sped to the drug store, a block away. Her lover was behind the counter and smilingly greeted her, but she unceremoniously commanded him to fill the bottle to the brim instantly, as her mother lay at the point of death. As he was about to remonstrate, the girl, feeling there was no time for anything of that sort, went behind the counter herself to the large vessel in which the laudanum was kept, as she only too well knew. Then the doctor, alarmed at her frantic manner, quickly supplied her with the drug and saw her rush out before he could have another word with her.

When she reached home, she squeezed into the hallway as best she could and placed the bottle to her mother's lips. Then a superhuman strength flew into the weak hands, both of which grasped the bottle so tightly that the strong younger woman could not even tilt it backward, much less take it from her mother until the woman was done with it, until she had almost drained it, had actually swallowed at one dose nearly a teacupful of the poison. Five minutes later she was sitting on a chair, smiling and happy, declaring that never again would she try to break away from her best friend, her precious laudanum. Then the explanation was given.

There had been one person in the house all the time, deaf old grandfather, who had peacefully slept upstairs through all of his daughter's agony and his granddaughter's calls for help. The laudanum had given out too soon, as, in spite of all watching, aunt had managed to take more than the allotted portion. The same thing was true of the pills, so at the very time there was no one near to rectify the matter, aunt found herself without either drug. Her subsequent emotions and awful hallucination—which she held to her dying day—can best be comprehended if given in her own words.

"When I found both medicines gone, I made up my mind to brave it out until evening, as it was doctor's day to come, and then tell him I was no longer willing to be tortured; that at my time of life I ought to be left in peace. I began to read a book, and was becoming greatly interested, when all at once a thin line of flame darted up my throat right into my mouth, and at the same time I had a dreadful craving for the laudanum, such as I never before had in all my life. I was so frightened that I did not know what to do. Just then a larger, broader flame filled my whole throat and mouth, and I ran to a pitcher of water I had seen on the kitchen table. I took a drink, and felt better, as the burning stopped, but the craving in my stomach didn't, so I decided to go for the laudanum myself. As I reached the door, the entire inside of my body caught fire and I felt that death had caught me in its worst form. I could feel the hot flames (oh, YES, they WERE flames, I know what I am talking about) licking away the coating of my stomach, throat and mouth. As I felt the end approaching I thought: 'O Lucy, YOU are the one who believes the least in this cruel "cure," and if you were here your mother's life would not go out by the road of fire.' After that, my whole being seemed to be doing nothing but burning and calling Lucy. The very flames called Lucy,' crackled 'Lucy.'"

That cry of a soul in its extremity was recognized and answered by that of the daughter.

Notice the vivid description—which no argument, reasoning or ridicule could ever dislodge from my aunt's mind, though in all other respects she was quite rational—"a thin line of flame, a broader flame, the entire inside of my body caught fire, licking away the coating of my stomach, the flames crackled." We might know the impossibility, but to the poor opium taker those mental fires were physical realities as well.

My own experience with the drug—one with paregoric for a period of several months off and on, and twice with laudanum, one a small quantity, the other such an overdose that it kept me asleep the better part of three days and nights, was as follows:

The paregoric was taken pretty steadily sometimes for two weeks, and merely kept me at work that had to be accomplished whether I were sick or well, if I desired to retain my good position.

A half-hour after taking a teaspoonful a delicious feeling of mental and physical well-being slowly crept through me from head to foot. When the weather was cold, a pleasant warmth stole over me; if I happened to take the drug during even an extremely hot day, in ten minutes I felt cooler. If I took it while I had a bad, watery cold in my head, in an hour all signs of discomfort had disappeared. This is one of the characteristics of opium; it to a great extent dries up all the juices of the body.

My dealings with laudanum were less pleasant in the beginning, but more wonderful later. It proved so distasteful to me that I could hardly swallow it or keep it down after I had taken it. The first time hardly warrants a description, as the affects were practically the same as those of paregoric, only stronger; but after an intoxicated dentist had set me nearly insane by his efforts to extract the root of a broken-off tooth, I had my great proof of the power of the diabolical magic of opium. As small quantities of laudanum produced no effects at all in my tortured body, I recklessly kept taking more—preferring death to such misery—until I had used four tablespoonfuls in two hours, after which the pain began to subside, and within another hour I fell sound asleep. I was allowed to rest from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 in the evening. I awoke readily enough on being touched, although speaking to me did not arouse me, but so soon as I closed my eyes I went to sleep. I was again awakened the following morning at 8 o'clock, but begged to be let alone, as all I wanted of the universe was to sleep. As I was alive and COULD be aroused, I was not again disturbed until late that afternoon, and what I experienced then gave me a comprehensive insight of the fascination attendant on opium. Never can I forget how I felt as my sister remarked that I would better get up and dress and come downstairs. All the irritating itching of the skin that accompanies the first few hours after the taking of a large dose of the poison, was entirely gone, and I was in a most blissful state of bodiless rapture. While my eyes were open I saw, therefore had to acknowledge, that I possessed a body, yet, judged by the utter lack of feeling in it, I had none. When sister, at my request, touched my hand, I felt the contact only while I saw the act. Again and again did we try it, always with the same result. She pricked me with a pin while my eyes were closed, but I did not feel it. All the time I was in what may be called heavenly happiness, and this is what I believe is the main attraction of opium to the Chinese, the entire elimination of physical realization; the mind clear and triumphant for the time being, without the slightest bodily feeling; an entire freedom from earthly connection. In fact, a foretaste of a purely psychical resurrection.

TERRA AUSTRALIS.

Geographical ghosts are hard to lay, and modern science has a trick of showing that after all the myths had some justification. Thus the venerable father of history, Herodotus of Halicarnassus, was dubbed by skeptics the father of lies because, with other picturesque information that he collected, he stated that the Nile arose from four lakes among the Mountains of the Moon. Even after the lakes had been discovered scoffers would not believe in the Moon Mountains, they even doubted Stanley's assertions about Ruwenzori; but now these mountains at the head waters of the Nile are frequented by scientific explorers and mountain-climbing royal dukes.

The most brilliant and thorough confutation of a geographical myth was made by Capt. James Cook in his search for the Terra Australis. Geographers for centuries contended that there must be a southern continent large enough to counterbalance on the globe the mass of land found in the northern hemisphere. One of the main tasks imposed on Cook when he made his great voyages was to discover and to define the limits of that continent. He sailed all over the places where it should have been. First he cut down the proportions of what we call Australia by sailing around it on the south, by showing that New Zealand was not attached to it, and later sailing clear up the east coast and through the northern straits. Having reduced Australia to a big island, he made the most gallant voyage on record, circumnavigating the globe close to the Antarctic circle with a cranky ship, in no way prepared for meeting the ice, butting southward whenever the ice would let him, and reaching points that have not been attained again. He found no land, and demonstrated indisputably that the Terra Australis, if it existed at all, must be of comparatively small area and could be of little use to man.

Later explorers have touched some of the boundaries of that land, and others are preparing to explore until its limits are defined. Now comes Mr. Raymond Priestley, the Australasian geologist, who accompanied Sir Ernest Shackleton's polar expedition and has joined Capt. Scott in his new endeavor to reach the South Pole, with proof that after all the polar continent and Australia were joined at one time, and that, geologically, there was once a Terra Australis. It seems that when with the Shackleton expedition he picked a small piece of rock from a glacier. This proved to be Cambrian limestone, identical with a like formation found in South Australia. Both rocks contain the same kind of fossils. This, to geologists, is proof that Australia and Antarctica were united in a not distant past, as geologists reckon time. It is remarkable that though the Challenger and other deep-sea sounding expeditions have passed through the intervening waters no noticeable submarine connection has been observed so far. But depths of 2000 to 3000 meters probably count as little in geology as do so many centuries.—[New York Sun.

The Schedule of Fate.

TWO YOUNG MEN IN SAD STRAITS SEARCH FOR ROMANCE.

By Katherine Boynton.

FRANKLIN brushed his finger bowl aside, dropped the butt of his defunct cigarette on the ash tray, leaned back in his chair and beckoned to the waiter.

An aproned pillar of dignity responded.

"My check," said Franklin.

The waiter inspected the inside of his vest pocket and drew forth a small bit of pasteboard.

Franklin scanned the figures and reached in his pocket for his purse. Something seemed to have an electrical effect on him. He started to his feet, an anxious and excited look on his face. He felt in every pocket of his clothes at least twice. He leaned over and inspected the floor in the vicinity of his chair. Again his hands dove into his pockets. At length he stood motionless, his hands limp, a look of perplexity on his face.

The esthetic young man who, because of the crowd, had occupied the same table as Franklin at dinner, said politely:

"Can I be of any assistance to you, sir?"

"Thank you, no," replied Franklin. "My wallet is lost; that is all. I have enough loose change to pay the check. Thank you just the same."

He counted out enough money to satisfy the demands of the waiter, and was on the point of leaving when the orchestra began "Rigoletto." It was his favorite opera, and he resumed his seat.

The esthetic young man across the table spoke to him.

"It's a deucedly trite world, isn't it? Modernity has robbed it of all its romance."

Franklin looked at the speaker, a little puzzled.

"Take this episode, for instance," the young man went on. This might have been a great adventure for you, yet you escape a genuine experience. We always do in this day and age."

"I don't get your point," commented Franklin drily.

"Simply this"—the young man lighted a gold-tipped cigarette—"suppose, sir, that your pocket-book contained all the money you had in the world, and that I was not a good enough judge of character to have felt safe in offering you my assistance. You might have had no end of exciting adventures. The proprietor would probably have arrested you. You might have gone to jail. You might have had to sleep with murderers and drunks and yeggmen for a fortnight or so. In other words, you might have had a genuine experience. You might have had the unexpected thrust upon you."

Franklin smiled. "Thank heaven such was not the case. Such things don't happen."

"Of course not." The esthetic young man's eyes brightened. Here was a man who understood. "That's the whole trouble with modern fate. Fate is like a woman; she changes so radically. In the days of the Medici, fate was tragic. Nowadays she merely broods over her children. See how she protected you tonight. She always does it. She has become very commonplace."

Franklin was interested. "I have often noticed that," he said. "In these days there always seems to be some way out. There are so many avenues of escape from an impending fate."

"It takes the zest out of life," the other added, despairingly. "It becomes monotonous when one always knows that there is really no vital danger in living."

Franklin studied the aqueline features of the speaker. He was of an interesting type rarely seen in fashionable restaurants. There was something distinctly Bohemian in the smooth contour of his face, in the languorous depths of his eyes, in the thin-lipped mouth, the overlong hair. And the man's talk interested him.

"And it came so near being all that could have been wished for," Franklin said, smiling. "The wallet did contain all that I had in the world. Furthermore, I have no friends this side of California. And my family is somewhere on the continent—heaven knows where—following the Cooks' route. If I hadn't had this change I would have been in a fix."

The other's eyes brightened. "That was a close shave. But surely a man of your appearance is only temporarily without funds."

"My appearance is deceiving. Against the advice of my father, I gave up a small clientage in California and came to New York to continue my practice of medicine. Yesterday my landlord informed me that on account of much overdue rent he was going to put a more remunerative tenant in my rooms. Today he kept his word. And here I am. Tomorrow I look for a job."

The esthetic young man beamed with delight. "Isn't that splendid!" he exclaimed. "I'm in exactly the same condition. I have hugged the idea for years that I could paint pictures. And only today have I realized for the first that I couldn't. Tomorrow I, too, shall seek employment."

He motioned to the waiter and asked for his bill. It was $2.30. He placed a $5 note on the table and waited for his change. He left two dimes on the table cloth and put the $2.50 into his pocket.

Looking at Franklin, he smiled.

"That two-fifty represents my entire stack. I sold my painting outfit, easel and all, for that $5. I determined to have one square meal out of it before I surrendered to the ranks of the wage slaves."

Franklin was curiously interested. "You must have friends or relatives who would have helped you follow your ambition to fruition?"

"Sounds strange, I know," he said, "but I haven't. The few friends I possess are in the same financial condition as myself. As for relatives, I have no near ones. Those that I have are in England. Assistance from them would be out of the question."

"How very unusual!" Franklin frowned, and studied his companion's blithe expression.

"I must admit that there is one source from which I might get assistance—an uncle. But he disappeared in the Klondike years ago and I haven't heard of him since. Up to that time he was practically my father. But he may be dead now for all I know. . . . "No"—the young man laughed softly—"I am entirely dependent on myself."

A silence fell between the two men. Franklin broke it.

"Strange we should have met this way tonight, isn't it—in such similar circumstances?"

The other did not answer. His mind was on a train of thought, and when he spoke, it was to make an irrelevant remark.

"Romance is dead," he said vaguely. "Things will turn out commonplacely for both of us. We will both find some ordinary employment and enter upon a colorless existence."

"That's the modern way," supplied Franklin.

"Lord! I wish I knew that things weren't going to turn out right for me. It would make life worth living; it would stimulate one; it would give spice to the pudding. But it's no use—Romance is dead."

The orchestra crashed, and Rigoletto was no more. The two young men sat in silence. All about them was the hum and color of fashionable life. Outside in the street, cabs and automobiles made an incessant rumble and racket. Intermittently in the distance, the elevated rattled.

It was summer. The air was close and depressing. In spite of the external gaiety, a solemnity was on the world. Though their voices were gay and their mouths forever smiling, the season of heat and prose made languorous the hearts of the people.

Over five minutes passed without either of the men moving. Suddenly Franklin was startled by having his companion reach over and touch him excitedly.

"I have it!" he exclaimed. "I have just thought of a way to thwart this commonplace fate that has no taste for those splendid tragedies of life—those curious quirks of unexpected misfortune, those passionate strokes of dangerous futures."

Franklin smiled good-naturedly after the first start was over.

"Heaven knows I'll welcome anything," he said. "Tell us the result of your five minutes of thinking."

The painter was glowing with his inspiration. His idea possessed him wholly, and it made his eyes sparkle. When he spoke there was a trembling emotion in his voice:

"It is very simple. The city is unpleasant, stupid, full of flies. The seashore is delightful just now. There it is cool. The people are on a vacation. The carnival spirit is in them. The joy of living infuses their hearts. Would it not be pleasant for you and me to spend a week at the most palatial of seaside hotels before we go to work?"

Franklin smiled patronizingly and with a cynical humor. He agreed with the temperamental artist that such a proposition would be very pleasant indeed.

"It can be done," said the other. "And at the same time we can bring romance again into the world."

Franklin frowned.

"Listen to me," the painter said. "Have you a trunk or a suitcase or anything of the kind?"

Franklin hesitated, bewildered by his companion's question. But seeing the earnestness written on the other's face, he was somewhat reassured.

"Yes," he said, "I have a steamer trunk and a suitcase. They are at the express company's awaiting my instructions."

"Good!" the artist ejaculated. "And I have a suitcase. That is enough."

"Please explain." Franklin was impatiently curious.

The other leaned across the table.

"Suppose you and I go to Newport Beach, register at the best hotel, and have a week of splendid entertainment and still more splendid board. At the end of that time you and I will draw straws. The one who gets the longer straw will return to New York alone; the other will stay and face the music."

The artist paused.

Franklin frowned, puzzled. "Be a little more explicit, will you?" he asked.

"Certainly. Here is the idea. For a whole week you and I can live on the fat of the land in ease and luxury, neither one of us knowing how it is going to end. For one of us it will end happily. The one with the longer straw will leave. For the other—who knows? He must stay. He will tell the proprietor that the other man was his guest; that there is nothing with which to pay the bill. Do you see the point?"

"It will mean jail for one of us, and the other will go scot free," suggested Franklin.

"Of course it will," replied the originator of the idea. "That's just it. It will be romantic. Neither of us will know what his fate is to be. The sword of Damocles will hang o'er his head. A tragedy will await him. There will be no possible way of squeezing out of it. It will be the unexpected inevitableness of life. You may go to jail or you may go free; I may go to jail or I may go free. It will be an adventure worth the name. It will bring a romantic episode into the life of one of us. We will thwart fate—this goody-goody modern fate that has no sense of divine tragedy, this modern fate that is always disgustingly pleasant. We will fool her. For in being good to one of us she must be bad to the other. She cannot be pleasant to you without being tragic to me, and vice versa. You and I will create Romance, in spite of the namby-pamby destiny that rules our modern world."

Franklin studied his companion with a look which was half amusement and half amaze.

The orchestra launched out on the syrupy waters of "Il Trovatore." The romance of the opera affected the poor young doctor, for even Verdi was romantic. The commonplaceness of things had begun to bore him. As he had sat in his office day after day [illegible] months waiting for the patients who [illegible] monotony of existence had gotten [illegible] ing those days of waiting there had [illegible] up within him a desire for life, for [illegible] unfamiliar—for Romance.

"I'll do it." He spoke almost before [illegible]

The artist took his hand "It's a bargain [illegible] both gentlemen. We give each other [illegible] end of a week we draw straws. The [illegible] the other is safely on his way. This is a [illegible] tween gentlemen. We give our word of [illegible]

Franklin hesitated, but only for a moment [illegible] he said.

. . . . .

The next noon found the two men in a [illegible] somely-furnished rooms in the most [illegible] Newport. Franklin had nearly $5, which [illegible] the other's $2.50, had paid their car fare [illegible] also left the amount of one single fare [illegible] York. "Well, here we are!" said the artist, [illegible] admiringly, enjoying to the full capacity [illegible] temperament the luxury and opulence of [illegible] ings.

"Yes, here we are!" echoed Franklin [illegible] less tone. The idea appealed strongly [illegible] Romance. Every minute enhanced [illegible] compact.

It was a glorious week that these two [illegible] met as strangers in a fashionable [illegible] York spent at Newport. Their [illegible] checks—were large. They drank wine [illegible] And the courses of their repasts [illegible] the evening they sat in the tapestried [illegible] Tortini's orchestra. "Our week is over," said the artist, [illegible] time has come. The romantic moment [illegible]

Franklin drew a deep inspiration. [illegible] pay the fiddler."

The artist led the way to the registry [illegible] two toothpicks from the holder. He [illegible] pieces, and turning his back upon Franklin [illegible] them in his hand.

Turning again, he held them out. Franklin [illegible] the ends of the two similar slivers of wood [illegible] no outward sign to indicate which [illegible] which the short one.

"Choose!" said the artist in [illegible] "And thwart this 'happy-ending' fate."

At this moment the door of the private [illegible] hotel opened, and a stalwart, prosperous [illegible] the world stepped forth. For a moment [illegible] his eyes wandering casually about the [illegible] they fell on the artist with the extended [illegible] started. Then, like a flash he covered the [illegible] tween him and the romance seeker.

"Philip, my boy! Philip, my boy!" he [illegible] edly, as he threw his arms about the [illegible] "Where have you been? I have hunted [illegible] low ever since I returned from the Klondike [illegible] ago. Thank God, I've found you! What [illegible] here?"

"I—we were just arranging to settle [illegible] friend and I," stuttered the artist.

"Settle your bill!" The elder man [illegible] can't do anything like that here, my boy [illegible] nor your friends."

"What—what do you mean?"

"Why, I own this hotel," the other [illegible]

The toothpicks dropped from the artist's [illegible] turned to Franklin with a look of disgust [illegible]

"What's the use?" he asked cynically.

Manda's Romance.

A DELAYED MARRIAGE THAT CAME TO A DISASTROUS END.

By Frances M. Elliott.

MANDA BRIGGS grew up in honest, provincial Dunsford an anomaly in a garden of pink-cheeked, flaxen-haired girls. Not that Manda was denied good looks; on the contrary, she grew to be quite handsome in a big "statuesque" way, as Aunt Mime had it. Her broad shoulders took on a matronly curve at an early age, and her dark-blue eyes were very tender.

Nevertheless, Fate had it in for Manda; why, none of the wiseacres could tell, though there were endless surmises. Finally Aunt Mime hit the nail on the head (so she thought.)

"The gal's too slow, that's what ails her," she brought out one night at the supper table.

Newt, her husband, was too busy stuffing in biscuits to waste many words or much breath.

"Huh?" he asked finally, in a thick voice.

"I say Mandie Briggs is too slow, is what's ailed her all these years from catchin' a husband," said Aunt Mime, perking her gray head on one side and blinking her sharp eyes knowingly.

"Well, who says she ain't?" asked Newt, gulping his coffee.

"Nobody says she ain't, but I say she is," insisted Aunt Mime with warmth.

"Well, I 'low that's it myself," agreed Newt, pushing back his empty plate in utter repletion.

That was in the good old days before the suffragette came prancing on to the stage, and before the bachelor girl came into her own. Indeed, I was back to Dunsford not long ago, and found very nearly the same conditions prevailing. The girls are still pairing off in couples at 18 and 20, in Nature's good old way.

So when Manda Briggs arrived at the mature and discouraging age of 20 without even the signs of a beau, there was an ominous shaking of heads. "Such a nice family, too," sighed Aunt Mime. "And more linen for a troussey than any of 'em."

However, Manda did not seem discouraged, but went on in her large, even way, going to all the parties and dances with her gay young sister and her varying beaus.

One snowy day in early winter Mrs. Pratt came bursting and blowing into Aunt Mime's with news. After waiting to be refreshed with a cup of fragrant tea and [illegible] cookies, she exclaimed:

"Well, you don't know what that Manda Briggs is at now!"

"Has she got a beau?" asked Aunt Mime, her old eyes agape with interest.

"Beau, no! It's a pity that good-for-nothin' sister of hers didn't have a few less." For if Manda was slow, that epithet could never be flung at the joyous Maud. "What do you suppose that Manda has been up to?" she demanded, as the last mouthful of Hyson went down and she sat eyeing the cup regretfully.

"Law! I don't know, Melviny," answered Aunt Mime, quite forgetting in her anxiety to press another cup on the thirsty Mrs. Pratt.

Mrs. Pratt leaned forward and whispered into Aunt Mime's ear.

Aunt Mime jumped excitedly. "You don't say so!" she cried. "Well, who's the man?"

"That's just it," went on Mrs. Pratt impressively. "There ain't no man."

"You don't mean to tell me——?" incredulously.

"Yes, I do," answered Mrs. Pratt in triumph. "Sadie went up there yesterday and caught her in the act."

"Well, I'll declare!" said Aunt Mime with energy. "The poor child!"

"And there she sat trimmin' up night gowns [illegible] as big as life, six sets of 'em complete [illegible] to make. And then she showed Sadie her linen [illegible] she's goin' to begin on. Such a trousseau [illegible] seen in Dunsford for years."

"[illegible] to go with it!" sighed Aunt Mime. "[illegible] devil's own luck, Melviny?"

Mrs. Pratt arose, her errand completed. "Sadie [illegible] cautioned her on her life not to mention it," [illegible] she parted with Aunt Mime. "Of course [illegible] told anybody but me, and I ain't sayin' [illegible] it."

"[illegible] not," agreed Aunt Mime, with one eye on [illegible] and the other on the oven, wondering if she [illegible] time to run over to Mis' Hall's for a little [illegible]

[illegible] even after it had leaked out all over [illegible] that Manda and her premature trousseau, [illegible] still tarried, and Manda reached the age [illegible] an emotional shadow on her horizon.

[illegible] Tom White drifted into town, Tom the good-[illegible], ne'er-do-well. The charm of novelty [illegible] illusion over him, and he took the girls [illegible] Manda among the rest.

[illegible] a curious thing presents itself. Men are like [illegible] for worlds would any of the local Dunsfordites [illegible] in front of their places of business day [illegible] and ran the government of the United [illegible] copious floods of tobacco juice as ballast—[illegible] I repeat, would any of these worthies [illegible] delicate honor by being the first of his [illegible] a girl who had grown up in their midst [illegible]

[illegible] stranger appears! He sees the [illegible] and admires her, and the unthinkable [illegible] Manda has a beau.

[illegible] oh cruel, cruel jest of Fortune!"

[illegible] eight years Manda's junior whom [illegible] brown-eyed, red-lipped, honey-sweet [illegible] in from the country. And when he sees Rosie he drinks in her beauty as one who quaffs heady wine, and poor patient Manda is forgotten.

But Rosie does not see Tom White with the same eyes as Manda. She notices only the pouches under his eyes, his liquor breath, and his shiftless habits, and she flirts away with honest Gabe Jones to the parson's.

Tom dwindled down to as near nothing as can be continued in six feet two, after Rosie's marriage, but Manda took on new courage. She exhibited with pride the little carnelian ring he had given her before Rosie appeared on the scene, and Aunt Mime and a few of her cronies circulated around that they were engaged.

Perhaps Tom saw the way things were drifting, but was too lazy to steer in the opposite direction; at any rate he hung around Dunsford for six years; six happy years to Manda, who saw the rosy dawn of joy approaching; idle, beer-drinking years to Tom White, who "gits more like a pig every day," Aunt Mime repeated in wrath.

But this state of things could not go on forever, and finally Tom's ultra desultory courtship came to an abrupt end, and one bright spring morning he disappeared from Dunsford, and his old haunts knew him no more.

"And a good thing for Mandie," was the general verdict, as Dunsford consigned her unconditionally to the old maid's class and settled back for a long, hot summer.

It was one of the hottest mornings of the season, when the indefatigable Mrs. Pratt rushed into Aunt Mime's torrid kitchen, unmindful of the splendor of a new pink sunbonnet. She threw it recklessly on the square deal table and stood facing Aunt Mime.

"She's gone!" she cried tragically, her skinny arms akimbo.

"Who's gone?" asked Aunt Mime, dropping her rolling pin.

"Mandie!" exclaimed Mrs. Pratt. "She's gone to that scapegoat."

"Oh Lord!" gasped Aunt Mime, weakly dropping into a chair.

"Mary Wright saw her gettin' on the train at 9 o'clock last night, with three whole trunks of troussey. She's gone to him as sure as you live."

"Well, I'll bet old man Briggs don't know a thing about it," answered Aunt Mime, her vigor returning.

"Her ticket read to Nebrasky," said Mrs. Pratt, who had taken care to glean the details. "Mary asked the ticket agent."

"Well, she'll be back," prophesied Aunt Mime, popping a plump gooseberry pie into the oven absentmindedly.

But the midsummer days crept on unrefreshed by a drop of rain, the goldenrod flaunted in the dusty meadows, and the leaves began slowly to don their glowing autumn robes, and there was no word from Manda.

And for once the curiosity of Dunsford was unslaked. John Briggs was a man not to be questioned by the idly curious or the burningly inquisitive. True, he had come up from the soil, as had most of the inhabitants of the little town, but the subtle aroma of quality clung to him and his family. He had real genteel folks in the city and quite a sprinkling of rich relations scattered here and there. Thus did Dunsford bow the knee both to the intangible and the material.

The days went on until one dark November night when the wind was howling drearily and the trees were all bare and shivering. Aunt Mime prophesied a few spits of snow as she drew the curtain, poked up the fire and adjusted her spectacles at a more comfortable angle.

Newt was about to venture down to the store in quest of "baccy," that staff of life to all male Dunsfordites. Aunt Mime glanced at him severely from over her spectacles.

"Well, you needn't come whinin' 'round me if your rheumatiz is worse tomorrow. There's no sense in your going out tonight in the wind."

Newt said nothing, but shook the ashes out of his pipe and felt furtively of his empty tobacco sack.

"I know what's the matter with you," said Aunt Mime suddenly, pointing an accusing finger at him as she gave forth the grim intelligence. "You ain't got on your red flannels yet, that's what ails you, Newt Miller."

Newt beat a hasty retreat, calling back feebly: "I'll put 'em on in the mornin', sure, Mime."

"Yes, you'll put 'em on one tomorrow too late one of these days," she called after him with a morbid relish of her maledictions.

She settled herself, however, for a good hour's quiet reading and knitting, as she knew the luckless Newt only too well.

"Well, it's his own fault if he does have the rheumatiz," she said to herself. "He ought to've had those flannels on a month ago, and I ain't let him forget 'em for a minute," which we can well believe.

Aunt Mime presently lost herself in "Farm and Fireside," and before long was nodding and dozing in her armchair. But suddenly she started up. Hark! was that a knock? No, only the wind. She settled herself comfortably again, only to be roused once more by a vigorous tap.

She hobbled stiffly to the door—for in spite of red flannels, Aunt Mime needed only the wind to bring out a well-defined case of "rheumatiz" herself. She flung open the door, and then shrank back as if she had seen a ghost.

"Well, for the land's sakes, Mandie Briggs! Where did you come from?"

"I just came last night," responded Manda, for it was our old friend, the massive Manda.

And just here Aunt Mime received another shock.

"It is Manda White now," Manda corrected softly.

"Well, the Lord save us!" ejaculated Aunt Mime, as she limped around placing a seat for her visitor and laying more wood on the fire. "You don't mean to say you're a married woman?"

"Yes, I'm a married woman," she answered with a faint smile.

"At last!" was in both of their minds, but remained unspoken. Nor did Aunt Mime ask her a single question. An indefinable expression rested in Manda's blue eyes, and Aunt Mime felt that this was a case quite out of the range of Melviny Pratt or Mis' Hall.

They were both silent as Aunt Mime went for the teapot and set forth the flaky fruit cookies. Manda ate and drank with relish.

"Nobody's tea tastes like yours," she said finally, and the old lady's face lit up with a smile.

When Manda had half-emptied her cup, she set it down abruptly.

"I have come to you," she began in her even tones, "because you have always been good to me, and I wanted you to hear my story before I put it away for good and all. There will be endless talk about me, of course, but I shan't say one word, and I don't believe you will, either."

"Of course I won't, dearie," quavered Aunt Mime, vowing that Melviny Pratt should never drag a word of it from her with red-hot pincers. Better than that, she kept her word, and died with the secret locked in her thin old breast, the only one, I wager you, that ever rested there.

"Well," went on Manda, shading her eyes from the light for a moment, "I went up to Nebraska to meet Tom. He had written to me, you know." (Poor Tom! One of his failings was not knowing when to let go.) "We were married up there, and for five or six weeks were ideally happy."

"Well, that's better than nothin'," said Aunt Mime inwardly. "And she was dead sot to have him."

"He was kind and good," continued Manda, "but didn't seem to have much to do, and got so discouraged, and got to drinking hard, and then one night—one night," she went on, her features working, "he got drunk and went off, and I couldn't find him anywhere." It was too much for poor Manda, and with a sob she laid her head down on the table.

The scorching expletives Aunt Mime had at her tongue's end were evidently unsuited to the occasion, so she only chafed and soothed Manda's hands, saying: "Poor dear! There now!"

"And he was so changed," wailed Manda. "He looked so old and worn out. Poor Tom, poor Tom!" and Manda went off again.

"Well, why didn't he straighten up and live with you?" was on the tip of Aunt Mime's tongue, but she desisted.

"Well, anyway," continued Manda, drying her eyes and taking a swallow of tea to fortify her, "I couldn't find him, although I waited around all this time, and even advertised for him. And my funds grew so low that finally I wrote to father. And he wrote me a letter"—Manda failed to particularize here, but Aunt Mime could hear the crackle of that letter—"and then I decided it would be better for me to come home, so here I am."

"And you're better off, Mandie," said Aunt Mime gently, "and you'll see it after a while."

"I see it now," admitted Manda, "but——"

"What did you want to go and marry that crooked stick for?" asked Aunt Mime in righteous indigestion.

"I loved him," said Manda.

"Yes, and you'd have loved anybody else that'd showed up about that time," Aunt Mime thought to herself.

"I loved him," repeated Manda, "and I felt so sorry for him. And then," she breathed, a deep blush rising in her cheeks and her blue eyes softening with an infinite sweetness, "I did so want a baby of my own, Aunt Mime. Maud has one, you know." For Maud had long ago been led in tardy marriage and was blessed with two babies. ("Just the way the goats is always gettin' in and gettin' the best of everything," thought Aunt Mime.)

She turned to Manda now, and the old and the young looked deep into each other's eyes.

"I always wanted one, too, Mandie," she said at last. "But I ain't never had one. The ways of Providence—or men, either—is past findin' out," she concluded.

Manda rose to go, but Aunt Mime put a detaining hand on her arm. "How about that troussey?" she asked.

"Very little of it has been worn," replied Manda. "You know Ella Barnes gets married next month, and I am going to give her that nainsook set. I am going to give it all away to the girls that get married and haven't as much as I have."

"Oh, Mandie, not linens and all!" cried Aunt Mime, aghast.

"Everything," said Manda with finality.

"Ain't there such a thing as——"

"Divorce?" asked Manda, reading her unspoken thought. "Yes, but I shall never avail myself of that. I'll keep house for father the rest of my days."

"And she'll do it, too," said Aunt Mime to herself as she cautiously lifted herself into the cold bed a little later. She had loudly berated Newt for his late arrival, although secretly she was glad that he had not been there when Manda had made her visit, and had said nothing of it to him. She started to turn over in bed, but a terrible twinge assailed her.

"Ouch!" she cried.

"Huh?" muttered Newt sleepily.

"I said them red flannels was laid out for you to put on in the morning—and see that you do it," she informed him tartly.

She fell to thinking of Mandie and her trousseau.

"Well, it's kind of like bein' a bride by proxy, her givin' them things away," she exclaimed aloud.

"Huh?" said Newt again, but she made no answer.

GOVERNMENT RESCUE CAR PROVES ITS VALUE IN ACTION.

By a Special Contributor.

AN ordinary-looking Pullman car slid into the yards at Denver a few weeks ago, and the casual observer would never have guessed that the rather battered-looking coach contained a mine-rescue crew whose members would soon be giving a practical demonstration of the efficiency of the government's new system of "first aid" to coal miners.

Yet in little more than a week after its arrival in Denver, "Mine Rescue Car, U. S. Bureau of Mines, No. 2," which is the official title replacing the Pullman's fancy name, was speeding toward Trinidad, a coal-mining center in the southeastern part of Colorado, where the gallant crew of rescuers battled for several days in the smoking Delagua mine, saving the lives of many miners. Hardly had the work at the Delagua mine ended, leaving a total of nearly 100 dead to swell the nation's appalling annual list of mine fatalities, when the government's rescue car was hurried to Leyden, a little coal-mining camp fifteen miles northwest of Denver, where an explosion had occurred that wrecked the interior of the mine and killed ten men. Here again there was a long fight for the gallant members of the rescue-car crew. The helmet men plunged again and again into the gas-filled mine, determined to find the survivors if any there were—but only dead bodies were brought from the pit, and the heroism of the crew proved in vain.

When the rescue car was sent to Colorado, it was not suspected that the crew would have such a baptism of fire. Several of the cars have been equipped by the new Bureau of Mines. They have been sent to different parts of the country where there are extensive coal-mining interests. Rescue Car No. 1 is in the Pennsylvania coal mines, while the others will be claimed by the South, middle West and far West, as fast as they are completed.

The cars are Pullmans, with the lower berths taken out, and stocked with all sorts of implements that may come handy in the saving of lives. There are oxygen helmets, invented by Draeger of Germany, which will keep one supplied with fresh air for two hours, even in the most poisonous atmosphere. Then there is a wonderful device called the pulmotor, which, when fastened over one's nose and mouth, literally breathes for one, pumping and expelling air until the lungs begin to work for themselves. The lives of several miners at Delagua were saved by this device, which the members of the rescue crew unite in declaring "the nearest human of any machine ever invented."

The oxygen helmet, which plays such an important part in the saving of lives in coal mines, weighs about forty pounds, but is so fitted to the body that the weight is easily carried. The body apparatus contains a cartridge holding oxygen under 2000 pounds pressure, and a sheet metal can contains caustic soda and potash which absorbs the black damp from bad air.

Mine Rescue Car No. 2 is in charge of Mining Engineer J. C. Roberts of the United States Geological Survey, who led the work of rescue in the Colorado mines, and who is regarded as one of the highest authorities in the world on the subject of such work. His assistant is Thomas W. Tweedale, a Colorado mining engineer who has been in charge of private rescue cars equipped by Colorado coal companies, and who has had many narrow escapes from death in his spectacular kind of Samaritanism. Third in command is T. C. Harvey, "first aid" man, or surgeon of the party. Mr. Harvey's department is equipped with stretchers, and American Red Cross instruction outfit, triangular bandages, "first aid" outfits in cartons, tourniquets and gauze bandages. Harvey has had much experience in rescue work in the mines around Scranton, Pa.

One of Tweedale's experiences shows from what unexpected quarters one may be called face-to-face with death while engaging in mine-rescue work, and it also proves the wonderful efficiency of the almost-human pulmotor in literally dragging men back from the brink of the grave. Tweedale had built a rescue car for the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, and had been in the habit of practicing daily with the apparatus therein. One of the company's mines at Starkville caught fire, about three weeks before the Delagua disaster. Tweedale was the first man to enter the pit. He had donned his oxygen helmet, and intended to stay in the mine the full two hours, forgetting that he had used about twenty minutes' supply of oxygen at the morning practice.

Tweedale was so near the fan he could almost reach it when he felt the oxygen giving out. He was able to communicate with his assistant, who in his excitement pulled off his own oxygen helmet, and was the mouth of the pit. The rescuers who out started to look for Tweedale, and found him distance within the mine, apparently dead. Tweedale was taken to the outer air, he had breathing, but the pulmotor was applied and for two hours literally pulled on the unconscious lungs. Finally the machine began to breathe ing intervals, and the anxious assistants first ray of hope. The machine was some slight motion within the patient's flicker of life had returned, and within Tweedale was back in the mine, again work of rescue. Within a week Tweedale by the management of a big anthracite sylvania and directed the work of hunting for an underground fire. Then he self with the government rescue service after his return to the Colorado field he in more exhibitions of hardihood at Delagua den.

The actual rescuing of miners is only part of the work of the crew of the government's mine rescue car. The Bureau of Mines, through its field workers, is conducting a campaign of education, which, it is hoped, will materially reduce the nation's list of fatal accidents.

Each car makes demonstration tours, visiting various mining camps, and giving instruction to the crews organized by the companies. Nearly all coal companies now have private rescue cars. It is Dr. Roberts's plan to have each mine equipped with at least eight oxygen helmets. It has been demonstrated that men will volunteer as crews, both for inside and outside work. It is intended to have such crews regularly organized from the employees of each mine, and to have a regular system of "fire drills" which will perfect the amateur rescuers in their important work. Practice is given, too, in the first-aid work as demonstrated by the Red Cross men on the government car.

The metal mines of the nation will not be slighted in the campaign of education. Dr. Roberts declares that some of the worst accidents that have happened in metal mines in late years have been due to gas and [illegible]. Mining camps like Cripple Creek will be visited and practical demonstrations of rescue work given men who work in the tremendously deep mines of that district and of Leadville in the search for gold.

The manner in which western mine owners have welcomed the government's rescue car would indicate that a system of co-operation will prevail in this new field of humanitarianism that has been launched by [illegible], and that the miner will be given the organized protection which he has so long needed. PARSEE MARRIAGE.

CEREMONY A STRANGE AND UNUSUALLY PICTURESQUE AFFAIR.

"During a visit to India," writes a correspondent to [illegible], "it was my good fortune to witness a Parsee wedding, which is a ceremony of unusual picturesqueness and beauty. A marriage among the Parsee is always arranged by a matchmaker, who is generally a [illegible]. If his choice of a bride is pleasing to the bridegroom's family they send a request to the bride's family for her horoscope, and this, with the young man's horoscope, is submitted to an astrologer. If the stars are not propitious the match is abandoned.

"The marriage ceremony usually takes place just after sunset, and great preparations are made for it. The bride whose nuptials I saw was the daughter of a [illegible], or chief priest, and the rite was performed at the temple. The entrance was decorated with garlands and flags. Later in the evening thousands of colored lamps outlined the buildings.

"The bridegroom and his family, together with the members of the bride's family, arrived first, and the opening ceremony was the exchange of some handsome gift shawls between the two fathers. A band heralded the approach of the bride and her party, whereupon the priests and the bridegroom took their places on a raised dais, over which a lovely canopy of [illegible] was suspended.

"Two [illegible] chairs facing each other were placed directly under the canopy and on these the bridal pair took their seats, a piece of cloth being held between them as a curtain to screen them from each other's sight. But before this the bride's mother entered bearing a silver tray containing cocoanuts and rice which she passed three times round the bridegroom's head, while some maidens, charmingly attired in [illegible] of delicate hue, sang some verses in his [illegible].

"When the bridal pair were seated they were made to clasp each other's hands under the curtain and another piece of cloth was placed round both chairs and tied in a double knot, after which a skein of raw twist was wound round the pair seven times by the officiating priests, prayers being repeated during the process, and the twist was tied seven times round the joined hands of the couple and round the double knot of the [illegible] cloth. Incense was then placed on a small fire and lighted, to the further repetition of prayers. The dividing curtain was next loosened suddenly and the bride and bridegroom, who had each been provided with a few grains of rice, hastened to throw them at each other (the one who succeeds in getting the first throw is supposed to have the stronger affection,) and the attendant maidens clapped their hands gleefully. The bridal pair were then seated side by side and the chief priests took up a position facing them and commenced a long recital of blessings in the ancient language of Persia, emphasizing each sentence by throwing a few grains of rice from trays placed at hand on the bridal pair in a manner that struck western eyes as most disconcerting.

"The whole ceremony lasted nearly an hour and was concluded by the senior priest pronouncing the following:

"'May the omniscient Lord bless you with many sons and grandsons, with good livelihood, heart ravishing [illegible], long life and an existence of 150 years.'

"The parents of the happy pair were then asked by the priests if the marriage had their full consent and the bridegroom and bride were also asked if they were willing to live together in harmony to the end of their days. After which followed a short homily and some prayers and blessings in the Sanskrit language and the signing of the marriage certificate by the latter, by [illegible] and the two officiating priests.

"It is difficult to convey in words the brilliant picture the scene presents. Light and color seem to wander at will. But a scene composed of white-robed priests, men in light colored garments, women and children attired in silks of every color and tint conceivable, gold and silver embroidered and sparkling with a thousand jewels, flowers and lights forms a picture worthy of the pen of a practiced word painter."

The Faith of Love.

IT BRINGS COMFORT AT LAST TO A WAITING HEART.

By Clyde Scott Chase.

WITH the cool, rustling pines above him bathed in the golden sunlight of California, and the clear mountain stream gurgling musically at his feet, Maybury should not have felt homesick and downcast; but he did. He sat with his back against a tree, his chin in his hands and his whole attitude one of disconsolate woe.

The free outdoor life of the placer miner is not without its compensations. The lure of gold lying hidden from sight and only waiting for patient search and labor to uncover is a fascinating stimulant, and to him who rests his head upon her ample bosom nature offers many a sweet balm. But there come moments when the rough fare of the trail and the mining camp palls upon the hardy fortune hunter, when memories of the old life and scenes in the distant city he has left behind crowd upon him, and his heart yearns for a glimpse of the familiar faces and social haunts of his eariler days.

One of these inevitable moments of soul-yearning disquiet had now come to Maybury. Family connections he had none, and no especial friends or sweethearts had he left in faraway New York. His life had always been a more or less desultory, unsettled one. But, after two years of steady grubbing for gold in the California mountains with indifferent results, the call of the old, cheerless existence in the noisy, hurrying metropolis had come to him with overwhelming force.

He saw again the motley throngs of humanity upon the crowded thoroughfares. The glare of street lamps was in his eyes, and with a strange, childish yearning a vision of toothsome dumplings with wine sauce at Reddy Colgate's dingy resort harrowed the depths of his very soul.

No one ever made such dumplings, or such wine sauce, as Reddy.

Maybury raised his face to the clear sky above him, and spreading his hands in a gesture of acute despair, said aloud:

"Oh, Reddy, Reddy! I'd give every ounce of gold dust in my cabin for one plate of your incomparable dumplings! Ye gods! what a cross to bear is this daily ration of bacon and flapjacks."

Such moments of weakness were, of course, but passing ones, and Maybury at length put the disturbing vision resolutely from him, and went on with the work of washing out the gravel of his claim. He had come to the diggings with the determination to make a fortune before returning to civilization, and this resolve would not be easily shaken.

His claim was an isolated one, and with the exception of the aged Washoe squaw and her daughter who came once a week to do his laundry work and tidy up his cabin, human visitors he seldom saw.

These Indian neighbors were unusually intelligent, possessed of quite a surprising degree of housewifely skill, and he paid them well for their services.

The elder squaw had once had a Spanish husband, and the girl, Malota, was the fruit of that union. She was a finely-formed girl, straight and comely, and while she showed more Indian than Spanish, her features were regular and her softly flashing eyes were those of her father. She nearly always spoke, even to her mother, in Spanish, instead of the Washoe tongue.

Maybury, while feeling a natural interest in Malota and her aging mother, accepted them merely as part and parcel of his mining experience. That the comely girl was gradually but surely assuming a place in his lonely heart which no other could ever fill had not yet dawned upon his comprehension.

Quite different was it with Malota. The tall, well-proportioned miner with his blond hair and ruddy cheeks had awakened the strongest of her heart's emotions, and while veiling the truth beneath an assumed air of modest indifference she often watched him at his work or in his moments of homesick abstraction, with eyes of passionate longing.

Light eventually dawned upon Maybury's mind, and it came about in this way.

He had been suffering for some time with frequent attacks of his yearning for the old scenes and delicious viands of New York, when a brilliant inspiration struck him. He would take a trip to 'Frisco. It would be a change from the monotony of his daily grind, and he could revel for a few days in a radical diversion from his own despised table fare. The trip would be an expensive one, but he believed the end justified the means.

Perhaps it did. Unquestionably he needed a short vacation and a change of scene.

He closed up his cabin, cached about half of his gold dust in a safe place, took the balance with him and struck out for 'Frisco, distant nearly 200 miles.

His destination was reached without serious mishap, and there he proceeded to turn himself loose in the most approved mining style. He filled up on restaurant soup, hash and soggy desserts until he became ill and had to lie under a doctor's care for nearly two days. He patronized generously every saloon in the neighborhood of his lodging place, was fleeced out of a goodly portion of his wealth by card sharps, was haled into the Police Station and fined for disorderly conduct; and after ten days of such riotous living he gathered up his few personal effects, and weak and heavy-eyed, started upon his homeward journey.

But he had had his diversion and was content.

During all his hilarious experience in the city, however, he had been vaguely conscious of something missed, something elusive and undefined which had robbed his revels of much of their keenest flavor. He pondered deeply over the matter as he plodded homeward, and in the light of his first wayside campfire the kind, earnest face and soft, trustful eyes of Malota rose before his vision. Then he knew.

She was waiting for him at his cabin, and as he came in sight, dusty and travel-worn, but safe from his journey, the light of joy which beamed in her eyes was unmistakable.

He had come back to a new home among the mountain pines and a new purpose in life.

He clasped both hands about her neck, gazed deeply into her eyes wet with tears of happiness, and silently pressed her throbbing heart against his own.

They were united in wedlock by the padre of the mission settlement a day's journey to the southward, and Maybury filed a homestead entry on a quarter section of land adjoining his placer claim. This was proved up on in due time and a deed in full received from the government.

In the first happiness of his new life all yearnings for his old haunts in New York were forgotten. But as time went on, the fiendish virus again found lodgment in his blood, and in spite of all his manful efforts to banish the vision, Maybury occasionally felt the old homesick longing tugging with might at his heart-strings.

Malota saw, and with aching heart understood. His love for her had not lessened in any way, but during his spells of silent brooding she knew that he was living in scenes and places remote from her; knew that some day the call of his old home and his own people in a distant land would be too strong for him to resist.

And she was right. Five years after their marriage he bade Malota a tender farewell and departed for New York. The iron had entered so deeply into his soul that

"Malota will be broken-hearted when you are gone, my own dear husband," she told him, "but here in our quiet mountain home she will wait for your return, even though the years be sad and long. The Blessed Virgin will protect you, and the sunshine of California, the sweet mountain air and the lonely heart of Malota will some day call you back again, even as your distant home and people call you now."

Years passed by, and Maybury, amid the hurrying scenes of New York, was stubbornly trying to forget. But ever in his hours of misfortune, his evening solitude and his nightly slumbers, the faithful, loving eyes of Malota looked into his own, and a voice from the sunny land of the Sierra Nevadas called to him with insistent pleading.

Somehow the metropolis had changed. It was more heartless and inhospitable than the smiling city of the past which he remembered. The old, familiar faces had gone from his favorite social haunts, the weather was often extreme and disagreeable, and the battle of life was a hard, cheerless one to fight.

One evening in April as the sun was sinking below the treetops, a man weary and travel-stained, with bent shouders and gray hair, came slowly along the trail leading to a neat, well-kept cabin in the mountains of California.

The lone woman standing in the doorway pressed one hand quickly to her heart, and with a great sob of thanksgiving sped down the path to meet him.

The faith of her steadfast love was fulfilled.

RAISING WILLOW SHOOTS.

The raising of willow shoots for the manufacture of basket goods is an enormous industry in Europe. There are ninety different varieties of willow cultivated abroad, and the majority of them have decided advantages over the product of willow farms in this country.

The culture of willow shoots requires so much special knowledge and such care in the selection of stock that it will doubtless be many years before the American growers can hope to grow basket material which will in every way satisfy the manufacturer.

A recent report, however, tells of one farmer in the middle West who cleared $10,000 on a sixty-acre crop, and certain willow planters in the East and South who after making patient tests of various species have succeeded in growing excellent shoots.

For basket-making, a willow shoot must be slender, tough, pliable and cylindrical. In this country no two soils will grow the same quality of willow. Every planter has of necessity to experiment for his own locality and select the species best adapted to his soil and climate.

Importations of the best white willow shoots from Europe will often degenerate in an American soil until they are mere worthless, brittle switches. In the East the willow rust has to be combated, and in various climates various species are immune to the disease.

This whole culture is in its infancy here, but when properly handled willow planting is immensely profitable, and the industry in this country is so enormous that it will mean a great saving to American manufacturers when they are able to buy their materials from domestic growers.—[Chicago Tribune.

The Moonstone Girl.

A TENDER LITTLE ROMANCE OF THE CALIFORNIA COAST.

By Edith Letts Dunn.

ABALONE PERKINS walked rapidly up the deserted beach in the direction of her tiny house huddled in a curve of the Redondo Bay, a battered tin pail, from which issued a faint tinkling sound, clasped triumphantly in her chilled hands.

Abalone was unusually weary; a whole day of standing knee-deep in the foaming surf had chilled her to the bone, and as she walked the wind whipped her soaked skirts about her thin limbs in a way which made walking almost impossible.

But in spite of her discomfort Abalone was happier than she had been for months, for the day had brought the fulfillment of a long-cherished desire.

Ten years before, when the newly-orphaned Perkins girls, Abalone and Jane, had been left to provide a living for themselves, Abalone, then a shy girl of 12, had gone bravely to work at the only task which was open to her. Following the example of a few women and children of the poorer class whose homes were on the beach, she had taken her little pail and gone down to the ocean side where every day of the California tourist season had found her gathering the wonderful, beautiful moonstones, the "tears of the Pacific" which the lavish southern ocean strews along the Redondo beach for the delight of its visitors.

Perhaps it was due to her own love of the beautiful stones, a love which seemed to draw them to her, that Abalone found such quantities, and it was undoubtedly owing to her sweet, unobtrusive manner that her sales to the tourists were always much greater than those of the other pebble venders.

But in spite of her frank, innocent manner, the girl had her secret, which she guarded so well that not one of her companions in the trade had ever guessed that Abalone never sold her largest, most perfect stones, any one of which would have brought her more money than the proceeds of an entire day's sales of the inferior stones.

Abalone had now been hoarding her moonstones for a year. She had begun when Jane, the youngest sister, had left the little beach home to go to work in a big Los Angeles laundry. Abalone had reluctantly seen her go, for Jane was a very pretty girl without much stability of character, and her sister feared the effect of city life upon the giddy little butterfly thing.

Abalone herself had no reason to fear that an excess of beauty would prove her own downfall. When she was born, her mother, to whom the child had come as the first and only happiness in a toiling, beauty-starved life, had fondly imagined the little one to be possessed of every attraction, a belief so flatly contradicted by the child's unusual plainness that only a mother's eyes could have failed to see the error. She had named the baby Abalone, and though the neighbors had openly laughed at and derided the name, the mother had always considered it the most appropriate that she could have chosen, maintaining as she herself believed, that the little one's cheeks and lips and eyes showed the same wonderful rose-and-silver tints that are found in the abalone shells, the most beautiful of the Pacific's treasures. The bestowal of the name satisfied the stinted soul's craving for the romantic and unusual to such an extent that when a second little daughter arrived, Mrs. Perkins yielded peaceably to her husband's wish that it should be christened Jane.

But though the younger girl was doomed to bear a more commonplace name than her sister, fortune evened things up by bestowing upon her the personal attractions that should have been divided between the two.

Abalone, however, had never envied Jane's superior beauty until she saw that Jason West had begun to notice it. Jason and the Perkins girls had been playmates since babyhood, and the year that Jason, after a long period of work and saving, became the owner of a trim little pleasure launch carrying tourists to places of interest up and down the coast, he had begun to pay marked attention to Abalone Perkins, who had secretly adored the shy, manly young fellow since her earliest recollection.

Jason had lived so long in such close association with the Perkins girls that he had never noticed that one was physically more attractive than the other until Jane went to work in Los Angeles and began coming home to spend Sundays, displaying at each visit some improving little touches in dress, a new way of wearing her hair, and all the myriad trifles that go to change a merely pretty woman into a regular beauty.

Jane had not been long in Los Angeles before Abalone began to notice that although Sunday was Jason's busiest day, he always managed to snatch a few minutes to spend at the cottage when her sister was at home.

"Jane's gettin' to be an awful pretty girl," Jason said one evening when he and Abalone were coming back from seeing Jane aboard the electric car which was to take her to the city. The words gave Abalone the clew to her lover's Sunday visits and to the uneasiness which, without the knowledge of what was causing it, had been troubling her simple heart the last few months, but before she had time to turn the new impression over in her mind, Jason went on: "Seems to me that if you was to fix up a little more like Jane does," he ventured, "you'd look—you'd be—well, something more like she is," he ended confusedly.

"You mean you'd like me to be pretty like Jane?" asked Abalone innocently.

"I didn't say that," denied Jason, who found his sweetheart's straightforwardness slightly disconcerting. "But I can't help thinking when see Jane that it 'd be nice for you to—well—to have some pretty new dresses once in a while, the thin, ruffly kind, you know, and curl your hair and have some beads. Them coral ones Jane's got make her neck look awful pretty."

Abalone's heart sank. She was wearing an old gray sweater, her best wrap, which she knew must offer a startling contrast to the thin and "ruffly" dresses her lover admired, and at the mention of beads she became acutely conscious of the strip of oiled flannel about her throat with which she was endeavoring to ward off a threatened attack of tonsilitis.

"I know," she said at last faintly. "I'd love to have 'em myself—dresses and beads and things—but it does seem to take such an awful lot just to live, and I still have to divide with Jane; she ain't makin' very much just yet, and I don't seem to have much left to spend on pretty things."

She did not add, for the thought had never entered her unselfish, loving heart, that if Jane would only spend less on pretty things it would not be necessary for her sister to contribute to her support, thus leaving something to gratify her own girlish longings; but Jason felt the wistfulness in her tone and hastened to console her.

"Never you mind," he said. "I'm going to buy you a lot of fancy truck just as soon as I've finished paying for the launch and get a little ahead. And I'm going to buy a house, too," he finished suggestively.

That night Abalone went home with an idea. She could not afford new dresses, and she knew that the damp sea wind to which her work exposed her would ruthlessly undo any curls into which she might coax her stubborn hair, but the beads with which Jason longed to see her adorned were not beyond her reach, and she determined to have them.

She remembered that a society girl from Los Angeles who had summered at Redondo the year before, had worn a necklace which had excited much admiring attention. It was composed of the native California moonstones, large and perfectly matched and polished, linked together upon a fine gold chain, a wonderful, shimmering, lovely thing, far more artistic and beautiful than more costly jewels. The next day Abalone selected the finest specimens of her finds for herself, and throughout the year she kept up the practice.

It had taken a long time to get enough stones together for the necklace. Not that the supply was limited or Abalone less skillful in finding them, but expenses were unusually heavy that year and she dared not cut down her sales as much as she had at first planned.

Abalone's own needs for the year had been as simple as ever and required but little money, but Jane had never seemed to need as many new things as she demanded that winter, and Abalone, as usual, had not the heart to refuse the almost weekly requests for money.

Jane was growing prettier, too, and Jason West now spent every moment he could spare during her week-end visits in her company, a fact which Abalone did not notice as much as she might have done had she been less absorbed in the pursuit of her cherished purpose.

There was a lapidary shop in Redondo where she meant to have the moonstones polished when she had finished her collection, and she hoped by that time to have saved enough money for the simple gold chain on which to mount them and for one or two pretty dresses. And thus day by day she had dreamed of the fulfillment of her hopes, and of Jason West's admiration when he should see her dressed as other girls.

As Abalone hastened up the beach toward her home that evening she was triumphantly happy in the knowledge that the few choice moonstones tinkling musically against the sides of her pail were the last ones needed to complete her collection. She was hurrying because she was anxious to get home and put the stones away, and because she knew Jane would have arrived by this time, and Jane never could endure to be kept waiting.

As Abalone came in sight of the little wind-beaten cottage on the shore of the bay, Jane, who had been sitting huddled upon the step, came down the path greeting her sister pettishly.

"What kep' you so late?" she demanded. "My car got in an hour ago, an' I've nearly froze waitin' here."

"I'm sorry," apologized Abalone. "I'd 'a' left the door unlocked if I'd 'a' knowed I was likely to be late. I hope you ain't caught cold."

She unlocked the door as she spoke, and Jane followed her into the house, suspiciously eyeing the pail which emitted the faint, tinkling sound.

"What's that you got in your bucket?" she demanded, peering into the battered vessel as her sister placed it upon the table. "Didn't you sell all your stones today?"

Abalone hesitated in confusion over her answer, seeing no way out of a confession.

"I sold all I wanted to," she said at last. "Them's just some I kep' out for myself."

"For yourself? Why, Abby Perkins, what do YOU want of moonstones 'cept to sell?"

"Well, I DO want 'em," said Abalone spiritedly, resenting the opinion which so clearly relegated her to a sphere entirely outside of girlish desires. "I've been savin' 'em for quite a spell. I'm plannin' to have myself some beads," she confessed arrogantly.

"Beads!" echoed Jane. There was astonishment and a hint of scorn in her tone, but Abalone's seldom-stirred anger had warned her, and she said no more, but she stared at the plain older girl with as much surprise as if the latter had suddenly purposed the acquisition of a pair of wings.

Later in the evening, when Jason West came in, Jane spoke teasingly of her sister's plan. "Abby's going to have some beads," she told him laughingly. "She's been saving her finest moonstones for a year. Won't they look fine on that old gray sweater?"

Abalone came spiritedly to her own defense. "Jason likes beads," she said, seeking to enlist his support. "He thinks they look awful pretty on a girl."

"They sure do on Jane," agreed Jason, with an admiring look at the latter. He seemed to have forgotten that he had ever desired the ornaments for Abalone.

But Jane, from a perverse desire to tease her sister, would not let the subject rest, and before [illegible] back to the city she had demanded and been [illegible] collection of moonstones which was kept [illegible] den away in a tin baking-powder can beneath [illegible] underwear in the bureau drawer.

Abalone had planned to take the stones to be polished on the Monday after Jane's departure, [illegible] day found her struggling with a cold, [illegible] kept her shut up in the little house through [illegible] week.

When Jane came home the next Saturday [illegible] was enthusiastic over a plan which she [illegible] municated to her sister. "I've found a place you can sell your moonstones at," she began [illegible] they had greeted each other. "The big [illegible] been savin', I mean."

"But I don't want to sell them," protested [illegible] Abalone. It was a shock to discover that [illegible] possibly expect her to part with her beloved [illegible]

"I was in the boss's office the other day," [illegible] Jane, ignoring her sister's protest, "and there [illegible] man in there that's gettin' up some kind of [illegible] for the Chamber of Commerce or something [illegible] he's gettin' together a whole lot of stuff [illegible] goin' to send back East to some big fair, 'to [illegible] wonderful things California produces'—that [illegible] fellow's words—and as soon as I heard him [illegible] of your moonstones, and so I just sailed [illegible] told him about them, and he was awful [illegible] said he'd been thinkin' they'd ought to have [illegible] exhibit, an' for me to bring 'em in for him [illegible] if they suit he'll give——" Jane named the [illegible] sum impressively and looked at her sister [illegible] tion. But she was disappointed, for Abalone showed only a stern, unqualified refusal.

"He can't have 'em," she said with more [illegible] than Jane or any one else had ever heard [illegible] "Nobody can have 'em, not even if they [illegible] five times that much."

"I wouldn't be a fool if I was you, Ab," [illegible] sister. "That's quite a bit of money to [illegible]

"But, Jane, the moonstones are for my [illegible] know how bad I want the beads," pleaded [illegible]

"I can't see why YOU should want beads," [illegible] with disagreeable emphasis on the pronoun [illegible] you're boun' to have 'em, you could buy a [illegible] of im'tation corals like these of mine for [illegible] the moonstones 'u'd bring, and then there'd [illegible] left for the things I need."

"What do you need, Jane? I thought [illegible] a lot of things lately," Abalone said [illegible]

Jane laughed contemptuously. "What [illegible] What all I DON'T, you'd better ask. You [illegible] Ab, that a girl in the city has just GOT [illegible] she'd have no use for out here. And I've [illegible] reason for needin' pretty clothes," she said [illegible] desperate attempt to force her sister to [illegible] of her treasures. "Ain't you guessed what [illegible]

Abalone shook her head.

"Ain't you thought anything about [illegible] comin' here so much lately?" persisted Jane.

"I don't know as I have; he comes just like he [illegible] has since we all was little," murmured [illegible]

"Not like he always has," corrected Jane. [illegible] so awful innocent, Ab, you never suspect a [illegible] fairly shouted at you." Abalone was silent [illegible] went on airing her superior worldly [illegible] frankness which did not scruple to spare [illegible] feelings. "In the first place, I [illegible] Jason was lookin' after," she said, "but [illegible] started in business an' is tryin' to make [illegible] himself, he's smart enough to see that a pretty [illegible] wife is boun' to help him along more than [illegible] plain one. It counts a good deal with Jason [illegible] girl looks pretty or not, an' that's why, if [illegible] be settled between us, I've got to have a [illegible] fit right away."

The words awoke a storm of protest in [illegible] gentle heart. "I don't believe it," she cried. [illegible] is you that Jason wants; I ain't denyin' [illegible] is, it ain't because you're prettier than me [illegible] course you are. Jason wouldn't choose [illegible] He's too much of a man."

Jane shrugged her pretty shoulders under [illegible] rate, cheap shirt waist. "There's where [illegible] said. "It's because he IS a man that good [illegible] so much to him. You might just as well [illegible] about it, Ab."

Abalone went swiftly to the door. She [illegible] ing that her trouble had suddenly grown too [illegible] little room. She must escape with it, out [illegible] open, wind-swept sky, down by the sea [illegible] shared and eased every burden she had [illegible] bear. Jane followed to the little porch and [illegible] iously again and again to her, but Abalone [illegible] and Jane turned back into the house, [illegible] may in her pretty face.

"I've gone an' said too much," she [illegible] grily. "I promised Jason I'd do the best I [illegible] her, an' I've gone an' done the worst. I [illegible] hurt her like that, but it does seem that my [illegible] jus' don't know when to stop when my [illegible] to workin'."

Out on the beach Abalone walked swiftly [illegible] along the curving bay, through the town, [illegible] hotel gleaming out of its wonderful gardens [illegible] white flower in its setting of green [illegible] wharves where ships were unloading [illegible] tant lands, on and on until she had [illegible] and come out upon the open beach where the [illegible] bluffs of "Clifton-by-the-Sea" begin to [illegible] the clear sky.

As she walked she had struggled with [illegible] and when at last she turned homeward [illegible] her decision. She would let Jane have the [illegible] Abalone had grown up with the fixed [illegible] Jane wanted she must have, and if Jane [illegible] West, and the sale of the beloved [illegible]

The Hero of the Book.

HE FIGHTS WITH FATE AND WINS A HAPPY ENDING.

By Elizabeth Crighton.

THE road from Hick's ranch to McGivern's resort began, at this time of the year, in the cool green of the woods—a line of dusty highway, flanked on either side by irregular fences and hedgerows interspersed with trees. It inclined deviously, but always to the right—to the glistening "Silver Lake" that had given its name to the resort. At the end of the third mile the gleam of water was visible at intervals; at the fifth the lake was outlined, and at the sixth it was entirely exposed to view with the low, long building of the hotel and the detached offshoots of cottages clustered around.

Tom Hicks was driving his team and wagon to McGivern's with supplies. It was early morning. "But there'll sure be some fool boarders about," he muttered. Not once had he looked in the direction of the water, at the shimmering, sparkling lake, and yet he was always conscious of its vicinity.

He had dreamed of the smooth, shining water—flashing and rippling in the sunlight. He knew just how it would look—calm and beautiful and fascinating and alluring, while he——"Git up!' he shouted to the lagging horses with a smack of the whip which so far increased their speed that the wagon rattled up the driveway to the [illegible] of the dash and clatter of more pretentious equipages. McGivern, a stout, elderly man, who was always on the lookout for coming guests, hurried to the entrance.

"Oh, it's you, Tom."

"Yes, it's me. Thought this was the 'bus, I'll bet."

"Well, the season's on," apologetically. "But I want my truck. Drive round to the back, won't yer?"

He unloaded and helped carry in boxes of fruit and vegetables, and McGivern, after much bargaining, settled the score.

"Got many folks this year?"

"Filling up perty well."

As Tom Hicks sprang to his seat, a bevy of girls in bathing costume hove in sight. He lashed the team and galloped down the road in a cloud of dust.

"The blamed water's bad enough," he exclaimed, "but the girls."

The reins fell loosely on the backs of the horses as the driver recalled the day, more than two years ago, when he had rescued a girl from drowning. The weight of her limp body, the clinging touch of her wet hair—Could he never forget? She had married him when he proposed it—out of gratitude, he believed now. "You saved my life," she had said, "and I owe it you."

Ah, if he had only understood! But he loved her, and, God help him! he loved her still. Then when she had fretted and grown wan and silent in the loneliness and solitude of the woods, he had not understood. Not till the telegram came with the news of her mother's dying condition, and its peremptory "Come at once," when [illegible] her quick concern and agitation, he saw the light in her eyes and the transfiguration of her face, the sudden transformation of her whole being, did he comprehend how unhappiness and homesickness had been drinking the springs of hope and joy, of life itself. After her departure, his thoughts had traversed constantly the brief journey of their life together, marking each little incident by the way. It was a hopelessly humiliating process, and yet in a manner it helped him grow up. As he began to understand more and more, and roundly cursed himself for his stupidity, he was in a measure relieved.

Her mother died, but his wife did not return. Every letter had been a plea for a longer visit—"her father needed her," and the husband granted her requests.

"I have failed to make her happy," he reasoned, "why should I ask or even desire her to return?" He was a poor correspondent, and gradually her letters arrived at longer intervals and then ceased altogether.

. . . . .

At the height of the season a studious-looking young man, who called himself Kingsley, came to live with Hicks. He was sent from "The Sliver Lake Hotel," he said, by way of introduction. The stranger soon fell in with the primitive life at the ranch, and seemed utterly content.

"It's just what I needed," he declared to his host the first week.

"The quiet, and these stretches of field and forest," spreading his hands, "are healing."

The farmer nodded; he didn't quite view the fields in that light. To him they represented toil and a bare recompense. His guest, however, was a [illegible], he reflected, "an' wouldn't be likely to know [illegible]." It was pleasant, Hicks realized, to have some one to talk with beside the "hands." By-and-by Kingsley would regularly join the farmer on the porch in the evenings, and puffing a fragrant Havana, [illegible] a way story. From listening to his stories [illegible] in a way the man himself, Hicks decided [illegible] the virtue wanting in him—the faculty of [illegible]. He would have understood her.

[illegible] the countryman unconsciously unfolded [illegible] like a map, before the stranger, with only one [illegible]. There was no one to enligten [illegible] the omission. Of women there were none, [illegible] belongings Kingsley had observed [illegible] he had attributed to some former housekeeper [illegible] his instinct and training served him. He [illegible] reserve.

[illegible], when they were looking toward the [illegible] Kingsley remarked the foliage was not so [illegible] the hills appeared nearer, he added: "If we [illegible] from yonder the outlook would be [illegible]"

"[illegible] for me!" Hicks exclaimed with emphasis, [illegible] from his mouth and shifting uneasily in his seat. "Can't abide water," he supplemented as he noted his guest's inquiring look.

"Well, it's a matter of taste. I wouldn't want to live at the resort for a dozen lakes," the latter replied easily.

"I never thought to take a summer boarder—hate the whole kit—but you just seemed to fit in, somehow."

"Oh, it's done me worlds of good—bully for the summer; though you must be pretty quiet down here in the winter."

"That's so, but I've been bred to it, as you may say."

"Ah, yes; everything in that. I shall have to go back to the grind pretty soon. Ever been in the city?"

"Yes, for a day or so. Lord! I was glad to get a breath of this air arterwards."

Kingsley regarded the stalwart, athletic figure. He felt for a moment stunted of his full growth.

"Well, you look me up when you come again. I'll try to give you a good time."

Next day Kingsley hired the one rig and drove to McGivern's. The place seemed to him very much alive. The proprietor came bustling forward.

"So you ain't quite lost in the woods, I see," he exclaimed. "How you like it down there?"

"Oh, it's all right."

"Here," to a boy, "you take the horse round. Hicks isn t much company, eh?"

"I didn't come here for company."

"No, you said that. Since his wife left, he's touchy."

"Wife?"

"Why, didn't he say a word?"

"No," Kingsley answered shortly, and eager as he was for information, something in the man's garrulousness annoyed him.

"He isn't given to gossip, and that suits me."

The next moment McGivern was bowing and smirking to some new arrivals.

Kingsley stayed to their early dinner, and was rewarded by meeting an old friend and chum—Jack Compton.

"Why, I didn't know you ever came this way," the latter exclaimed.

"First offense, and it would be my last if I had to stay at this place."

"Oh, come now; it isn't half bad. My wife likes to bring the kid. We've been here three summers in succession. Where have you planted yourself?"

"Down below, at Hicks's ranch."

"Ah, I've seen him; sort of hero here once."

"Hero?"

"Yes, saved a girl's life at the risk of his own, and all that Never mentioned it, I'll swear."

"No, he doesn't talk much of himself"—consciously, he mentally added.

"Who was the girl—I mean—what was her name?"

"Chester—Maud Chester. My wife can tell you all about it."

Kingsley looked out over the lake. They were sitting on one of the benches on the sand. He remained so long silent his companion rose.

"By-by, old man; see you again."

Kingsley nodded. He laughed mirthlessly when his friend disappeared. What a farce life was! He drove back to the ranch in time for the evening meal. Hicks asked him if he had a good time.

"Yes; I'm glad I went, but I'll have to be off tomorrow."

"I'm going over early in the morning, if you'll be ready."

"I'll go with you."

They smoked in silence for a while.

"Is McGivern's pretty well filled up?"

"Yes; seems to be." He flung his cigar away. "I think I'll turn in." Hicks looked at him curiously.

"I'll call you in the morning," he cried to his retreating figure."

. . . .

After Kingsley's departure the young farmer felt his loneliness more keenly. The changes of the seasons that should have varied the monotony, were now only so many incitements to different phases of labor.

In the spring, when the woods were waking to new life, McGivern began his preparations for summer visitors. The hotel and cottages had another coat of paint, and were otherwise renovated, and as soon as summer arrived Hicks was making his usual trips to the resort.

"Say, Tom! There's a party here wants to see you," McGivern announced one day after they had concluded a trade. "You wait and I'll fetch 'em."

"Oh, shucks! I'm off," but before he could put the words into effect, a couple of guests bustled up, escorted by the landlord.

"This is your man, ladies," bowing and disappearing.

"Oh dear!" exclaimed the elder, "why didn't he introduce us? I'm Mrs. Greeve, and this is my friend Mrs. Woods. We read about you," looking up to the big, statue-like form on the box seat of the wagon, "and we've wanted to see you. You're the Hero of a Story—but of course you know that."

The big man shook his head. "My dear, run and get the book. Just one moment," to Hicks. "It's true the names are not the same, but you are there, and the places are described, they tell me, accurately. What is your real name?"

"Hicks—Tom Hicks."

"Ah, here she is. Now," holding the book up to him, "you take this home and read about yourself."

He touched his hat and put the book into his pocket.

"Good-by!" from the ladies. "We're coming to see you, mind!"

He started the horses without replying.

"My dear, what a fine-looking fellow!"

"Yes," agreed Mrs. Woods, "but he looks like a brigand."

"Well, I'm glad we gave him the book, and now we can go and see him."

Once alone on the highway, Hicks wondered who could have written about him. "It was damned impertinent, anyway." There was only that chap Kingsley, and what did HE know? He decided to look it over, and later when he had put up the team and eaten his supper, he filled his pipe and took out the book. After a descriptive page or two—and it was the place to a dot, he was forced to concede—he glided into the history of his own life, embellished with the deft touches of an artist who knows the secrets of his art. When the light failed he lit the lamp and read on to the last word. He seldom read a book through, and was no critic, but this one laid hold of him. He saw himself (his good and bad points stood out in bold relief)—physically strong and morally imperfect—honorable and true, but deficient in purpose, resolution and action; and his love story brought a mist to the gray eyes that was quickly dispersed with a determined hand. There was only one inference possible—that Kingsley had loved Maud. "And why didn't I think of that before?" the reader cried with a blow of his fist on the table that threatened the overturning of the lamp. "Haven't I always associated the two in my thoughts. Oh, what a fool I am!"

Then, when he recalled their intimacy, Kingsley looked very like a traitor, and an ugly frown creased his brow. The story was his till the ending, when the woman renounces her lover for her husband. The end hadn't perhaps come for him yet, but why shouldn't he MAKE it true? He flung down the book and began searching for his wife's address (how long it was since he had heard from her!) and in his head was a trip to the big western city where she had lived with her father. He would go and learn his fate.

. . . .

When Tom Hicks returned to the ranch some few weeks subsequent to the foregoing episode he was accompanied by his girlish wife and a wee, toddling child. He had become the hero of the book TO THE END, and Maud was happy. One look into those clear, sparkling eyes was enough to convince the merest onlooker. The husband knew that at last love had taught him to UNDERSTAND her.

RAILWAY TRAVEL IN INDIA.

SUPPLYING WATER TO "CASTE" MEN—A FAKIR'S CHAINS.

[Railway Magazine:] An Indian railway time table affords interesting study. It combines voluminous railway information with a considerable amount of matter particularly interesting to the tourist. Caste does not cause the railways so much trouble as might be imagined, judging by all one hears about it in England. Indeed caste distinctions are found to resolve into two main principles. One only concerns us here, the other—the prohibition of intermarriage—having reference to matters outside the radius of a railway official's activities.

A "caste" man must not partake of food cooked or even handled by one of inferior caste. Food is a wide term. A very orthodox person would include medicine compounded by an apothecary. One of more liberal views might receive, say, a plantain (banana) from the hands of an individual beneath him, for the "unclean" hands of the latter would have come in contact only with the skin, and not with the part to be eaten.

The first and most obvious requirement of any long-distance traveler in a hot climate is fluid refreshment. The filter and the glass commonly found in an English dining-car would be of no use in India, inasmuch as the native would first of all want to know who put the water in the filter and then who last used the glass. If satisfactorily assured on the latter point, he would nevertheless run no risk of contamination, but would pour the liquid down his throat while holding the glass a few inches above his mouth.

But the orthodox man, taking no risks at all, carries with him a brass water pot attached to a belt, and even then adopts the further precaution above mentioned. At every station a native patrols the platform, carrying a skin with a supply of water. Experience has taught the railway companies to be particular as to who is entrusted with this duty. Continuing, the writer says:

"I once traveled with a Brahmin who, parched with thirst, eagerly called the water carrier at each successive station. But before replenishing his brass pot he cross-examined the man as to his antecedents, and not being satisfied that he was of sufficiently high caste, continued suffering agonies till a wire was sent on ahead, the result of which was that the holiest man of all the countryside was routed out and induced to do duty pro tem.

"Fortunately very holy people seldom travel and when they do they contrive to let it be known beforehand so that meals may be specially prepared for them in advance.

"On another occasion a celebrated fakir was proposing to travel. His form of self-mortification took the shape of some two hundredweight of chain with which his body was girded and with which he tried to enter the carriage assisted by his friends.

"But the station master was there, and the result of a somewhat heated argument conducted in a language which for possibilities of vituperation has no equal in the world was that the fakir and his chains were hauled off to the weighing machine and full passenger parcel rate was charged on the two hundredweight of old iron on the reasonable ground that it could not be regarded as wearing apparel.

"The Hindu likes to have all his savings in a portable form. They do not take the shape of scrip and title deeds, but bars, anklets and armlets of gold and rudely-set jewelry. When he travels all this wealth is frequently entrusted to the keeping of a young daughter, whose little legs and arms are wound round with golden bars, while her nose and ears are heavily weighted with jewelry. I once saw on a station platform a little girl about 6 who was computed to be worth about £6000 as she stood.

This practice is not, however, so common as it used to be, for railways naturally disclaim liability in such cases, and there have, moreover, been so many nameless outrages on little girls for the sake of plunder

Hyper-Criticism.

THE late Frank Worthing, the well-known actor, was the subject of a recent discussion at the Pen and Pencil Club in Philadelphia. A dramatic critic said:

"Worthing, though a superb actor, hated adverse criticism—hyper-criticsm he always called it. To some adverse criticism of mine he retorted, one winter night at the Majestic, with a George Washington story.

"He said I reminded him in my critical remarks of a Scot named Saunders.

" 'Saunders,' said an American, 'did you ever read the history of America?'

" 'Aweel, I canna say I hev,' Saunders replied.

" 'Then I'll lend you the book,' said the American. 'I'd like you to read about George Washington.'

" 'What about him?' Saunders inquired coldly.

" 'George Washington,' said the American, 'was celebrated in history as the boy who could not tell a lie.'

" 'Could he no'?' said Saunders. 'Man, there's no muckle to boast aboot in that. He couldna lie, ye say? Noo we Scot's hae a higher standard o' veracity. We can lie, but we won't!' "

" 'No, my son; I am afraid not,' the father answered.

" 'Did you ever tell a lie, papa?'

" 'Yes, yes.'

" 'Did mamma?'

" 'Yes, I am sorry to say.'

" 'And Uncle Tom?'

" 'Dear me, yes.'

" 'And Grandma Smith?'

" 'Yes, yes.'

"The little fellow sighed.

" 'What are you sighing about?' asked his father.

" 'It must be awful lonely in heaven, papa, with nobody there but God and George Washington.' "

An Anecdote With a Point.

MR. ROOSEVELT, during a recent visit to Harvard, advised the undergraduates to take an active interest in politics.

"Be fair," he said at luncheon to a little group of Harvard men—"be fair even to the politician. Have a debit side to your account with him, but have a credit side as well.

"And don't be content to stand outside the fight and sneer. Pitch in. The critical, sneering, do-nothing man makes me think of Carlyle.

"Carlyle, in his Chelsea house, had a sound-proof room. It was built on the roof. Lighted from above, the place was impervious to sound and sight alike.

"An old Scot from Craigenputtock, on being shown the sound-proof room, chuckled and said sarcastically:

" 'My certes, this is fine. Here ye may write and study all the rest of your life, and nobody be one bit the wiser.' "

Lots Like Her.

FIRE CHIEF CROKER of New York was talking about the need for laws whereby the fire department could compel property owners to protect their property against the perils of fire.

"As things stand today," he said, "we can't force these men to do our bidding. We can only request them to. They then promise they will obey us, but in the issue they are like old Mrs. Hopkinson.

"To Mrs. Hopkinson, a very quarrelsome old lady, her pastor said:

" 'You must never cherish an enmity, madam, against your neighbor. If your neighbor injures you, forget it.'

" 'So I do forget it, doctor,' said Mrs. Hopkinson piously, 'but the trouble is, I've got a powerful bad memory, and I keep forgetting I've forgotten.' "

Naturally.

JOHN KENDRICK BANGS, at a banquet in New York, pleased his fellow-diners with an epigram at the expense of one of the foreign "high-brow" playwrights.

"Of course," said Mr. Bangs, "he thinks that he is superior to his brother craftsmen, especially to his brother craftsmen in America. You know how it is. When a man deems himself one in a thousand, he naturally looks on all the rest as ciphers."

A Lesson in Courtesy.

BOOKER T. WASHINGTON, the noted educator, said of George Washington in a recent address in Tuskegee:

"Washington, as he drove in his coach one day, was saluted by an aged colored man, who lifted his tattered cap, whereupon Washington acknowledged the salute by lifting his own hat in turn.

"His companions remonstrated. Why did the great George Washington bow to a ragged black? But Washington said in his grave and stately way:

" 'Do you think, my friends, that I can let myself be outdone in courtesy by a poor and ignorant old negro?' "

Spurgeon's Comment.

REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D., pastor of Moody's Church, in Chicago, filled the Metropolitan Tabernacle of London during the month of January.

The British Weekly, commenting pleasantly upon Dr. Dixon's acceptability in this position, recalls a story of his first visit to England twenty years ago, and his introduction at that time to Dr. Charles H. Spurgeon.

Spurgeon was seated one day in his vestry, a large Bible before him on the table, about which were gathered his deacons in solemn conference, when William Olney entered and introduced to Mr. Spurgeon a very tall young man. Taking in his visitor from head to foot, Mr. Spurgeon—with the familiar twinkle in his eye—quietly remarked: "Well, well, I have always heard they carry things to great lengths in America."

A Change.

APROPOS of the new hotel in New York where women, as in all the fashionable hotels abroad, may smoke, Frederick Townsend Martin said at a recent luncheon:

"The cigarette-smoking woman has doubtless come to stay. Times have indeed changed since the nineteenth century, or Victorian Age.

"At a soiree during the Victorian Age in Washington Square, when a young lady rose to play on the violin an old gentleman named Von Twiller exclaimed in a shocked voice:

" 'Good gracious a woman playing the fiddle!'

"Some time afterward a young man sat down at the piano, whereupon old Von Twiller sneered:

" 'I wonder if the dear creature can sew!' "

A Spirit of Skepticism.

THE late Paul Morton, at a dinner in New York, praised stoutly the unexampled efficiency of America's great corporations.

"Some Americans," he said, "refuse to admit that anything American can be extraordinary or superfine. They have the spirit of the little girl whose mother was telling her about George Washington.

"The mother in her narrative praised particularly George Washington's veracity.

"He couldn't tell a lie,' she said. 'He couldn't tell a lie.'

" 'What was the matter wiv him, mamma?' said the little girl. 'Couldn't he talk?' "

Without a Peer.

A PRETTY compliment was paid to "Uncle Joe" Cannon at a dinner in Danville.

As all the world knows, a "Cannon suspender" has been put on the Danville market. A young tailor, in the course of the dinner, said to the guest of honor:

"I beg pardon, but what kind of suspenders do you wear, sir?"

"They call them Cannons, young man," the other answered.

"How absurd!" said the tailor, with a bow and a smile. "As if there could be a pair of Cannons."

No Means Disdained.

THE late Senator Elkins, condemning a rebate-giving railroad, once said at a dinner in Washington:

"In their desire for freight patronage these rebating concerns remind me of an Elkins girl.

"A young man was praising up this girl to his sister.

" 'She was asking me,' he mentioned, 'what color of hair I preferred.'

"But the sister, with a malicious smile, remarked:

" 'How like her that is! Always so anxious to please!' "

A Selfish Viewpoint.

CHAMP CLARK, the Democratic leader, was discussing, at a Washington banquet, a measure of which he disapproved.

"This measure," he said, "is a sign of narrowness and selfishness. It reminds me of the scholar to whom his teacher said on the 1st of February:

" 'Why was George Washington a great man?'

" 'Because,' said the scholar promptly, 'we don't have no school on his birthday.' "

HUBERT LATHAM, the Antoinette flyer, was talking, at a tea in Los Angeles, to a pretty California girl.

"Mr. Latham," said the girl, as she took her nineteenth walnut and lettuce sandwich, "tell me, does flying require any particular application?"

"Well, no, none in particular," Mr. Latham answered. "Arnica or horse liniment—one's as good as another."

YOUNG Lord Fairfax, in a brilliant after-dinner speech at the clubhouse in Tuxedo, praised woman.

"Down with the misogynist," said Lord Fairfax. "Down with that cynical type of male brute who says with the Cornish fisherman:

PROPAGATION BY CUTTINGS.

SOME IMPORTANT FACTORS IN THE WORK CONSIDERED.

By Ernest Braunton.

WHILE the practice of propagation by cuttings differs somewhat with different sorts, such variances are matters of detail only; the fundamental principles underly the whole scheme literally root and branch. A cutting and a scion for grafting differ but little. A graft is a means of propagation where the cutting or scion is put upon the same or a different sort of plant which is already rooted, while a simple cutting is a piece of tree or plant entirely removed and so treated as to grow roots and other parts for itself and thus becomes an independent or separate individual.

Cuttings for propagation is a very comprehensive term, for they range from soft, herbaceous tips that a breath of cold air would blight to a piece of wood as hard as grows on a mature timber tree. Hardy cuttings are those which may be taken rather indiscriminatingly and stuck into the soil under ordinary conditions of open garden culture, exposed to both sun and wind, as well as cold. Willows, poplars, crepe myrtles, privets and nearly all deciduous flowering shrubs belong to this class. Others require what the propagator calls "half-ripened wood," that is, wood which, while performing all the functions to be expected at maturity, is nevertheless not perfectly hard or fully-matured wood. Such cuttings may need shading, protection from winds and cold or even a little more atmospheric humidity than our climate furnishes. Still other sorts of plants are propagated only from "soft-wooded" cuttings, though some sorts are grown from all three. But whatever the nature of the cutting the art of successful propagation consists in guarding against the exhaustion of sap by evaporation until the roots have been grown to give it a new and independent existence. That is why some cuttings need shading and other protection and also keeping a relatively high amount of humidity in the surrounding atmosphere. All these schemes look toward prevention of the extraction of the plant juices until root action arrives at that stage where the plantlet virtually is born anew. One more very important factor must be mentioned, and that is heat. Very many plants may be propagated from hard-wooded cuttings out of doors and from soft tips indoors on artificial heat. Roses are grown by both methods, here in Los Angeles, though by far the greater portion by neither, but by budding onto other "stock."

Nearly all propagation by cuttings is done in late autumn, winter, or early spring and therefore artificial heat is needed for many plants. This class we do not advise the amateur to waste time with, as they may be purchased at less cost than they may be grown at home. Professionals usually have houses heated by steam or hot water, but if the amateur will coax nature in this gentle art of multiplication he should construct a good hotbed. The principles involved and the construction of hotbeds is fairly well understood; yet at the close of a lecture on plant life, a few weeks ago, the writer was asked why a hotbed was a failure when it had six inches of good manure for a foundation. A foot and a half of stable manure after it is well trodden down is as little as should be used. It is best to partially excavate for this and use the surplus soil for banking the sides above ground to conserve the heat. Use fresh stable manure containing a goodly proportion of straw and thoroughly wet it before treading into place. Inside the wooden frame there should be three inches of soil on top of manure and the cuttings should be in boxes of sand of the same depth. The covering may be of canvas. Be careful of too much heat. Let your hotbed cool until a thermometer with the lower end buried in the earth on top of manure registers as low as 85 or 90 degrees, no hotter. Care must be taken in watering and top sprinkling, not getting tender cuttings too wet or they will rot. Nearly all plants grown may be multiplied by this method.

The American Beauty Rose.

IN some localities the American Beauty rose thrives with us, though not everywhere. It is what we call an "eastern rose," though it is not of American origin. It was raised in France, by a grower named Ledechaux, in 1875, and its true name is Mme. Ferd Jamin. Just when it was thrust upon us under the catchy name of American Beauty, the writer does not remember, but we have lots of plants that have been brought into prominence largely through the name. The rudbeckia known as "Golden Glow" is an instance.

The City Fruit Garden.

IN the back yard of many city premises may be found a fruit collection, and many inquiries come to the writer as to good sorts to plant. The following list has been tried in and about Los Angeles, and all are good. The season for planting is now on and fruit trees should go into the ground as soon as possible:

Apples: Early Harvest and Bellflower. Apricots: Royal for early and Hemskirke for late. Berries: Crandall's Early blackberry, Gardena dewberry, Cuthbert raspberry and Loganberry. Figs: Datatto and Kadota. Grapes: Muscat, Purple Cornichon, Purple Damascus, and, for Concord flavor, the Pierce, Agawam and California Concord. In lemons, the Villa Franca is probably best for family use. Olives are not advised on account of the processing necessary to render them palatable, but if one will have them, plant two trees, one Mission and a Rubra. In oranges, get a Washington navel and a Valencia Late. For a succession of peaches, Yellow St. John, Elberta and Salway or Foster are good. In pears, for early use Madeline; for summer the Summer Seckel, and for late the Winter Bartlett. Two good family plums are the Wickson and the Sultan, though some like the group of which the Tragedy is a good type. Luther Burbank has of late years turned out some excellent plums, and these should be found in the local market.

Families of Plants.

THE writer greatly favors the collection of plants of one family rather than an indiscriminate assortment—there is such an added interest. Take the Tecoma family (climbers mostly,) a large place could use them all. In the local market may be obtained: Tecoma Capensis, from Cape of Good Hope; T. grandiflora, China and Japan; T. filicifolium (Campsidium,) from the Andes; T. jasninoides, Australia (also has a pure white variety;) T. radicans, from the United States; T. Smithii, a garden hybrid; T. stans, a shrub from Mexico; T. Ricasolina (Mackenii,) South Africa; and T. velutina, from Guatemala. Others could be obtained with little trouble. The colors range from white to pinks, yellows, reds, to purple. Very close to the Tecomas, too close for even the gardeners or nurserymen to tell the difference, are our two Bignonias; Tweediana and venusta.

The Floriferous Laurustine.

DURING the greater part of the year the Laurustine (Viburnum tinus) is a somber-hued, uninteresting shrub that almost seems out of place except in large gardens and as part of a shrub mass. In early winter it undergoes a change, one which in its entirety occupies the whole winter and spring. At first the exterior becomes a dull brown from the development of the myriads of buds. Soon these become brighter, almost Indian red, and later they burst into snowy whiteness and are so thickly studded over the entire plant as to make it look like a miniature hay stack covered with a white tarpaulin. In this stage no other shrub we grow surpasses the Laurustine in attractiveness. Later the blossoms are followed by dull, blue-black berries and the plant lapses into slumber to await another season of action.

A Beautiful Yucca.

A FEW weeks ago there appeared in this department an illustration and also a description of a beautiful yucca (Y. radiosa,) native to Arizona. The statement was made that it was entirely new to us as a commercial quantity and that seeds only were available. A local firm telephoned the writer that they have a large stock of young plants on hand, of suitable size for planting, grown from seeds collected in central Arizona. This yucca is far superior, in general appearance, to our local native species (Y. Whipplei,) and further it is not stemless, but forms a tall trunk. Neither does it perish, as does our local species, at the time of flowering. For "desert" gardens it is a valuable addition.

That New Garden.

DO not start gardening on a new place without a definite plan or conception of what you wish, or at least, what you have decided to have and do. If you get the proper ideas regarding the place and have the ability to carry them out, you need not fear the result, and you will get more satisfaction from working out your plans than you will from contemplation of the finished product. Get the fundamentals thoroughly fixed, position of buildings and main objects, the drives and paths, and you are ready to proceed; for the details of any place may be worked out as the garden building proceeds.

Growing Palms From Seeds.

GROWING palms from seeds, except of the more hardy species, is a work for the professional nurseryman. Those sorts which may be started out of doors, without artificial heat, are the common species of Washingtonia, Phoenix, Chamaerops, and Erythea, and even some of these have baffled the writer even on hotbeds, where they have lain for months before germinating. The more tender and not be handled except with the very propagating, especially as regards a form supply of heat. For such as palms, a loose, friable soil composed half leaf mold is recommended, together constant supply of water.

ORDER OF WORK.

SUGGESTIONS FOR NEWLY ORGANIZED IMPROVEMENT SOCIETIES.

FOLLOWING the organization of an improvement society there is usually some discussion as to the order of work or what problem should be first attacked. It should not be hard to determine what needs immediate attention or what will bring the greatest good to the greatest number, and the latter manifestly should govern such an organization at all times.

Clean sidewalks add more to both appearance and convenience than any other civic asset, and badly littered and dirty sidewalks are a serious civic liability. In some cities and towns clean sidewalks are required by ordinance; they must be swept by a certain hour each day, and no spitting on them is allowed. If such ordinances and regulations do not occur it is a good subject for the attention of that progressive improvement association all live centers of population should have.

Next to clean sidewalks should come clean streets, it being taken for granted that the term clean streets includes the abolishment of weeds and litter in the parkings as well as in the gutters. If the place be small and no garbage removal is practiced, better see that such service is given. Moreover, it is not enough that streets be once cleaned, but they should be kept clean. Aside from weeds, the most serious menace to tidiness is paper refuse and litter. The installation of receptacles for such rubbish would be a fine accomplishment. The public grounds should next be considered. If you have a square or small park there will be plenty of [illegible] work easily found. If you have no park, start a movement toward securing one. Granting that one is already owned by the public, it should be cleaned up, raking all leaves and rubbish into heaps and burning. Level up all roads and paths and give them a coat of sand granite, shells, cinders or whatever is best and cheapest. See that sufficient benches are provided and in good repair. If there is no park or park site, look for a public cemetery to clean up.

OLD-TIME VIEW OF FIGUEROA STREET.

Next come public buildings and their surroundings. Paint, like charity, covers a multitude of sins, especially [illegible] of the youthful vandals who deface public buildings with knife and pencil. If the town cannot afford a needed coat of paint, get out a subscription list and raise the necessary money. Paint may be needed inside as well as out. The grounds about public buildings should be the neatest and most ornate in the place, for on the appearance of buildings and grounds rests our reputation. There is always room for improvement in all public schoolyards.

The foregoing pointers have been in the line of betterment of what is already on hand, but now we [illegible] to add value to the town. Shade trees are an asset of which any place may boast. Trees, properly planted, add to the value of every village or metropolis, also adding to the comfort and pleasure of every resident. See that what you [illegible] have are first cared for and after that plant [illegible] frontage, if possible, and not till then turn attention to taking out undesirable sorts to be [illegible] with the one kind selected for each particular [illegible]

[illegible] ourselves good, patriotic citizens, let [illegible] times of doing public work, put on the cap [illegible] making our own house and premises just as attractive as is possible with the means at hand. It is generally considered that the appearance of a home is an index to the character of the owner. [illegible] this in mind, take care that you are in line for [illegible] estimate of character. "Costly thy apparel as thy purse can buy, but not expressed in fancy" may be applied, by a slight change, to one's own home environment. A well-painted house, a neat lawn, [illegible] thrifty plants bearing an abundance of [illegible] are certainly unmistakable signs of refinement and culture, whether the owner be a laborer without trade or profession, or a millionaire of a lifetime. The richer man may have greater opportunities for contributing toward the public good, yet in proportion to his holdings the laborer may contribute more to the greatest good for all. Each has his appointed place on the civic programme. See that you fail not.

Dollars and Disease.

MANY of us have reason to be thankful that we do not have to be immured in treeless and sunless streets among the great modern skyscrapers, where dollars and disease struggle for supremacy and where both win. The business advantages of great commercial centers we can freely recognize but still cannot see the value of buildings over five or six stories high.

Nevertheless we do not all have even to linger among them, and those parts of our cities where we dwell may be made a little closer to our conception of an earthly paradise. We may still have garden cities, though the business center be sunless and forbidding. A truly magnificent transportation system has made available all sections of Los Angeles and environs, and we may flee, at least at the close of the business day, to scenes of a truly rural character, where much of nature and but little of man's vandalism is apparent. While some cumber the fair face of the earth with ugly piles of masonry, there are still more who prefer to make the earth still more beautiful. Now that the old order of things are passing away we may bring our garden delights closer to commercial centers, so that by constant effort we shall at last revolutionize our cities and towns without in the least impairing their wealth-creating efficiency. We can so crowd our gardens upon the commercial centers that dollars may rule over a diminished and diminishing death toll brought about through exclusion of sunlight and plant life. In the future we trust cities may so be planned that the streets will be as wide as the flanking buildings are high.

Overgrown School Garden Clubs.

THE best evidence of the value of this type of school-extension interest may perhaps be seen in a more particular reference to the actual club work of boys and girls already successfully carried on in several States. The first State-wide movement of this kind began about 1898, in New York, under the auspices of the College of Agriculture of Cornell University, as a development from its nature-study lessons.

This work has now gone over the whole State and has taken a variety of forms, such as corn growing, potato growing, fruit growing, poultry raising, and garden contests, with special prizes to girls for the best work in sewing and breadmaking. It has all been directed more or less closely by the Junior Naturalist Monthly, and more recently by the Cornell Rural School Leaflet, which frequently gives definite lessons in agriculture written by the college specialists. This publication reaches about 7000 teachers and school commissioners during nine months of the year, and is the official organ of the Cornell Farm Boys' and Girls' Clubs, which now have an aggregate membership of about 75,000.

Gas Injury to Street Trees.

THE poisonous properties of gas to trees undoubtedly consist in the coal-tar products, which contain such compounds as sulphates and cyanides, etc. Gas escaping in the soil probably condenses fully as rapidly as in the pipe. The gas drip which is taken out of a pipe is the condensed portion, and this in itself is very rank in odor and extremely injurious to plants, whether the volatile products are taken in through the leaves or the liquid through the roots. It is apparently these condensed products which are taken up by the roots and poison the tree. About 1 or 2 per cent. of gas is absorbed by water, and the water in the soil becomes charged to a certain extent with gas. In the course of time, where the leakage is more or less extensive, the odor of the soil becomes extremely obnoxious.

Village Improvement Work.

VILLAGE improvement work is one of the most beautiful thoughts of the day, and there is no end to the work it opens up. In small towns it may well take the place of the Board of Trade of the cities. Let us hope the people all along the line are alive to its advantages. For, after all, it lies with the people themselves to say to what extent this improvement work shall go. In the midst of all a few farmers or villagers may decline to join the work, and thus become an eyesore to the tireless little company of workers who have done so much for them. It will also cause thousands of visitors to wonder what makes those homes and farms less prosperous than others.

Figueroa Street.

FIGUEROA street is still one of the most attractive and interesting in Los Angeles, especially regarding trees, shrubs, etc. It was so many years ago when it was considered by far the best residence street in the city. Unusual water facilities were given the lawns. An open cement ditch ran just inside the property line. By placing an iron gate or dam across this ditch, every lawn could, one at a time, be flooded, and no sprinklers were used. This primitive yet effective method of lawn watering was long ago discarded by the city authorities.

Landscape Gardening at School.

WHEN the question of organizing an improvement society is broached many have been heard to exing in their agricultural course. The University of Illinois is entitled to the credit of being the first one so to do. Thus is provision made for the future outdoor improvement of the farm and rural districts in general. The average farmer, as a rule, cares little about his home surroundings and knows still less about improving them in a proper manner. The city and country are now to march hand in hand to better things.

Improvement Work.

SEVERAL educational institutions in this country now make compulsory a study of landscape gardenclaim: "I don't see that much good could be done in our community." Well, every "community" has at least one schoolhouse and the writer has yet to see one whose grounds are so neat and generally ornate that they could not easily be improved. Any live club may find plenty of work to give vent to pent-up enthusiasm in just one ordinary school yard, that is, if they do a real, good job.

Practical Poultry Culture in the Southwest.

DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF STANDARD-BRED POULTRY AND THE PEOPLE WHO GROW IT.

SOME BIG FIGURES.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE INDUSTRY IN THE UNITED STATES.

By Henry W. Kruckeberg.

NOTE—Short articles of a practical nature are cordially solicited from breeders and fanciers, relating their experiences with poultry, giving their successes as well as failures. The writer will be glad, in so far as lies in his power, to answer inquiries of public interest bearing on any phase of an enlightened poultry culture, such as feeding and management, disease and its prevention, market conditions fancy points, etc. The co-operation of utility breeders and fanciers is cordially solicited, to the end that the best thought and practice in an enlightened poultry culture may find a healthy expression in these columns.

IF we are not in error it was the Hon. Jerry Rusk who, during his term as Secretary of Agriculture, first recognized the American hen as a public institution. This he did in his report for 1888, which said: "The time has come when the importance of the poultry interests should be recognized by this department." In his 1890 report this opinion was strengthened in the following words: "The poultry products of this country represent in the aggregate a vast sum, and the industry is one which exists, or should exist, on every farm in this country and which consequently, interests a larger number of constituents of this deparment than any other single industry."

From that time on, poultry investigations have occupied a large place in the department's work, until its annual output in eggs and products have grown to $700,000,000 for 1909. Large as this figure may seem, it is sustained by data covering its development by States. In 1904 Oklahoma was opened, and in the 1910 census we find Oklahoma credited with a poultry and egg production representing $2,962,000. In 1895 Kansas reported $3,431,000 in poultry; in 1910 it was over $10,000,000; last year Missouri reported sales of hen fruit and carcass exceeding $46,000,000. In the Rocky Mountain States and along the Pacific Coast the development has also been pronounced, but not anywhere near so large in annual production. The great Mississippi Valley States are the region of chicken, turkey, duck and goose farming, as well as the region for beef and pork. Here nature produces the feeds that have to be converted into meat, which in turn goes to feed mankind. In a diversified agriculture there is no other side issue that pays so well in proportion to the investment and time and labor consumed as poultry. And on the grain farms of Kansas and Iowa, the hen is a side rather than a main crop.

TWO GOOD FRIENDS.

Eggs True to Label.

Under a recent date an Associated Press dispatch gives the intelligence that the San Francisco Board of Trade has begun a crusade against the selling of storage hen fruit as freshly picked. The complaints specifically charge that the defendants sold as fresh, eggs that were not recently laid by the great American business hen, and which were deficient in specific gravity, having greater air space than fresh, sound, clear and sweet eggs. All of which will interest hen owners if not the feathered bipeds themselves. These complaints are based on violations of the pure food laws, both State and Federal, and it is anticipated that convictions will follow.

The Leghorn Comes Under the Wire.

Frequent reference has been made in these columns in praise of the White Leghorn as a good producer of hen fruit. In verification of our own opinions we give the following record covering one month's business of a flock "run" by Joseph Guidinger, one of those fellows who has learned the "know how." Needless to add, he is also a careful reader of this department of The Times, which of course also helped some:

"You will recall that about a year ago you had a discussion as to whether or not there was any profit in the chicken business. And perhaps you have not forgotten your inquiry a few months ago as to 'Why the Leghorn?' Merely for your information, and as a concrete reply in part to all of the above questions, I thought it not out of place to give you a copy of my December bill for hen fruit, to which should be added about $6 for eggs used on my table, and the amount of the feed bill to be deducted would be approximately $50. Had the prices been what they were in December, 1909, I would have made the $200 mark, but as it was my receipts were $174.45; the price realized daily per dozen fluctuated from 38 cents on December 30, to 49 cents on December 5; the total product marketed was 465 dozens. This was the product of 209 yearling hens, 123 March pullets and 221 April pullets. And the labor involved is the morning and evening chores of myself and family, a boy and girl attending Polytechnic High School, my wife and her mother who is 85 years young, as Bob Burdette would say. However, we all have plenty of time for social duties and pleasures, the chicken chores taking about an hour of each one's time each day and a little extra time of the boy on Saturday."

Red Pepper and Mustard.

The reference from an English paper of a few weeks ago, reciting the experiences of breeders in Great Britian to the effect that the feeding of ground mustard and capsicum (red pepper) in the mash foods was proven to stimulate egg-production has brought many inquiries for more light on the subject. The principal point at issue is how much to feed. In this connection it is well to remember that a good egg-yield depends on more than one thing. Primarily it means good stock, good quarters, proper feeding and intelligent caretaking, exercise, and cleanliness. Certain elements in the food may stimulate the ovaries and so act favorably to a larger egg-yield. Its permanency, however, is questionable in the writer's estimation, who has never fed either red pepper or mustard with a view to increased egg-production, but has used the former as a preventive against colds. The experience of English breeders in this respect is certainly interesting. As to quantity, we should say about a heaping teaspoonful to every twelve hens. In the case of red pepper, we would prefer to buy the red peppers and chop into the mash, rather than use in the powdered state. Some allowance must also be made on the ground of quality. Some varieties are much more pungent than others.

The Winning Way.

Verily, the secret of success is in knowing how. The man who puts brain and brawn, heart and soul, blood and iron into his business, usually comes under the wire, it matters little whether his vocation is banking or railroading, merchandising or manufacturing, or only a chicken business. And the man we are writing about chose the last mentioned, and has duly arrived on schedule time. His name is Frederic Lyne, his business the Lynehurst Poultry Farm, and the place Tucson, Ariz. That it is a real business, and not a few hens in the back yard, is shown in the fact that the plant enjoys the possession of 3400 White Leghorn laying hens, which "get away with" fifteen tons of feed every thirty days, and which produce hen fruit of superior quality by the dozen, the case and the carload—all of which finds its way into the hands of consumers in aristocratic red and gold cartons holding an even and uniform dozen. These eggs are disposed of as not only "fresh ranch eggs," but as "newly laid" hen fruit, reaching its market within forty-eight hours after being picked. As almost every one knows, the market is always quite well supplied with the former, but of the latter, "the real thing," the market is not over supplied—at least not that anybody knows of.

What has been accomplished by this egg farm in Tucson is equally feasible in Southern California. But the fellow trying it must put into the enterprise an equal energy and initiative.

A Needed Reform.

There has been introduced in the present California Legislature a bill making it mandatory on the part of breeders and dealers to sell all eggs and other poultry products by the pound instead of by the dozen. This is in compliance with the wishes of the Haywards and Petaluma Poultry Producers Association, and on the whole meets with the approval of the poultry industry quite generally. This is no new movement; Iowa and other States have had similar laws enacted, but somehow hen fruit in our leading markets still goes by count rather than by weight, so thoroughly is the custom intrenched.

As an economic and just proposition, the selling of hen fruit by weight has everything to commend it. Fresh-laid eggs are heavier than those that have been cold-storaged; large eggs have a better value than small ones; the hen laying the largest number of eggs may fall far short of the one producing a less number but more product by weight; and so the inequalities of the dozen system are present all along the line. It is questionable, however, if the enactment of such a law would create any radical changes in our handling hen fruit, because the state commerce, but it would have a this needed reform. Breeders who heart should write to their the passage of the measure.

Aid for the Stranded.

RELIEF WORK DONE FOR AMERICANS IN BERLIN AND PARIS.

From New York Sun.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—Though many American girls go to Europe to study music or art with an allowance upon which they can barely exist, few of them end [illegible] Miss Lucinda Farrar, who committed suicide in [illegible] apartment in Paris a few weeks ago. That there [illegible] is due largely to the work of American relief [illegible]

[illegible] Farrar had been trying to make a small income [illegible] way by subsisting on as little food as possible, [illegible] the result that she became anaemic and finally [illegible] a nervous breakdown. She never told any of [illegible] fellow-students that she was in need, she had no rel[illegible] whom she might turn, and she was too proud [illegible]. It was to help in just such cases as this that [illegible] Benevolent Fund in Berlin and the Relief [illegible] of the United States of America in Paris were [illegible]. Perhaps Miss Farrar did not know about [illegible], and perhaps if she did she preferred to take [illegible] she did.

[illegible] organizations are in a measure charitable bu[illegible] connected with the American consulates, which [illegible] overrun with applications for aid from peo[illegible] hard up. They are managed by representa[illegible] of the American societies in the two capitals, [illegible] church, the Board of Commerce and [illegible] Woman's Club, the Anglo-American Medical [illegible], etc., who give their services freely, and [illegible] supported entirely by contributions from [illegible] residents.

[illegible] they have a large variety of clients, from [illegible] to stranded grass widows looking in vain [illegible] husbands, by far the most numerous and [illegible] troublesome class consists of musical students [illegible] actors with broken contracts and shattered [illegible]

"[illegible] come over with the fixed idea that they are [illegible] the world on fire," said James Lightbody, [illegible] of the Berlin society, "but they always for[illegible] the match, and so they end up by coming to [illegible] them money to go home and get it.

"[illegible] they try to get us to give them a mortgage [illegible] musical instruments. Last year, for instance, [illegible] got caught by a mother and a daughter who [illegible] advance 600 marks on a violin which they [illegible] worth 800 marks, so that they might furnish [illegible] here.

"[illegible] daughter's friends in America had assured her [illegible] nothing less than a genius and that Ber[illegible], appreciative city, would recognize [illegible]. The only part of Berlin that recog[illegible] was the family that lived underneath her in [illegible], and they showed their appreciation by ob[illegible] practicing. So the budding genius and [illegible] a large sheet of paper and a pencil and [illegible] they could live cheaper if they housed [illegible] and that the only thing they needed to do [illegible] same time to make peace with the fam[illegible] our good 600 marks.

"[illegible] wanted to give it to them, but I [illegible] daughter one day, and the longer I talked [illegible] I found in her story, and the more flaws [illegible] convinced I became that theirs was [illegible]. We dropped them at the time, but [illegible] we were called upon to get them [illegible] with the police, and finally we [illegible] home as the best way of getting them [illegible]

"[illegible] we do whenever we can, send the peo[illegible]. We are now trying to persuade a young [illegible] that she wants to return to her native [illegible] doesn't quite see it that way. She's been [illegible] degree for six years, and she's dead [illegible]. At home she has a family to take care of [illegible] has nothing but an income that is too [illegible] hope for a remote degree.

"[illegible] depend upon us to do all the work [illegible] of their difficulty. We get them a job [illegible] one of the American firms, and then [illegible] their feet again by themselves. Work[illegible] roller skating rink has proved to [illegible] ways of getting out of debt.

"[illegible] was a fellow here who had studied [illegible] at Syracuse, but instead of taking [illegible] he came over here with the plan [illegible] stage after a year's study or so. [illegible] debt about as fast as he could go [illegible]. Then he came to us to [illegible]

"[illegible] marks for two nights lodging and [illegible] him a job at the roller skating [illegible] chap, in an American business [illegible] reason why he should have [illegible] in less than three months he had [illegible] on tips to pay his back board bills, [illegible] he had enough to pay for his way [illegible] needed to be taken care of.

"[illegible] for aid working there now, [illegible] they're getting along famously. [illegible] four days before Christmas, to [illegible] in here and asked if he might [illegible] papers we keep on hand. I noticed [illegible] the radiator and that he looked [illegible], so I scented a case and tried [illegible] his troubles, but it was like draw[illegible] it out of him.

"[illegible] of the stranded actors. He and his [illegible] an acrobatic stunt when they [illegible] the necessary strength to do [illegible] brought them over here had [illegible] hadn't had an engagement for [illegible] and the kid were both sick in bed, and they hadn't a thing to eat, nor a fire to warm them.

"I sent him home with a bundle of papers and when I followed him a little while later I found him sewing them on to the thin muslin sheets in the flickering light of a borrowed lamp. They were ashamed of themselves for being in this plight and almost childlike in their attempts to cover it up. We gave them clothes, 50 marks to pay their debts, and then as a crowning treat some of Mrs. Dunning's baked beans.

"Mrs. Dunning, member of the investigating committee, and her pet theory is that there is nothing like homemade baked beans to make down-and-out Americans happy again, and her theory generally works, too, but it keeps her pretty busy putting it in practice, as the demand is apt to be heavy. But to return to the acrobat family.

"We sent the boy to a home for tubercular children, the father into a hospital and the brother to work in the rink. Now they are all well again and all working in the rink, the men as ticket choppers and the little fellow as skate boy, and they are making enough money to live on comfortably.

"But we do not limit our activities to supplying baked beans to the worn and the hungry; we do everything from patching up family quarrels to putting on a song and dance in distant cities. That's a new venture, I'll admit, bet it happened this way:

"The dance act is put on by an American woman who is traveling across the continent with four English and four American girls of about 16 and 18 years. When they got to Berlin they were strapped and so of course they appealed to the Consul to lend them money, and he turned them over to us. We gave her 200 marks that she might pay her traveling expenses and fill her contracts, and so you see our money is now putting on the song and dance in Marburg."

There are stranded individuals on the other hand who lead the association a song and dance. Chief among these is the endless list of John Davises. Either the United States ran out of names for its colored citizens or it had only one set of papers to give out to that section of its population when its members sailed across the sea, but at all events the suspicion of the Benevolent Association was aroused when the same papers, now torn in the middle and worn at the edges, appeared again and again, accompanied each time by a different colored gentleman and a similar tale of woe. Some of the holders of the papers have jobs now as porters in the hotels; others have wandered no one knows whither, but none of them tries to get any more money out of the Benevolent Association under the name of John Davis.

Though the organizations both in the French and the German capital cannot do more than give temporary aid to Americans in the city in which they are located, they are constantly receiving requests from other parts of Europe. Sometimes, indeed, consuls in other cities even send them cases in order to get them off their own hands.

During the summer months they are busiest, helping stranded travelers, interpreting for them if necessary, lending them money for cables home or to their banks and making temporary loans. Sometimes they get back the money they spend and sometimes a little more for the benefit of the fund. Many a time they have helped out the people who found European cities a little gayer and livelier than they had expected, and many a poor fellow have they helped who wasn't informed as to the games which the confidence man plays.

The most famous case of this kind was that of the son of a doctor of Atlanta, Ga., who was fooled out of 4000 marks by a wily Irishman with a good game afoot. The game seemed mighty good, too, until he found himself alone, with empty pockets and a big bill to pay for the supper they had been enjoying together. The young Georgian was about to be turned over to the police, when he bethought himself of the Benevolent Association and telephoned to it to save the situation. This the association did by paying his bill and later telegraphing to his parents in Paris to send him more money. Since then the young man has been keeping to himself so rigidly that no one ever sees him except behind the walls of his own room. His father out of gratitude gave the association a generous sum of money for further good Samaritan acts.

The real Americans, these who belong to good old American families, were born and bred over there, give us little if anything to do; they are usually too clever to get into a fix, and if they do they are too proud to depend on any one but themselves to get them out of it. What is more, they are not ashamed to work.

The university students do any manner of things from tutoring to bootblacking to make their way, just as they do at home, much to the astonishment and secret admiration of the natives, who would rather starve and depend upon charity than lower themselves to anything so menial.

The poor musical students and the stranded actors may keep the organizations busy, but they do not present the same knotty problems as what are known as the medical cases. These are poor sick people who have worked their way over in the hope of finding a cure in Europe.

"We are going to send a letter of protest to the American Association of Medicine calling attention to the fact that we cannot assume responsibility for people who cannot be cured at home," said Mr. Lightbody. "We have the names of several doctors in the United States who have sent us their derelicts and we have signed statements from their patients that they were sent over here with the understanding that we would help them.

"Absolutely incapable of doing a stroke of work, they arrive here and expect us to provide for them until they are released by the only thing that will save them, death. Even though we have a member of the Anglo-American Medical Association on our board, it is very difficult for us to get any one into a public institution here, because the natives have the first right to vacant places. We have very little money at our disposal, and that little we need for the temporary relief which is always demanded of us. We cannot afford to keep pensioners.

"We do the best we can, naturally, but that is precious little. There is an old blind man here now who was sent over by a doctor in Detroit who knew full well that the man was absolutely incapable of taking care of himself, that he hadn't much money and that he couldn't work. And yet he sent him over here and told him that we would see that he was well taken care of and was sent to the right doctor who could cure him.

"The man was robbed on the way, and came to us empty-handed. We gave him 50 marks, all we had to spare at the time, and we do not know what has happened to him since then."

The Moonstone Girl.

help to the attainment of her desire, then the sacrifice must be made. After all, what were the moonstones but a means to an end? For the first time Abalone confessed to herself that it was not the stones she cared for. She had set her heart on having the beads simply because Jason had wanted her to have them. Now that he was no longer interested in her, she scorned the pretty baubles. She saw now, too late, that she had all unconsciously centered her whole life upon her love for Jason and her dream of their future together, and now that these had been taken from her, life suddenly seemed to be swinging dizzily, objectless, like an unmoved boat in the harbor.

At last she remembered that it was growing late and that it would soon be time for Jane's return to the city. If she meant to give her the moonstones she must hurry home. But when she reached the little house by the bay, Jane had gone. A vague, unexplainable instinct of disaster sent Abalone hurrying to the drawer where the moonstones were kept, but when she lifted the clothing from it she found the tin box empty. Jane, the sister for whom she had been prepared to sacrifice so much—Jane had actually stolen! The moonstones were gone.

Abalone was still sitting, unnerved by the shock of her terrible discovery, when Jason West came in. He had a package in his hand, and his face, glowing with happy anticipation, clouded when he saw the miserable little figure on the floor.

"You've found out!" he cried, coming eagerly to her side. "I hurried as fast as I could. I thought I'd get here first, but the car was late. What is the matter, Abbey girl?"

"The moonstones," Abalone sobbed. "Jane took them —JANE!" She had not meant that Jason should know his sweetheart's guilt, but his sympathy seemed to drag the confession from her.

"Jane took them," laughed Jason. "Why, of course she took them—to give to me."

"To give to you?"

"Yes. I hadn't meant to let you know anything about it till it was all done. You see, after Jane told me about the beads that night I'd fixed up a plan. I made her get the moonstones for me that night, and the very next day I took them to Los Angeles and left them to be polished and mounted on the very nicest chain I could get, and a gold locket with a ruby in it for a charm. Then when Jane come home and found you was plannin' to take the stones to Redondo, she got scared for fear you'd find the stones was gone and spoil our surprise, so she let on that she wanted to sell them, so you'd let her take the empty box without knowin'. It was true what she told you about that Chamber of Commerce man, though; he did see 'em at the jew'ler's an' wanted 'em bad. Some of the Los Angeles papers had pieces in 'em about your moonstones bein' among the most beautiful of California's thousands of natural beauties."

"But Jane said——" dared Abalone, determined to know the worst or have set her fears at rest.

"I know all that Jane said; she told me tonight. She feels awful about havin' hurt your feelin's so, but she said she just had to make believe that there was somethin' between us to carry out our plan. She sees now that she went too far, but Jane's got a gift for romancin' she can't seem to curb once she gets it started. Dearie, I've been all summer hangin' around tryin' to get you to take notice of me like you usta. I even tried to let on that I was in love with Jane to see if that would break the 'moonstone spell,' as Jane called it. Jane done all she could to help me win you back. Jane's a giddy little thing, and considerable selfish, but she's got a good heart and she loves you dear."

Abalone was wiping her eyes. "I guess I've made a fool of myself about moonstones," she admitted.

"Look at these, honey. Ain't they worth it?" Jason asked, putting the package into her hands.

Abalone opened the little velvet case and looked at the beautiful, shimmering, gold-linked stones. "I can't ever thank you," she breathed.

Jason took the beautiful necklace and laid it reverently about her neck. "I'm expectin' to make the last payment on the launch the first of the month," he said, "and then you an' me'll take a honeymoon cruise on her over to Catalina. I guess that'll be about the best thanks you can give."

PLANNING THE HOUSE.

"Well," said Gifford Berrington, cheerfully, "I've got the plans for my new house on the lake shore all finished."

"Finished to suit you?"

"N-no. But the architect is satisfied, and that's the best I can expect."

"Ha, ha! How about Mrs. Berrington?"

"It's all right with her, too. In fact, she got that fixed before we started. You see, she laid out the cupboards and wardrobes, and all the architect had to do was to build a house around them."—[Cleveland Plain Dealer

Farming in California—The Land and Its Products.

CONDUCTED BY J. W. JEFFREY, STATE COMMISSIONER OF HORTICULTURE.

FIELD NOTES.

No Interference.

THE attempt made by a Board of Supervisors in the San Joaquin Valley to induce the Legislature to modify the powers of the county horticultural commissioners of the State seems to have fallen by the wayside. In every county possessing an able, vigilant horticultural commissioner the fruit growers are inclined to have his powers increased. They have faith in this plan of insect control, and realize that the present law has given them certain protection if its provisions are duly enforced. The Supervisors in many counties are not interested in horticulture, but they should be willing to give back to the growers a fair proportion of the tax the latter pays annually upon the assessed valuation of their trees. In one small county the growers pay $7500 into the county treasury for the privilege of growing fruit trees. Of this amount the county horticultural commissioner gets about $1000 a year.

Strictly Business Precaution.

I WAS recently invited to inspect the work done at the packing-house of the Orange Growers' Cash Association at Redlands. This firm is one of several which are giving detailed attention to the careful handling of fruit made so impressive by the researches in transporting oranges and lemons conducted by the Department of Agriculture.

One of the novelties observed was the work of a machine used to bevel all the edges of the slats and end pieces of the orange box. This machine rounds off all the edges which might otherwise injure the fruit. One man devotes his whole time to repairing field picking boxes, removing splinters, driving down nails and removing every danger of wounding or bruising the fruit. These boxes are inspected and repaired every time they appear at the packing-house. As a great deal of money is invested in these picking boxes the manager believes that it pays to repair each box as a matter of economy in boxes, aside from the great protection afforded by having all sources of injury to the fruit removed from the box.

A blank form of field inspector's report indicates the care used by a modern packing-house in keeping tab upon the pickers' work. This is but a sample of the care used in every department. In one column of the blank is the picker's number. Following to the right is a column each, showing long stems, clipper cuts, stem punctures, scratches, bruises and gravel. At the bottom of the page may be recorded the totals for each of the above made by the whole picking crew and another showing the average number of oranges damaged, the total number per day picked by the crew, with a weather report appended.

Fumigating Policy Changed.

THE Supervisors of San Bernardino county have decided to abandon the plan of fumigation so long in vogue in that district. This will throw the responsibility for clean orchards more directly upon the growers, or their associations, or the organizations they may form to take the place of the old county plan. I learn directly from the growers of that county that this change will require a new alignment, for they are not willing to see the question of fumigation left to the individual, even though he were supervised by a most able commissioner. This feeling will no doubt result in the formation of more protective districts, the organization of associations devoted entirely to orchard disinfection and a general readjustment of the business under direction of the horticultural commissioner that will surely be of benefit to the whole county.

Current Bulletins.

THE manager of the Citrus Protective League has just issued what we hope is the beginning of a series of bulletins to the membership of his organization. Here is a sample of the Powell "language" therein, which for soundness of advice and directness of speech is a model.

"The Citrus Protective League stands squarely for the conservation of the earnings of the citrus fruit grower. It knows that the principal losses from decay are avoidable. Standardize your picking so that all of it is done with care. Make it the business of some one to enforce careful handling. Be careful of the picker who is paid by the box. Look out for the man who picks over fifty boxes a day. Be careful of the loading, the hauling and of every operation in the packing-house, from the unloading of the fruit to the final loading in the car. Watch the emptying of the fruit from the sacks. Sound fruit is the price of eternal vigilance, but every grower and every shipper can have it if he will devote as much attention to it as he does to the culture or selling of the crop. The control of decay is a business proposition. It is not self-regulating. A system that insures careful handling leads to better work in every department of the citrus-fruit industry."

Questioning the Petitioners.

A NOVEL incident occurred a few days ago in the new county of Glenn which is of interest to the fruit growers of the State. A petition had been presented to the Board of Supervisors asking for the appointment of a horticultural commissioner. Glenn is a county just going into the fruit business, and the orcharists wish to get a clean start. There are old and infected trees and noxious weeds in the territory, and the new fruit growers wished to protect their trees from these menaces. But the Supervisors were opposed to the appointment of a commissioner from the time the subject was broached, and were threatened with mandamus proceedings to compel them to make the appointment.

The legal form of the petition for the first commissioner in a county requires twenty-five or more freeholders and owners of orchards to state that there are in the county trees or plants infested with scale, codling moth and other insect pests, lands bearing Johnson grass or other noxious weeds, etc. So the Supervisors hit upon the novel plan of summoning the thirty-two petitioners to appear and be questioned by the District Attorney. A large number of the petitioners have been examined in the presence of the Supervisors. "Do you know of your own knowledge that any trees are infested with scale or other pests, as stated in the petition?" This question was rung upon them in a multitude of forms, and the petitioners who were largely easterners could not answer in the affirmative, even to notorious facts. The pests were new, the noxious weeds were new, and they themselves were new to local conditions, and one by one they were eliminated from the list of petitioners. Another catechism soon to be held will complete the depletion of the list.

This is the first time this test has been applied to petitioners for the appointing of a county horticultural commissioner. A prominent attorney tells me that the mere statement in the petition that these pests are existing in the county is all that is required, and that mandamus suit should be instituted backed by the original petition. Those who are fighting fruit pests, Russian thistle and Johnson grass all the time will see how foolish is this policy of the Supervisors, for of all the counties in the State, the new territories like Glenn and Imperial are most in need of excluding new pests and keeping the orchards clean from the beginning.

Devitalized Trees.

I HAVE a letter from a southern horticulturist which is very interesting throughout, especially that part of it attacking fumigation and spraying. There is no doubt of the sincerity of the writer, but it could have been written with more timely effect two decades ago when the whole body of fruit growers were struggling in the dark with their insect and fungus problems; when one orchardist boasted that he had tried over "two dozen different spraying preparations upon his citrus trees from pure water to creosote."

No one will dispute the fact, as stated by the grower, that immense damage was done to the orange trees several years ago by the use of distillate oils. In fact, one speaker at the Pomona meeting charged the present condition of the old orange trees in his vicinity to the poisonous effects of this class of remedies. So has great damage been done by fumigation, though perhaps not of a permanent character. Admitting all this, were the orchardists to sit back and allow the "bugs" to destroy their trees, without attempting any control whatever. The early experiments were many of them foolish, and some of them disastrous, but in no other way than by trial could the present progress in insect and fungus control have been attained. There is nothing progressive in horticulture that has just come of itself. Consequently I cannot see the benefits to follow a mere diatribe against the use of remedies in our horticultural work. Write me a real "constructive" letter. Do not criticise honest efforts.

Gardening in California—Flower and Vegetable.

Hardy Flowering Plants.

annual distribution of seeds of new or little-known plants on the part of the Agricultural College at Berkeley, is now in operation for the coming season. These packets are held at 5 cents and are to be had by addressing E. J. Wickson, Experiment Station, Berkeley, Cal. The two hardy annuals are worthy of trial culture: somniferum. Double Red Opium Poppy.—double red opium poppy is rarely grown in California, certainly deserves to be so, for it is one of brilliant and showy of our garden plants. Its of the brightest red color, of large size, produced in great abundance, and when the plants are together in large colonies an exceedingly gorgeous display is made. Its culture is of the easiest im-, for the mere broadcasting of the seed upon of the ground during the late winter months give one all the plants needed.

If the very best results are to, the plants should be thinned out so that the plants are spaced about five or six inches each other. The seed which we have available donated to us by Mr. A. H. Weber of Berkeley, in his garden had a most glorious display of flower, which attracted a good deal of attention was universally admired.

Sweet Pea "Beauty."—The Cupid or dwarf is a flower which had its origin here in California. It was bred a number of years ago on the seed of the well-known firm, C. C. Morse & Co., San, and following its introduction it had a good popularity for several years. We believe that why this charming flower is not more frequently seen in gardens nowadays, is because there is a number of people who are not conversant with and its merits. We hope to partially overcome cause by now offering well-grown seed of a at practically the cost of postage, and this bring this showy little plant to the notice of people to whom it is a stranger.

variety "Beauty" is quite a hardy plant, grows to about twelve to sixteen inches in with about an equal spread, and produces flowers of a delightful pink color and of considerable fragrance in simply astounding numbers over a prolonged time.—[Rural Californian.

Potting is a general term applied to in a pot or the transfer from one size for providing additional rooting space. The eucalyptus, acacias, grevilleas, Bougainvilleas, Casimiroa edulis, fiejoa, pepper and the toughest and hardiest of the list are the beautiful Tamarix. Some members of this class positively refuse to lend themselves to a liberal treatment of water. The beautiful Streptosolon Jamesoni is one, the fuchsia-flowered gooseberry, and the California fuchsia are also impatient with such treatment, and if Bougainvilleas are well watered they make prodigious growth and but little bloom. The same is true of the Cape honeysuckle, Bigonia capensis. Some acacias die if grown in locations where water in abundance reaches their roots, as is the case when they are planted on a lawn. The border plants Gazania splendens and Santolina do very much better if grown as gardeners say on the "dry side" of cultivation rather than on the wet. So also all the mesembryantheums which are used for covering steep banks. This is but a brief statement of the various species of plants of what we are pleased to denominate "drought resistant" plants which are grown in Southern California, and of their characteristics so far as they require moisture at their roots for perfect development. The gardener who is a student must solve for him or herself many of the problems which arise from time to time in the pursuit of the profession, by close observation, careful analysis and experiments which may at times be expensive and sometimes disappointing.

Market Gardening.

THE great majority of the families who are daily coming into the State are buying small acreage, from one acre up to five and ten. In the big valleys where land is cheaper, they are buying in blocks of ten to forty acres. They are mostly well-to-do people and generally are either those who have been farming in the East and have a few thousand ahead and want a small place for a home and to give them a little work, or they are retired merchants from the small inland villages of the East who want a home where they can enjoy our climate and incidentally "raise a few chickens" and a "few vegetables." There are others, too, who come with barely enough money to get here. Such have generally been able to find work in orchards or vineyards, and often the whole family will be so employed until they can make a payment on ten acres. Then a house goes up, crops go in, and in a year's time a wonderful transformation has taken place. But with all these new homes that are being opened up all over the State, the Chinaman still holds the vegetable trade. Many buy small places with the intention of growing vegetables for market, and, finding the "chinks" supplying the people of the towns, they hesitate about going into it, and it is on account of their pride. The Chinaman has no social standing, therefore they would be considered in the same class should they be seen delivering vegetables. Now we believe that it is the Chinaman that is in disgrace, and not the business of growing and selling vegetables. Anyhow, we find that most of this class of home builders are raising a few chickens, a few berries, perhaps, keep a few cows and pigs, raise a little alfalfa and some potatoes. We have seen white people peddling berries that would think it a horrible thing to peddle vegetables. Now the real facts are that any one with a market near by, good soil, and good care, can and should make $300 to $500 per acre growing vegetables. They can do this, and if attention is paid to fertilizing, their land will continue to grow richer each year. It doesn't pay to ship a great distance on account of transportation charges, and also for the reason that the stuff will not bring as high prices as vegetables grown nearer that market; but where one can have a market, the proposition is a good one, whether sales are made direct to the consumer or in the markets of town or city.

When it comes to shipping vegetables to the city market we again find the Chinaman, and also the Jap, with their loads of vegetables. But the writer believes that an intelligent white man can get more from an acre, vegetables or cash, than the orientals. It will require, besides rich soil, careful planning, so that as soon as one crop is off, another is ready to put in. To sum up, it means constant cropping, constant care, and fifty to seventy-five loads of manure per acre. Under such conditions it can be made to pay.—[Rural Press.

American Roses.

HOW can the English rosarians endure the thought of American-grown roses at the Queen's table? And yet, it seems to be no new thing, though it has never come to our knowledge before. A New York dispatch says that 100 American Beauty roses have just been shipped from the greenhouses of a New Jersey grower, for the Christmas table of Alexandra, the queen-mother of England. They are the largest and finest roses and of the longest stem to be found. Those are the specifications under which orders for the royal table have been filled every year at this time for a long period. The grower himself selects the flowers and personally packs them. His roses have been going to the palace of England's sovereign for many years. They went to Queen Victoria when she was alive, and King Edward's table was decorated with them every yuletide. Why the English rose growers do not produce something to beat the New Jersey grower, with his handicap of 3000 miles shipment, we cannot imagine.—[Rural Press.

Political Doctors at Work.

THE political doctors are exceedingly busy just now, both in Washington and in Sacramento. In Congress are several bills, all aiming at the same object, on the principle of firing bird shot—if some miss others will hit. There is the Owen bill, of which we have heard much, and the Mann bill, that came out recently. In Sacramento there is Senate Bill 733, which is a companion bill to Assembly Bill 964.

The movement for the establishment of a National Bureau of Health has been quietly worked up by the inner circle of the American Medical Association, or "Medical Trust." Their first step was to organize a number of highly intelligent and respectable gentlemen under the name of a "Committee of One Hundred," to act as cat's paws in moulding public opinion, or as a screen behind which the Medical Trust could hide. These well-meaning but misguided men have allowed themselves to be used for a purpose of which they were not aware, namely, that the American Medical Association may inaugurate the closed shop in medicine, and assume a practical monopoly of the healing art in this country, having supreme control over the bodies of the people. As soon as the "Committee of One Hundred" had served its purpose it was quietly laid on the shelf. We have heard very little of it for some time past. It was never more than a blind.

The "regular" medical profession has been driven by desperation to take some step of this kind, as it finds itself utterly unable to keep up with the procession, on a fair basis of open competition. The people have had about enough of drugging and bacteriology and serum injection, and unnecessary surgical operations, that leave unfortunate patients invalids for life—and often financial wrecks besides. The people, by thousands and hundreds of thousands, are now turning to more rational methods, embracing such natural hygienic methods as diet, exercise, bathing, hydropathy, osteopathy, breathing, massage and suggestion. Consequently, a large number of the great army of "regular" physicians are finding it hard to make a living, and jobs must be found for them—or for such of them as are in the favor of the high muck-a-mucks of the A.M.A.

One of the objections to the Mann bill, introduced in the House of Representatives, is that it is so loosely drawn that autocratic power and authority over the health affairs of the American people could easily be assumed by the public health service. One of the provisions of this measure is: "The Public Health Service may study and investigate the diseases of man and conditions influencing the propagation and spread thereof." Not only is the Public Health Service empowered to investigate contagious and infectious diseases, but "the diseases of man." Not only is it vested with complete authority over the health activities of the nation during times of plagues and epidemics, but at all times.

It is maintained by the proponents of the Mann bill that its enactment into law would work no discrimination against any school of medicine or system of healing. Can it be assumed that with approximately 7000 doctors in the employ of the Federal government, all of the allopathic or "regular" school, not one from any other, that consideration is now to be shown the independent schools? With greatly enlarged powers, necessitating the employment of a veritable army of physicians, how could the adherents of homeopathy, eclecticism, osteopathy, naturopathy and other methods expect any fuller measure of justice?

Following is an extract from a letter addressed to a newspaper by the Los Angeles branch of the National League for Medical Freedom:

"The District of Columbia, coming as it does under the direct jurisdiction of the Federal authorities, has for years furnished an ample field for the testing of the theories of the government's health experts. It is therefore significant to observe what success has been obtained there in raising the standard of health and reducing mortality.

"Following figures are selected almost at random from the government mortality statistics for the year 1908, as compiled by Mr. Durand:

"Average death rate per thousand population: Greater New York, 16.8; Chicago, 14; Philadelphia, 17.4; Cleveland, 14.2; Milwaukee, 13.6; Minneapolis, 10.3.

"Compare the above figures with those of Washington with its rigorous laws of vaccination, inoculation and compulsory medication generally. In the same year Washington showed a death rate of 19.3. If the health officers of the Federal government have been able to do so little toward improving health conditions at the nation's center, where they have been unhampered by lack of funds or embarrassed by consideration of State's rights, it must be conceded that the above figures do not justify the placing of the health affairs of the nation in the hands of the Federal government. The American people do not demand such change, but reserve the right of selecting their school of medicine with the same freedom as they do their religion. Any authorized government interference would be intolerable."

Again, the political doctors showed what we might expect during the shameful plague scare in San Francisco, a few years ago when, notwithstanding an explicit statement by Gov. Gage that there was no plague, the Marine Hospital authorities insisted upon quarantining the city, until appeal was made to President McKinley, who ordered the quarantine raised.

As long ago as December, 1907, there was published in "Health," the New York magazine, edited by C. A. Tyrrell, M.D., an article under the heading "Medical Tyranny," in which attention was called to this coming movement on the part of the American Trust. The editor concluded his article as follows:

"Let no man think this is a false alarm. We have the admission of the American Medical Association itself, that they have an emissary in every county in the United States, creating sentiment in favor of proposed legislation, and that it has a complete list of all political leaders of all parties, so that they are in a position to move accuracy in invoking political influence. Medicine is ten times as largely represented in legislation as heretofore, showing that like all other trusts, they are laying their plans deeply to perpetuate the tyranny of medicine."

Yes, the political doctors are busy. The people must also get busy, or they will wake up one fine morning to find that there has been inserted the opening wedge of one of the greatest tyrannies ever forced upon a civilized people.

A Suggestion to the Suffragettes.

AND he spake a parable unto them to the end that they ought always to pray, and not to faint; saying: There was in a city a judge, who feared not God, and regarded not man: and there was a widow in that city, and she came oft unto him, saying: Avenge me of mine adversary. And he would not for a while, but afterward he said within himself: Though I fear not God, nor regard man; yet because this widow troubleth me, I will avenge her, lest she wear me out by her continual coming.—[Luke xiii:1-5.

Cleanliness versus Epidemics.

A CORRESPONDENT of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat recently told of the wonderful improvement made in the health conditions of Manila since the Americans have been in control. He writes that "good water and sewerage systems have abolished cholera and smallpox."

Exactly. Not, you may note, the injection of filthy animal virus into the blood, but simply cleanliness. That is what has caused the diminution during the last half-century of all filth diseases that formerly ravaged the civilized world, such as cholera, smallpox, the plague, and typhus fever. That is all the doctors, or any one else can ever do to "stamp out" these diseases—to make people observe inner and outer cleanliness, as far as possible.

Meantime, in the opinion of a number of eminent physicians, the unnatural methods of suppressing these diseases by poisoning the blood have contributed to the awful increase of cancer, tuberculosis and other ailments.

"Breaking" a Fever.

A DISPATCH from San Francisco, recently published in The Times, told of the discovery of a wonderful "anti-fever serum" by a physician of Bakersfield, Cal. According to the dispatch those who accept the efficacy of the serum declare that with its use fever can be eradicated "as decisively as a cut may be healed with the aid of a styptic stick." The statement is also made that "a tuberculosis patient was pronounced cured within four days after the remedy had been applied."

This last statement is of itself sufficient to condemn the story as a gross exaggeration, or a fake. Apart from this, however, the idea of suppressing a fever is a gross violation of natural laws, and shows how densely ignorant of the basis of the healing art is the drugging and serum-injecting fraternity. To suppress a fever in this manner is a most dangerous proceeding. Watch for the after effects—should the patient not succumb. A fever is a curative effort of nature to burn up impurities in the blood, and should to a certain point be encouraged, rather than suppressed. When the temperature becomes too high, a fever may readily and surely and safely be controlled by the outer and inner application of water, and flushing of the bowels, no food whatever being given except a little fruit juice in the water. Here is an extract from an article on hydropathy by Dr. W. R. C. Latson, in his book "The Enlightened Life:"

"In the hydrotherapeutic or 'water cure' methods we have the most powerful of all the purely physical methods of maintaining or restoring health. With a very few exceptions there is no effect that can be accomplished by drugs which cannot be gained more rapidly, safely and agreeably by means of water applications. I say this in a judicial spirit, after many years' experience both with drugging methods and with hydrotherapy.

"By means of water properly used, in connection with diet, gymnastics, water drinking and mental influence, we can, for instance, cure constipation, rheumatism or neuralgia in absolutely every case. To this there are no exceptions. Constipation, rheumatism, neuralgia and many other disorders can always be cured by meth-water we can in every case and under control fever. Any doctor who, in the simple and beautiful methods of hydro- persists in administering quinine, anti- and and other poisonous drugs to —any doctor who does this is guilty and in justice to the public and to the members of the medical profession should not be allowed the right to practice medicine as a qualified physician. The drug, at best, a poison, an evil thing; and if we can afford relief to the patient without the employment of the drug its use means not only incompetence but criminal ignorance and malpractice.

"There is not a disorder to which 'flesh is heir' that cannot be cured or greatly relieved by hydrotherapy. The practice of water cure is old—old as history; but it is based upon knowledge and logic, and the patient who submits to it will find his symptoms relieved without pain, inconvenience or danger."

Remember that it is men who believe in such outrageous medical proceedings as that above referred to who are asking to be placed in full control of the bodies of the people, under the guise of a National Bureau of Health.

Mushrooms.

AFTER the bounteous rains of end of January and beginning of February many mushroom gatherers might be seen on the hills around Los Angeles.

There are many varieties of edible fungi, besides that which we know as the mushroom. Also, there are some that are exceedingly deadly. The edible mushroom may be distinguished by its smell and appearance, more particularly by the smell, which is rich and not unpleasant. The common test of cooking them with a gold ring or a silver spoon is a fallacy.

It was formerly believed that mushrooms are as nourishing as beefsteak. This is a mistake, as they contain 90 per cent. water. Three and one-half per cent. is protein and a half per cent. is fat, so that they are not nearly so nitrogenous as meat.

In Europe and in the East mushrooms are cultivated for the market. In the catacombs under Paris are immense mushroom beds. Attempts have been made here in Southern California to raise mushrooms, but without success. One who tried it was "Papa" Berth, formerly leader of a local orchestra, who spent several thousand dollars and several years' time, importing seed from his native France, and building a large cement cellar, giving the mushrooms artificial moisture, but all in vain. It seems as if artificial moisture does not take the place of the naturally moist climate in which cultivated mushrooms thrive.

Here is a recipe for cooking mushrooms, from Mrs. Rorer's new cook book:

"Cut the stems close to the gills. These may be put aside to use for flavoring sauce or soup. Wash carefully, gill sides down. Throw them into a colander to drain. To each pound allow two ounces of butter. Put the butter in a saucepan. When melted, not browned, throw in the mushrooms, either whole or cut into slices. Sprinkle over a teaspoonful of salt, a half saltspoonful of pepper; cover the saucepan closely and cook over a very slow fire for twenty minutes. Moisten a rounding tablespoonful of flour in a little cold milk. When perfectly smooth, add a half-cup of milk. Strain this into the mushrooms; stir carefully until boiling. Serve at once, either plain or on toast."

Hygienists, if they please, omit the salt and pepper.

Raised by Irrigation.

THE bountiful rains that fell in the latter part of January and the first week of February put an end to the croakings of those mournful prophets of evil who, every year, begin to predict disaster if it does not rain soon. Perhaps now they will be complaining of floods. Rainfall has reached the full average for this time of year.

Thirty years ago, when Southern California raised little besides barley and sheep, there was some excuse for anxiety in regard to a dry season, because then it really meant disaster to the community, from bakers to bankers. Now, however, our main crops are oranges and "tenderfeet," both of which are raised by means of irrigation—except of course when the latter come from a prohibition State.

Lectures on Health.

MR. AND MRS. MAYNARD of Denver delivered several lectures on health topics in and around Los Angeles during the last week of January and the first week of February. They attracted fair audiences, which would have been much larger had it not been for the heavy rains. They follow closely the teachings of Dr. J. H. Tilden, as set forth from month to month in "A Stuffed Club." This winds up a lecture tour which has extended from the Middle West to Los Angeles.

"The Enlightened Life."

HERE is another book by Dr. W. R. C. Latson, editor of "Health Culture," a sane and sound writer on the care of the body and the mind, whose most excellent book, "The Attainment of Efficiency," was reviewed here last year. (Price $1. The Health Culture Company, publishers, Passaic, N. J.)

This book of 370 pages is made up of reprints of editorials that have appeared from time to time in Health Culture. Dr. Latson's teachings are entirely in line with those set forth week by week in the Care of the Body. Among other subjects which he discusses in this book are the Waste of Life; Health as a Factor in Business Success; Worry, the Epidemic of the Day; The Death Dealing Detail; Simplified Living; The Causation of Disease; The Prevention of Disease; Drug Medication; The Common Sense of Foods and Feeding; The Mission of Pain; Crimes Against Children; Mental and Physical Effects of Music; and Sleep and Rest.

The chapters on "Race Suicide," "Vaccination," and "The Surgical Operation Frenzy" are specially forceful and valuable. On the subject of race suicide Dr. Latson takes the same ground as the editor of the Care of the Body, namely, that what we should aim at is not more children, but better children, and that to beget

CARE OF THE EYES.

By DR. M. M. RING.

Few people fully realize the value of perfect vision until they begin to lose it.

Few people live today who have never read an optical advertisement—fewer still believe all they have read.

It is the purpose of this article to speak nothing but facts—absolute facts—just as it is my constant purpose in practice to tell only the truth to my patients.

The old saying that "a man cannot be successful in business and be at all times strictly honest" is, in my opinion, the rankest kind of rot. Be that as it may, however, I have long ago determined to build upon the following principles:

1st. KNOWLEDGE that has come from many years of study and teaching in my profession.

2nd. SKILL that has come from years of practice.

3rd. HONESTY that has come from training.

4th. GLASSES that are absolutely as represented and that are guaranteed to fit the eyes.

5th. PRICES that will let us both live.

If this is what you are looking for, come and see me.

I DO NOT, under any consideration, advise the use of glasses where they are not positively needed.

If you have reason to believe there is anything wrong with your eyes, I would be pleased to talk it over with you.

ADVANTAGES OF DR. RING'S SPECIAL TORIC LENSES.

They may be set closer to the eyes without touching the lashes.

They are ground to conform to the natural curve of the eye.

They permit a wider field of vision and allow you to see through them in all directions with equal distinctness, a decided improvement.

They eliminate the annoying reflections from the back of your lenses.

They are the result of modern skill and methods and are a great improvement over the old style.

They can be ground lighter and prettier in every way.

They are especially desirable in Bifocals, because they give a much more direct focus through the segment, and besides they are so much more elegant in appearance.

If you desire the benefit of my opinion and advice, do not fail to consult me. Your eyes are my first consideration. The sale of a pair of glasses my last.

Eminent writers on the subject of Opthalmology assure us that such a thing as a "Perfect Eye" is almost unknown. It is very clear, however, even to the casual observer, that a large percentage of the people about us find it necessary to wear glasses, and it is easy to learn from them that in many cases the glasses they are wearing are not satisfactory. A large majority of my patients are people who have been fitted—or, rather, misfitted elsewhere, but who were not satisfied because they did not have the comfort they were led to believe glasses would give, and hence they sought a specialist who had been prepared by education and experience to "Handle the hard ones."

It is not difficult to demonstrate that many cases of headache come from the over-use of eyes that need glasses. The author of Gould's Dictionary claims that eye-strain is responsible for many of the ills of the body by what is known as reflex action.

Many people think and argue that they do not need glasses for the reason that they "can see as far as any one." In many cases, however, this is a mistake, for the condition known as "farsight" requires the expenditure of much nervous and muscular energy that can be saved by properly fitted glasses.

It is not uncommon to hear people say that they visit their dentist every six months to see if there is the slightest possible cavity or defect in their teeth, and if there is, they have it repaired. Now, I believe this is very good common sense, but why should you not be as careful and particular about your eyes? The dentist can make you new teeth that will answer quite well when your natural ones are gone, but "glass eyes" are the only "new eyes" that the oculist can give you. The moral is to have your eyes carefully measured, at least, as often as you suspect trouble, by a competent Optometrist in whom you have confidence, and if necessary have a change of lenses, or if you are not wearing glasses have a pair made that will correct the defect and overcome the trouble.

A much larger number of people would seek advice about their eyes but hesitate on account of the fear that they will be told that they need glasses when they do not, or that if they really do need them, that the wrong ones will be prescribed, and hence will prove unsatisfactory.

It is to meet this last condition that I make my unreserved guarantee to every patient who honors me with his confidence and his patronage, to refund his money if he is not satisfied.

You who wear glasses owe it to yourselves to wear good glasses.

Good glasses benefit the eyes, and through the eyes the health. Poor glasses, or glasses that are not a perfect fit for the eyes, are harmful both to the eyes and to the health.

I warrant all my work to be perfect and furnish glasses at prices reasonable for first-class work. A memorandum is kept of names of all customers, together with focus of the eyes, so that new glasses can be supplied by post, should anyone have the misfortune to break or lose them.

When one appreciates the delicate structure of the eye, it is easily seen that the use of imperfect, incorrect, or ill-fitting lenses actually injures the eye instead of giving relief. You have probably observed that most persons who have eye troubles and need glasses or spectacles, or who wear spectacles or eyeglasses unsuited to their needs, often suffer from nervousness and disorders peculiar to the nervous system. Out of nervousness and nervous troubles, any of a multitude of other ailments often develop. The direct cause of all these disorders is nerve disturbance, which in many cases can be averted by immediate and proper attention to the eyes.

Would it not be sensible and rational to get at the cause of this condition? Would it not be wise to go to the source of this trouble—the eye—and relieve it so that the headache, nervousness and ills born of it will disappear?

I have no desire to give the absurd impression that lenses will cure all human ills, but properly fitted glasses which I am capable of making will correct imperfect sight, put new life into age-dimmed eyes, remove the cause of many distressing conditions ascribed to other diseases, and which are really the result of eye strain. To suffering eyes I offer immediate relief and comfort, assured by scientifically correct lenses.

My Prices are Reasonable

The memory of the quality, the satisfaction and the pleasure that you receive from wearing a properly fitted pair of glasses remains with you long after the price has been forgotten.

I do not believe you want bargain glasses any more than you want nature to endow you with a bargain pair of eyes.

Torics and Kryptoks cost a little more than the old or regular kind of lenses, and are preferred by those who can afford them.

Sight is one of the most precious of all our senses—without it the visible world becomes a blank.

The more you care for the comfort of your eyes and the appearance of your glasses, the more you'll be interested in my modern methods of eye-examination and eyeglass adjustment.

Care of the Body.

children unless one can give them proper physical, mental and moral care is a crime.

Here are truthful remarks on the subject of worry:

"Worry is not suspense. Worry is not anxiety, nor regret, nor fear, nor doubt, nor resolve. All these are definite mental states. Worry is essentially different from any of them. Worry is that vague, chaotic condition—that anarchy of the mind—in which hopes, fears, resolves, doubts, anxieties, regrets, anticipations and suspicions are admitted to the mind. They constitute a ravening, destroying horde, under the influence of which logical reasoning is impossible, initiative is paralyzed and the stability of the mind is threatened—often destroyed. It should be clearly understood that the man or woman who yields to the habit of worry is not only certain to ruin health and personal efficiency, but is in danger of losing his or her sanity. Worry is the most frequent cause of insanity."

The author claims with reason that a large proportion of the troubles of life are caused by attention to unnecessary details, which have attached themselves to what we call "civilization." This is eminently true. It is not the large unavoidable troubles that do the most harm, but the small, everyday, unnecessary troubles of life—troubles that we manufacture for ourselves.

Following views of the author in regard to disease are strictly in line with a statement recently made by the chief physician of the late King of England:

"I hold that there is nothing preternatural in disease; that its phenomena or symptoms are marked by purpose and that that purpose is beneficent.

"Disease is one of the good gifts, for its motive is benevolent and protective. I cannot express that more precisely than by saying that, if it were not for disease, the human race would soon be extinct.

"According to popular 'medicine,' the phenomena constituting disease are purposeless, profitless and wantonly distressful, so that the victim demands from the physician means for stamping out the trouble. These symptoms, however, are in the main manifestations of a process of cure and are so far benevolent that without them a common cold might be a fatal malady.

"Catarrh and persistent sneezing are practical means of dislodging waste from the nasal passages, while the cough removes them from the windpipe.

"To the educated and thoughtful physician of today this conception of disease is the only one possible. And treatment based upon this knowledge of the true nature of disease is, of course, entirely different both in principle and practice from that of the ignorant or old-fashioned doctor, who sets out to 'overcome' the disease."

Here is another statement in regard to vegetarianism, which has been made over and over again in the Care of the Body:

"Many vegetarians seem to feel that anything is wholesome so long as it is not meat. As a matter of fact, a simple 'mixed diet' is much more wholesome than many of the strict vegetarians' menus, with their complex and unwisely-combined foods."

In giving personal hygienic advice to his consultants the editor of the Care of the Body always insists that the most important feature of diet is raw green stuff, rich in the important organic salts that are greatly changed in cooking. Here is a statement on the subject by Dr. Latson:

"No dinner is complete without a salad. This salad may consist of any of the fresh green leaves which grow in the sunlight—lettuce, escarole, roumaine, chicory, celery, parsley, cabbage, etc. Any of these properly cleansed, dressed with lemon juice and a small quantity of olive oil is an excellent food, especially in providing for the blood and nerves those salts which are so essential to their replenishment, and which are inevitably ruined by the high temperature used in the preparation of cooked food."

Pity the Poor Children.

ANOTHER set of fanatics are following Horace Greeley's advice and coming West. They call themselves "Disciples of the Holy Ghost," hail from Racine, Wis., and are bound for the State of Washington. Here is an outline of their manners and customs, as described in a dispatch from Tacoma:

"The disciples of the Holy Ghost believe it a mortal sin to laugh, engage in frivolity or eat meat. Flagellation is practiced as a form of penance for the sins of themselves and the world. Their children pass a joyless childhood, toys being regarded as vanities. The men wear their hair and beard unshorn; all wear sandals in their community, and clothing is worn only in deference to authorities when in town and when the weather demands covering."

The adult members of this band are not deserving of sympathy, because they choose to live this miserable life, but pity the poor children.

Bad Suggestions.

A LAW to forbid the publishing of advertisements showing features distorted by pain, or persons holding their backs as if in pain, or other illustrations of physical distress, was to be introduced in the Legislature by Dr. E. M. Butler, Assemblyman from Los Angeles, according to a recent dispatch from Sacramento to The Times.

This is a good idea, for these are evil suggestions that do harm. It would also be a good thing to discourage the publishing by patent-medicine manufacturers and quack doctors of a great number of "symptoms" of diseases, many of which any sensitive person may easily convince himself that he is subject to.

Following is from a clever little illustrated book, entitled "Wants," by Clare Victor Dwiggins:

"When you step off a trolley backward do you spin around and see things?

"Do you shiver when you lean against a cake of ice?

"Do you have jumping fits when you sit down on a pin?

FACTS ABOUT GLASSES

Did it every occur to you that the main thing about your glasses is to have them properly fitted and adjusted to your face.

It is just as important to have your lenses set in the proper position before your eyes as it is to have your eyes properly examined for glasses, because if your lenses do not set in exactly the right position there is going to be trouble; or if your mounting does not fit you just right, it will not be comfortable.

Many people think their lenses do not fit their eyes and go back to their oculist and complain, when the real cause of the trouble is that the lenses do not set properly before the eyes?

If your glasses do not set just right, or if they are bent out of shape I would be pleased to have you bring them in and let me adjust them, which I will do free of charge.

I also make a specialty of filling Oculists' prescriptions, replacing broken lenses, etc., which I do at very reasonable prices, and I will guarantee my work to be the very best in town.

Three reasons why you should let me fill your Occulist's Prescriptions:

First—Because I make a specialty of filling prescriptions only, and having had several years' experience in this particular branch of the business, I can guarantee you the very highest grade of work and entire satisfaction.

Second—Because I am Instructor at the Southern California College of Optometry in frame fitting, bending, adjusting, lens grinding, mounting, etc., and if I can successfully teach others these subjects I can certainly do them myself.

Third—Because I do not have any young boys or apprentices who are learning the business to fit your glasses. I do all the fitting myself thereby giving you the very best service possible.

Care of the Body.

"Do you froth at the mouth when the shaving brush slips?

"Is there a ringing in your ears about dinner time?

"Is it hard for you to see in the dark?

This is really not so much of an exaggeration of the stuff published by quack doctors and patent-medicine venders. If any one fails to find a trace of one of the "symptoms" in these advertisements he must be a marvelous kind of a man.

As Puck said, "What fools these mortals be!" If there were no fools there would be no rogues, just as if there was no filth there would be no flies, and if there were no swamps there would be no mosquitoes.

Oranges and the Kidneys.

FOLLOWING communication was recently received from A. R. Lawrence of Winslow, Ariz.:

"I was advised by a reputable physician that the eating heartily of oranges 'was bad for the kidneys.' As I am contemplating a trip to California, and being very fond of oranges, I thought I would ask your opinion, feeling sure that others are interested in this subject."

To this the editor replies as follows:

The physician you refer to may be 'reputable,' but he is certainly not sensible, or he would not tell you such a foolish thing as that oranges 'are bad for the kidneys. That is on a par with another foolish statement that went the rounds of the press about twenty years ago—that tomatoes caused cancer.

Oranges are good medicine for the kidneys—or for any other organs of the body. Eat freely of ripe oranges, only do not make the mistake of eating them on top of a hearty meal, but as food, when you are hungry, and do not eat them at the same time as starch foods.

Diet and Endurance.

A SIXTY-FIVE-YEAR-OLD correspondent who wrote to the editor of the Care of the Body for personal hygienic information stated that he eats three hearty meals every day, including plenty of meat, and that he considered this necessary for those who do hard work. The editor had to smile when he went on to read that the correspondent often becomes faint and wobbly and can only work four or five days in the week, while the editor knows of several men older than this correspondent who eat only two meals a day, without any flesh food, who work hard from morning to night, and are as spry and energetic as the average man of 40.

The superstition that much food, and especially plenty of flesh food, is necessary for those who work hard is one that is difficult to overcome. As a fact, when it comes to endurance and efficiency and freedom from physical ills, the heavy eater of three meals a day, including flesh foods, cannot begin to compete with one who eats temperately of two light meals, composed of products of the vegetable kingdom.

Medicinal Foods.

DR. J. H. Kellogg's "Home Book of Modern Medicine," of which a brief review was published in the Care of the Body of January 22, contains much interesting matter on the subject of diet and general hygiene; also fully detailed descriptions and treatment of various diseases. The pages devoted to the subject of alcohol are specially complete and convincing.

There are a few things in this book with which the editor of the Care of the Body cannot agree. For instance, Dr. Kellogg is rather too free in recommending operations for appendicitis, ovarian troubles, and other ailments, without making clear the inevitable penalty that always follows such operations, or indeed, any other mutilations of the human body Thus, after ovariotomy a woman always suffers more or less from lassitude, and develops a trend of masculinity in her appearance. After an operation for appendicitis the patient for the rest of his life will be subject to alternate constipation and diarrhoea.

In discussing the subject of diet Dr. Kellogg says: "Lettuce and celery should be excluded entirely from the invalid dietary. They have no nutritive value. They are not needed to stimulate intestinal activity. This can be better accomplished by the use of other foods."

On the other hand, one of the leading injunctions placed upon his consultants by the editor of the Care of the Body, in giving personal hygienic advice by mail, is that they should be sure to eat at each meal a little raw green stuff, such as lettuce, celery, water cress, etc. It is true that these foods contain little nourishment, being mostly water, but they are true medicinal foods, being exceedingly valuable on account of the large percentage of organic minerals they contain. Lettuce, especially, is richer in these mineral elements than any other known food except spinach, containing for every thousand part of water-free substance 180.7 parts of mineral, as compared with 5.7 parts in white flour, and 2s.1 parts in whole wheat. Lettuce is specially rich in potassium and iron.

When the teeth are bad, or the stomach weak, the green stuff may be ground up in a mill and the juice mixed with a little hot water, but it must never be cooked.

It is the absence of these minerals from the ordinary dietary that is a prolific but unrecognized cause of disease. In bolting flour most of the mineral is removed. Sugar is devoid of these mineral elements, and they are largely changed into the inorganic form in cooking. Hence, the ordinary vegetarian dietary, with its surplus of starches and sweets, and its overcooked foods, is worse from a hygienic point of view than a diet of meat and salads.

Than there were 24 years ago when the BISHOP factory started

The city has grown in these 24 years---so has the Bishop Cracker Factory. One oven was sufficient when the cracker factory was started---now three are required to supply the demand for crispy, tasty crackers from hungry Los Angeles.

When the city has reached a million---the Bishop Cracker Factory will have added several more ovens in which to bake their famous and a hundred other different kinds of crackers.

The Bishop Factory is modern-equipped with the newest machinery; the quality of material used the highest; and the crackers produced exceptional in their goodness---always fresh and delightfully crisp.

No need to go outside of Los Angeles for crackers. The Bishop Factory bakes them fresh every day---bakes them for YOU and the rest of the population.

THE WIDOW WISE

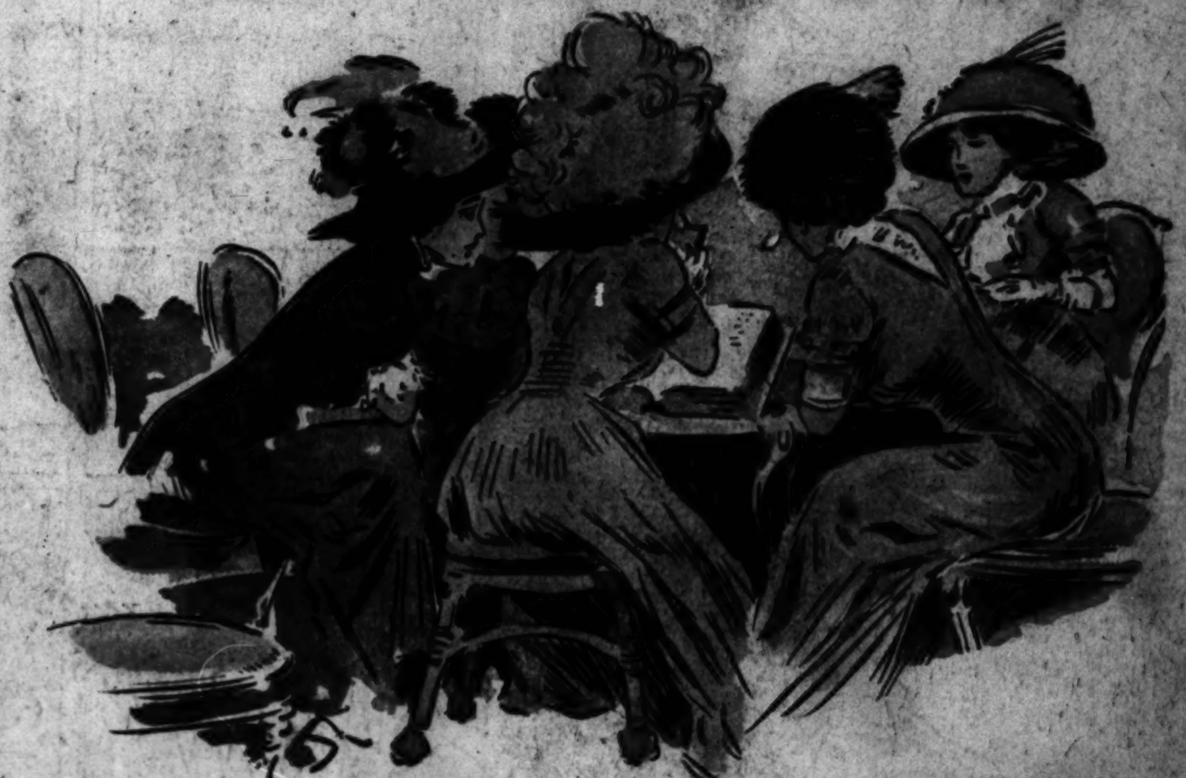
Verses by Paul West ▾ Drawings by W. H. Loomis

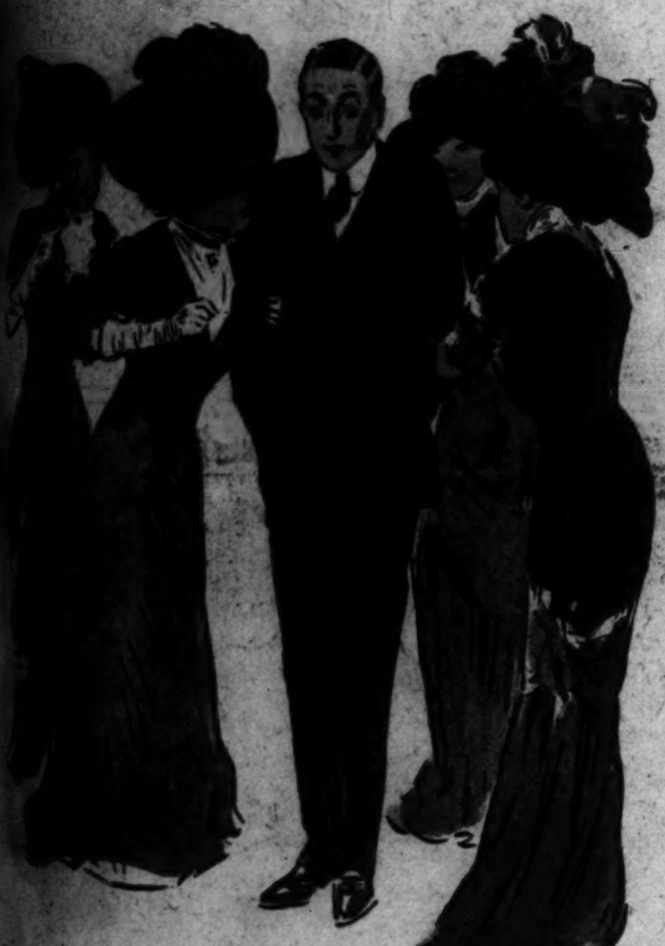
1.—'Twas at the Ladies' Bridge Club and the talk took on the guise
Of wonder at the single state of charming Widow Wise.
"She seems so hard to suit!" said one, "and can't make up her mind.
Come, girls, let's plan together and a husband for her find!"

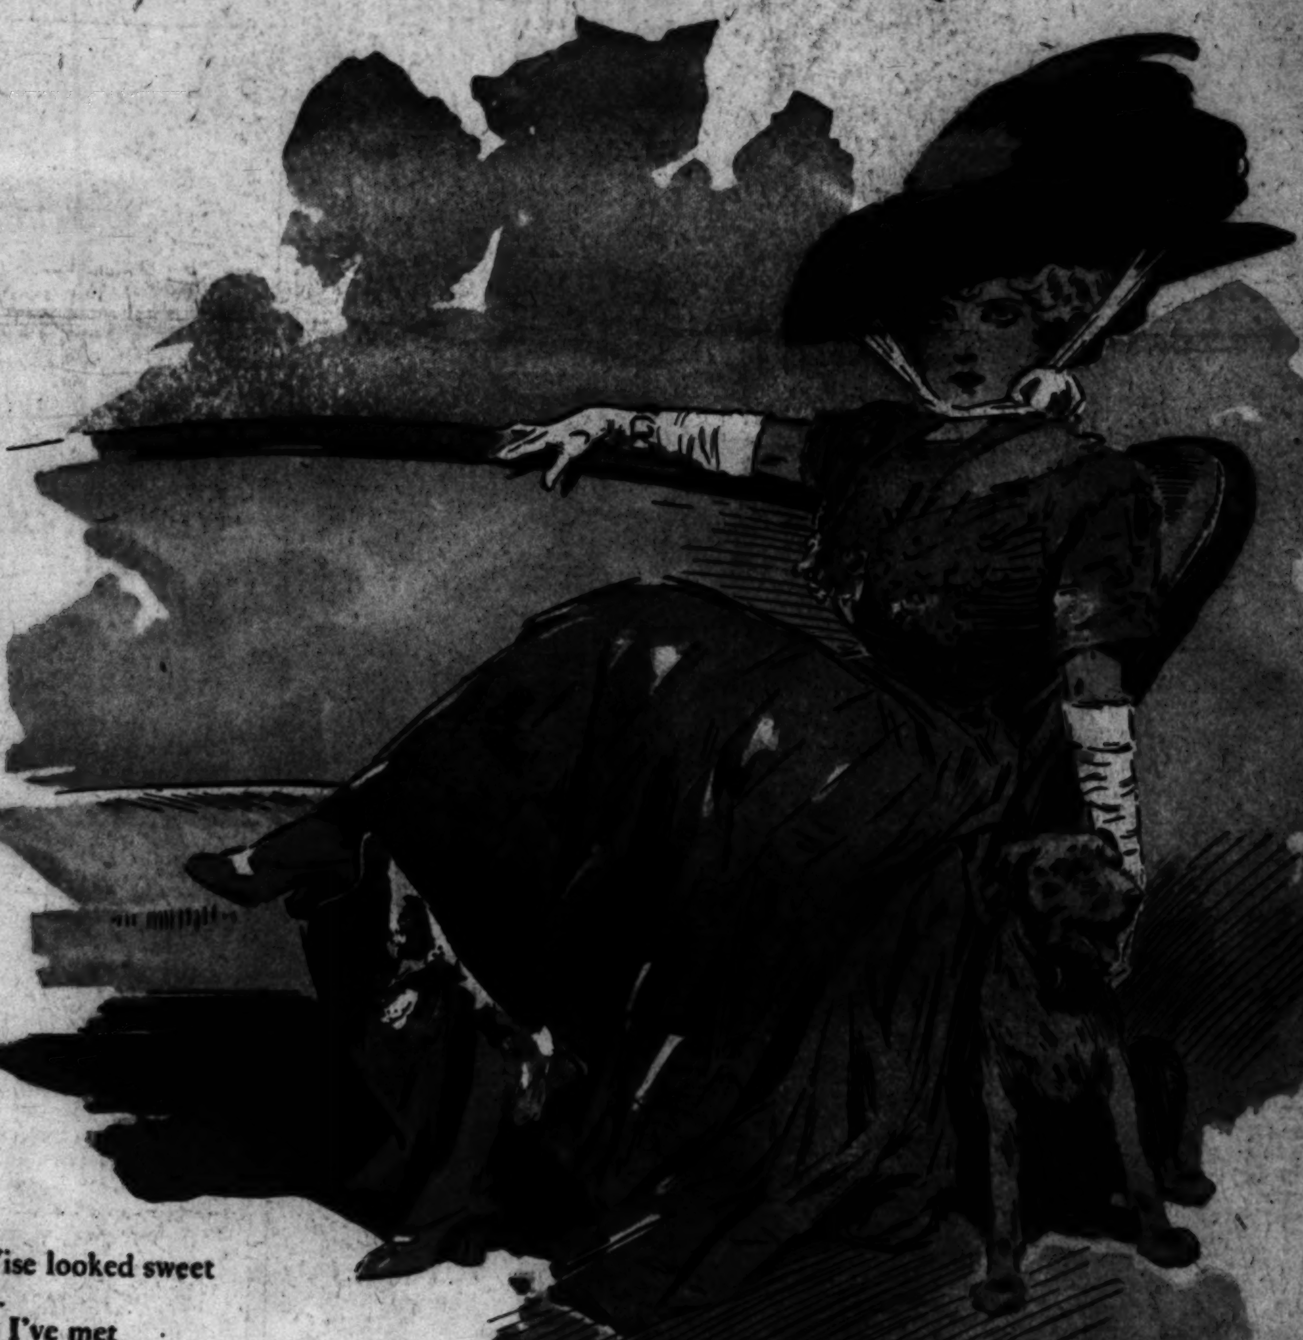
2.—And then began a strange campaign. The ladies labored late
To try to find the model man to be the Widow's mate.
They scanned the Social Register and Bradstreet hurried through,
But could not choose a bachelor who they believed would do.

3.—"Aha!" exclaimed Jane Smith, at last, "I know the very man.
He's handsome, rich, well-bred and, best of all, American!
Sam Robinson! You know him well. Her heart he'll surely stir!"
"Good!" cried the wives, "Sam Robinson is just the one for her!"

4.—They saw Sam Robinson next day and told him of their plan.
"To get the Widow Wise," they said, "you'll be a lucky man!
We'll have a little dinner. You must come and look your best.
And when you meet the Widow—well, you'll have to do the rest!"







—The scheme worked well. The couple met. The Widow Wise looked sweet
And ere the evening half was done Sam's heart was at her feet.
While she—"Ah, dear," she told Jane Smith, "at last I think I've met
A man to whom to give my heart I never should regret!

6.—"He's young and handsome and a mind of thinking power reveals.
We share the same ambitions and we have the same ideals.
Would you advise I marry him? Come, should I, dear, or not?"
And then Jane Smith, the idiot! confessed the ladies' plot.

7.—She called round her conspirators, and in great glee they told
The Widow how they'd planned it out all in their Bridge Whist fold.
"We picked Sam out for you," they said. "He's our ideal, you know!"
And the Widow said, "How lovely!" but she thought, "Oh, is that so?

8.—THEY picked him out! He's THEIR ideal! Ahum! I scent a rat!
THEY think he's just too lovely! Well, that will be all of THAT!
I thought they showed strange interest!" Defiance lit her eyes.
"NO SYNDICATED MATE FOR MINE!" exclaimed the Widow Wise.

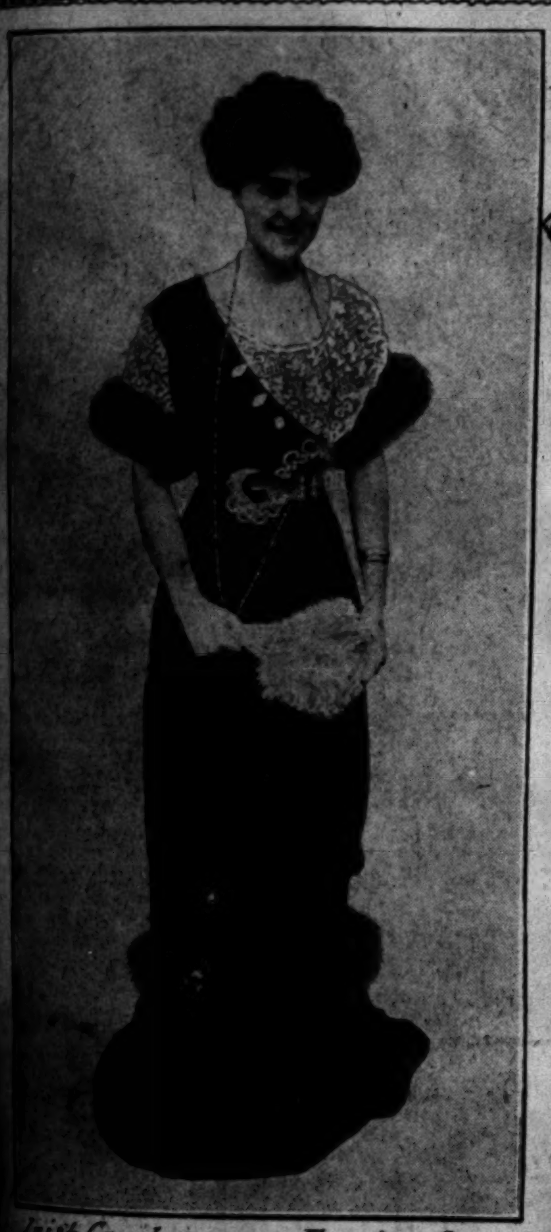
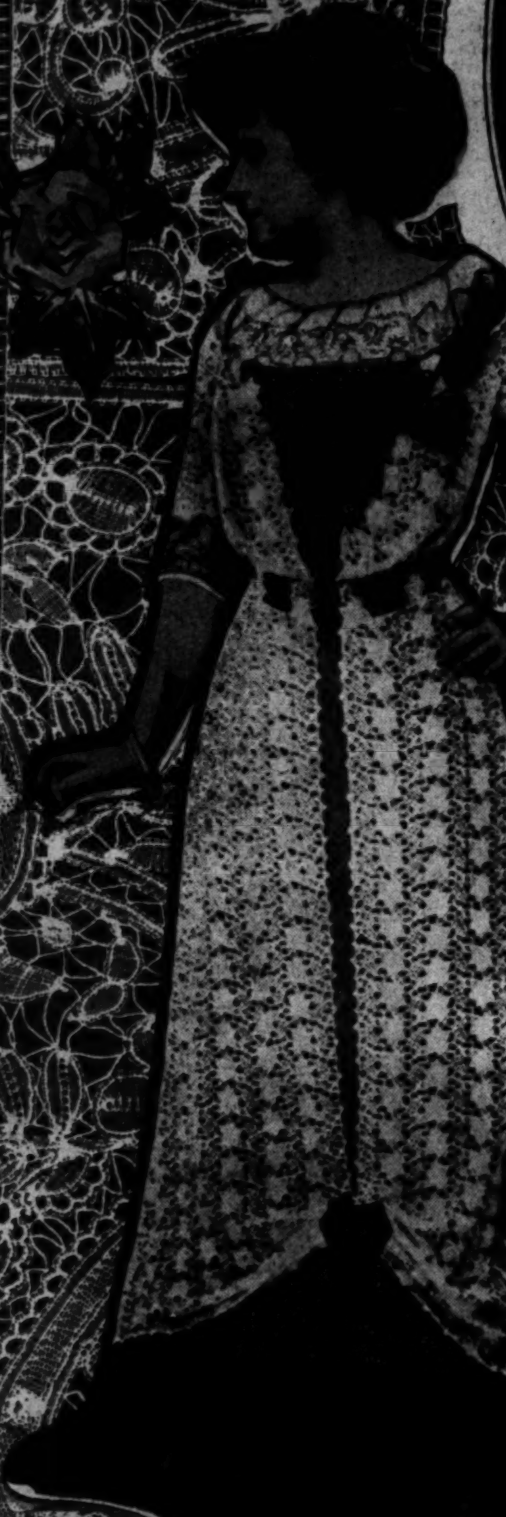
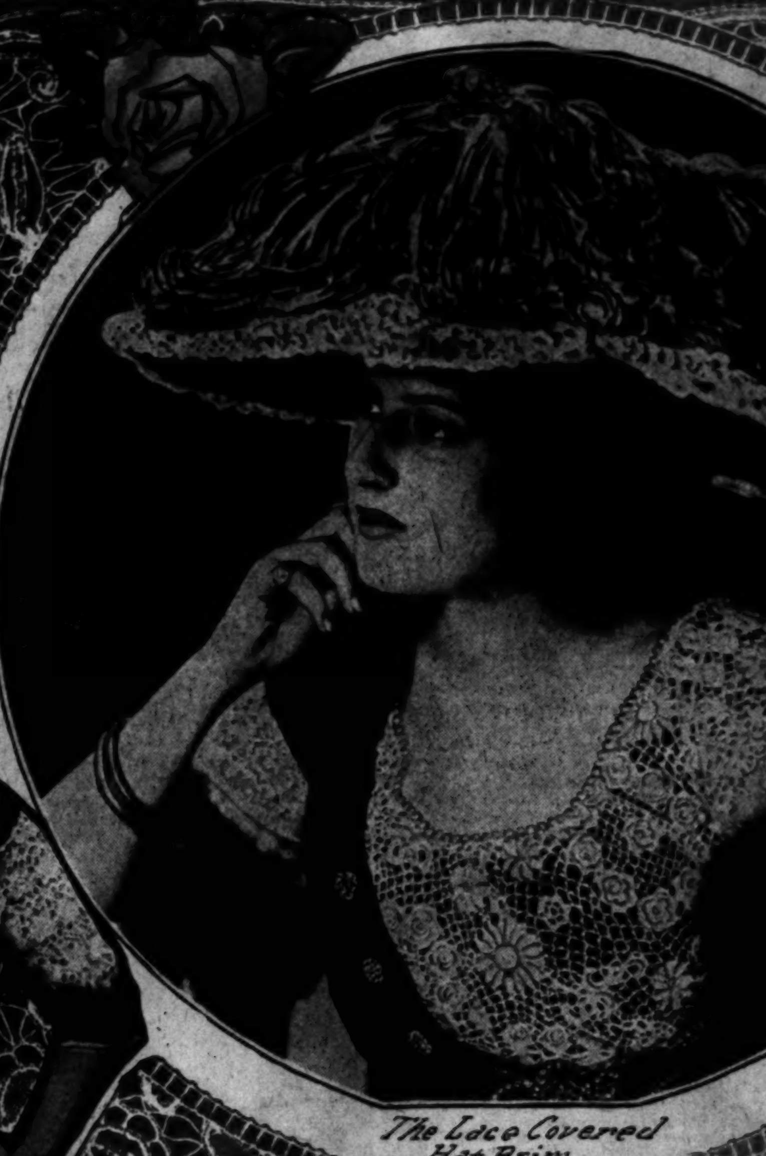
[illegible] Fashions



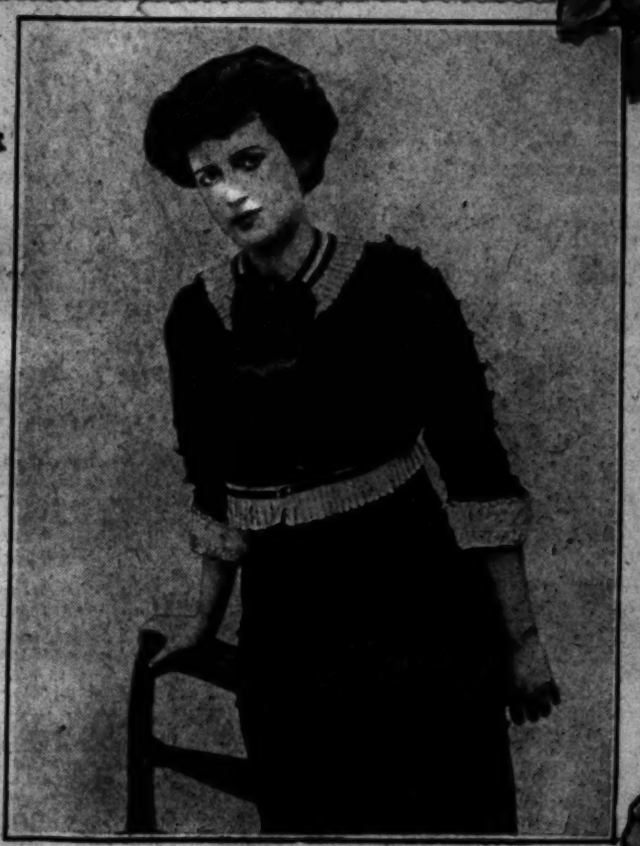
Irish Crochet, on an Evening Gown.



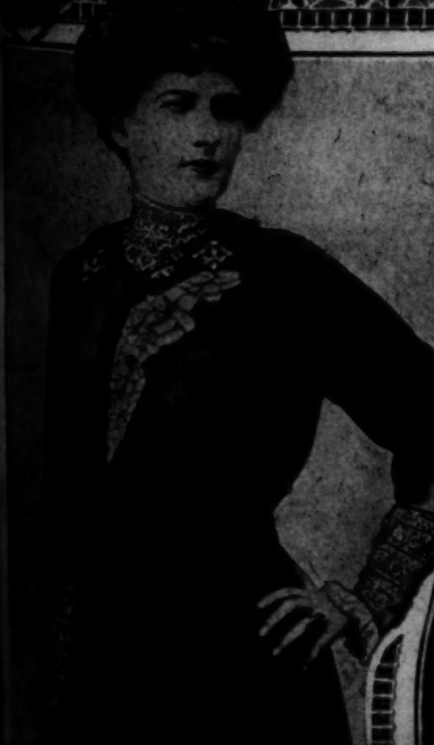
The All-Over Lace Veiling



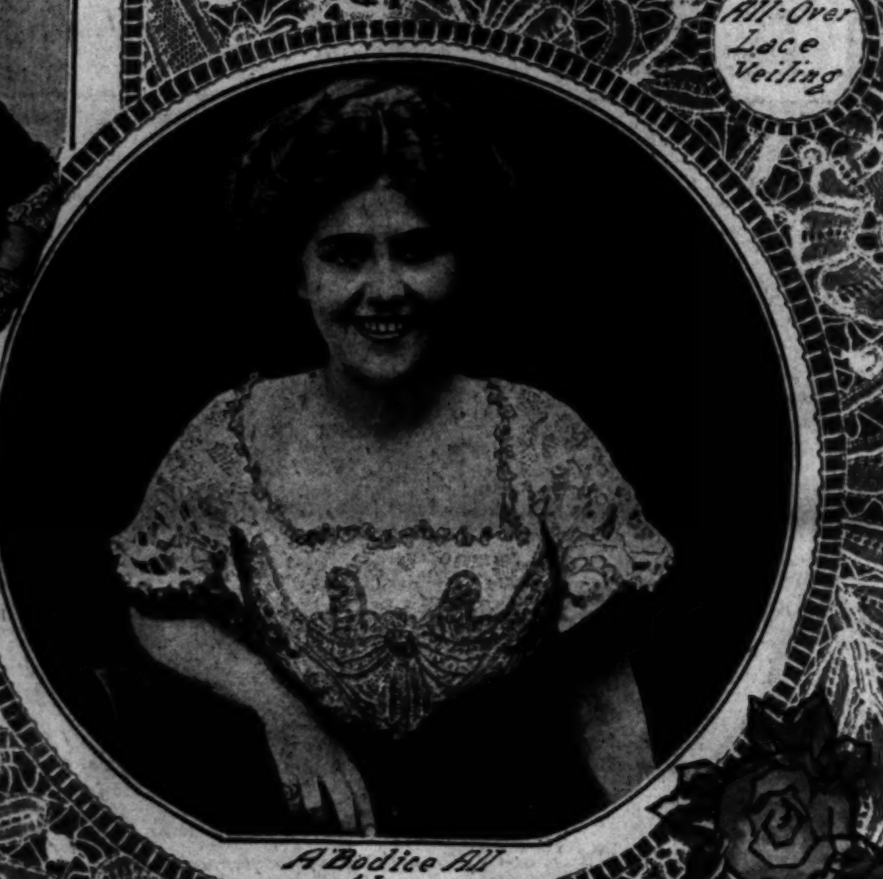
The Lace Covered Hat Brim.



An Odd Bolero Effect.



Side Frill and Undersleeves



A Bodice All of Lace

DISTINCTLY this is as much a lace season as it is a velvet season, and that is saying a good deal. Lace is the dress and hat trimming par excellence, and allover lace is extensively used also.

The beautiful Mexican lace which forms the bodice of the black velvet evening gown is a case in point. The lace is in the usual open design and is sewed over tulle, the only other trimming being the jeweled and beaded butterfly ornament and the passementerie border around the square neck. The short sleeves are entirely of the lace, there being no shoulder seam, and there is a straight cuff of the velvet. The waist line is very high and is accentuated by the sides of the bodice stretching to the arms themselves.

The lace-trimmed hatbrim is very fashionable indeed, especially with a plumed hat. It is simply folded over from beneath and tacked down with the edge turned inward, as shown here. Heavy Irish or cluny lace is usually employed.

The lace bodice reappears in the fur-trimmed velvet gown, this time in Irish crochet. The velvet extends over one side like a tartan; the lace, however, forms half the bodice and the sleeves. It is fastened to the velvet by pearl buttons.

For a less elaborate frock lace is still in order. In the plum-colored serge shown here it forms the chemisette and the tucked oversleeves and also the side frill appearing under the braid-trimmed front opening. A heavy lace, almost like a renaissance, is used here. The necessary touch of barbaric color is given by the sequin ornaments at the collar.

The allover lace tunic is a truly gorgeous affair. It is especially effective in white over black, as witness the black satin gown shown here. The tunic itself is plain and straight, being caught on the skirt by a jet plastron. The whole satin skirt is veiled under the lace in fringed jet-spangled net. On the bodice there is a combination of jet beading and heavy black embroidery, with black satin roses leading to the black chiffon yoke over Persian crepe. The sleeves are of the lace, with cuffs corresponding to this yoke. At the girdle the lace is cut so as to show bands of the black satin beneath..

A quaint style, suited to slim figures, is the velvet bolero suit trimmed with pleated lace. This lace forms turnback cuffs, middy collar and a straight band at the bottom of the bolero. This and the collar are trimmed with double bands of black velvet. A velvet tie and a straight satin band in front, with velvet buttons in triple rows, complete a very smart costume.

Lace, then, is appropriate—and the most appropriate—trimming for all manner of gowns, be they for the most formal or the most informal occasions. Therefore, open your lace drawer and see what is there!

SCHOOL for HOUSEWIVES

"OH DO YOU KNOW the MUFFIN MAN"?

MOST of our readers never so much as heard of him until Mrs. Whitney's inimitable series of "We Girls" books introduced lines of the old English song to us. ome, like myself, may have seen the urd travesty of it in vague twenty- years ago at summer watering ces and Adirondack hotels, when a of young persons joined hands and ced to music, up one side of the m and down the other, singing:

O don't you know the muffin man
Who lives in Maiden lane?

he youth of either sex in front of om the laughing singers halted, rking time to the merry tune and ging the challenge, was expected to , join in the chant, link hands with member of the gang at the end of line and dance to the piping of his her comrades.

lrs. Whitney's girls invited their as- iates to unite in the house-to-house sion of daily loving and daily serv- begun by the Holabirds and their geners.

hey sang the line correctly, if my mory serves me aright.

rigin and date of the ancient ditty unknown to this generation.

O-h-h! do you know the muffin man
Who lives in Drury lane?

y have antedated the actors who de the "Lane" famous. Or, for ght any of us now alive can say, it y have been the chorus to a satirical undelay. We would call it now "a ical song."

he muffin man it immortalizes was of the best-known figures in the ndon streets two centuries ago.

he grave author of a work upon the ed question of "London Labor and the London Poor" informs us, incidentally, that

"The muffin man carries his delicacies in a basket, wherein they are well swathed in flannel to retain the heat."

That laborer was passing poor who did not know him and the delicacies he hawked about the streets.

English stories take the muffin for granted in detailing the ways and means of family life. Our dignified lexicon has five or six words, single and compound, in which it figures.

The muffin itself is "a light, round, spongy cake. The English variety is usually eaten toasted and buttered."

The plain fact being that the English muffin is IT! and that all others are "varieties" of the original stock. This is tacitly acknowledged in America, in the sale of "English muffins" by every baker. Another dictionary defines the word as "a cylindrical cake, usually eaten for breakfast and tea."

In England—the home of the muffin and the haunt of the muffin man—the appearance of the "cake," toasted, hot and buttered, marks the distinction between a simple "afternoon tea" and a "high tea," at which function thin slices of pink ham accompany the muffin, and marmalade makes of it a second course.

The English housemothers say that what go in "the States" for muffins should have other names. The muffin proper, as known to them, and which has come down from immemorial days—centuries, perhaps—is invariably "raised" with yeast. The same is asserted of the crumpet, which is a first cousin of the national "delicacy." And another distinguishing feature of both cousins—they are baked upon both sides upon a griddle, whereas the "varieties" called "muffins" with us are usually baked in the oven and not turned. Consequently, the muffin and the crumpet are flattened on top and bottom, with straight sides, having taken the form of the ring. Lexicographers take notice of the muffin ring, too.

When I was a child my young blood was chilled and my curly hair stood up straight at the hearing of a gruesome conundrum sprung upon a party of youngsters by an evil-minded lad. It had to do with a "bottomless vessel to hold blood and bones in." It was mingled relief and disappointment to learn that the horror was a wedding ring. Going into the kitchen soon after, and seeing the colored mistress of the realm pouring batter into a bottomless vessel that yet did not let it escape, I ever thereafter associated it with the ghastly puzzle.

That the ring retained the semiliquid remained a mystery until I was old enough to comprehend that the hot griddle upon which it was set instantly seared the batter into a bottom crust.

"Warmed over by toasting."

"They are baked on a griddle."

The following recipes are given in reply to numerous requests for instructions as to the manufacture of "real English muffins, such as we get abroad and which are sold by our bakers here." The formulas may be relied upon as genuine. They were obtained in England and from authentic sources.

English Muffins

Heat a pint of milk to scalding, but do not let it boil. Stir into it a tablespoonful of lard or butter and let it get lukewarm. Have ready sifted a pint of flour and a teaspoonful of salt. It is well to sift it twice to make sure the salt is evenly distributed. Also, to dry the flour in the sun or in an open oven. Dissolve half a yeast cake in three tablespoonfuls of warm water and beat into the batter. Beat hard for three minutes. Set aside to rise in a bowl, covered with a thick cloth, or in a mixing bowl with a perforated cover. Set in a tolerably warm place, where the temperature will remain even all night. In the summer six hours is enough for the rising.

In the morning sift half a pint of flour upon the foaming surface and beat it in hard with a wooden spoon. The result should be a soft dough, rather than batter. Let this rise for half an hour, or until it nearly doubles in bulk, and pour into the muffin rings. These should be well greased and arranged in order upon the hot griddle on the top of the range. Much depends upon the heat of griddle and range.

A soapstone griddle needs no greasing. If you use an iron griddle, be sure to grease it evenly and well.

In ten minutes slip a cake-turner under the muffins and invert them dexterously. When both sides are done run a knife blade around the inside of each ring and turn out the muffins. Split while hot, butter and send to table at once.

They are best when eaten fresh. Yet the English rarely do this. Nor do we who buy the muffins from the baker who fills with us the place of the muffin man. Muffins are no longer peddled from door to door or cried in the streets, "well swathed in flannel to retain the heat."

The modern Englishwoman likes them as well when warmed over by toasting the inside of the split cake. Which splitting, by the way, must be done by tearing apart the halves after running a knife around the outer edge.

English Crumpets

Stir into three gills of blood-warm water a tablespoonful of melted butter and a half teaspoonful each of sugar and salt. Lastly, break a quarter of a yeast cake into bits and crumble it into the mixture.

Have ready a half-pint cupful of sifted flour and beat into this with a wooden spoon. It should make a very stiff batter. Add more flour gradually if it is not stiff at first. Have at hand a scant cupful of warm (not hot) milk and add to the batter (or dough) slowly, beating steadily until the batter is just stiff enough to pour from the bowl. You should keep up the beating for at least five minutes. Let it rise four hours.

Grease your muffin rings; arrange them upon a heated and greased griddle, and when they are quite warm pour the batter into them until they are half full. Shallow rings are required for crumpets, which are not, when baked, much more than half as thick as muffins.

Bake steadily, turning when the under side is fully done.

Crumpets are not split before they are eaten.

English Bread Crumpets

These are always made on baking day.

Take out a pint of dough which has risen all night and is ready to be wrought into loaves. Put into a mixing bowl and burrow a hole in the middle about halfway to the bottom of the mass. Have two eggs beaten very light and with a wooden spoon work them into the dough.

When they have yellowed the dough all through, begin to beat in lukewarm milk until you have a batter a little thicker than that of griddle cakes. Mix and stir hard for a minute, cover and leave to rise for an hour.

Pour by the ladleful upon a hot griddle; turn when the lower side is done. Butter while they are smoking hot and serve.

They are lighter than the stiffer muffin and not so tough. To my taste, they are more palatable.

American Muffins

Which are—the English being judges—to be classed as "scones," and in Lancashire as "lard cakes."

They are, with a few exceptions, quick breads, owing their buoyancy and tenderness to the eggs and butter they contain.

Here is one of the best of the tribe:

Rice Muffins

Cream together two tablespoonfuls of butter, or one of butter and one of lard, with a scant tablespoonful of sugar. Beat three eggs light and add to the creamed shortening and sugar. Now stir in a quart of milk (lukewarm) and a pint of flour, sifted three times with a teaspoonful of baking powder. Next beat in a teaspoonful of salt, and when you have a thin, smooth batter a cupful of cold boiled rice. Beat for two minutes; turn into greased pate pans and bake in a quick oven. Keep covered for five minutes, then brown lightly.

Serve whole and at once. They will be sweet, tender and delicious. Break apart and butter when you begin to eat them. With honey or powdered sugar they make a nice dessert for luncheon.

Hominy Muffins

are yet more toothsome than rice.

Work into two cups of fine hominy, boiled and cold, three cups of loppered milk or sour buttermilk, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, two even teaspoonfuls of salt, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, and when these ingredients are thoroughly incorporated, three well-beaten eggs. Beat with quick, upward strokes from the bottom of the bowl for three minutes and stir in a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in warm water. Last of all, fold in a cupful of sifted flour as you would into sponge cake.

Mix and bake quickly and eat hot. They should melt in the mouth.

American Raised Muffins

Make a smooth batter of a quart of milk, half a yeast cake dissolved in a little warm water, two tablespoonfuls of white sugar, one tablespoonful of butter, a teaspoonful of salt, and flour for a good batter. It should have a little more consistency than pound-cake batter. Pour into a bowl; cover and let it rise all night in winter; in summer, six hours. In the morning, or when the six hours are up, stir very hard and beat into it four well-beaten eggs.

Have your greased muffin rings arranged in a heated baking pan in a quick oven. Pour in the batter, filling each ring halfway to the top; shut the oven at once and do not reopen it for twenty minutes.

THE HOUSEMOTHERS' EXCHANGE

IMPORTANT NOTICE

BECAUSE of the enormous number of letters sent to the Exchange, I must ask contributors to limit their communications to 100 words, except in cases of formulas or recipes which require greater space. I want all my correspondents to have a showing in the Corner, and if my request in this respect is complied with it will be possible to print many more letters.

Paying Debts

FINE article that by "A Mother" (Harrisburg, Pa.), "How can we pay our debts if others do not pay us?"

An astonishing number of people are care- s in that respect. My husband has been business for twenty years, and every tle while there is a loss of $20 or $25, ich, of course, makes us get along upon at much less. It is not just. We pay r bills, no matter how inconvenient it may at the time, as every one should. We ay have to wear cheaper clothes than me of our neighbors, but we have the approval of honest consciences.

Have you room for a wee recipe?

Pudding Sauce

One tablespoonful each of butter and flour; cupful of milk and ⅔ of a cup of brown gar.

Melt the butter and stir in the flour until e "roux" is smooth; boil three minutes, rring constantly, and add the sugar. It is od! Mrs. H. F. E. (Davenport, Ia.).

Our correspondent touches all too htly upon the iniquity of not paying e's honest debts. It is nothing less an a deliberate theft to shirk the yment of a bill when it is due. The n or woman who lets tradesman or siness acquaintance or friend lose $25 $50 due him for value received or rrowed steals the amount as truly as he picked the creditor's pocket or bbed a silver chest.

am dishonest—not almost, but actu- y—if, when I contract a debt, I have t good reason for believing that I can y when the bill falls due. The oman who does not pay her dress- aker does not own the clothes she ars. The householder who does not y the grocer eats and drinks as a uper might, at the expense of the man o trusted him for the food.

One cannot be too punctilious in this atter. The habit of "letting bills n" is the first step in a career of avery. If you are inclined to doubt this, sit down and compute the amount of interest the creditor loses during the weeks or months of procrastination.

Fermented Jelly

I have about forty glasses of jelly of various flavors which have soured through being kept in too warm a place. The jellies are not molded, but sour—or fermented. Can it be used in any way?

Mrs. J. E. C. (Salina, Kan.).

Turn it all into a kettle; stir in a teaspoonful of baking soda. The mass will effervesce furiously. Let the bubbles subside and bring to a boil. Add a cupful of sugar for every two quarts of the jelly and cook gently for ten minutes. Turn into glasses and when it is cold and firm pour melted paraffine upon the surface and fit on the tops. Keep in a cool, dark place.

Jellies and preserves redeemed from absolute uselessness in this way have not the fine flavor of those which have not fermented. Yet they are not unpalatable and will do service in sauces, cake fillings, etc. They are very tolerable in puddings, such as bread-and-jam puddings.

And the children eat them satisfiedly with bread and butter.

To Flavor Cottage Cheese

With regard to the recipe for cottage cheese published in a late issue of the Exchange, I would say I have eaten the same, which was very good. It is even more delicious when flavored with onion.

Kindly inform me how this was done.

GRETCHEN (Vallejo, Cal.).

Grate an onion fine. Put it into a bit of cheesecloth and squeeze out the juice. When your curds are firm chop fine and work in the juice. Be careful not to get too much in. The cheese should have just what the French call "un soupcon" (a suspicion) of the onion. Then work in a few spoonfuls of rich cream until you have the right consistency. Salt to taste.

Potato Doughnuts

One pint of hot mashed potato, a tablespoonful of butter, 2 eggs, 2 cups of granulated sugar, 3 cups of flour sifted several times with 2 teaspoonfuls of baking powder, 1 cup of sweet milk. Flavor with nutmeg or vanilla.

Mix the butter and sugar with the potato; beat until it is dissolved, when it will be very soft, almost liquid. Let it cool until it is lukewarm. Beat eggs, whites and yolks together, very light; add them to the potato mixture. Now stir in the milk, the flour and the baking powder and flavoring. Roll into a sheet about a quarter of an inch thick and cut into shapes.

Fry in hissing hot, deep fat.

These doughnuts absorb very little fat, are light and delicious.

Mrs. E. S. H. (Keokuk, Ia.).

They have the added virtue of wholesomeness, so far as the cruller family, or anything fried in fat, can be wholesome.

All doughnuts and their congeners are better the second day than on the first, and more digestible. The hot fat has evaporated partially. It should never penetrate beyond the surface. If of the right temperature, it forms instantly an impervious coating, which excludes the fat from the heart.

Tea-Stained Linen

Kindly give me a recipe for removing tea stains from table linen.

Mrs. P. (Camden, N. J.).

First rinse the linen in soft, lukewarm water. Then soak it overnight in a strong solution of cream of tartar and water. Next morning rinse again, and if there remain any vestige of the stain, lay the linen in the sun for six or seven hours, wetting hourly with lemon juice.

Next time tea is spilled upon the linen, wash out at once with clean lukewarm water and it will leave no stain. Much depends upon washing spots while they are fresh. There are few that will not yield to that summary treatment. Ink, while wet, may be removed quickly and completely by washing the fabric in plenty of sweet milk. I have seen a large black spot made by the fall of a bottle of ink upon a carpet taken out within ten minutes by the vigorous application of milk. Sponge freely, changing the milk for fresh several times. Finally, wash the milk out with warm suds and rinse with alcohol.

Give Us Plenty of Time

A request from Platteville, Wis., for a menu for a luncheon to be served at a silver wedding on a certain date, was not received until the day had passed. I take this opportunity to notify correspondents of the necessity of writing some weeks in advance of the date of any function concerning which they would have advice. In the instance before me, the esteemed correspondent sent in a recipe for Biblical cake, for which we tender our thanks, with the expressed hope that we may be of service to her at some future day, although we were too late to officiate at the silver wedding. It is not, however, too late to offer sincere congratulations and best wishes for her continued life and happiness.

A Word for the Roux

Will you take in a new member?

What you say of a "roux" is true. Have you tried it upon vegetables? My grandmother, a good old German hausfrau, used to make a roux and pour it over cabbage, spinach, beans and, in fact, all kinds of vegetables, after they were cooked and drained.

Buttermilk soup was, likewise, one of her good dishes. We ate it as a first course to our meal, luncheon or dinner.

C. L. W. (Brooklyn, N. Y.).

A white roux in that case became "drawn butter," called by some "white sauce." It is a decided improvement to onions, cabbage, potatoes, celery, etc. I have never seen it eaten with spinach. You are heartily welcomed to our ever-widening "Family Circle."

A Helpful Quartet

Will you kindly state in the Exchange that onions will not stain the fingers deeply if the latter are greased before the onions are pared?

Also that peach stains which will not "boil out" may be effaced by whisky.

Perhaps some mother may like to have a recipe for apple sauce cake, now that eggs are so dear? It never fails.

Apple Sauce Cake

One cup of sugar, ½ cup of shortening; 1 cup of unsweetened apple sauce, 1 teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a little hot water and stirred into the apple sauce, 1½ cups of pastry flour, ½ teaspoonful of cloves, 1 teaspoonful of cinnamon, a little nutmeg and salt, 1 cup of raisins.

Bake in a slow oven.

Mrs. J. H. B. (Middletown, Conn.).

Apples are a trifle cheaper than eggs, although the prices demanded for the king of fruits far exceed those we paid for them formerly. The idea of substituting them for eggs is novel. The combination with soda imparts the "raising" power.

Steak in a New Form

Have you ever tried rouladen? They are made somewhat after the fashion of "mock duck."

Rouladen

Cut round steak into small strips, spread these with chopped fat pork seasoned to taste; roll up; tie securely with cotton twine and dip into flour. Have ready in a casserole a good-sized piece of butter; put the rouladen in; cover and let them cook in their own juice for fifteen minutes, turning them once or twice. Then pour in a generous cupful of water; cover and cook gently until they are done. Clip and remove the string and serve in their own gravy. TILLIE K. (Sheboygan, Wis.).

Of course, the gravy should be drained off and thickened with browned flour before serving. Roll up once and pour back over the meat.

And would not the rouladen be more savory if cooked in weak stock instead of boiling water? Forgive the suggestion, but the new dish strikes me as a pleasing novelty and I would have it as good as may be. Housewives on the lookout for variations of daily fare without increase of expenditure cannot pass this by.

Old English Cake Recipe

The town of Shrewsbury, in England, gave its name to cake so delicious and so unlike anything of the cake tribe we buy or make today, that I thought you might like to have it.

Directions must be faithfully followed. My mother made these cakes in England seventy-five years ago. They had then well-deserved fame. The recipe has been in use for, probably, hundreds of years. They cannot be made successfully in hot weather.

Shrewsbury Cakes

One pound of best flour, sifted three or four times; ½ a pound of loaf sugar ground to a powder; ½ a pound of best fresh butter. These ingredients must be rubbed together with the tips of the fingers until you have a heap of what looks like coarse cornmeal.

Beat 3 or 4 eggs very light. Blend with the other ingredients to a dough stiff enough to be rolled out. Roll into a thin sheet upon a pastry board. Cut into rounds and bake in a steady oven. When done they should be of a pinkish-brown. As soon as they are done, put into a cake box wrapped in a cloth to exclude the air.

As Shrewsbury cakes have a peculiar flavor of their own, if made exactly according to the recipe, any flavoring or yeast powder would spoil them. A half teaspoonful of salt and a little overweight in sugar and butter is an improvement. EMILY (Virginia Beach).

Having been on the lookout for this ancient and honorable recipe for many weeks, I am extremely gratified to get hold of it. We are gaining valuable matter for the Exchange from our Virginia Beach contingent. Tidewater Virginia had a reputation for excellent cookery in colonial days, and it has kept it up.

Lard Instead of Butter

From another quarter of our territory comes a word in favor of the substitution of lard for butter in cake-making. There must be more in the plan than seemed possible to me at the first glance. I have heard of combining the two "shortenings" in pastry and even in gingerbread. That lard could take the place of butter in the finer kinds of cake seemed absurd. Yet read what our member from California says:

I note your reply to a contributor who uses lard instead of butter in cake-making. You say you "do not see how good cake can be made without butter." You except, naturally, sponge cake.

I make all kinds of cake and I do not use one ounce of butter. Nor do I ever make poor cake! If you had ever worked in a bakeshop you would know that butter is rarely put into any except "extra work." That is, in something especially fine.

Some time I shall send you a recipe for a cake that I composed myself. There is not a particle of butter in it.

Put a teaspoonful of sugar in the bottom of your oven and your pies will brown beautifully.

CHARLES H. W. (San Francisco, Cal.).

Let us have the original composition. From a professional baker it comes with a ready-made reputation.

Cooking Pomegranates

In a late issue of the Exchange I read an inquiry as to ways of cooking pomegranates. You answered that you knew of none.

One would naturally expect that the information desired would come from the tropics. But I recently acquired a book of much value and interest to me, "Fruit Recipes," by Riley M. Fletcher-Berry. In that I find the inclosed recipes. I have not tested them, but they seem reasonable.

Let me say that I get much of help and suggestion from the Exchange.

Why can't women be content to be housekeepers, wives and mothers!

Pomegranate Ice

Cut a dozen ripe pomegranates in half and remove seeds from the rind carefully. Press as carefully through a sieve. Do not break the seeds, as the flavor is most unpleasant. Stir 1 pound of sugar into the juice until it is dissolved. Add gradually a pint of water. Strain and freeze.

Pomegranate Jelly and Jam

Use the tart varieties, or those somewhat underripe, and proceed as for other such preparations. The jelly is particularly beautiful.

Pomegranate Wine

May be made successfully, and the [illegible] seeds removed, may be served [illegible] fresh, with flavoring of orange [illegible] rosewater or [illegible] and sugar.

Mrs. E. D. M. C. (Jacksonville, Ill.).

The foregoing recipes shed a kind of tropical warmth through our Exchange. Pomegranates are dear in northern markets, but our territory embraces the milder climes, where vegetation is perpetual and more than twelve [illegible] of fruits are to be had for the gathering every month of the year.

I hope the California housemother who asked for ways of cooking the classic fruit will see the formulas contributed by the Illinois member.

Pad the petals of the daisies with long stitches in darning cotton and work across with soft mercerized cotton. They work very quickly. Do the same with the slender leaves and work the dots in either solid or eyelet embroidery.

The other flowers you will work in solid stitch and use French knots for the centers.

When doing the stem use a long outline stitch, and then retrace your steps, as it were, by whipping over and over and catching the overlapped stitches together.

The repeat for the ruffle can be used continuously around the ruffle or just at the front and sides. The amount of work is to be decided by you in this instance.

When working the edge, first pad the scallops and then work in buttonhole stitches. They are shallow, and you will find that you will quickly finish the top and armholes. The eyelets are buttonholed, and are in this pattern conveniently large for ribbon or linen tape. This latter, by the way, is very durable and looks like white ribbon, only it wears better.

Of course, you can use your own judgment when tracing this design on your nainsook. By holding up against a window pane a quick lead-pencil outline can be made. Carbon paper, too, is good. Use it between this page and your material, and the blue impression can be made by tracing over the outline with a hard pencil or pointed instrument.

This design can be broken up into just the corset cover, if you like; or the gored petticoat can have a flounce to match the combination. Indeed, the beauty of the flowers (with a comparatively small amount of work) cannot be too often repeated.

Even lace is seen in these girdles, both as veiling over color, as medallions and (as I mentioned before) as edging. The heavier laces principally are used. Cluny, Irish and the like for the more delicate varieties, besides being less serviceable, seem more appropriate for use in summer than now.

Metallic lace is used a great deal to give that Byzantine or oriental touch that seems indispensable nowadays. Even dotted net is sometimes seen, but not so much the familiar white article as the curiously beautiful tarnished gold or bronze net, the dots worked heavily in the same metallic effect.

Marabou or, better, the new cut ostrich feather edging comes in for its share of attention as sash trimming. Remember, however, that spring will soon be at hand and that these ornaments will then be rather out of place. But on the gown designed for

A clever correspondent has suggested to me that girdles, widened, might make scarfs, and that scarfs, narrowed, might make girdles. There is infinite matter for thought in the latter half of this suggestion. The separate scarf, now so popular, must some day meet its end, and then is the time to utilize the lovely "remains" left upon our hands—or our shoulders. Some will undoubtedly go to make crepe or chiffon blouses, some to drape turbans or toques, but the greater part will slip down to our waists in the form of sashes and girdles.

be extremely easy of accomplishment, and in practically all cases it will be possible. Even now, if you are superfluously bescarfed, to coin a needed word, you might try your hand at folding, cutting or tucking the scarf into a girdle. Remember to avoid the knobby bow in the back or any kind of bow at the side. Both of these have long been unfashionable. The big, flat Alsatian or former, is the proper thing if you find a bow of any sort necessary. Perhaps some sort of freshening up will be in order. You will be surprised to find what a multitude of sins can be covered by a judicious placing of medallions, beads or buttons—like the woman who tore and had to darn her silk dress, and so darned it in regular patterns all over!

And, by the way, do not forget the button-trimmed girdle. Buttons have reappeared everywhere, and the sash is included. They may perform actual service, fastening back turned-over flaps, holding on bows, etc., or they may be purely ornamental. One good point they have is the way they hold down by their weight the girdle end and keep it in place. The larger buttons are usually fabric-covered, the smaller ones jet or metal.

And now let any woman dare to say that she doesn't know how to make the

Hints

SHRINK your wool skirt braid fore sewing it on.

Sew narrow bias binding o frayed shirtwaist cuffs.

Make white yokes on colored black dresses separate, so that t can be laundered. Hooks and e will do the work.

Or sew beading on yoke and blou and lace them together with narr white tape.

Make longer buttonholes for rou buttons than for flat.

Make Your Own Bust Form

YOU can make a bust form which will do away with further necessity of having your blouses fitted on you, by cutting a fitted bodice lining of unbleached muslin or drilling, including the sleeves, and machine stitching it firmly.

Then buy an ordinary papier mache bust form at least two sizes too small for you and place the lining you have just made upon it, stuffing out the space between with cotton batting or tissue paper. Stuff the sleeves in the same way and sew the cuff opening together.

With a tape mark your waist line, and see that it is perfectly accurate on the stuffed figure. Do the same for the collar and cuffs.

If you can tack this figure to a board screwed into the wall at exactly the height of your waist, you will have a skirt measure also, and will be relieved of much of the bother of fitting. By the way, black material will look better than white after long service, roll down the back.

Underline with some thin material the gathered portion over the chest, so that it will keep its shape.

Sew in at the center back a narrow strip of belting, fastening with a buckle in front, so as to regulate the fullness at the waist.

At the back of this belting sew brass rings, crocheted over, or crochet heavy loops; and sew hooks on your skirt to fasten into them and hold the waist down.

Arrange the cuffs like the neckband, so that one thickness of the fabric hides the place where the button and buttonhole connect.

Work buttonholed loops at the bottom of the collarband and sew tiny pearl

THREE WAYS TO TRANSFER

HERE are suggestions for transferring the pattern before you to an material before working.

Perhaps the easiest way is the "window-pane" method. This is suc cessful when the material is thin, like linen, batiste, etc. Pin the sheet o paper and the material together and hold them up against the glass of window. With a sharp pencil draw on the material the design, which ca be easily seen through the goods. If one-half of the design only be given unpin the paper and turn the other side to the fabric. The strong ligh behind will make it plain.

If you have carbon paper, you should place the sheet between your fabri and the newspaper. The latter is on top. With a sharp pencil go over th outline of the design. The impression will be left in fine lines and will la until worked. This method is successful on heavy material.

The last way is also easy. On wax paper or ordinary tissue paper trac the pattern before you. When the design is completed, turn over the pape and outline the pattern with a heavy lead pencil. Then place the desig down on the fabric and redraw the outline, pressing hard with the penci The pattern will be transferred without difficulty.

Surely the way is easy.

RAINY-DAY SEWING CLASS

DEAR ELEANOR:

Entertaining your namesake on rainy days is growing to be a matter for serious thought and consideration. My latest bright idea has been a sewing class to keep the girlies' minds and fingers busy together. My daughter and her young friends meet in our living room and help outfit their dollies, and I sit and work on my own sewing while they chatter and play.

I smile as I look back on the pretty picture they made this afternoon. Eleanor (pardon the vicarious conceit of mentioning her first) was in dark blue rough cloth: a little dress I have made very simply, with a white guimpe and black braiding and buttons on the blouse. A black velvet girdle passes under the straps at the waist and falls at the right side.

Little Mildred Fanning was in white voile: a dainty little frock, with bandings and blouse embroidery of old rose and a pretty tucked yoke.

Then there was Cecily Barker, in dull blue challis, tucked on the skirt, the sleeves and the side pleats of the blouse. The little chemisette fastened with a lace collar and a big black velvet bow.

Even I had a new gown "for the occasion": a wistaria poplin, trimmed with black velvet straps and buttons on the sleeves and down the bodice and with a black velvet tie laced through the front.

Come and sew with us some afternoon—and bring Teddy to provide variety!

Your loving sister. MADGE.
